The special train bearing President Roosevelt from Washington to the launching reached Jersey City at 6:40 a. m. The president remained on board until the arrival of the prince's train.

Soon after 8 the president and the prince and their suites embarked on a boat for Shooters' Island. The party proceeded directly from the ferry boat to the stand which had been erected at the inshore end of the ways, on which the Meteor rested, the guns meanwhile booming salutes and the crowd cheering enthusiastically. The president and prince, with Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt, arrived on the platform at 10:22. The prince conducted Miss Roosevelt to the small platform immediately under the bow of the boat.

At 10:39 Miss Roosevelt raised the bottle of champagne, which had been encased in beautiful silver filigree and which was suspended by a 35 foot silver chain. Dashing the bottle against the side of the vessel with vigorous and effective hand, the wine breaking into spray, Miss Roosevelt said in English: "In the name of the German emperor I christen thee Meteor."

Her voice was loud and clear and could be distinctly heard on all the surrounding platforms. Then she raised a silver ax and severed the rope holding the weight which kept the ship in the ways and the vessel went gracefully into the water.

Soon after the launching the presidential party and the prince proceeded to the hall where a luncheon had been prepared. The health of the prince was drunk and then Prince Henry said:

"On this occasion I wish to call for three hearty cheers for the president of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt—hip, hip, hurrah!" as the prince spoke he waved his arms as a signal and the building shook with responding cheers. Then President Roosevelt raised his right hand, and when there was silence said:

"I ask three cheers for the guest, who has already won our hearts, Henry of Prussia. Now a good one."

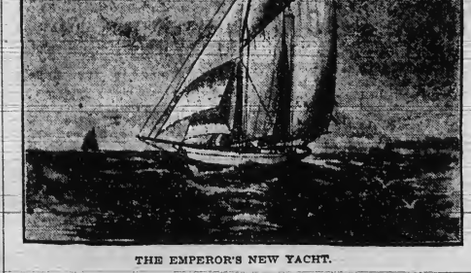
President Roosevelt's hip, hip, hoorah, was drowned in the roar of applause that greeted the call for cheers.

From Shooters' Island the president and the prince went to the Hohenzollern, where luncheon was served.

Prior to the luncheon a golden bracelet in which is set a small picture of Kaiser Wilhelm, was presented by Prince Henry to Miss Alice Roosevelt. The bracelet is studded with diamonds and other precious stones. It was the gift of the emperor.

The luncheon was finished about 3 o'clock. At 3:10 p. m. President and Mrs. Roosevelt entered a carriage and were driven to the Twenty-third street ferry. They went to their special train, leaving Jersey City at 3:55 p. m. for Washington.

New York, Feb. 27.—The luncheon given in honor of his royal highness, Prince Henry of Prussia, by 12 New York gentlemen and German government officials to about 100 Americans from all parts of the United States who are of eminence in the finance, commercial and industrial world, at Sherry's Wednesday was in some respects the most notable function of its kind ever held in this city. There were 137 persons seated at 11 tables.



After this function was over the prince was conveyed to the Arion society's hall on Park avenue, accompanied by Ambassador Von Holleben, Vice Adm. Von Tirpitz, Adm. Count Von Baudissin, Adm. Evans and Col. Bingham, Adjt. Gen. Corbin, Commander Cowles and Assistant Secretary of State Hill. There he was met by a committee of the club, headed by President Frank Von Briessen, who extended a cordial welcome.

Prince Henry replied briefly in German that it gave him great pleasure to find himself in the house of a German society and to be afforded the opportunity of witnessing the parade of the German societies from its balcony.

The imperial party was then escorted to the beautifully decorated balcony of the club. The procession, which had started immediately, commanded the attention of the prince, who seemed immensely pleased and impressed with the spectacle. Toward the close of the procession the prince was greeted by a delegation of Columbia college students on the street, who gave their college yell several times.

Prince Henry dined Wednesday night with 1,000 of the men who make American newspapers. He was the special guest of Herman Ridder, proprietor of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung, who gathered a majority of the leading figures in American journalism. They came from the four quarters of the country and made the most noteworthy gathering of their profession ever assembled in the United States. There was a felicitous exchange of greetings between Prince Henry and the men who spoke for the journalistic craft and the affair claims rank as one of the notable incidents of the American tour of the German prince.

The prince reached the hotel at 6:30 o'clock and was received by Mr. Ridder. They shook hands warmly, and while they paused for a brief talk the members of the suite and the delegates of President Roosevelt filed up to the banquet hall. The band played the American national anthem as the first of the uniformed staff entered, and the crowd of gueste arose. There was a great cheer as the prince appeared and another when he took his place at the side of Mr. Ridder at the special table.

Addresses were made by Whitelaw Reid, Prince Henry, Charles Emory Smith, Charles W. Knapp, Mr. Ridder and others.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Prince Henry of Prussia journeyed to Mount Vernon Thursday afternoon and placed two wreaths in the tomb of Washington. He approached the grave of the first president with bared head, and that there might be nothing irreverent in the ceremony asked the holders of a dozen cameras to refrain from photographing him. The royal visitor and his party were taken to Mount Vernon by special train over the Washington, Arlington & Mount Vernon electric railway. The prince, at the conclusion of the McKinley memorial service at the capitol, drove directly to the special train.

Prince Henry walked to the Washington home and was driven from there down over the slope of the hill to the tomb. When the iron gate of the tomb was opened he removed his cap and entered. Two large wreaths made at Washington by his order already had been sent to the tomb, and taking them up he formally set them in place. A group of over a hundred men stood in the approach to the grave uncovered, and that with their silence added to the spirit of solemnity. Fifty feet down the sward that falls away from the tomb Prince Henry planted a linden tree. The tree had been set in place prior to his arrival, and taking a spade the prince filled the earth in around its roots.

The prince was taken to the old Washington house by Superintendent H. H. Dodge, and there met a delegation of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association, headed by Mrs. Justine Van Rennselaer Townsend, of New York. He spent a few minutes in looking at the Washington relics and then departed for Washington.

Prince Henry, accompanied by Ambassador Von Holleben, dined at the white house Thursday night with President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The dinner was entirely unofficial and of a personal family character.

Washington, March 3.—Prince Henry enjoyed one event not on his official itinerary when he and President Roosevelt went in a rainstorm on a horseback ride of an hour and a quarter through Rock Creek valley and the suburbs in the northwestern section of the city. The ride was arranged personally between the two men during one of their talks at an official function. The prince returned from Annapolis between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and went direct to the white house to pay his farewell visit.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 3.—Prince Henry of Prussia went up Lookout mountain Sunday and after viewing the ground where the union and confederate armies met in conflict and hearing a fresh story of the battles, resumed his journey to the north and west. Leaving Chattanooga his train ran through a corner of Alabama and then turning to the north hurried across Tennessee with a short stop at Nashville, through Kentucky with brief stays at Louisville and Bowling Green, and up into Indiana to another brief halt at Indianapolis. At Indianapolis the course was changed to the westward again and on the tracks of the Vandalia line his train Sunday night left for St. Louis. His reception at

A FIGHT WITH BURGLARS.

The Chief of Police and Two of the Robbers Were Wounded.

Mattoon, Ill., March 3.—In a fight between burglars and officers here early Sunday morning Chief of Police Lyons received wounds that may cause the loss of an arm by amputation and two or three youths whom the police were attempting to capture were wounded, one of them probably fatally. The police, having learned that an attempt would be made to rob a store, stationed several men in the building, and when the three youths entered through a rear window the police attempted to capture them. In the fight that followed Chief Lyons' arm was shattered. Sid Snapp, 17 years of age, was fatally wounded, and one of two brothers named Heath also was shot. The Heaths escaped and are still at large. The parents of the Heaths and young Snapp reside here.

Driven Out By High Water.

Olean, N. Y., March 3.—Sunday night the waters of the Allegheny river rose to within a block of the center of this city. The only railroad track that is passable is the Pennsylvania between Olean and Buffalo. The inhabitants of 200 houses along the river have been forced to abandon their homes.

Escaped From a Floe of Ice.

Destructive Prairie Fires.

Guthrie, Okla., March 3.—A destructive prairie fire near Ft. Cobb did great damage to 100 homesteaders, sweeping away their improvements, stock and all personal property, and compelling the people to flee for their lives.

Inventor Killed Himself.

London, March 3.—Rupert Greville Williams, the inventor of a telopantograph, was found fatally shot in the greenhouse of his residence at Haywood, near Manchester, having committed suicide.

FLOOD AT WHEELING.

Hundreds of Families Are Occupying Their Upper Floors.

Three Boys Seriously Injured By a Partly Filled Can of Nitro-Glycerin Exploding—High Water at Other Points.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 3.—Wheeling is in the grasp of the worst flood it has experienced since that of 1884, with but one exception. The maximum stage was reached at 6 o'clock Sunday evening, 43 feet 3 inches, and the decline was expected to begin about midnight. In Wheeling, Bellaire, Benwood, Martin's Ferry and Bridgeport scores of factories have been entered by the raging waters, fires extinguished and 20,000 men placed on the list of involuntary idleness that will continue until Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Wheeling island was two-thirds covered by water Sunday night and fully 700 families are occupying the upper floors of their homes. South Wheeling and Benwood were hit fully as hard. Owing to the slow advance of the flood tide, however, the people were enabled to move their belongings and as a consequence the property loss is not as heavy as on former occasions.

Sunday afternoon North Wheeling boys built a fire on the river bank and in the debris used as fuel was, among other things, a partially filled can of nitro-glycerin, which exploded with a tremendous report. Three of the boys were seriously injured, but will recover. They are:

Harry Dean, Charles Lytle and Ray Herbert.

Another half-filled can of nitro-glycerin was kicked around in the gutter in front of the Hotel Windsor by boys until an oil man disclosed the character of the contents. There was a scattering of the population in all directions. The police were called and removed the can.

Parkersburg, W. Va., March 3.—The fact that side streams ran out rapidly instead of forming a dam to back up the water from above has kept this city from experiencing a disastrous flood. With the danger line at a 35 foot stage, Sunday night it was 30.4 and rising 4 inches an hour. Forty feet was predicted for Monday, but the water will hardly reach that point. Fifty or more houses are flooded and many cellars are full. By Monday the inundated houses will be double this number. Parkersburg is thankful, after the indications above, to have escaped so fortunately, for much greater damage was anticipated.

Huntington, W. Va., March 3.—The Ohio river is 49.7 feet and rising very slowly, not over an inch an hour. In numbers of adjacent towns many are seeking higher quarters, but the danger line has hardly been reached here. Snow and rain has prevailed since noon. The Big Sandy is still rising at White House, and at Guyan and Twelve Pole it is practically stationary.

East Liverpool, O., March 3.—The high water has flooded the city pumping station to a depth of six feet and the city water supply is cut off. All manufacturing plants will have to suspend till the flood abates.

AN UNUSUAL TRIAL.

Dr. Orvill S. Burnett Found Guilty of the Murder of Mrs. Nichol.

Chicago, March 3.—The jury in the case of Dr. Orvill S. Burnett, who has been on trial charged with the murder of Mrs. Charlotte S. Nichol, of Nashville, Tenn., returned a verdict of guilty and recommended that Burnett be sent to the penitentiary for 15 years. Burnett's attorneys will ask for a new trial Monday. The verdict was a surprise, as Judge Baker's instructions to the jury were considered favorable to the defendant.

The case was one of the most unusual that has ever been tried in the Cook county criminal courts. Burnett, who is a young dentist, was charged with being accessory before and after the fact to the death of Mrs. Nichol, even though it was admitted by the prosecution that Mrs. Nichol had committed suicide. The state endeavored to establish the point that Burnett and Mrs. Nichol agreed to commit suicide together and that the man weakened, allowing the woman to go to her death alone. The defense disputed that there had been any agreement between the two to end their lives together and asserted that Mrs. Nichol had taken her own life while Burnett was lying intoxicated at her side.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

Reading, Pa., March 3.—A terrific explosion occurred Sunday night in the four-story music store of C. H. Lichty. The building at once completely collapsed. This was followed by the three-story brick umbrella factory adjoining of Mrs. Mary Boland. Both buildings and contents were destroyed. A number of persons were in the buildings, but they are all accounted for except Mrs. Boland and a friend who called to spend Sunday evening, and the watchman in the Lichty building. It is believed these three persons perished. The explosion is said to have been due to a gas which was manufactured by a local company, of which Mr. Lichty was president. The total loss is $250,000. Many neighboring buildings were damaged. Half a dozen people were seriously injured and neighboring business buildings were badly damaged.

IN CENTRAL ARABIA.

Abdul Aziz Ben Feysul Captured the City of E'riad.

Bombay, March 3.—Abdul Aziz Ben Feysul, a descendant of the old Wahabi Ameers, with an army of 2,000 men, has captured the city of E'riad, in Central Arabia.

Abdul Aziz Ben Feysul entered the city by strategem at night with 50 followers. These men rode to the palace and killed the governor of E'riad and 30 of his retainers. The garrison of the city then surrendered, whereupon the army of Abdul Aziz Ben Feysul entered.

It is believed that the Wahabi dynasty is endeavoring to regain its supremacy and overthrow Ibu Rashid, the Ameer of Nejd, and conquer the latter city. Many tribes are flocking to the banner of Abdul Aziz Ben Feysul.

WRECKED POST OFFICE SAFE.

Marceline, Mo., March 3.—Robbers wrecked the safe in the post office here Sunday morning with dynamite and got away with practically all its contents, which is said to have been a considerable sum. The explosion brought citizens to the scene, but not before the robbers had made their escape.

Illinois Pioneer Dead.

Willmette, Ill., March 3.—Francis Warner, special agent of the American Express Co., died here Sunday of paralysis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry B. Gates, aged 83 years. Mr. Warner was one of the pioneers of Illinois, having settled in La Salle county in 1843. During the civil war he was employed in detective work for the government at Washington and New Orleans.

Much Damage at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—The second and third piers of the famous old Camel-back bridge on the Harrisburg side were washed away by high water early Sunday. The bridge was built in 1816 and was probably the oldest bridge across the Susquehanna river. It is owned by Harrisburg capitalists and will immediately be rebuilt. Much damage has been done by the high water in and about Harrisburg.

Spirits Reduced One Cent.

Peoria, Ill., March 3.—There was a cut of one cent in the quotations of spirits. The basis for finished goods was reduced from $1.31 to $1.30. The declining prices of corn is said to be responsible for the reduction.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Senate—After eight hours of tumultuous debate Monday the senate, shortly before 7 o'clock Monday evening, passed the Philippine tariff bill by a vote of 46 to 26—a strictly party vote. Mr. Tillman and Mr. McLaurin, the two senators from South Carolina who on Saturday last were declared by the senate to be in contempt because of their fight in the chamber, were not permitted by voice or by vote to participate in the proceedings. As passed the measure provides that articles imported into the Philippine archipelago from the United States shall be required to pay the duties levied against them by the Philippine commission and paid upon like articles imported into the archipelago from foreign countries; that articles imported into the United States from the Philippines shall pay a duty of 75 per cent. of the rates fixed by the Dingley law, less any export taxes paid upon the articles sent from the Philippine archipelago as required by the Philippine commission. All articles now imported into the United States should be hereafter exempt from export duty imposed in the Philippines. The bill exempts the commerce passing between the United States and the Philippines from the operation of the navigation laws of the United States until January 1, 1904, and authorizes the Philippine commission to issue licenses to craft now engaged in lighterage or exclusively harbor business, provided such craft are built in the United States or in the Philippines and owned by citizens of the United States or by inhabitants of the Philippine islands. The duties and taxes collected in pursuance of this act shall be paid into the treasury of the Philippine islands and used for their benefit. All articles manufactured in bonded warehouses of imported materials or of materials subject to internal revenue tax when shipped from the United States to the Philippines, shall be exempt from the internal revenue and all taxes paid upon such articles shipped to the Philippine islands since November 15, 1901, shall be refunded.

House—The house passed a bill to divide Texas into four judical districts and also the Tawney resolution calling on the secretary of war for information concerning the transfer of sugar lands in Cuba since the American occupation. It then transacted some business pertaining to the District of Columbia and later took up the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. The bill carries an appropriation of $1,931,678, an increase of $82,950 over last year.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Senate—But little business was transacted Tuesday and the senate adjourned early on the announcement of the death of Representative Crump.

House—The house passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. It was the fifth of the regular annual supply measures to be sent to the senate at this session. No amendments of importance were adopted. The feature of the day was the speech of Mr. Richardson (Ala.) in reply to Mr. Corliss' speech a few days ago in favor of the construction of a Pacific cable by the government. The question of reforming the consular service was debated at some length, but no amendments on that subject were offered.

Washington, Feb. 27.—House—The house Wednesday sent the Philippine tariff bill to conference, non-concurring in all the senate amendments. The democrats sought to amend the amendments by requiring the rate of duty and declaring the United States should relinquish all claim to the archipelago, but all propositions were defeated.

Washington, March 1.—Senate—The senate Friday adopted the conference report on the permanent census bill and then began consideration of the irrigation measure. For a time, later, the senate considered the omnibus claims bill, but did not dispose of it. The senate agreed to the request of the house for a conference on the Philippine tariff bill and Senators Lodge, Allison and Rawlins were named as the senate conferees. A joint resolution providing for the modification of the project for the improvement of Everett harbor, Washington, was adopted. A bill appropriating $1,250,000 for a public building at New Orleans was passed.

House—The house broke all its records in the matter of private pension legislation, clearing the calendar and passing 159 bills in a little over three hours. Mr. Hopkins (Ill.), chairman of the committee on census, presented the conference report on the bill to locate a permanent census bureau. It was agreed to without debate. The house then adjourned until Monday.

Washington, March 3.—Senate—The senate Saturday, with a slim attendance, made a great plunge into new legislation. The omnibus claim bill, 46 private pension bills and the irrigation bill were passed. An agreement was reached on the conference report on the Philippine islands tariff bill, which measure was the cause of such protracted debate, and which will now go the president for approval.

House—Not in session.

Apology to the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 28.—President Pro. Tem. Frye, of the senate, Thursday morning apologized to the senate for ordering that the names of the senators from South Carolina be removed from the rolls, and to the senator from Washington (Mr. Turner) for overlooking that senator's appeal from the decision of the chair and failure to put the same to the senate.

Conspiracy to Bribe.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 27.—Henry A. Taylor, of New York, was found guilty of conspiracy to bribe by the jury in the superior court Wednesday night. This is the second conviction as a result of the recent investigation of the city water scandal.

Buried Under Falling Walls.

Munich, Bavaria, Feb. 27.—During a fire at Dinkelsbuhl the wall of a house collapsed and buried 15 members of the local volunteer fire brigade. There is no hope of rescuing the men alive.

COWPEAS.

Cowpeas are planted broadcast or in drills, very commonly between the corn rows after the crop is laid by. The amount of seed used varies from 4 quarts to 2 bushels per acre, the average amount being, perhaps, about 3 pecks. If sown in drills, 18 to 30 inches apart, less seed is required than when sown broadcast. The seed will stand being covered to the depth of 2 or 3 inches, but care must be taken to plant when the ground is neither too wet nor too cold, as the peas rot very rapidly under such circumstances. In regard to excess of moisture cowpeas behave like beans, and in the early stages delight in a warm, mellow seed bed. Much of the failure that has attended the attempt introduction of cowpeas in the Northern States is due to planting before the ground is warm enough. It must be remembered that this plant originated in the Tropics and that when transplanted to higher latitudes it makes its best growth in the hottest weather. It is even more susceptible to cold and wet than is corn. Hence, proper delay in planting will permit economy in the use of seed. Where the vines are grown for hay, the yield will be larger if the seed is planted in drills and cultivated a time or two. The yield of peas is also larger when only a moderate amount of seed is sown and the vines have more space and light and air between them. It is also heavier from late-planted vines than from the very early ones. In tests to determine the relative value of different named varieties it has been found that, as a rule, those which make the heaviest yields of vines also bear large crops of peas.

The vines should be mowed for hay when the peas are well formed and the leaves and pods are first beginning to turn yellow. After wilting on the ground or in windrows from twenty-four to forty-eight hours, the hay is placed in small, thin piles, or cocks, and allowed to cure for several days, when it may be carted to the barn or stacked under sheds. The haymaking process is a difficult one, requiring more care and attention than in the case of red clover, because the broad leaves and thick stems contain a longer amount of water. The hay must be placed in cocks before the leaves become brittle, and the piles must be small enough to allow free circulation of air to the center of each. Bright cowpea hay, clean and well cured, is worth as much as the best red-clover hay, and there is no good reason why the Southern farmers and planters should buy the Northern-grown article for their working stock or for fattening their cattle. Every ton of hay used on the farm should be grown here. Another method of curing hay is to stack the vines in a pen or rack of rails or poles so arranged as to allow the air to enter every part of the pile. This stacking over poles is best where the vines are pulled, or where the trailing and creeping sorts are used. The bush varieties are the best for hay, because of the greater ease with which they may be mowed and handled. They also hold their leaves better than the ranker trailing sorts. The yield of hay varies according to the fertility of the soil upon which it is raised, whether it is grown on rich lowlands or on the drier and more sterile uplands. In the Gulf States cowpeas will probably give an average yield of 2 to 3 tons per acre, while 4 to 6 tons are not uncommon. Farther north the average will range from 1½ tons in Ohio to 2½ tons in Arkansas, Missouri, and Tennessee. As with other crops, the time of planting, the character of the soil and of the cultivation, and the amount of rainfall have much to do with the yield. Along the Gulf it is one of the best hay crops. North of the latitude of the Ohio River it is chiefly valuable as an addition to the list of drought-resistant, soiling crops and as a crop that will yield a considerable amount of forage on soil too sterile to grow red clover. The commercial value runs from $6 to $20 per ton, being governed by the relative abundance of other grades of hay and fodder. Its feeding value is equal to that of the best red clover, and the hay ranks high in palatability and digestibility.

When cowpeas are planted for green manure, it is an excellent practice to turn hogs into the field about the time that the first peas are ripening. Young pigs thrive amazingly on the succulent foliage and well-filled pods, and the quality of the pork raised on such a healthful and nutritious diet is very fine. This is a profitable method of fattening hogs or of preparing them for market, as with corn or sorghum for market. An acre of ripening cowpeas will pasture from fifteen to twenty hogs for several weeks, and the gain in fertility from the droppings of the animals during that period will more than counterbalance the fertilizing value of the forage eaten. The rapid increase in weight will thus represent so much clear profit, and the farmer is richer by half a ton or more of prime pork for every acre planted.

Chickens and turkeys also eat the ripe peas and do well upon them. Cattle and horses are sometimes pastured on them, but the safer and more economical way of feeding the green cowpea vines to such stock is to cut or pull and feed partially wilted. There will be less waste and destruction from trampling, and if each animal is given only so much as it can eat clean, the greatest economy as well as greatest profit will result. Furthermore, cattle and sheep are liable to bloat if allowed to eat too ravenously of cowpea vines or any other rich and succulent forage, and by using it as a soiling crop the danger may be more readily controlled and the loss prevented. The report has been sent out from some of the Northern experiment stations, where this forage plant is not ordinarily cultivated, that cattle will not eat the green vines except after having been starved to it, and then only sparingly. We have seen Western horses and ponies that would not touch red clover or a grain ration of oats, and Eastern stock that would not eat alfalfa hay. But these few adverse cases do not prove that red clover, alfalfa, and oats are not good forage. With the cowpea the case is similar. It is very rarely that any Southern planter reports that this forage is refused by any kind of stock.

Reports are very conflicting in regard to the value of this crop for silage. There is much positive testimony both for and against, some authorities stating that the quality is excellent and others that the vines contain too much water, the product of the fermentation being a slimy, foul-smelling mass, unfit for food for any kind of animals. From reports on the subject it is to be believed that the attempt to convert cowpea vines into good silage can not be made with such uniform success as in the case of red clover. The percentage of water in the tissues is too high, and the mechanical difficulties in the way of running a mass of tangled herbage through the feed cutter are too great. Special machinery would have to be constructed for the purpose. Indian corn will probably remain for many years the best all-round forage plant for this purpose. The consensus of opinion among agricultural workers seem to be that ensilage made from any legume, whether it be cowpeas, vetches, soja beans, alfalfa, or the clovers, does not equal in feeding value good hay made from the same. Under certain conditions that arise in the silo the crude protein is converted into indigestible or insoluble nitrogenous compounds, but the losses from this cause are perhaps no greater than those that result from the careless handling of the hay in the field, stable, and feeding pen. Good cowpea or clover silage is valuable, but either corn or sorghum is far superior to it.

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called La Grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use in these ailments. For sale by all druggists.

Mrs. Sallie Ann Dobbins died Thursday, March 6, at 5:30 p. m., after an illness of five weeks (occasioned by fall), aged about 78 years. Aunt Sallie, as she was familiarly called, was kind, gentle, loving and true, and, although belonging to no church, she was a noble Christian woman, true to herself and God, loved by all, industrious, one of the good, old fashioned, noble women, who are so fast disappearing from our midst. Aunt Sallie leaves a noble and venerable husband, uncle Samuel, 82 years of age, and six children, Messrs. Daniel, James and William, and Mrs. Fannie Snow, Anna Hammond and Mrs. Belle Northcutt to mourn her death. She leaves one brother, Mr. Henry Dixon, who is 80 years old. Last week the angel of death called Aunt Sallie's greatgrand child, and now he has beckoned unto her, and near by eachother they lie in the quiet cemetery at Hopeful, awaiting the call on judgment day. Thus God calls the children and the aged unto Him to enjoy that peaceful rest that shall come to those who love Him and His heavenly home. The people at this place have been greatly alarmed over the development of a case of genuine smallpox. Olive Williams, who came here from Milldale, about two weeks ago, was the victim. The house is closely guarded and it is hoped there will be no more cases.

WALTON, March 9.—H. C. Diers has removed from Harrison, Ohio, back to his old home on High Street. His friends were glad to welcome him again, as it is an assured fact that in the past many have removed from here and not so many have returned. Among the good citizens who have moved away, mention must be made of James Stapleton, who has gone to the city and has a place in the R. R. Co's yards. It is also feared that the Louisville Tobacco buyers have suspended operations in this locality and the "Combines" have it all their own way.

Last week two representatives, to wit: Judge J. E. Botts and Hon. J. Grant Tomlin, of the Boone Co. bar, hied themselves to Owenton to attend the circuit court in session at that place. In the meantime they embraced the opportunity of visiting the now becoming famous mud region at Gratz. Mr. Tomlin has not been seen as yet; but Judge Botts was greatly amazed at the richness of the abundant supply of the mineral that met his gaze, and thinks it will be in the not very distant future, a source of great wealth to the property owners of that region. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather during the past week the countenance of the Judge shows that his little run, of a few days only, has greatly benefitted his health, giving him the youthful and bouyant look of years ago.

One of our friends here was reading to a crowd, in which was a colored boy, the account of Miss Alice Roosevelt's christening in Boston, and receiving three cheers, when the colored boy remarked, "she must have thought herself big, to use three chairs."

The 5th inst. was observed in a royal manner in Cincinnati, that day being the city's centennial. It was the writer's pleasure in bygone days to be acquainted with Wm. White, who was the first child born in Cincinnati after it became an incorporated village. He was the father of Mrs. R. W. Masterson, of Carrollton.

The burning of the house Mrs. Murat bought of L. Teeters is liable to get somebody into trouble. The Doctor has had 2 detectives and two bloodhounds on the case. Three houses have been burned and one torn down in this neighborhood in the last few years, under similar circumstances. The good citizens here have become aroused, and are determined that the willful and malicious destruction of property by a certain other class of citizens shall be stopped. Sensational developments are expected in the Murat case.

A FRIGHTFUL WRECK.

Passenger Train Derailed on the Southern Pacific Road.

Fifteen Persons Were Instantly Killed and 28 More or Less Injured—Several of the Victims Were Cremated.

San Antonio, Tex., March 8.—A broken rail caused a frightful wreck on the Southern Pacific railroad near Maxons Station, 25 miles west of Sanderson. From the latest accounts received here 15 people were killed outright and 28 more or less injured.

Among the latter are George Ollenberg, of Lexington, Ky., hand crushed, and H. J. Todd, of Frankfort, Ky., bruised.

The ill-fated train left San Antonio two and a half hours late and at the time the accident occurred was running at a high rate of speed in order to make up time. The road at the point where the wreck occurred is in a rough country, the curves being sharp and the grades heavy. It was when rounding a curve that the train left the track, it is said, on account of a broken rail.

The hour was 3 a. m., 15 hours after the train had left San Antonio, showing that it was still behind time. All the passengers were asleep and the shock that followed was the first intimation they had of the danger.

The train was going at such a rate of speed that the tender and engine landed 75 feet from where they left the rails. Cars behind piled up against the engine, caught fire and all were consumed except the sleepers. A private car owned by Thomas Ryan, of Bay City, Mich., with his family aboard, was attached to the rear of the train, but it was pulled away before the fire reached it and no one in it was injured.

All the injured in the coaches just behind the express and baggage cars were cremated. The people in the sleepers were saved with the assistance of the uninjured passengers.

The wrecked train was the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio westbound passenger No. 9, and consisted of an engine, mail car, baggage car, one coach, one chair car, three tourist's sleepers, one Pullman sleeper and one private car.

The mail car, the baggage car and coaches were piled together against the engine and were ablize in a few seconds. It was impossible to move any of the coaches or the tourist cars as they were all off the rails, and they were soon consumed by the flames.

So soon as it was possible to get in communication with division headquarters relief trains with surgeons and physicians were started from El Paso, Del Rio and Sanderson, picking up along the line all the surgeons that could be found.

All of the injured who were in a condition to be moved were sent to El Paso, where they are receiving careful attention.

Another version of the story is that the queen regent is to prolong her regency for five years in order to enable the king to complete his education by travel, etc.

MURDER SUSPECTED.

Husband of Mrs. Ada Klump Arrested on Suspicion.

The Supposition Is That He Substituted Poison For the Real Headache and Harmless Powder and Sent It to His Wife.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 7.—Sheriff Chapman returned from Lowell, where he has been investigating the death of Mrs. Wm. Klump. He found evidence that she was murdered. The woman was sent a supposed sample headache powder by mail. She used it and died 12 hours later.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 8.—Latest developments in the investigation into the death of Mrs. Ada Klump, the young wife of William Klump, of Lowell, point to one of the most cold-blooded murders Michigan has ever known. After a diligent inquiry into the circumstances Sheriff Chapman took William Klump into custody and lodged him in jail here. The officers express the belief that Klump either sent the deadly powders through the mail himself or knew who did send them, and the main object was the removal of Mrs. Klump. The theory is that the doctored powders were substituted for the real headache and harmless powders and that they were sent to several persons in the village for the purpose of throwing the blame upon the manufacturers of the headache remedy and thus divert suspicion from the sender of the poison.

A motive is found for the alleged crime in the story that Klump was infatuated with another woman, a widow whom, it is alleged, Klump had agreed to marry before he met and won the love of the pretty 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watson, of Lowell. Klump has been married twice and his first wife lives in Lowell. It is claimed that the other woman in the case was the cause of the separation of his first wife. The sheriff and his deputies are trying to locate Hattie Whitfield. She at one time lived in this city and it is said that Klump visited her here. Officers went to the home of her parents in Vergennes township, but they did not find her there, nor could they learn where she had gone.

Klump was interviewed at the jail. He is about 35 years of age. He declares he was entirely innocent of the charge on which he was arrested. He said he had no knowledge of what the alleged sample headache powders contained or from whence they came. He got the envelope containing the powder addressed to his wife at the Lowell post office with some other mail and brought it to the house, supposing it was an ordinary advertising sample. He denied the truth of the reports that he had been attentive to any woman, or that there was any reason for his wanting his wife out of the way.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, March 4.—Senate—The senate Monday began consideration of what is popularly known as the shipping bill—a measure to provide for ocean mail service between the United States and foreign ports and the common defense; to promote commerce and to encourage deep sea fisheries. Mr. Frye (Me.), chairman of the committee on commerce, made the opening statement in support of the bill. He occupied the floor for nearly two hours. Prior to the consideration of the shipping bill many minor measures were passed.

House—The house began consideration of the bill to classify the rural free delivery service and place the carriers under the contract system. Only two speeches were delivered. The debate was interrupted before the close of the session by the presentation of the conference report upon the Philippine tariff bill. Mr. Payne, the majority leader, declined to allow the minority more than 30 minutes in which to discuss the report and this offer was rejected. A filibuster followed and the house adjourned after the previous question on the adoption of the report had been ordered.

Washington, March 5.—Senate—The ship subsidy bill was further discussed in the senate Tuesday by Mr. Frye, his remarks being directed principally to the republican senators, and he gave further expression to his views. No other senators desiring to speak Tuesday, the bill was laid aside and a number of other bills were passed.

House—The house spent another day in discussion of the bill to classify the rural free delivery service and place the carriers under the contract system. No vote was reached and it is doubtful whether one will be had Wednesday as the list of speeches is still large. The fate of the bill is in doubt, although the impression prevailing is that it will be defeated. The speakers Tuesday were Messrs. Smith (Kem., Ky.), Gardner (N. J.) and Williams (Miss.), in favor and Messrs. Landis (Ind.), Maddox (Ga.) and Hill (Ct.), against the measure. Before debate began the conference report on the Philippine tariff bill was adopted. The vote was on party lines except that Messrs. McCall (Mass.), Littlefield (Me.) and Heatwole (Minn.), voted with the democrats against adopting the report.

Washington, March 6.—Senate—It appears likely now that the senate will reach a vote on the pending shipping bill one week from next Monday. When Mr. Frye, in charge of the measure, endeavored Wednesday to secure an agreement for the time of taking a vote that date was mentioned as being satisfactory to the minority members of the commerce committee. Mr. Clay (Ga.) addressed the senate in opposition to the bill and had not concluded when the senate adjourned. Early in the session the senate passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, the second of the big supply measures to be acted on at this session.

House—The house continued the debate on the bill to classify the rural free deliver service, and without action adjourned early out of respect to the memory of Representative Polk (Pa.), whose death occurred suddenly at Philadelphia Tuesday night. A committee was appointed to attend the funeral of the deceased member.

Washington, March 7.—Senate—A notable speech was made in the senate Thursday by Mr. Hanna (O.) on the pending shipping bill, which he discussed from the standpoint of an American business man. Before consideration of the shipping bill was resumed an extended debate occurred on the measure providing for the protection of the president of the United States. Mr. Bacon (Ga.) took the ground that in its present shape the bill was an invasion of the jurisdiction of the states and that it ought to be amended radically. Mr. Patterson (Col.), while he agreed to the general propositions of the bill, urged that it ought not to pass in its present form. No action on the bill was taken.

House—The house devoted another day to debate of the bill to classify the rural free delivery service and to place the carriers under contract. Little interest was manifested in the discussion. A vote is expected Friday.

Washington, March 8.—Senate—On account of the indisposition of Mr. Vest (Mo.) and Mr. Mallory (Fla.), who expected to speak Friday on the pending ship subsidy bill, that measure was not considered by the senate Friday. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was passed and the senate took up the measure for the protection of the president of the United States. Mr. Bacon (Ga.) continued in his speech, begun Thursday, in opposition to the bill, making an extended constitutional argument against it. The senate agreed to make the bill the unfinished business at the conclusion of the consideration of the ship subsidy bill. Adjourned until Monday.

House—The bill to classify the rural free delivery service and to place the carriers under the contract system held the floor in the house Friday, but an amicable arrangement general debate will be concluded Saturday and the bill will be considered under the five minute rule Monday.

Secretary Wilson Will Not Resign.

Washington, March 10.—The attention of Secretary Wilson, of the agricultural department, was called to reports that he contemplated soon resigning from President Roosevelt's cabinet. The secretary treated the subject very lightly, declaring that the report was news to him and adding in reply to a specific inquiry that he had no intention of taking the step suggested.

SOME WONDERFUL CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA.

The Territorial Government Reports Show Results Beyond Belief.

Regina, Assinebola, Canada, January 10th.—At the Agricultural Statistics Branch of the Department of Agriculture for the Territories, reports are now being received from grain threshers throughout the Territories, for statistical purposes. The reports are somewhat delayed this year, owing to the extensive crop and the delay in getting it threshed. The Department of Agriculture is leading the way in a new departure, with regard to the collection of crop statistics. In the older provinces, crop estimates are based entirely on the opnion of persons interested in the grain business who ought to be, and no doubt are, well posted upon the probable yields. Still the reports are simply a matter of opinion, in which a mistake may easily be made. The Territorial Department, however, has adopted the system of returns of crops actually threshed, upon which to base their reports. The accuracy of the reports cannot, therefore, be gainsaid, for they represent a compilation of actual threshing results. In this connection, it might be mentioned that the Department is organizing a system of growing crop returns, which will be in operation next summer. The information thus obtained, with estimated acreage, will be available for business men, banks, railway companies, and other interests which have to discount the future in making provision for the conduct of their business.

The crop reports already to hand show some remarkable cases of abnormal development. In the Regina district, many returns are given of crops of wheat running from 40 to 45 bushels to the acre.

J. A. Snell, of Yorkton, threshed 23,000 bushels of oats from 430 acres, an average of 63 bushels per acre for a large acreage.

W. R. Motherwell, of Abernethy, threshed 2,650 bushels of wheat from a 50 acre field, an average of 53 bushels per acre.

S. Norman threshed 6,950 bushels of oats from 60 acres of land, an average of 116 bushels per acre.

The publication of the actual yields of grain threshed will likely open the eyes of the people to the great capabilities of the western Canadian prairies.

HIS TOUR AT AN END.

GREATLY PLEASED WITH HIS TRIP

His Last Day Began With a Visit to Albany and Closed With a Reception at West Point.

Mayor Gaus in Behalf of Albany and Gov. Odell For the State Met the Prince With Official Greetings.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 5.—Milwaukee was host to Prince Henry of Prussia for six hours Tuesday evening and gave him a reception that was highly enthusiastic and an entertainment that was unique. His special train came at 4 o'clock and at 10 was away again on the long trip to Niagara and New England. The intervening time was all given over to the reception and entertainment of the royal visitor. It began with a drive through business and residential districts in review before a crowd that numbered 200,000. Then there was a public reception at which Gov. Robert La Follette and Mayor David S. Rose voiced the official welcomes and the united singing societies raised their voices in mighty chorus. There was also a splendid illuminating and a thrilling night run of the Milwaukee fire department. Later there was a banquet at which the prince met the leading citizens of the city and state.

Rochester, N. Y., March 6.—Prince Henry of Prussia traveled from Chicago to Niagara Falls Wednesday, crossed the Canadian frontier for a brief stay, during which he was officially welcomed by the dominion, and resumed his journey Wednesday night, bound for Boston. His longest stop in almost 30 hours of continuous traveling was at Niagara Falls, which he saw bridged in with ice. He viewed the horseshoe falls from Table Rock, the American falls from the ledge over the whirlpool on the Canadian shore, rode down the gorge to a point below the lower whirlpool, and there inspected the plant of the Niagara Power Co., which converts the force of nature to the purposes of commerce. He was much impressed by the falls, and as he stood on Table Rock looking across at the horseshoe, he said: "It is magnificent; it is grand." He was much impressed also by the swirling rapids down in the gorge and when he left his car at the whirlpool he stood for several minutes watching the tumbling of the waters.

At Erie, Pa., was a great crowd. Women and children were wedged in against the train and the effort to check the swirling crowd which pressed in from the rear was useless. Several women fainted and anybody anywhere near the center of the crowd was submitted to dangerous pressure.

At Buffalo Mayor Knight welcomed the prince and the local German singing societies sang. It was 2:45 o'clock when the special arrived at Buffalo, and 15 minutes later it was steaming out to Niagara Falls.

At 6 o'clock the prince was back and aboard his train. Fifteen minutes later it departed for Boston.

Boston, March 7.—Prince Henry of Prussia was the guest of Boston Thursday. His welcome was cordial. Gov. Crane and Mayor Collins, acting for the state and city, extended the official courtesies to him and when the prince ceremoniously returned their calls he went to Cambridge to deliver the gifts of his brother, the emperor, to the Germanic museum and to receive from Harvard the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Thursday night the prince was given a dinner by the city of Boston and sat at a table with more than 200 of the representative citizens of the commonwealth.

Boston was reached at 9:35 o'clock and as soon as the special halted in South station Mayor collins and a delegation of city officials boarded the train and were introduced to the prince by Ambassador Von Holleben. There was an exchange of greetings, and the prince, his staff and the members of the American escort were shown to carriages waiting at the driveway of the depot. Escorted by cavalrymen and naval militiamen, the party was driven to Hotel Somerset.

At the Somerset the prince, surrounded by his staff in full uniform, received Gov. Crane, who came with an equally brilliant staff, and when the call was ended the prince started at once for the state house to return the courtesy. After he had paid his respects to Gov. Crane he entered the house of representatives, where the legislature was in session, and was presented from the forum by President Soule, of the senate. Leaving the chamber he was shown the battle flags carried by the regiments of the state in the civil war.

The heartiest part of Boston's formal welcome to Prince Henry was concentrated in the banquet at the Hotel Somerset Thursday evening. To the sentiments expressed there his royal highness made a formal response.

New York, March 8.—Prince Henry Friday completed his tour and is once more in New York, where he will remain until Monday, when he goes to Philadelphia. He was absent from the city for nine days, during which time his special train was within the territory of 13 states and logged a total distance of 4,358 miles. He was greatly pleased with his trip and, through his aide, Capt. Von Muller, issued a statement expressing his satisfaction at the opportunity which came to him, and his gratification at the cordiality with which he was received throughout the country.

His last day on the special train which carried him to the south, west and east rivalled in interest any of the others spent by the prince on the tour, for it began with a visit to Albany, included a run in bright sunlight down the west shore of the Hudson river and closed with a reception at the United States military academy at West Point.

He was received by the two houses of the legislature and returned his thanks to their presiding officers for the honor. He looked through the capitol and, returning under guard of cavalry, infantry and police to the Union station, left at 10:30 for West Point. West Point was reached at 2 o'clock and the prince was received with the military honor due his place in the navai service of his country. Col. Mills came to the station with a number of the officers of the academy and with a troop of cavalry drove him to the parade ground on the heights above. As the cavalry escort showed at the brow of the inclined road, Knox battery fired 21 guns. The cadets formed in six companies were at once marched on the field and the prince, with Col. Mills and their respective staffs, inspected them. Dress parade followed with the prince as reviewing officer.

At the close of the review the prince visited memorial hall, where the officers on duty at the academy were introduced to him. He greeted them all very warmly and complimented them on their work.

Leaving memorial hall the prince and his staff went to the riding school where the cadets gave an exhibition of riding.

The parting call of the prince was at the house of Col. Mills, whom he repeatedly congratulated and thanked. He was so much interested in the post that he prolonged his stay 20 minutes beyond the time set for his departure.

The prince had originally intended to return to the Hohenzollern, but the discovery of a case of scarist fever in the crew changed his mind. He did not fear infection himself, but decided, in view of the fact that he is to meet a large number of persons during the four remaining days of his stay in the United States that it would be better to go to a hotel.

New York, March 10.—Prince Henry of Prussia was the central figure Sunday in another round of entertainment arranged in his honor. He first listened to a concert at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, largely made up of his favorite American songs, the concert being arranged at his request. When that was over he drove to the University club to a luncheon which was not concluded until afternoon. In the evening he was a guest at dinner of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and met a large party made up of persons of social prominence. When the prince bade farewell to the company at the Vanderbilt home he went to the New York Yacht club for an informal reception, and the hour was late when he returned to the Waldorf-Astoria for the night. He found time, between the four main events on his programme for the day, to receive a delegation representing the Commercial club of St. Paul and several callers, and, to finally complete the arrangements for the last two days' stay in the country and his departure for home. He had intended to be present at the religious services on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern in the morning, but the case of scarlet fever which developed there several days ago altered that plan. Instead he remained at the hotel, arising late and breakfasting at his leisure. It was the Arion society, of Brooklyn, winner of the kaiser's prize at the singing festival in Brooklyn in 1900 that furnished the morning concert for the prince at the hotel.

It had been originally arranged that the singers should serenade the prince aboard the Hohenzollern Saturday, but in the change of the plan the serenade was abandoned. The prince met Dr. W. John Schildge, chairman of the music committee of the society, at dinner Saturday night and expressed regret that he was not to have a chance to hear the club sing. The doctor suggested that it might still take place at the hotel and the prince approved the idea. It was midnight, but a few hours remaining to arrange the affair. Telegrams and telephone messages were hurried out to the members and by 11 o'clock 150 of them had reported at the hotel.

The concert took place in the Astor gallery and began at 11:30. The prince sat in the center of the hall surrounded by the members of his suite, the American escort, Ambassador Von Holleben, Consul General Buenz and Consul Gelssler. The chorus first sang "Fries Lied," and after that, at the request of the prince, an extended programme which included "Old Kentucky Home" and "Dixie." The concluding number was Kreuzer's "The Lord's Own Day," and it was rendered very effectively. The prince was delighted with the serenade and, after shaking hands with the officers of the society, addressed the members briefly in German.

NEGAUNEE'S DRY SUNDAY.

Negaunee, Mich., March 10.—As a result of the organization of the Civic Federation league last week, Rev. C. M. Gilchrist, pastor of the Methodist church, and Louis F. Pearce, a member of the league, were roughly treated by a crowd of men Saturday night while they were making a tour of the town. They were set upon by a gang of roughs and would have been severely dealt with had not three policemen with drawn revolvers come to their aid. The town was "dry" Sunday, the first time in its history.

A FINANCIAL MEASURE.

New Bill Introduced in the House of Representatives.

It is Thought the New Legislation Will Remove the Last Vestige of Doubt With Regard to Our Standard of Value.

Washington, March 10.—Chairman Fowler, of the house committee on banking and currency Monday will introduce an important financial measure framed by the republican members of the committee after conferences extending through the last two months. It brings together into one financial measure a number of propositions which have been urged separately heretofore.

Mr. Fowler explains the purpose of the bill as follows:

"The purposes of the bill are: To transfer from the government to the banks the responsibility of protecting the necessary gold reserve and the burden of furnishing gold for export, thereby saving our commerce from the destructive apprehensions growing out of raids upon the 'gold in the treasury,' which can now only be replenished by a tax imposed upon the people through the sale of bonds; to provide a currency always responsive and equal to the demands of trade everywhere, and to equalize and lower the average rate of interest in all parts of the United States; to secure for American enterprise and American capital the privileges and opportunities in engaging in international banking under national law and so lay a foundation upon which to build an American merchant marine; to remove the last vestige of doubt with regard to our standard of value.

"The measure provides for international banking and a division of banking and currency is established under a board of control instead of a single individual person of the controller of the currency, as heretofore. The board will consist of three members, whose terms of office are for 12 years so arranged that only one member will secede every four years.

"If the measure now introduced should become a law it is confidently believed that the national banks will assume the current redemption in gold coin of one hundred and thirty millions of United States notes. In consideration of the obligation assumed by the national banks they will have the right during the succeeding five years to issue gradually as business may require an amount of bank notes equal to 60 per centum of their paid up and unimpaired capital; provision being made also for an emergency circulation.

"As the notes are taken out for circulation the banks will deposit with the government a guarantee fund of five percent. of the amount of the notes so issued."

MISS STONE'S CAPTURE.

A Second Note Sent to the Porte By the United States Legation.

Constantinople, March 10.—The American legation here Sunday presented to the porte the second note referring to the capture of Miss Ellen M. Stone. In this note it is pointed out that as Miss Stone was captured, the ransom paid, and the prisoners delivered in Turkey, the brigands must be within the Turkish frontier and should therefore be captured.

The note denies that the authorities were ever required to lessen thir vigilance on the frontier and asserts that only the movements of the troops in the interior were interfered with.

The first note presented to the porte by the United States legation at Constantinople in the matter of Miss Stone's capture by brigands demanded the punishment of the guilty parties. The porte, in replying, repudiated responsibility.

LONG OVERDUE VESSEL.

The Etruria, Disabled, Arrived at Horta, Azores, Sunday.

Horta, Azores, March 10.—The Etruria anchored here at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. All on board are well. She had a comparatively uneventful passage except for a breakdown which occurred during the dinner hour of February 26. When this occurred the Etruria had only just finished speaking by wireless telegraphy with the Cunard line steamship Umbria. After the accident was discovered the Etruria called the Umbria wirelessly for one hour, but without success. Upon examination it was found that the ship's propeller had broken off outside the tube and that the rudder had been carried away by the propeller. The Etruria then sent up rockets which were seen by the British steamer William Cliff. The latter core down and was alongside in 50 minutes after the accident. She stood by until daylight, when, after several attempts she succeeded in passing a hawser aboard the Etruria. The tank steamer Ottawa arrived on the scene at this time. The William Cliff then attempted to tow the Etruria, while the Ottawa attempted to steer her. The hawser, however, snapped. The Ottawa stood by for two days and then left for Fayal, bearing the second officer of the Etruria to report the disaster and obtain assistance. In the meanwhile the crew of the Etruria had made every effort to rig a jury rudder. The first such rudder carried away immediately an attempt was made to use it. After further efforts lasting for two days a second jury rudder was successfully adjusted and is still in position.

The passengers of the Etruria were satisfied they were in no danger and they praise the conduct of the captain and crew of the vessel. After the accident the passengers amused themselves with the usual deck sports, and concerts were held in the first and second cabins. Only those who were anxious concerning business matters chafed at the unavoidable delay.

The Etruria will wait here for the arrival of the royal mail steamer Elbe, which left Southampton for Horta Saturday. The Elbe will carry the Etruria's passengers to England. The Etruria will then be towed home by the two tugs which are now on their way out from Liverpool for this purpose.

Tien-Tsin, March 10.—The mission property here which is in dispute between the French and American consuls is less than two acres in extent. It borders the American mission property and was previously occupied by undesirable Chinamen. The French consul stopped building operations on the disputed property and placed a policeman there. The French flag has not been raised over the property. The American consul here, James W. Ragsdale, is maintaining a firm attitude and does not believe serious developments to be likely. The affair is in the hands of the French and American ministers at Peking.

PROVINCE OF RIZAL.

The Insurgents There Have Been Dispersed.

Maj. Littleton, W. T. Waller and Lieut. John H. A. Day Will Be Court-Martialed For Executing Natives Without Trial.

Manila, March 10.—Lieut. Howland, of the 21st infantry, and aide on the staff of Gen. Wheaton, who was sent to report on the state of affairs in Rizal province, after the recent outbreak of activity there, reports that the insurgents have now been dispersed and that the soldiers and constabulary are closely pursuing them. There is but a small force of insurgents in the province and they are greatly over-officered. It is clear that the insurgents in Rizal province had no idea how quickly the troops and constabulary could concentrate and break their power. Complete harmony exists between the American soldiers and the native constabulary in this district and both have done excellent work during a short campaign.

The troops consisted of six officers and 230 men of the 5th cavalry.

Col. James Forney, of the marine corps, will preside at the court-martial to try Maj. Littleton, W. T. Waller and Lieut. John H. A. Day, of the marine corps, March 17 next, on the charge of executing natives of the island of Samar without trial. This court-martial will be composed of army officers and officers of the marine corps. The charges specify that Maj. Waller and Lieut. Day killed three native stevedores on the streets of Bazy, Island of Samar, without trial. These stevedores were among those who accompanied the disastrous expedition of Maj. Waller and a detachmemt of marines to the interior of Samar last Decembe.

It is claimed these stevedores mutinied and proceeded to the foothills, where they dug camotes (a variety of sweet potato) and that they later concealed and refused to turn them over to the Americans, saying that when the marines died of hunger they would have a good supply of arms and ammunition.

Sympathy is expressed for Maj. Waller, who at that time was suffering from mental and physical strain. Lieut. Day apparently obeyed Maj. Waller's orders.

MIMIC INDIAN BATTLE.

A Boy Dead From a Wound Received in the Breast.

Denver, Col., March 10.—Stewart Hill, aged 9 years, died here Sunday from the effects of a bullet wound in the breast received Saturday while engaged in a mimic Indian battle. James Butson, aged 12 years, is under arrest, charged with murder. Four boys, all 12 years of age or under, stationed themselves behind barricades about 30 yards apart, and had exchanged about 20 shots when Hill fell, pierced through the lung. According to the other boys, Hill had slipped out in the open, when Hutson took deliberate aim and fired. Chief of Police Armstrong says he intends to take measures against those who are responsible for the boys having firearms.

AN IMMENSE ICE FLOE.

It Was Encountered About 200 Miles Off the Japanese Coast.

Port Townsend, Wash., March 10.—The British steamship Oceania reports having encountered an immense ice floe about 200 miles off the Japanese coast abreast of the entrance to Tsugar strait. So extenalvely was the ice floe that the steamer was compelled to change her course and steam for several hours to avoid coming in collision with the ice. The floe is in the direct path of vessels sailing to the Orient and as it is quite extensive is dangerous to navigation.

TO MOTHERS

Mrs. J. H. Haskins, of Chicago, Ill., President Chicago Arcade Club, Addresses Comforting Words to Women Regarding Childbirth.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Mothers need not dread childbearing after they know the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. While I loved children I dreaded the ordeal, for it left me weak and sick for months after, and at the time I thought death was a welcome relief; but before my last child was born a good neighbor advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I used that, together with your Pills and Sanative Wash for four months before the child's birth;—it brought me wonderful relief. I hardly had an ache or pain, and when the child was ten days old I left my bed strong in health. Every spring and fall I now take a bottle of Lydia E. W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

A POOR excuse is better than none, thought Mr. Fulton, doubtless, when he began dissecting his corn.

ENGLAND has suffered another severe defeat at the hands of the Boers. One of the great English generals was captured.

FROM Laporte, Indiana, comes the report of a family the members of which were badly poisoned by drinking melted snow water.

PRINCE HENRY'S swing around in this country convinced him that the United State is a great nation—noted among many other things for unlimited hospitality.

LEGISLATION is now in the hands of the Committee on Rules in the legislature, and only such bills as that committee calls up will be passed in these the last days of the session.

THE United States has received fresh pledges from Russia, and Germany, as to the conservation of the commercial rights of other nations in China within the zones of influence of the above named powers.

THE Ferris local option bill was defeated in the State Senate by a decisive vote. Senator Cantrill, of Scott county, lead the fight against the bill with telling effect. The bill sought to make the county the unit in voting on local option.

PRINCE HENRY is reported as saying that the most cordial reception he received in his tour of this country was that given him at Cincinnati. The Porkipolitans do well whatever they undertake, as Prince Henry would learn should he be associated with them much.

NEXT county court day Judge Cason will make his appointment of roadoverseers. In some districts there appear to be spirited contests for these appointments, and it may turnout that the Judge will reconcile the factions by going outside of both for an overseer.

THE bill providing for the irrigation of public lands passed the Senate by a unanimous vote. Under the measure all money received from the sale of public lands in sixteen Western States and Territories will be devoted to the reclamation of arid lands by irrigation.

GOV. BECKHAM will not call an extra session of the legislature unless there is very urgent need of its being reconvened, and, at present there is no indication of such an emergency arising. He recognizes in the legislature a very uncertain as well as expensive quantity.

THE tobacco crop of Clark county for 1900, is estimated at three and a half million pounds, and brought about an average of 7 cents, amounting to $245,000. Those who claim to be posted say the crop of 1901 will fall short of the previous year both in quantity and price.

While Governor Taft is minimizing difficulties to be encountered in the Philippines, the public is reading the terrible march of our soldiers through Samar. What the country wants is "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth" about the Philippines. At present the administration is giving out some statements that are not harmonious.—Bluffton [Ind.] Banner.

MR. FULTON, who was to represent Gov. Beckham at Cincinnati's Centenial celebration, last week, rendered himself incapable of performing the duty assigned him, by too closely paring a corn on one of his toes the night before he was to go to Cincinnati. The unfortunate incident will teach Mr. Fulton to not disturb his corns, hereafter, just before the time to enter upon any important duty. Yours was a lame excuse, Mr. Fulton.

MASSACHUSETTS has sprung another innovation by passing a law imposing a license tax of 50 cents on cats. It has been an almost universal custom in this country to tax dogs, but for some reason the cat has not been made a source of reyenue. As a disturber of the peace the cat is certainly the equal of the dog, and it causes quite as much trouble to the human by getting into trouble and calling for help. The Massachusetts system is liable to become popular.

SEED corn, it is predicted, will be worth $2 a bushel in the spring. It is very scarce on account of the unsatisfactory crop and there will not be much of last year's crop left for seed. The hot winds which struck the early corn during the early stage destroyed the fertilizing power of the pollen and but little of the corn is fit for seed. As the hot weather extended over a wide area seed corn is bound to be scarce and the price high. Especial attention should be paid to the selection of corn for seed and it should be thoroughly tested.

It is now authoritatively settled that those injured by the explosion of the Maine must look to the United States for compensation. Individuals so circumstanced as were the officers and crew of the Maine cannot look to a foreign Government for compensation. If we could have proved that Spain was responsible for the destruction of the Maine our Government could have collected the indemnity and made such deposition of it as it chose. But the complicity of Spain in that massacre, though strongly suspected, has never been proved. —Courier Journal.

WITHOUT any desire for publicity the United States Signal Corps has been for some weeks experimenting with wireless telephone communications. It is claimed that its officers have succeeded in sending wireless telephone messages upwards of 480 feet, in words, uttered in ordinary, clear, speaking tones, such as would normally carry a distance of 30 or 40 feet at most. The distance at which these passages have been clearly heard by the latest experiments exceeds the length of two ordinary city blocks. This achievement is regarded as highly important by the Signal Corps officials.

Diversified farming is the most profitable system of managing a farm in the corn and wheat growing states. The fertility of the soil can in this way be maintained and even increased under continuous cultivation by rotation of crops and careful saving and application of measures. Swine raising and feeding has been the greatest source of income and profit on our farm for the past 25 years. The fertilizing value of feeding hogs on our clover fields in summer and early winter has been equal in value to four or five cents additional per bushel for every bushel of corn so fed.

A South Carolina paper says there are two things about this Senate "scrap" that it does not understand. The first is why Senator McLaurin should turn "pale to the lips" and "tremble with emotion" and denounce on the floor of an august senate as a "willful and deliberate lie" a charge which has been made against him so often on the free forum of his own state and among a somewhat pugnacious populace without his receiving it in any such manner. The second is why Senator Tillman should develop a "tiger-like ferocity" in the senate at being called a liar when in times past he has repeatedly accepted that epithet on the South Carolina stump with the gentle meekness of a lamb or the lofty serene repose of a statesman.

On a farm just sixteen miles south of Kansas City an experiment is being made which is being watched with interest by stock raisers all over the United States. The owners of the farm have invested more than $80,000 in pedigreed and registered hogs for the purpose of ascertaining whether breeding fine hogs exclusively can be made profitable. The owners of the farm have no other live stock to demand their attention except 100 cows, and the dairy is an auxiliary part of the hog farm, for every quart of milk from the cows is used to feed pigs.

It has been maintained by agriculturalists that hog raising alone is not profitable unless some of the animals are sold for food, but the owners of this hog farm south of Kansas City are confident that their investment of more than $80,000 in registered animals will yield a large profit before a year has passed.

The farm is owned by Winn & Mastin and contains 1,800 acres. There are twenty barns on the place, and ten of them are used to shelter hogs. There are 600 registered animals on the place, and some of the boars cost as much money as pedigreed bulls or horses. One boar, called Corrector in the herd books, cost $2,500; another called Proud Perfection cost $2,000.—Enquirer.

THE Kentucky legislature has about done its do.

TOBACCO GROWERS MEET

Eight Counties Represented and the Movement is Being Pushed.

At the Tobacco Growers' Convention held at Carrollton on the 4th inst, the following counties were represented: Boone, Carroll, Gallatin, Henry, Owen, Shelby, Trimble, and Switzerland county, Indiana.

The committee on permanent organization reported the following officers who were duly elected:—James M. Gaunt, of Carrollton, President; Dr. I. W. McGinnis, of Henry county, Secretary; V. T. Craig, of Gallatin county, Treasurer.

The following Executive Committee was chosen:—M. F. Banta, Craig, Switzerland county, Ind.; N. S. Walton, Idlewild, Boone county; W. H. Brooks, Eminence, Henry county; N. S. Riley, Glencoe, Gallatin county; W. O. Orem, Campbellsburg, Henry county; C. M. Dean, Worthville, Carroll county.

James M. Gaunt was elected organizer, and empowered to employ as many assistant organizers as are necessary to organize the counties growing Burley tobacco and solicit stock and secure the growers' obligations.

Following are the rules and regulations that were adopted for the government of the association. The capital stock is placed at $1,000,000:

1st. We recommend that a corporation be formed with a capital stock of One Million Dollars, to be known and called the Farmers and Tobacco Growers' Association.

2nd. That the stock books be opened by committe, for subscriptions to the capital stock, that a committee be appointed to raise the capital stock for said Association, that shares be of the denomination of Ten Dollars ($10) each.

3rd. That each and every tobacco grower in the white burley district be asked to sign the following agreement. To wit: We the undersigned tobacco growers, land owners and those who control land on which tobacco is raised in the——county of——do agree and bind ourselves to deliver all the tobacco raised by us or for us or in which we may be interested to——as a committee and trustee to act for us and the association and corporation hereafter to be formed; the said committee, as committee and trustee shall assign this contract to said corporation and association when formed; and when twenty thousand (20,000) tobacco growers in the white Burley district have signed this or a similar contract, at which time it is agreed that said corporation and association shall be organized, and when organized the said corporation and association agrees and binds itself on the assignment of this contract to it, to pay 50 per cent of the appraised value of said tobacco when delivered to it, and in the event that I shall fail to deliver my tobacco as aforesaid and as hereinafter set out I agree and bind myself to pay said corporation, and said corporation shall have a lean on my tobacco to the amount of $2 per one hundred pounds of all the tobacco raised by me or on land owned or controlled by me, for and during the years of 1903, '04, '05, '06, '07, '08, '09, '10, '11, and '12.

The consideration for this agreement and contract being that said corporation and association shall build, own or rent sufficient warehouse space to properly rehandle and prepare for market, with expert hands, and keep and maintain expert men to sell same as my sole commission merchant for the years aforesaid, the object being that said general commission merchant may be enabled to cheaper handle, sell and dispose of said tobacco for me, thereby saving the expense I now have as an individual in handling, curing and selling my tobacco.

We also give to said corporation and association the right to manufacture tobacco.

Fourth. That a like agreement be circulated and signed in all of the counties of the white burley district, and that the stock book of said corporation and association shall be circulated through the counties of the white burley district.

Fifth. We recommend that the following petition be circulated in each county throughout the burley district: We the undersigned, agree and promise to pay on demand to the following committee,——, or their agents, the amount set opposite to our names for the purpose of raising a sufficient sum of money to place the proposed corporation or association on a permanent basis, the amount set opposite our names to be credited on the amount we have agreed to pay to the capital stock of said corporation or association, if organized, the same to be placed to item of expense in the organization of said association or corporation.

Sixth. That at this meeting held on March 4th at the court house in Carrollton, Ky., there shall be appointed an executive committee consisting of one member from each county in the association, to whom all subscription lists of every description shall be taken, and if not taken, be assigned until the completion of the organization.

Seventh. Said meeting shall provide ways and means of raising stock and money sufficient to complete the organization, said money to be paid to the treasurer.

Said Executive Committee shall have power to employ organizers in each county of the Burley district, and shall determine the compensation to be allowed said organizers. They shall have full power to employ and pay said organizers.

The chairman, secretary and treasurer elected at this meeting shall be chairman, secretary and treasurer of the executive Committee.

Eighth. When the amount of stock aforesaid is subscribed as set out in the contract, and the number of tobacco growers and land owners have signed the contract aforesaid, then it shall be the duty of said executive committee, and they are hereby empowered to call a general meeting of all interested parties. They shall determine the number of delegates to be selected by each county association.

The county association shall be composed of the producers who have signed the contract to deliver their tobacco and the parties who have signed the stock of the association. The executive committee aforesaid shall determine the right of each and the representation of each, at which meeting there shall be articles of association and corporation formed, and the directors elected.

The meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the president.

COL. JACK CHINN and Hon. C. J. Bronston met in Frankfort last week, and, instead of whip, ping out their guns and shooting eachother full of holes, they quietly buried the hatchet, and as a guarantee of good faith on the part of Col. Chinn, he went to work in the interest of Mr. Bronston's Investment Company bill and induced the committee to make a favorable report thereon. No longer will the presence of these two valiant Kentuckians in a town at the same time cause the local undertakers to speculate as to how soon their services will be required by one or both of them. If several more Kentucky feuds could be adjusted in the same manner the State would be better off.

COUNTING to-day the legislature has just one more week in which to complete its business. The session expires by constitutional limitation at midnight next Tuesday.

AN extra telephone wire is being put up from Limaburg to Burlington as an experiment.

A CARD.

An eighteen year old smart aleck shot Will North's dog, and then set the boys teasing North for crying at his loss. No money would have bought that dog as he had a good record for killing snakes and varments, as he followed his master to and from work over the neighboro farms, having killed three adders and one black snake in four minutes in one day, on the farm occupied by the shooter. It is a great loss to the neighbors. North has their sympathy and please state to the world all the members of the household cried and are not ashamed of it, but would consider it a disgrace to cry over a regiment of men such as this same smart aleck. WILL NORTH.

In Sympathy With the Move.

CONSTANCE, KY., March 10, 1902.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

By some means my name appears in your paper (much to my surprise) as one to solicit funds to have a traction route surveyed through Boone. I have no time to attend to it in the condition the roads are at present. It needs a young man who can get around in a hurry. Besides, I am in the extreme corner of the county, near many ways of getting to the city. It would be much better to put someone on near Idlewild, as no one from that section appears on the list. A younger man—someone who has been a candidate for office, or is now an aspirant—who knows how to see most persons in the shortest time. I am for the road in any part of the county and will contribute.

Yours Respectfully,
J. J. RUCKER.

How to Cure the Grip.

Remain quietly at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed and a quick recovery is sure to follow. That remedy counteracts any tendency of the grip to result in pneumonia, which is really the only serious danger. Among the tens of thousands who have used it for the grip, not one case has ever been reported that did not recover. For sale by all druggists.

Entered Into Rest.

In memory of William H. Moore, of Boone county, Kentucky, who passed away on January 25th, 1902, after a two weeks' illness of measles followed by pneumonia. Mr. Moore was confined to the house from his youth up, but never complained; said all things were right. Ever gentle in spirit and unselfish to a degree. In his death is the loss of a kind and affectionate husband; a loving brother and devoted uncle. Their loss is his gain.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

It was very dark and cloudy last Friday night, but that did not prevent Tony Bentler from seeing hundreds of stars when he was in collision with a post as he was returning from town to his home in the suburbs that night. A considerable area of the epidermis was removed from one of his cheeks by the collision. It is said that Tony went to grass, and when he got to his knees getting up he discovered the dim outlines of the post and mistook them for those of a man, when he exclaimed, "My God, man, don't do that again."

Tommie Rice had a tobacco stripping last Friday night. About a dozen of his young friends responded to invitations, and worked until about midnight, getting a considerable amount of the weed in the hand. A good fire was build in a cabin, and the boys enjoyed the work. Nicely popped corn figured largely in the pleasure of the occasion.

He was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13 50. Vance was under the influence of fighting whisky, and went after Fox with his knife, cutting an ugly gash in his clothing and inflicting a slight wound on one of Fox's thumbs. Vance became incensed at Fox on account of some trivial matter.

Pt. Pleasant Grange, which has been meeting at Limaburg, will meet in Burlington hereafter. A meeting of several of the members of that Grange was held in Burlington, last Friday afternoon, with State Master Wolcott present, and the above decision was reached. John T. Those in this locality who wish to identify themselves with the order of P. of H. are now afforded an excellent opportunity.

In sending subscription for the Recorder, A. B. Chittenden, of Joy, Livingston county, writes: "I received the copy of the Recorder, and it was like a letter from home. I can't do without it any longer, so you will find enclosed $1 50 for one year's subscription. Uncle Jerry Ferrill died the 4th of this (Feb'y) month. He has relatives in Boone county, who do not know of his death. I was glad to learn through the Recorder of the meeting held at Carrollton to propose a traction road up the river and through Boone. Anything that is calculated to build up the county will be held dear in the memory of her former citizens."

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called La Grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use in these ailments. For sale by all druggists.

David H. Ryle, of Hathaway, who, ten days or two weeks ago, went to North Bend, Ohio, to work, was struck by a train, last Thursday morning and killed instantly. He stepped off of one railroad track on to another to get out of the way of a train and stepped in front of a train he did not know was approaching. He was a son of the late James Ryle, and was a brother of Mrs. Inez Conley, of Hathaway, and R. O. and M. W. Ryle, of Beech Grove. His brother, Larkin, was killed in Gallatin county a few years ago, when a horse attached to the buggy in which he and his wife were riding, ran off. He was a bachelor and about 55 years of age.

It will be gratifying to the friends of Mr. Thos. E. Cowen, former superintendent of the Sun Life Insurance agency, here, to know that he has renewed his commission with that company, and is now employed in its service at Memphis, Tenn. He quit the Sun shortly after leaving Frankfort, and devoted his time to other branches of insurance, but a few days ago returned to his first love, and it is safe to predict that he will win both laurels and substantial results for himself and his company. Mr. Cowen is personally known to nearly everybody in Frankfort, and hundreds of friends here will rejoice to know of his good fortune, and at the same time will congratulate his employers on securing his services.—Kentucky Journal.

James Corcoran, of Bullittsville, lost his pocket book containing $55, on the Petersburg 'pike, near James E. Smith's, last Friday afternoon. Mr. Corcoran did not miss his pocket book until he went to pay J. J. Duncan for a cow. He knew he had it when he paid his toll a short time before, and he started back in search of it, but without success. He reached Burlington about dark, and told mine host, J. F. Blyth of the Boone House, of his misfortune. Mr. Blyth and his two little nephews, Tommie and Elmore Fowler, took a lantern and went out the 'pike in search of the lost money, and it was not long before Master Elmore had found it. Upon returning the pocket book to Mr. Corcoran, he not only thanked the little fellow, but he opened the pocket book and took therefrom a $5 gold piece with which he presented him. A great many men would have been profuse with their thanks and satisfied to let it go at that, but Mr. Corcoran is not built that way.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The great danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these disease, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of lagrippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

ASYLUM BILL DEFEATED.

Anti-Administration Democrats and Republicans Join Hands.

Frankfort, March 5.—Senate—The Barton-Parker capital removal bill, providing for submitting to a vote of the people the question of removing the seat of state government to either Louisville or Lexington, was killed in the senate Tuesday by a vote of 23 to 13. The senate adopted the bill regulating investment companies, requiring every such corporation now doing business in this state within 90 days after the passage of the act to deposit with the state treasurer the total amount of its paid up capital stock, and, if said paid up capital stock shall not amount to $15,000, it shall deposit in addition thereto enough of the reserve fund to make $15,000 in cash, or in bonds or mortgages, lien notes or deeds of trust, or unencumbered real estate within the state of Kentucky worth 50 per cent. more than the sum loaned thereon.

House—The house passed the Coleman senate bill establishing a home for indigent confederate soldiers. It was adopted by a vote of 76 to 1. It goes to the governor for approval. Chairman Baird, of the revenue taxation committee, reported the revenue bill to the house. It was made a special order for consideration by the body at 11 o'clock next Thursday, and for consideration from day to day until finally disposed of. The house passed the Tompkins bill, regulating the practice of embalming. The house at the afternoon session adopted bills retaliatory to Ohio, Illinois and Indiana relative to hunting game. The bills require non-residents to have a license costing $25 annually, and prohibits its carrying of quail out of Kentucky after the hunt. One of the bills prohibits for two years the killing of quail in Keatucky for the purpose of sale.

Frankfort, March 6.—Senate—The most interesting fight of the present legislative session, exclusive of that over the school book bill, came to an end Wednesday with the defeat of the Farris "county unit" local option bill. The measure was killed in the senate where it originated and in which body it has been blocking legislation for several weeks past. The senate took up and adopteu the Bradley house bill to repeal the tollgate raiders law of 1897. It now goes to the governor. Senator Hickman, who championed the school bill, sought to secure second reading and advancement of the bill passed by the house, so that it might be placed in position for discussion and a vote had on it. The senate, by a vote of 18 to 16, defeated the motion.

House—The redistricting bills came before the house Wedaesday. The democratic majority adopted them, as indorsed by party caucus, in the following order: Judicial, legislative and congressional. The house adopted the Renicke bill, prohibiting railroad companies from charging for the capacity of a freight car instead of for the weight of the freight contained therein.

Frankfort, March 7.—Senate—Bills passed Thursday: The Pogue house bill, making a number of changes in the school law with reference to the building of school houses and the levying of special taxes; the house bill ceding to the United States a tract of land at Lawrenceburg for a public building; the house bill repealing the McCain tobacco law. It was placed on its passage and was adopted by a vote of 25 to 7, the house bill giving gradeu schools in cities of the fifth and sixth classes all the rights and privileges to issue bonds as given to public schools under the act of 1896.

House—After juggling all day with the chief feature of the new revenue bill, the increase of the rate of state taxation, the lower branch of the general assembly late Thursday afternoon agreed that the increase should be 2½ cents on each $100 worth of property, making the tax rate 59 cents. Under the rules of the house the rules committee will, beginning with Friday, designate the bills to be considered during the remaining ten days of the session. The committee will call up only the immportant bills.

Frankfort, Ky., March 8.—The anti-administration democrats of the senate united with the republican members of that body Friday and defeated the bill indorsed by Gov. Beckham to repeal the local control law governing the state asylums for the insane and placing these institutions under the management of a central board of three members. The senate adopted the house bill making an annual appropriation of $15,000 to encourage the live stock farmers of the state.

House—The house passed the senate child labor bill, making it unlawful to employ a child under 14 years of age, unless by consent of the county judge of the county, in mines, workshops and factories in Kentucky. The house voted down the amendment proposed by Mr. Tompkins, of Daviess, making the county assessor the assessor of banks, instead of the state board of valuation and assessment, as under the present law. The revenue committee accepted and the house adopted an amendment by Mr. Sharpless, of Newport, striking out of the bill the requirement that distillers include the serial number of packages in tax reports to the state auditor. The senate had passed a bill striking out this requirement.

JAIL UNDER QUARINTINE.

Owensboro Council Appoints a Board of Health With Quick Results.

Owensboro, Ky., March 8.—The city council Friday afternoon appointed a city board of health, consisting of five physicians. The board met immediately, with the mayor presiding, and issued an order quarantining the county jail, its inmates, the jailer and family and other officials.

The order says any prisoner serving his sentence out can either remain in jail during the quarantine or go to the pesthouse for three weeks. The yellow flag is now flying around the premises. No new cases were reported Friday, but it is feared there will be more.

There are 41 prisoners in the jail, and five are isolated with bad cases.

FOR A KENTUCKY EXHIBIT.

The Passage of the St. Louis Fair Appriation Bill Urged By Outsiders.

Frankfort, Ky., March 7.—Ex-Gov. Thomas T. Crittenden, of Missouri, accompanied by M. E. Taylor, president of the Louisville board of trade, arrived here Thursday night to urge the members of the house to support the bill appropriating $100,000 for the St. Louis world's fair. They are both anxious to have Kentucky fittingly represented at the big exposition, and after talking with several legislators Thursday night expressed the belief that when the revenue bill is disposed of the house will pass the fair appropriation.

PASSED A CURFEW ORDINANCE.

Every One at Petersburg Must Be Home at Nine O'clock or Be Fined.

Petersburg, Ky., March 8.—Hoping to stop the throwing of bowlders at night the city council has pased a curfew ordinance. It provides that all persons under 16 years of age must be indoors for the night at 8 o'clock, and all over that age at 9 o'clock. A 50-cent fiae for the first offense is to be doubled in geometrical progression for each succeeding offense. The citizens are irate over the ordinance and its enforcement will probably cause considerable trouble.

No Extra Session Probable.

Frankfort, Ky., March 6.—The determination of Gov. Beckham not to call a special session is expediting matters with regard to some important legislation. It appears that an effort in good faith and earnestness is now being made to push through the bills which must be enacted before the time limit of the present session expires.

John Doerhofer's Purchase.

Louisville, Ky., March 6.—John Doerhofer, of this city, who was for many years the Louisville manager for the American Tobacco Co., and who started the tobacco factories that afterward formed the nucleus of the Continental Tobacco Co., Wednesday bought for $250,000 the controlling interest in the Manufacturers' Tobacco Co., of Louisville, which is an independent company.

The Allied Parties' Conference.

Louisville, Ky., March 6.—Jo A. Parker, chairman of the national populist committee, said Wednesday night that the conference of the allied parties scheduled for April 2 at Louisville will be held at Memphis on May 1, unless a hall is furnished free at Louisville. Mr. Parker said he would decide the question of location definitely Thursday.

New Telephone Company.

West Point, Ky., March 8.—West Point will soon number among its enterprises a new corporation, to be known as the Riverside and Barrallton Telephone Co., numbering among its stockholders some 20 of the most prominent men of this community.

More Smallpox at Caney.

West Liberty, Ky., March 8.—There are four more cases of smallpox at Caney, making nine cases in all. The physicians say it is in a very mild form and there is no danger of its spreading.

THE POLICY OF SUBSIDY.

How the Shipping Bill Scheme Would Be Worked for Private Interests.

To show how the mind of the subsidy seeker works, it is worth while to consider some statements made by Alex. R. Smith, subsidy promoter, employed as lobbyist by the shipping interests. Mr. Smith has edited what he calls a "Synopsis of a Report on Steamship Subsidies, Submitted by a Select Committee of the British Parliament, August 1, 1901," and Mr. Frye has had it printed at government expense.

Mr. Smith quotes from the testimony taken by the parliamentary committee, such extracts as seem to him most telling in favor of subsidies. He dwells fondly upon the policy of subsidy carried out by the French government. Referring to a statement to the effect that France pays the profits on capital invested in French shipping, he comments:

"The sentence is one that may well stagger the British, while disclosing the serious determination of the French government in its maritime policy. 'The capital being guaranteed by the insurance and the profits by the navigation bounties.' What will prevent French maritime success, so fortified?"

The fact France has not succeeded in creating a merchant marine, by her enormous bounties, leads one to suspect that there are some causes operating to prevent "French maritime success."

Mr. Smith gloats over the testimony, showing that the French government pays from 17 to 50 per cent. of the gross earnings of French vessels engaged in oversea commerce, and that, without the subsidies, ships would be run at a loss of from 5 to 6 per cent. per annum.

The French policy is the kind enthusiastically approved by the subsidy grabbers, and indeed by protectionists generally. They think it is only necessary to show that an industry is unprofitable in order to wave a flag against the government for bounty. They come now as humble beggars, praying for a morsel—a paltry $3,000,000—from Uncle Sam's abundance. It requires no gift of divine prophecy to picture the history of shipping subsidies, once the policy is inaugurated. The experience of France and Italy so frequently held up by Mr. Smith and his friends as shining examples of the beneficence of the bounty system, furnishes us with abundant material with which to construct a forecast of the future. Depending upon government aid, ship owners will engage in unprofitable ventures and then complain that they are being ruined by the competition of French ships. They will rant about the penuriousness of our government in refusing to make good the losses of patriotic citizens who unselfishly engage in trading ventures that any idiot knows will yield nothing but a big deficit. They will demand that the United States be not less liberal than other nations in giving aid and comfort to these unselfish patriots, who lose money in carrying our flag on the seas, in the expectation that the government will pay them 50 per cent. dividends; and they will end with a solemn warning that unless the United States wishes to take a back seat among the great nations, unless we wish to hire other people (at half the cost) to carry our products, we must pay as big subsidies as the French.—ROYAL MEEKER.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

—The war revenue reduction bill had a clear track with a heavy down grade.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

—Only a few months of President Roosevelt's administration have passed. There is time for the president to be an Andy Jackson yet.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—The Iowa republican editors are certainly stirred up on the tariff question. Perhaps the wicked Cobden club has been tampering with them.—Washington Post.

—Really the republican press should not be too hard on the beet-sugar men for trying to get all they can. That is the way of "protection."—Indinapolis News (Ind.).

—We have tried to think well of Mr. Roosevelt and we expressed our earnest hope when he was elevated by accident to the presidency that he would fill the office acceptably, but we have been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that nothing substantial in the way of reform or economy is to be expected of him and that his decision on any important question is as difficult to guess as a throw of the dice.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

—There is not an argument advanced for the protection of the steel, tinplate or other industries that could not be applied to the sugar beet industry. We should have reciprocity, if not free trade, with Cuba simply for the reason, if for no other, that the policy of building up industries in this country at the expense of the consumers is a vicious one, and the present is a good time to put a check on it.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

—It was an empty victory for the tariff-protected trusts which the republican majority in the house won by adopting the rule forbidding debate or amendment of the war-tax reduction bill. The senate may or may not be equally compliant, but there is a tribunal in which the gag is not known, the great court of the people, before which these questions will be argued and decided at the election of members of congress this fall.—Boston Post.

PROTECTIVE TAX SPECIMEN.

The System Is a Complex Arrangement of Jobs for Tariff-Favored Tricksters.

A few days ago the representatives of two great industries appeared before the mighty chairman of the ways and means committee of the house to pray that their industries might get from the majority an adjustment of tariff taxes that would powerfully promote their interests and would inflict no injury on anyone. Their interview with the magnate of the committee was confidential, but what they might have said, and what has often been said in public, is that they sought solely to reduce the cost of production for an important body of necessary commodities, and thus to lower the cost to the consumer in this country and to extend an already promising export trade. These are not the usual arguments submitted to the ways and means committee, and it is understood that they left Mr. Payne quite indifferent, says the New York Times.

The industries to which we refer whose representatives visited Washington were the hide and leather trade and the shoe trade. They asked that the tax on imported hides should be repealed. There is not the shadow of a reason why the tax should ever have been put on. The government could have got the revenue in other ways when it was needed, and it is now no longer needed. It adds to the cost of every pair of shoes or boots worn in the United States, and it adds to the difficulty of competing in the shoe trade in foreign markets. The profit derived from it goes exclusively to the great cattle and slaughtering companies, whose organization is monopolistic at best. The tax was put on under the pretext that it would benefit the farmers. It increases the cost of living to the farmers, and they do not get a cent a year more for their products.

Why, then, is the tax not willingly and promptly repealed? For the reason that it is a party tax. It was put on to get the votes controlled by the cattle and slaughtering companies. It is retained for fear of the political influence of those companies. Besides this immediate consideration, there is the old cry that it will not do to begin the process of changing the tariff because there is no telling where it will stop. That is, in plain English, the tariff is a complex arrangement of jobs, and if one of them is disturbed because its inquity has been exposed the exposure of the rest of them may be followed by like results. It is a case for the application of the ancient maxim which requires honor among tariff favorites. If they fall out, honest traders and the rest of the country may come by their dues.

CLOSE OF THE SCHLEY CASE.

Roosevelt's Decision Must Be a Pleasing One to Crowninshield, Hanna and Lemly.

The president's decision on the appeal of Rear Admiral Schley is not a surprise, so far as general results go. It was known that the president had surrounded himself with Schley's enemies, and held aloof from Schley's friends, throughout his investigation of this case; and from an atmosphere so tainted as that with which the president saw fit to surround himself, the production of a decision not adverse to Schley would have been a miracle, indeed, says the Albany Argus.

What was not expected was that the president would out-Crowninshield Crowninshield, by attempting to reduce Rear Admiral Schley to the position of a somewhat bothersome spectator at the battle of Santiago, who did well enough so long as he kept out of the way of the fighters.

As for the captains, in the desire of most of them to magnify their own services, and to prove their ability to fight a battle without a commander, they give a depressing exhibition of selfishness, upon which it is neither pleasant nor profitable to dwell. They would have done better to remember Schley's axiom—the guiding principle of the brave officer they have shown themselves so rendy to help strike down—that "there is glory enough for all."

The president expresses the desire that the so-called controversy should cease. He has prevented it from ceasing. It by "controversy" he means the popular demand that justice shall be done to a brave and well-liked naval officer, that will cease only when justice has been done—not before. The people looked to the president for a calm, judicious decision, not for the stump speech of a prosecuting attorney. They forget that Mr. Roosevelt is a "strenuous," quick to make up his mind, and impatient of contradiction; jerky and impulsive, and sure he is right, no matter what others may think. In these well-known traits of Theodore Roosevelt, which are the very opposite of calm and judiciousness, it was, perhaps, too much to expect a radical change, simply because of an accidental occasion to the presidency—an accident not likely to repeat itself. But he ought not to have tried to hide behind his predecessor's coffin.

This decision no doubt pleases Crowninshield, Hanna and Lemly. As for the people, it merely shows them that in order to make the popular wish effective, and to balk the entrenched conspiracy in the navy department, a change of administration is necessary.

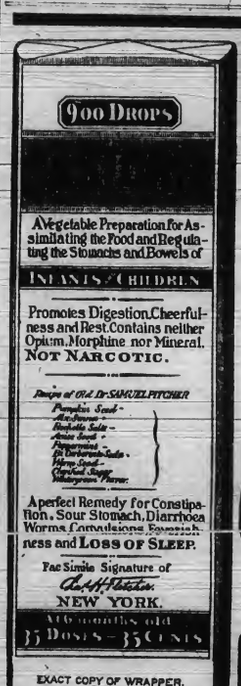
DALLAS REUNION GROUNDS.

Cotton Belt Railroad Has Splendid Facilities for Reaching Same.

An incorrect impression has gotten abroad that the Fair Grounds at Dallas, which are to be used for the Confederate veteran reunion, April 22 to 25, are reached by and accessible to only one line of railway entering Dallas.

In the interest of the citizens of Dallas and of veterans who contemplate attending the reunion this erroneous impression is corrected. In addition to the railroad referred to, the Cotton Belt route passes the reunion grounds, where all trains will stop, and furthermore, this line has tracks on Parry avenue, opposite the main entrance to the grounds, where thirty or forty sleepers and other cars can be parked for use of the veterans during the reunion.



Street cars also run every few minutes between Dallas and the Fair Grounds, and veterans need have no fear that, come as they may, ample accommodations and facilities will not be provided for them.

FORGIVE AND FORGET

Dr. Talmage Illustrates How Offenders May Be Emancipated.

God Remembers Our Sins No More If We Sincerely Ask Forgiveness —Art of Recollection and Forgetting.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

From the letter to the Hebrews Dr. Talmage takes a text and illustrates how all offenders may be emancipated; text, Hebrews 8:12: "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

The national flower of the Egyptians is the heliotrope, of the Assyrians is the water lily, of the Hindoos is the marigold, of the Chinese is the chrysanthemum. We have no national flower, but there is hardly any flower more suggestive to many of us than the forgetmenot. We all like to be remembered, and one of our misfortunes is that there are so many things we cannot remember. Mnemonics, or the art of assisting memory, is an important art. It was first suggested by Simonides of Ceos 500 years before Christ. Persons who had but little power to recall events or put facts and names and dates in proper processions have through this art had their memory reenforced to an almost incredible extent. A good memory is an invaluable possession. By all means cultivate it. I had an aged friend who, detained all night at a miserable depot in waiting for a rail train fast in the snowbanks, entertained a group of some ten or fifteen clergymen likewise detained on their way home from a meeting of presbytery, by first with a piece of chalk drawing out on the black and sooty walls of the depot the characters of Walter Scott's "Marmion" and then reciting from memory the whole of that poem of some 80 pages in fine print. My old friend, through great age, lost his memory, and when I asked him if this story of the railroad depot was true he said: "I do not just remember now, but it was just like me. Let me see," said he to me. "Have I ever seen you before?" "Yes," I said, "you were my guest last night, and I was with you an hour ago." What an awful contrast in that man between the greatest memory I ever knew and no memory at all!

But right along with this art of recollection, which I cannot too highly eulogize, is one quite as important, and yet I never heard it applauded. I mean the art of forgetting. There is a splendid faculty in that direction that we all need to cultivate. We might through that process be ten times happier and more useful than we now are. We have been told that forgetfulness is a weakness that ought to be avoided by all possible means. So far from a weakness, my text ascribes it to God. It is the very top of omnipotence that God is able to obliterate a part of His own memory. If we repent of sin and rightly seek the Divine forgiveness, the record of misbehavior is not only crossed off the books, but God actually lets it pass out of memory. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more." To remember no more is to forget, and you cannot make anything else out of it. God's power of forgetting is so great that if two men appeal to Him and the one man, after a life all right, gets the sins of his heart pardoned and the other man, after a life of abomination, gets pardoned God remembers no more against one than against the other. The entire past of both the moralist, and his imperfections, and the profligate, with his debaucheries, is as much obliterated in the one case as in the other. Forgotten forever and forever.

This sublime attribute of forgetfulness on the part of God you and I need, in our finite way, to imitate. You will do well to cast out of your recollection all wrongs done you. During the course of one's life he is sure to be misrepresented, to be lied about, to be injured. There are those who keep these things fresh by frequent rehearsal. If things have appeared in print, they keep them in their scrapbook, for they cut these precious paragraphs out of newspapers or books and at leisure times look them over, or they have them tied up in bundles or thrust in pigeonholes, and they frequently regale themselves and their friends by an inspection of these flings, these sarcasms, these falsehoods, these cruelties. I have known gentlemen who carried them in their pocketbooks, so that they could easily get at these irritations, and they put their right hand in the inside of their coat pocket over their heart and say: "Look here! Let me show you something." Scientists catch wasps and hornets and poisonous insects and transfix them in curiosity bureaus for study, and that is well, but these of whom I speak catch the wasps and the hornets and the poisonous insects and play with them and put them on themselves and on their friends and see how far the noxious things can jump, and show how deep they can sting. Have no such scrapbook. Keep nothing in your possession that is disagreeable. Tear up the falsehoods and the slanders and the hypercriticisms.

Imitate the Lord in my text and forget, actually forget, sublimely forget. There is no happiness for you in any other plan or procedure. You see all around you in the church and out of the church dispositions acerb, malign, cynical, pessimistic. Do you know how these men and women got that disposition? It was by the embalmment of things pantherine and viperous. They have spent much of their time in calling the roll of all the rats that have nibbled at their reputation. Their soul is a cage of vultures. Everything in them is sour or embittered. The milk of human kindness has been curdled. They do not believe in anybody or anything. If they see two people whispering, they think it is about themselves. If they see two people laughing, they think it is about themselves. Where there is one sweet pippin in their orchard there are 50 crabapples. They have never been able to forget. They do not want to forget. They never will forget. Their wretchedness is supreme, for no one can be happy if he carries perpetually in mind the mean things that have been done him. On the other hand, you can find here and there a man or woman (for there are not many of them) whose disposition is genial and summery. Why? Have they always been treated well? Oh, no. Hard things have been said against them. They have been charged with officiousness, and their generosities have been set down to a desire for display, and they have many a time been the subject of tittle tattle, and they have had enough small assaults like gnats and enough great attacks like lions to have made them perpetually miserable if they would have consented to be miserable. But they have had enough divine philosophy to cast off the annoyances, and they have kept themselves in the sunslight of God's favor and have realized that these oppositions and hindrances are a part of a mighty discipline by which they are to be prepared for usefulness and heaven. The secret of it all is they have, by the help of the Eternal God, learned how to forget.

Another practical thought: When our faults are repented of let them go out of mind. If God forgets them, we have a right to forget them. Having once repented of our infelicities and misdemeanors, there is no need of our repenting of them again. Suppose I owe you a large sum of money, and you are persuaded I am incapacitated to pay and you give me acquittal from that obligation. You say: "I cancel that debt. All is right now. Start again." And the next day I come in and say: "You know about that big debt I owe you. I have come in to get you to let me off. I feel so bad about it I cannot rest. Do let me off." You reply with a little impatience: "I did let you off. Don't bother yourself and bother me with any more of that discussion." The following day I come in and say: "My dear sir, about that debt—I can never get over the fact that I owe you that money. It is something that weighs on my mind like a millstone. Do forgive me that debt." This time you clear lose your patience and say: "You are a nuisance. What do you mean by this reiteration of that affair? I am almost sorry I forgave you that debt. Do you doubt my veracity or do you not understand the plain language in which I told you that debt was canceled?" Well, my friends, there are many Christians guilty of worse folly than that. While it is right that they repent of new sins and of recent sins, what is the use of bothering yourself and insulting God by asking Him to forgive sins that long ago were forgiven? God has forgotten them. Why do you not forget them? No; you drag the load on with you, and 365 times a year, if you pray every day, you ask God to recall occurrences which He has not only forgiven, but forgotten.

Quit this folly. I do not ask you less to realize the turpitude of sin, but I ask you to a higher faith in the promise of God and the full deliverance of His mercy. He does not give a receipt for part payment or so much received on account, but receipt in full, God having for Christ's sake decreed "your sins and your iniquities will I remember no more." As far as possible let the disagreeables of life drop. We have enough things in the present, and there will be enough in the future, to disturb us without running a special train into the great Goneby to fetch us as special freight things left behind. Years ago, when there was a great railroad strike, I remember seeing all along the route from Omaha to Chicago and from Chicago to New York hundreds and thousands of freight cars switched on the sidetracks, those cars loaded with all kinds of perishable material, decaying and wasting. After the strike was over did the railroad companies bring all that perished material down to the markets? No; they threw it off where it was destroyed and loaded up with something else. Let the long train of your thoughts throw off the worse than useless freight of a corrupt and destroyed past and load up with gratitude and faith and holy determination. We do not please God by the cultivation of the miserable. He would rather see us happy than to see us depressed. You would rather see your children laugh than to see them cry, and your Heavenly Father has no fondness for hysterics.

Not only forget your pardoned transgressions, but allow others to forget them. The chief stock on hand of some people is to recount in prayer meetings and pulpits what big scoundrels they once were. They not only will not forget their forgiven deficits, but they seem to be determined that the church and the world shall not forget them. If you want to declare that you have been the chief of sinners and extol the grace that could save such a wretch as you were, do so, but do not go into particulars. Do not tell how many times you got drunk or to what bad places you went or how many free rides you had in the prison van before you were converted. Lump it, brother; give it to us in bulk. If you have any scars got in honorable warfare, show them, but if you have scars got in ignoble warfare do not display them. I know you will quote the Bible reference to the horrible pit from which you were digged. Yes, be thankful for that rescue, but do not make displays of the mud of that horrible pit or splash it over other people. Sometimes I have felt in Christian meetings discomfited and unfit for Christian service because I had done none of those things which seemed to be, in the estimation of many, necessary for Christian usefulness, for I never swore a word or ever got drunk or went to compromising places or was guilty of assault and battery or ever uttered a slanderous word or ever did any one a hurt, although I knew my heart was sinful enough, and I said to myself: "There is no use of my trying to do any good, for I never went through those depraved experiences." But afterward I saw consolation in the thought that no one gained any ordination by the laying on of the hands of dissoluteness and infamy.

And though an ordinary moral life, ending in a Christian life, may not be as dramatic a story to tell about, let us be grateful to God rather than worry about it if we have never plunged into outward abominations. It may be appropriate in a meeting of reformed drunkards or reformed debauchees to quote for those not reformed how desperate and nasty you once were, but do not drive a scavenger's cart into assemblages of people the most of whom have always been decent and respectable. But I have been sometimes in great evangelical meetings where people went into particulars about the sins that they once committed, so much so that I felt like putting my hand on my pocketbook or calling for the police lest these reformed men might fall from grace and go at their old business of theft or drunkenness or cutthroatery. If your sins have been forgiven and your life purified, forget the waywardness of the past and allow others to forget it.

But what I most want in the light of this text to impress is that we have a sin forgetting God. Suppose that on the last day—called the last day because the sun will never again rise upon our earth, the earth itself being flung into fiery demolition—supposing that on that last day a group of infernal spirits should somehow get near enough the gate of heaven and challenge our entrance and say: "How canst Thou, the just Lord, let those souls into the realm of supernal gladness? Why, they said a great many things they never ought to have said, and they did a great many things they ought never to have done. Sinners are they—sinners all."

There are certain names so magnetic that their pronunciation thrills all who hear them. Such is the name of the Italian soldier and liberator, Garibaldi. Marching with his troops, he met a shepherd who was in great distress because he had lost a lamb. Garibaldi said to his troops: "Let us help this poor shepherd find his lamb." And so, with lanterns and torches, they explored the mountains, but did not find the lamb, and after an unsuccessful search late at night they went to their encampment. The next morning Garibaldi was found asleep far on into the day, and they wakened him for some purpose and found that he had not given up the search when the soldiers did, but had kept on still further into the night and had found it, and he pulled down the blankets from his couch, and there lay the lamb, which Garibaldi ordered immediately taken to its owner. So the Commander of all the hosts of heaven turned aside from His glorious and victorious march through the centuries of heaven and said: "I will go and recover that lost world and that race of whom Adam was the progenitor, and let all who will accompany me." And through the night they came, but I do not see that the angels of rescue came any farther than the clouds, but their most illustrious Leader came all the way down, and by the time His errand is done our little world, our wandering and lost world, our world fleecy with the light, will be found in the bosom of the Great Shepherd, and then all Heaven will take up the cantata and sing: "The lost sheep found!"

So I set open the wide gate of my text, inviting you all to come into the mercy and pardon of God—yea, still further, into the ruins of the place where once was kept the knowledge of your iniquities. The place has been torn down and the records destroyed, and you will find the ruins more dilapidated and broken and prostrate than the ruins of Melrose or Kenilworth, for from these last ruins you can pick up some fragment of a sculptured stone or you can see the curve of some broken arch, but after your repentance and your forgiveness you cannot find in all the memory of God a fragment of your pardoned sins so large as a needle's point. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

Six different kinds of sounds were heard on that night which was interjected into the daylight of Christ's assassination. The neighing of the warhorses—for some of the soldiers were in the saddle—was one sound, the bang of the hammers was a second sound, the jeer of malignants was a third sound, the weeping of friends and followers was a fourth sound, the plash of blood on the rocks was a fifth sound, and the groan of the expiring Lord was a sixth sound. And they all commingled into one sadness. Over a place in Russia where wolves were pursuing a load of travelers and to save them a servant sprang from the sled into the mouths of the wild beasts and was devoured and thereby the other lives were saved are inscribed the words: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." Many a surgeon in our own time has in tracheotomy with his own lips drawn from the windpipe of a diphtheritic patient that which cured the patient and slew the surgeon, and all have honored the self-sacrifice. But all other scenes of sacrifice pale before this most illustrious martyr of all time and all eternity. After that agonizing spectacle in behalf of our fallen race nothing about the sin forgetting God is too stupendous for my faith, and I accept the promise, and will you not all accept it? "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

NEW SAFETY DEVICE.

System Devised for Closing Water-Tight Doors on Steamships in Case of Accident by Electricity.

The first public exposition of a new system of closing water-tight doors on steamships, adopted two years ago by the North German Lloyd company, but thus far installed on only a few of its vessels, was given on board the Kron Prinz Wilhelm the other day at New York. The new system is one by which every bulkhead connecting door throughout the vessel below the water line can be closed automatically by the turn of a lever on the bridge and within the space of a minute. In order to close the 20 compartment doors of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm it is necessary to move a lever on the bridge, in doing which an electric bell is sounded for 20 seconds at every door, giving warning that the door is about to close.

Then the doors close slowly, and in order that the commanding officer may be sure that every door closes there is a board in the charthouse on which is an electric bulb number to correspond with each door. As each door closes tight the corresponding bulb in the charthouse glows.

Aside from this arrangement, the doors are so arranged that in case of any failure of the automatic system the doors may be closed by hand in the usual manner.

AMERICAN SILVERSMITHS.

Are Preparing to Invade the English Market with Their Artistic Wares.

American manufacturers of silverware are preparing to invade the English markets. The originality and artistic finish of the American product has been recognized in the British Isles as elsewhere, but without the English hall mark as a guarantee of the purity of the silver it was impossible to make any headway. One difficulty in the way was that the hall mark could not be affixed after the goods were finished, as the tests for purity would disfigure them.

To obviate this the manufacturers made arrangements to ship the silverware to England in a partly finished condition, have the hall mark affixed and sent back to the United States for the final stages of manufacture, after which it is to be shipped to England for sale.

Inquiry was made at the treasury department whether or not duty would be assessed on the goods when brought back from England, and the department has ruled that no duty will be levied, as the silverware would not be considered as having been advanced in manufacture within the meaning of the law by the affixing of the hall mark.

Expedition to Mexican Indians.

Dr. A. Hedlicka has started on his fourth expedition among the Indians of the southwestern United States and northern Mexico. These expeditions are a part of the system of anthropological explorations carried on by the Hyde expedition for the American museum of natural history under Prof. F. W. Putnam. The expenses are defrayed by F. E. Hyde, Jr., of New York. The plan of Dr. Hedlicka is to ascertain the physical characteristics of the extinct as well as the living peoples in the area once occupied by the cliff dwellers of Pueblo, Aztecs, Toltec and Chechemec peoples. The principal tribes to be studied on this present trip are the Pimas, Papagos, Yaquis, Mayos, Tepehuanos, Coras, Aztecs and Tarascos.

What Pauperism Costs.

England spends £8,400,000 a year on her paupers, Scotland £900,000, Ireland £1,400,000. France spends less than £1,000,000.

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD.

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD, OF ALABAMA.

House of Representatives, Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"I have taken Peruna now for two weeks, and find I am very much relieved. I feel that my cure will be permanent. I have also taken it for la grippe, and I take pleasure in recommending Peruna as an excellent remedy to all fellow sufferers."

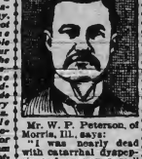
M. W. HOWARD.

Congressman Howard's home address is Fort Payne, Ala.

MOST people think that catarrh is a disease confined to the head and nose. Nothing is farther from the truth. It may be that the nose and throat are the oftenest affected by catarrh, but if this is so it is so only because these parts are more exposed to the vicissitudes of the climate than the other parts of the body.

Every organ, every duct, every cavity of the human body is liable to catarrh. A multitude of ailments depend on catarrh. This is true winter and summer. Catarrh causes many cases of chronic disease, where the victim has not the slightest suspicion that catarrh has any thing to do with it.

The following letter which gives the experience of Mr. A. C. Lockhart is a case in point:



Mr. A. C. Lockhart, corner Cottage St. and Thurston Road, Rochester, N. Y., in a letter written to Dr. Hartman says the following of Peruna:

"About fifteen years ago I commenced to be ailing, and consulted a physician. He pronounced my trouble a species of dyspepsia, and advised me, after he had treated me about six months, to get a leave of absence from my business and go into the country. I did so and got temporary relief. I went back to work again, but was taken with very distressing pains in my stomach.

"I seldom had a passage of the bowels naturally. I consulted another physician with no better results. The disease kept growing on me until I had exhausted the ability of sixteen of Rochester's best physicians. The last physician advised me to give up work and go north, after he had treated me for one year.

"I was given a thorough examination with the X-ray. They would not even determine what my trouble was. Some of your testimonials in the Rochester papers seemed to me worthy of consideration, and I made up my mind to try a bottle of Peruna. Before the bottle was half gone I noticed a change for the better. I am now on the fifth bottle, and have not an ache or pain anywhere. My bowels move regularly every day, and I have taken an eighteen pound gain of flesh. I have recommended Peruna to a great many and they recommend it very highly. I have told several people that if they would take a bottle of Peruna, and could then candidly say that it had not benefited them, I would pay for the medicine."

A. C. LOCKHART.

Mr. W. P. Peterson, of Morris, Ill., says:

"I was nearly dead with catarrhal dyspepsia and am now a well man, better, in fact, than I have been for twenty years or more.

"Since I got cured by your Peruna I have been consulted by a great many people."—W. P. Peterson.

COWPEAS.

The majority of farmers harvest only enough seed of cowpeas to plant again the next season. The ripe pods are picked by hand and are stored in barrels until needed or are thrashed out by machine or with flails on the barn floor during the winter. Sometimes, if the crop is heavy enough to render it profitable, the vines are run through an ordinary thrashing machine from which the concaves and alternate teeth of the cylinder have been removed. But a machine breaks and bruises more of the seed than when the pods are first picked off by hand. Fully 95 per cent of the seed placed upon the market is hand picked. The yield per acre varies according to the variety and the method of cultivation. Eight to 12 bushels is a fair average of the amount that can be obtained when the peas are planted in the corn rows. Sown alone, broadcast or in drills, yields of from 20 to 35 and even, in rare cases, 50 bushels are obtained. The Black, Unknown, Red Ripper, Clay and Calico varieties are all heavy seed bearers. Lady and White Crowder are good for table use and also yield well. The Black-eye, Red Crowder, and Whip-poor-will, or Speckled, are very widely cultivated and find ready sale. Those which make the largest growth of vines for green manure, as a winter soil mulch, for hay or soiling are the Unknown, Red Ripper, Southdown, and Clay. Whip-poor-will, Black-eye, White, and Red Crowder ripen in from twelve to fourteen weeks, and hence are adapted to cultivation farther north than the very late, but ranker growing, Unknown Wonderful, Red Ripper, Black, and Gourd varieties. The New Era and Lee ripen seed in from six to eight weeks, and hence are the ones to recommend for summer-soiling crops in the upper prairie region of the Mississippi Valley or anywhere else that an early maturing cowpea is required. This is one of the species of cultivated plants which is very readily modified by change of habitat. Early and late maturing forms may be found of every strain that has been in cultivation for any considerable time.

The feeding value of cowpea hay is very high, as shown by feeding tests and chemical analysis. Berckmans states that the well cured hay is more nutritious than any hay produced from grass, millet, or any other plant used for the purpose, and that one ton of it will last as long as a ton and a half of the best timothy. One hundred pounds of the green vines contain 16.4 pounds of total dry matter, of which 10 pounds are digestible. One hundred pounds of the hay contain 89.3 pounds of the total dry matter, of which 50.7 pounds are digestible. The digestible crude protein in the hay amounts to 10.79 pounds in comparison with 10.58 for alfalfa, 10.49 for crimson clover, 6.58 for red clover, and 2.89 for timothy. The digestible carbohydrates and fat amount to 39.91 pounds in every 100 pounds of cowpea hay, 38.71 for alfalfa, 39.42 for crimson clover, 37.01 for red clover, 1:5.9; and of timothy. The average nutritive ration of cowpea hay is 1:3.9; of alfalfa, 1:3.8; of crimson clover, 1:3.9; of red clover, 1:5.9; and of timothy, 1:16.2. The green cowpea vines are more succulent than red clover or any of the grasses, containing less dry matter per total weight.

The feeding value of the hay is shown by the nutritive ratio which represents the relation of the digestible crude protein to the carbohydrates and extract matter. Thus, for every pound of digestible crude protein in cowpea hay there are 3.9 pounds of digestible carbohydrates and fat. In order to insure uniform growth of an animal and get the full feeding value of all the constituents of a forage, the ration must be properly balanced. The nutritive ratio of cowpea hay is narrower than can be properly utilized by the animal, and to get the full benefit of all the crude protein in the plant, hay or coarse fodder containing an excess of the carbohydrates must be added to the daily ration. A practical farmer, writing from southern Mississippi, says that excellent results were obtained through feeding two parts of cowpea hay to one part of crab grass or timothy, and when using this ration very little grain was required, especially when the hay contained much of the pods. If cowpea hay be fed without the admixture of some coarse forage or grass hay, a portion of the protein will be wasted through inability of the animal to digest and assimilate the whole amount. Cowpea hay is used on many of the Southern sugar and rice plantations for the horses and mules, and it is found that work stock keep in excellent condition upon it, requiring very little grain.

It has been found that, as a rule, it does not pay to use high-grade commercial fertilizers on cowpeas; this, however, depends a good deal on the soil and on what crop is to follow. It is usually unprofitable to fertilize with expensive nitrogen, in the form either of nitrate of soda or of guano, and even the organic nitrogen of cotton-seed meal does not act upon this crop as rapidly as upon cotton and the cereals. The nitrogen of the fertilizers seems not to influence the percentage of protein in the crop, and the general opinion of agriculturists in the South is that it does not cause a sufficient increase in yield of vines to pay the cost. At the Delaware Station 160 pounds of muriate of potash per acre doubled the yield of vines, and superphosphate produced no effect. At the Georgia Station combinations of superphosphate and potash gave the best results, but later experiments there indicted that large amounts of potash are unprofitable, and that superphosphate at the rate of from 200 to 400 pounds per acre gave better results. Superphosphates are very much preferable to untreated rock phosphate. The latter can be sold at lower rates, and it remains to be seen whether it would not be a profitable method to apply the soft phosphate to the cowpeas for the benefit of the succeeding crop in the rotation, for it has been found that the insoluble phosphoric acid of the untreated rock becomes changed to forms available as plant food in the presence of large amounts of decaying vegetable matter in the soil. If it is found that this process can be relied upon, then the cowpea will have another valuable quality added to it, namely, that of being able to change into high-grade and more costly superphosphate the low-grade and cheap but unavailable phosphoric acid of the untreated rock.

The chief functions of this crop then, are to furnish large amounts of nitrogen abstracted from the air and fixed in the roots and stubble in a conveniently available form for the use of succeeding crops; second, to produce a large yield of vines and peas rich in digestible protein, which, either as hay or for soiling purposes, will take the place of concentrated nitrogenous foods; and, third, to supply humus, which acts directly and indirectly to produce fertility by breaking down and rendering available the basic minerals of the soil. The fertilizing value of the nitrogen in the vines is entirely dissipated or greatly diminished dy weathering when they are left on the surface of the field during the winter. Hence, to secure the full value, the cowpeas should be fed and the stable manure returned to the field. If the vines are plowed under in autumn, a winter forage crop, such as winter oats, crimson clover, rye, or vetches, should be planted to prevent the leaching and washing action of the winter rains.

The Missionaries' and Ministers' meeting will be held with Madison Avenue Baptist church, Covington, March 20 to 23. An interesting program has been arranged.

The people all over the county are talking traction road. It seems the right of way would be given by all.

Thursday, some one sent us two spicy valentines. We have no idea who perpetrated the act and do not particularly care, but we would like to gently inform the sender of the one-thousand-for-five cents comics that the Southern Rebellion is over, George Washington is dead and St Valentine's day occurred over a month ago. We have nothing derogatory to say of any one who has the valentine mania, for they are "more to be pitied than censured," but it jars our equanimity to receive a valentine a month after we had concluded that all unfortunate comic senders were safely domiciled at Lakeland.

The closing entertainment given at school No. 24, near Walton, on the 7th inst., was a decided success. A large crowd was present, and all concurred in pronouncing the recitations exceptionally good, and complimented highly the teacher, Miss Blanche Northcutt, for her excellent work and the progress of her pupils. Many of Miss Northcutt's pupils are possessed of elocutionary ability, and she is justly proud of their advancement under her supervision. Mrs. Wm. Lacy was found dead in her room last Monday about 9 o'clock. Mr. Lacy had been gone to his work only two hours, leaving her in perfect health. She was found by her grandchildren, who had gone to pay her a visit. She leaves a husband, one child and two grand-children, to mourn her death.

While skiff riding in the back water one day last week, your correspondent saw, probably, the largest fish that was ever seen in Woolper. It was a Buffalo perch about 2½ feet long, and at least one foot wide. When first seen it was about five feet from the boat, swimming along slowly with about an inch of its back above the water. Laying one oar in the boat I stood up with the other in my hands and waited for it to come nearer. When it came in reach I dealt it a blow on the back, which made it turn a dozen flip-flops and then it disappeared. It came to the surface again about twenty feet from where it was first seen, turned a few more flip-flops and disappeared. I immediately rowed to the spot and in a few seconds to the surface again twenty or thirty feet from me. I rowed toward it again when it disappeared not to be seen again. A few days later Henry Deck caught, it is supposed, the same fish. It weighed 22 pounds.

Squire Watson held court on Saturday with but one case on the docket and that was compromised before the trial began—too bad was it not? Never mind Squire, you will have a chance to show your ability yet. The Squire very gravely said on one occasion, "What I don't know about law would make interesting reading for a beginner." The people here are satisfied on one point, that Watson will hang on to the justice of a case with the grip of a bull dog.

CHRISTIAN RELIGION

It Is as Good in This World as the Next, Says Dr. Talmage.

"Godliness Profitable Unto All Things"—Influence of the Gospel of Christ—Religion and the Intellect.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage advocates the idea that the Christian religion is as good for this world as the next and will help us to do anything that ought to be done at all; I Timothy iv. 8, "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come."

There is a gloomy and , assive way of waiting for events to come upon us, and there is a heroic way of going out to meet them, strong in God and fearing nothing. When the body of Catiline was found on the battlefield, it was found far in advance of all his troops and among the enemy, and the best way is not for us to lie down and let the events of life trample over us, but to go forth in a Christian spirit determined to conquer. You are expecting prosperity, and I am determined, so far as I have anything to do with it, that you shall not be disappointed, and, therefore, I propose, as God may help me, to project upon your attention a new element of success. You have in the business firm frugality, patience, industry, perseverance, economy—a very strong business firm but there needs to be one member added, mightier than them all, and not a silent partner either, the one introduced by my text, "Godliness, which is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is as well as of that which is to come."

I suppose you are all willing to admit that godliness is important in its eternal relations, but perhaps some of you say: "All I want is an opportunity to say a prayer before I die, and all will be well." There are a great many people who suppose that if they can finally get safely out of this world into a better world they will have exhausted the entire advantage of our holy religion. They talk as though religion were n mere nod of recognition which we are to give to the Lord Jesus on our way up to a heavenly mansion, as though it were an admission ticket, of no use except to give in at the door of Heaven. And there are thousands of people who have great admiration for a religion of the shroud and a religion of the coffin and a religion of the hearse and a religion of the cemetery who have no appreciation of a religion for the bank, for the farm, for the factory, for the warehouse, for the jeweler's shop, for the office. Now, while I would not throw any slur on a postmortem religion, I want to day to eulogize an antemortem religion. A religion that is of no use to you while you live will be of no use to you when you die. "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is as well as of that which is to come." And I have always noticed that when grace is very low in a man's heart he talks a great deal in prayer meetings about deaths and about coffins and about graves and about churchyards. I have noticed that the healthy Christian, the man who is living near to God and is on the straight road to Heaven, is full of jubilant satisfaction and talks about the duties of this life, understanding well that if God helps him to live right He will help him to die right.

Now, in the first place, I remark that godliness is good for a man's physical health. I do not mean to say that it will restore a broken down constitution or drive rheumatism from the limbs or neuralgia from the temples or pleurisy from the side, but I do mean to say that it gives one such habits and puts one in such condition as are most favorable for physical health. That I believe, and that I avow. Everybody knows that buoyancy of spirit is good physical advantage. Gloom, unrest, dejection, are at war with every pulsation of the heart and with every respiration of the lungs. They lower the vitality and slacken the circulation, while exhilaration of spirit pours the very balm of heaven through all the currents of life. The sense of insecurity which sometimes hovers over an unregenerate man or pounces upon him with the blast of 10,000 trumpets of terror is most depleting and most exhausting, while the feeling that all things are working together for our good now and for our everlasting welfare is conducive to physical health.

You will observe that godliness induces industry, which is the foundation of good health. There is no law of hygiene that will keep a lazy man well. Pleurisy will stab him, erysipelas will burn him, jaundice will dis color him, gout will cripple him, and the intelligent physician will not prescribe antiseptic or febrifuge or anodyne, but saws and hammers and yardsticks and crowbars and pickaxes. There is no such thing as good physical condition without positive work of some kind, although you should sleep on down of swan or ride in carriage of softest upholstery or have on your table all the luxuries that were poured from the wine vats of Ispahan and Shiraz. Our religion says: "Away to the bank, away to the field, away to the shop, away to the factory! Do something that will enlist all the energies of your body, mind and soul!" Diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord," while upon the bare back of the idler and the drone comes down the sharp lash of the apostle as he says: "If any man will not work, neither shall he eat."

Oh, how important in this day, when so much is said about anatomy and physiology and therapeutics and some new style of medicine is ever and anon springing upon the world, that you should understand that the highest school of medicine is the school of Christ, which declares that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life that now is as well as of that which is to come." So if you start out two men in the world with equal physical health, and then one of them shall get the religion of Christ in his heart and the other shall not get it, the one who becomes a son of the Lord Almighty will live the longer. "With long life will I satisfy him and show him my salvation."

Again I remark that godliness is good for the intellect. I know some have supposed that just as soon as a man enters into Christian life his intellect goes into a bedwarfing process. So far from that, religion will give new brilliancy to the intellect, new strength to the imagination, new force to the will and wider swing to all the intellectual faculties. Christianity is the great central fire at which philosophy has lighted its brightest torch. The religion of Christ is the fountain out of which learning has dipped its clearest draft. The Helicon poured forth no such inspiring waters as those which flow from under the throne of God clear as crystal. Religion has given new energy to poesy, weeping in Dr. Young's "Night Thoughts," teaching in Cowper's "Task," flaming in Charles Wesley's hymns and rushing with archangelic splendor through Milton's "Paradise Lost."

Now, I commend godliness as the best mental discipline, better than belles lettres to purify the taste, better than mathematics to harness the mind to all intricacy and elaboration, better than logic to marshal the intellectual forces for onset and victory. It will go with Hugh Miller and show him the footprints of the Creator in the red sandstone. It will go with the botanist and show him celestial glories encamped under the curtain of a water lily. It will go with the astronomer on the great heights where God shepherds the great flock of worlds that wander on the hills of Heaven answering His voice as he calls them all by their names.

Again I remark that godliness is profitable for one's disposition. Lord Ashley, before he went into a great battle, was heard to offer this prayer: "O Lord, I shall be very busy to-day! If I forget Thee, forget me not." With such a Christian disposition as that a man is independent of all circumstances. Our piety will have a tinge of our natural temperament. If a man be cross and fret and fretful naturally, after he becomes a Christian he will always have to be armed against the rebellion of those evil inclinations. But religion has tamed the wildest natures. It has turned fretfulness into gratitude, despondency into good cheer, and those who were hard and ungovernable and uncompromising have been made pliable and conciliatory. Good resolution, reformatory effort, will not effect the change it takes a mightier arm and a mightier hand to bend evil habits than the hand that bent the bow of Ulysses, and it takes a stronger lasso than ever held the buffalo on the prairie.

A man cannot go forth with any human weapons and contend successfully against these Titans armed with upturn mountains. But you have known men into whose spirit the influence of the Gospel of Christ came until their disposition was entirely changed. So it was with two merchants in New York. They were very antagonistic. They had done all they could to injure each other. They were in the same line of business. One of the merchants was converted to God. Having been converted, he asked the Lord to teach him how to bear himself toward that business antagonist, and he was impressed with the fact that it was his duty when a customer asked for certain kinds of goods which he had not, but which he knew his opponent had, to recommend him to go to that store. I suppose that is about the hardest thing a man could do; but, being thoroughly converted to God, he resolved to do that very thing, and, being asked for a certain kind of goods which he had not, he said: "You go to such and such a store, and you will get it." After awhile merchant No. 2 found these customers coming, so sent, and he found also that merchant No. 1 had been brought to God, and he sought the same religion. Now they are good friends and good neighbors, the grace of God entirely changing their dispositions.

"Oh," says some one, "I have a rough, jagged, impetuous nature, and religion can't do anything for me." Do you know that Martin Luther and Robert Newton and Richard Baxter had impetuous and all consuming natures, yet the grace of God turned them into the mightiest usefulness? A manufacturer cares but very little for a stream that slowly runs through the meadow, but values a torrent that leaps from rock to rock and rushes with mad energy through the valley and out toward the sea. Along that river you will find fluttering shuttles and grinding mill and flashing water wheel. And a nature the swiftest, the most rugged and the most tremendous—that is the nature God turns into greatest usefulness. Oh, how many that have been pugnacious and hard to please and irascible and more bothered about the mote in their neighbor's eye than about the beamlike ship timber in their own eye who have been entirely changed by the grace of God and have found out that "godliness is profitable for the life that now is as well as for life to come."

Again I remark that religion is good for worldly business. I know the general theory is the more business the less religion, the more religion the less business. Not so, thought Dr. Hans in his "Biography of a Christian Merchant" when he says: "He grew in grace the last six years of his life more than at any time in his life. During those six years he had more business crowding him than at any other time." In other words, the more worldly business a man has the more opportunity to serve God. Does religion exhilarate or retard worldly business is the practical question for you to discuss. Does it hang like a mortgage over the farm? Is it a bad debt on the ledger? Is it a lien against the estate? Does it crowd the door through which customers come for broadcloths and silks?

Now, religion will hinder your business if it be a bad business or if it be n good business wrongly conducted. If you tell lies behind the counter, if you use false weights and measures, if you put sand in sugar and beet juice in vinegar and lard in butter and sell for one thing that which is another thing, then religion will interfere with that business, but a lawful business, lawfully conducted, will find the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ its mightiest auxiliary.

Religion will give an equipose of spirit. It will keep you from ebullitions of temper, and you know a great many fine businesses have been blown to atoms by bad temper. It will keep you from worriment about frequent loss; it will keep you industrious and prompt; it will keep you back from squandering and from dissipation; it will give you a kindness of spirit which will be easily distinguished from that mere store courtesy which shakes hands violently with you, asking about the health of your family, when there is no anxiety to know whether your child is well or sick, but the anxiety is to know how many dozen cambric pocket handkerchiefs you will take and pay cash down. It will prepare you for the practical duties of everyday life. I do not mean to say that religion will make us financiuly rich, but I do say that it will give us, it will assure us of a comfortable sustenance at the start, a comfortable subsistence all the way through, and it will help us to direct the bank, to manage the traffic, to conduct all our business matters and to make the most insignificant affair of our life as a matter of vast importance, glorified by Christian principle.

In New York city there was a merchant, hard in his dealings with his fellows, who had written over his banking house or his counting house room, "No compromise." Then when some merchant got in a crisis and went down no fault of his, but a conjunction of evil circumstances—and all the other merchants were willing to compromise—they would take 75 cents on the dollar or 50 cents or 20 cents—coming to this man last of all he said: "No compromise. I'll take 100 cents on the dollar, and I can afford to wait." Well, the wheel turned, and after awhile that man was in a crisis of business, and he sent out his agent to compromise, and the agent said to the merchants: "Will you take 50 cents on the dollar?" "No." "Will you take anything?" "We'll take 100 cents on the dollar No compromise." And the man who wrote that inscription over his counting house door died in destitution. Oh, we want more of the kindness of the Gospel and the spirit of love in our business enterprises! How many young men have found in the religion of Jesus Christ a practical help? How many there are today who could testify out of their own experience that godliness is profitable for the life that now is! There were times in their business career when they went here for help and there for help and yonder for help and got no help until they knelt before the Lord crying for His deliverance, and the Lord rescued them.

How can you get along without this religion? Is your physical health so good you do not want this divine tonic? Is your mind so clear, so vast, so comprehensive, that you do not need this divine inspiration? Is your worldly business so thoroughly established that you have no use for that religion which has been the help and deliverance of tens of thousands of men in crises of worldly trouble? And if what I have said is true then you see what a fatal blunder it is when a man adjourns to life's expiration the uses of religion. A man who postpones religion to 60 years of age gets religion 50 years too late. He may get into the kingdom of God by final repentance, but what can compensate him for a whole lifetime unrelieved and uncomforted? You want religion to day in the training of that child. You will want religion to-morrow in dealing with that customer. You wanted religion yesterday to curb your temper. Is your arm strong enough to beat your way through the floods? Can you, without being incased in the mail of God's eternal help, go forth amid the assault of all hell's sharpshooters? Can you walk alone across these crumbling graves and amid these gaping earthquakes? Can you, waterlogged and mast shivered, outlive the gale? Oh, how many there have been who, postponing the religion of Jesus Christ, have plunged into mistakes they never could correct, although they lived 60 years after, and like serpents crushed under cart wheels dragging their mauled bodies under the rocks to die. So these men have fallen under the wheel of awful calamity, while a vast multitude of others have taken the religion of Jesus Christ into everyday life and, first, in practical business affairs, and, second, on the throne of heavenly triumph, have illustrated, while angels looked on and a universe approved, the glorious truth that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having the promise of the life which now is as well as of that which is to come."

Four Meals in Washington.

Most of the Washington hotels serve four meals a day—breakfast, luncheon, dinner and supper, the latter obtainable at some houses up to midnight.

PROTECTION AND THE SOUTH.

Cotton Growing and Manufacturing Are Antagonistic to Republican High Tariff.

A vigorous effort has been made to make the people of the south believe that they are interested in a protective tariff because of the development of new manufacturing industries. The fallacy of the argument becomes more apparent every day because the manufactured products of the south are merely additions to surplus products that have to be exported, says the Indianapolis Sentinel.

For years the south was almost wholly agricultural, but in the past few years it has turned to manufacturing its raw cotton and has already gone beyond the capacity of the home market. In 1900 our exports of uncolored cotton goods, such as are generally made in the south, amounted to $13,229,443. Of the same kind of cloth we imported only $357,604, a mere bagatelle—showing not only that the mills need no protection in this line but that a tariff rate on these manufactured cottons would not have any greater effect than to increase the profits which the manufacturers extract from the American people.

The situation fully justifies the observation made by Congressman Fleming, of Georgia, in an article published and circulated by the American Free Trade league:

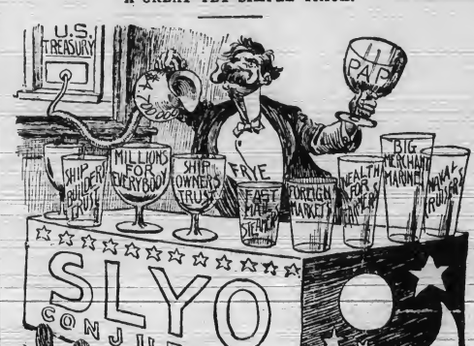
"No two industries in the south are more directly antagonistic to the republican high tariff than cotton growing and cotton manufacturing. In view of this fact, how strange it seems that this new movement to republicanize the south should apparently be fathered by the cotton mill residents of our neighboring states of North and South Carolina! Perhaps the stockholders will soon apply the proper corrective. It is possible, too, that the men behind the looms may have something to say about it. The democratic party has always favored our access to the markets of the world. The republican tariff helps to shut those markets against us. What has been said of cotton growing and cotton manufacturing is relatively true of southern coal and pig iron, both of which have outgrown home consumption. The 'oil gushers' of Texas certainly need no protection."

The simple truth is that the manufacturing industries of the south are almost wholly of the classes that suffer from "overproduction" and for which the world markets are being sought by intelligent manufacturers. They are out of the reach of competition. The manufactories of the north cannot compete with them or they would not have been established, and the manufactories of foreign countries cannot compete with the manufactories of the north or we should not be exporting manufactured goods as we do. What the south needs is markets.

PROFITABLE PHILANTHROPY.

How the Steamship Companies Would Mulct the Government Through the Subsidy Scheme.

In his report on the ship subsidy bill, Mr. Frye lays great stress upon the generosity of steamship companies in contracting with the government for carrying the mails. He says:



"In fact, wherever the act of 1891 has worked successfully, the steamship companies have offered and the postmaster general has obtained more favorable terms for the government than those fixed as the maximum under the law. Thus on the renewal of the five-year contract with the New York and Cuba Mail, the company offered for the service at the one-dollar rate several steamers which comply with the requirements of the two-dollar class. The Admiral line is furnishing under its ten-year contract 15-knot steel steamers at the pay fixed for 12-knot wooden steamers. The Oceanic contract is performed by steamers a knot in speed and 1,000 tons in size above the requirements."

This makes the steamship companies appear as philanthropic institutions. On further examination we find that the government is paying the New York and Cuba Mail $201,078 for carrying 1,995 pounds of letters and 30,964 pounds of printed matter, or at an average rate of $6.12 per pound. The same service, if performed at non-contract rates by American vessels would have cost $1.60 per pound for letters and eight cents per pound for other matter, at a total cost of $5,661.12. If performed by foreign vessels the rates would have been 44 cents for letters and 4½ cents for printed matter, making a total cost of $2,266.68. As the steamship company is getting $198,-812.32 for performing no service at all, their offer does not appear quite so magnanimous. The Admiral line received last year $117,400 for performing a service worth $2,911.83 at competitive rates. The Oceanic company will get in future $283,283 for a service worth $3,432.78. From these figures it will be seen that the steamship companies can afford to be generous. When they are making profits ranging from 500 to 10,000 per cent. upon their mail carrying business it would seem almost grasping for them to ask for the full legal rates. It would be more seemly and more in keeping with their generosity to get a law passed whereby they can make 20,000 per cent. on the government business and still not exact the full legal rate.

Undoubtedly the law of 1891 needs revision, but the revision planned by Mr. Frye, whereby the existing steamship companies will be able to mulct the government still more for their meager services will not meet with an enthusiastic reception by the people.

A GREAT YET SIMPLE TRICK.

PROSPECT OF A DEFICIT.

Republican Operations Seem to Indicate Another Attack of Hard-Times Grip.

The statement of receipts and expenditures for February hardly supports the assumption of the republican measure cutting off $77,000,000 of revenue that this amount can be spared in the presence of the contemplated increase in the expenditures in various directions without creating a deficit, says the Chicago Chronicle.

As compared with February, 1901 there was an increase of $1,500,000 in customs receipts, while there was a decrease of $3,500,000 in internal revenue and of $2,500,000 from miscellaneous sources.

At the same time there was a small increase in the expenditures. The excess of receipts over expenditures for the month was $2,000,449, against $6,-963,487 for the same month last year.

What with the big river and harbor log-roll, the outlay for the Danish islets, the contemplated expenditures for an isthmian canal and a Pacific cable, the shipping grab and various other things, there would seem to be an excellent prospect for a deficit.

Republican brethren will please bear in mind that a few years ago they were telling us that the cause of hard times was insufficient taxation and a consequent deficit in the treasury.

Are they deliberately operating to give us another attack of the hard times grip?

A CHICK'S MENTAL CAPACITY.

It Learns Readily to Do Those Actions Which Bring to It Food and Ease.

In 1896 I made a great many experiments with young chicks, testing their ability to learn a variety of performances, such as getting out of a box by pecking at a certain spot on a door or by jumping upon a little platform or by pulling down a string with their necks, escaping from a pen by going up a ladder or following an intricate path through the maze, etc., writes Prof. Edward J. Thorndyke, of Columbia university, in the International Monthly. They learn readily to abandon those acts which bring discomfort and to emphasize those which are successful in securing them food, shelter, warmth and the companionship of their fellows.

Their learning, like that of the fishes, is essentially a process of selection. For instance, a chick's only way to escape from which it can escape only by pecking at a certain spot, and so opening the door. It sees other chicks and food outside and reacts to the situation (confinement) according to its inborn organization, by running about, peeping, jumping at the walls, trying to squeeze through any small openings and pecking at the barriers confining it. The chick feels a score or more of impulses to a score or more of acts. If its reaction includes one particular act—namely, a peck at a certain spot—it of course escapes. This one act is followed by freedom, food and general comfort. The other acts resulted only in a continuance of the unpleasant solitary confinement.

If, after the chick has enjoyed freedom for awhile, we put it into the cage again we have a repetition of the first event, except that the chick is likely to run and peep and jump and squeeze less and to peck at the door sooner. If we continue this process, so that the chick is again and again confronted by the situation—"confinement in a box of such and such appearance"—it constantly decreases the useless acts and performs the suitable one sooner and sooner, until finally it pecks at the spot immediately whenever put into that box. It has learned, we say, to get out of the box by pecking at a certain spot.

Lived 109 Years.

There has just died at Gobshenlach, Ardnamurchan, Miss Mary Stewart, who had lived under five sovereigns, and whose life completely spanned the nineteenth century. She was born in 1702, and up to the middle of last summer she was able to perform a wonderful amount of work, and was in full possession of her faculties. Her eyesight never failed her. For the past six months, however, she was confined to bed a good deal, and lost strength rapidly. Miss Stewart's parents were farmers on the Ardnamurehnn estate. Of the language of the Saxon she was utterly ignorant, but her vernacular Gaelic she could speak with singular idiomatic purity. Last year she received from Queen Alexandra, through Miss Knollys, a basket of sweets and a quantity of ten, etc., on the queen ascertaining that she had completed 108 years. The parcel was accompanied by a gracious and sympathetic letter.—London Express.

Agricultural Hints.

IRRIGATING MACHINE.

A Novel Device for Elevating Water from Streams and Discharging It on Higher Land.

It is becoming more and more apparent that irrigation is destined to have a larger place in the agriculture of the humid portion of the United States than a few years ago was thought possible. Market gardeners around all the large cities of the country are coming to realize the profit and security from drought which it brings, while the development of the arid west by irrigation is soon to occupy a place in the affairs of the nation, being already under investigation by the department of agriculture. The solution of the problem of irrigation rests largely in the quantity of water available and ability to direct it about the land at low cost. David Hutton, of Quartette, Nev., has designed a novel machine for elevating water from streams and discharging it on higher land, the apparatus working automatically and without cost, after the installation of the plant, which is in itself inexpensive. In the illustration is shown a machine in operation. It consists of a frame resting on the bank of the stream, supported either by its own weight or anchored to piles driven in the earth, with a shaft poised at an angle of 45 degrees to support a series of buckets, revolving between the stream and the discharge trough on the frame. The buckets are mounted on arms radiating from the shaft, and beside each bucket is a broad paddle blade which dips into the water as the lowest point is neared, the action of the current revolving the shaft and elevating the buckets in turn to the highest point of revolution, where they are tilted automatically to discharge their contents into the trough. Though the strength of the current be small, the quantity of water elevated will yet be large, as the flow is regular and unceasing.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LIFTING WATER FROM STREAM.

GOOD ROADS TRAIN.

Unique Traveling Educational Enterprise Managed by Government Road Inquiry Office.

What might be called a school on wheels is being sent by the government through the southern states, with a corps of teachers on board, and a quantity of material to help illustrate with object lessons the instruction given to the people along the route.

This traveling educational enterprise occupies a train of a dozen cars, two of which are fitted up in hotel fashion for the accommodation of the staff of instructors and their assistants, while the other vehicles are flat cars loaded with an extraordinary variety of ponderous machinery. In fact, such a weighty and elaborate outfit for school purposes was never seen before in the world; and as the caravan moves along through the sunny southland the inhabitants may well be astonished. It is like a circus without the animals—a comparison by no means intended to be disrespectful, inasmuch as the affair is in reality of very serious importance and practical value, being designed for the purpose of encouraging the movement in behalf of good roads.

This peripatetic school is organized somewhat on the model of a kindergarten. All the people along the route who will come and be taught are its pupils, and classes run from 500 to 5,000 in number. At each stopping place lessons are given in the art of building roads, from half a mile to a mile and a half of first-class dirt road, gravel road or stone road being constructed. The kind chosen depends on the material at hand; if the stuff is available, a sample of each is built. There could be no more simple and effective means for conveying substantial and practical information.

The "good roads train," as the traveling school is called, is run by the National Good Roads association, with the help of Uncle Sam. Director Dodge of the government road inquiry office, is head teacher, and his chief assistant is Mr. M. O. Eldridge. Several engineers, specially trained in the business, accompany the expedition, and there are about a dozen expert workmen to perform the actual labor in the construction of the sample bits of road.

The amount and variety of machinery taken along is surprising. On the flat cars are carried road grading machines, rock crushing outfits (including elevators, separating screens and bins); steam rollers, horse rollers, traction engines, wheel scrapers and plows. The plows and wheel scrapers are used in the preparation of grades, for reducing hills and filling hollows. The traction engines are for running the crushers, hauling stone and drawing the plows and road machines. The road machines are for rounding up the earth foundation, and the rollers are employed to consolidate the material.—Pearson's Magazine.

PAY THEIR OWN WAY.

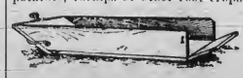
Benefits Derived from Good Roads Are Far in Excess of the Cost of Construction.

One paragraph in that part of the governor's message which relates to good roads is of especial consideration because of its very general interest and application.

It is estimated, he says, that in 40 counties in Indiana (a good broad basis for computation, as that is nearly the whole number of counties in South Carolina) the average increase in the "selling price" of land, due to existing improved roads, is almost $6.50 an acre ($6.48 to be exact). The estimated average cost of converting common public roads into improved roads is $1,146 a mile. The estimated average annual loss a hundred acres from poor roads—due to added expense of hauling only half loads over them, breakage and wear and tear of vehicles, loss of time, etc.—is $76, or 76 cents an acre. "It it seen that the loss from poor roads would soon pay for the building of good roads, and after replacing the amount paid for their construction the good roads will continue to pay."

The calculation may be varied a little. A good road will steadily and effectively serve a tract of country for a mile on each side of it, and, as there are 640 acres to the square mile, it follows that one mile of good road will serve 1,280 acres on each side, within the mile limit. It follows, again, that an expenditure of one dollar an acre for each acre so to be benefited will more than pay the cost ($1,146) of improving a bad road into so expensive a good one as the kind constructed in Indiana. It is also to be noted that 75 cents of the dollar so expended is offset by the saving of the "loss" for one year on account of bad road conditions, leaving the net cost of the improvement to the land owners only 25 cents an acre in fact. This expenditure is practically made but once, the actual cost of maintenance being relatively very small. Wherefore, the improved road will nearly pay the whole cost of its construction in one year, and thereafter will continue to return 75 cents an acre annually in the single item of saving the loss resulting from bad roads. To which gain is to be added all the conveniences of good road service, and the increase of $6.50 in the value of every acre tributary to the road, as determined by its increased selling price. Four per cent. interest for one year on the "increased value" alone of the two square miles, or one per cent. a year for the four years, would pay the whole cost of the improvement.

The calculation is subject to some modifications to adapt it to this state, and to different parts of the state. It will apply closely in districts where roads are improved on the system and at the high rate of cost observed in Indiana, but may be greatly changed in the case of other districts, especially, for example, those lying south and east of Columbia.



Good roads equal to turnpikes have been constructed in Darlington, Richland and Orangeburg counties, by overlaying sand with clay at most ranging down to $50 a mile, and perhaps averaging less than $300 a mile. Darlington alone has constructed over 700 miles of such roads in the last five years, and Richland several hundred more at a cost, we believe, higher than that average. Placing the average at $300 a mile, however, for such construction, it follows that every mile of bad road in more than half the state can be improved into a permanent thoroughly good road at a cost of $300 for the 1,280 acres within a mile on either side of it, or of 23 cents an acre—against which single expenditure would be charged nearly the whole annual saving of loss on account of bad road conditions and whatever increase in land values would result from such improvement. And even the whole 23 cents an acre would represent a tax of only two and a half cents per acre for ten years—not a very heavy burden. Extending the area to be taxed would, of course, reduce the tax rate proportionately.

It really appears that landowners, farmers and the public generally could well afford to submit to such a tax for the sake of the great and valuable public benefits to be derived from it at once and for all time to come.—Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier.

It is interesting to note that John R. Milburn, of Buffalo, in whose house President McKinley was tenderly cared for after being mortally wounded by the assassin Czolgosz, is a democrat of sufficient prominence to be thought of by the New York democracy as a candidate for governor of that state.

Representative Frederick O. MacCartney, of Rockland, Mass., a socialist, was elected to the house originally on the Sunday fishing issue, and, although a clergyman for three years he has stood upon the floor of the house in absence of his bill to permit fishing on the Lord's day. The bill has met its third defeat.

Representative Lever, of South Carolina, is the youngest member of the lower house of congress, being but 27 years old. When he made his first call at the white house President Roosevelt greeted him with the remark: "I am glad to meet the baby of the house." Mr. Lever responded: "The baby of the house is honored in being greeted by the baby president." The president enjoyed it so much that he repeated it.

HORSES LIKE TOBACCO.

One Nag That Got to Be a Confirmed Chewer of the to Some Obnoxious Weed.

"You bet your life that horses love tobacco," said a horse owner to the man who was inclined to doubt his original assertion that horses were very fond of chewing tobacco, relates the Washington Star. "Don't they?" he asked the fat policeman who was listening to the argument. The latter assented, and the first speaker went on. "My old friend here," pointing to the policeman, "remembers that roan horse I used to have. Well, every morning when I went into the nag's stall she looked around at me as much as to ask if I had brought her morning chew of tobacco with me. I used to tease her by pretending I did not see her, but she would look around again, and then begin to make a noise. After I could tease her awhile I would give her a good chew of tobacco, and she would be satisfied. Then I gave her the morning meal on top of that. The tobacco was somewhat stimulating, and whenever it is once started you may be sure you will have to keep it up. It prevents colic, and makes the coats of the animals sleek and pretty. I remember a horse I used to have that I frequently gave a chew of my tobacco. One day I pulled a long plug of the weed out of my pocket, and after taking a chew myself handed it over to the horse. The animal tore off a big chew and was rolling it around in his mouth when I looked around and saw an old woman standing there. 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself,' she said. 'Isn't it bad enough to chew tobacco yourself, without teaching the poor beast to contract the vile habit?' I didn't answer her, as I felt certain that the horse was enjoying himself, while the woman fussed."

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - March 19, 1902.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

THE legislature has adjourned and the capital remains at Frankfort, but no appropriation for new buildings could be gotten.

THE advance of 25 per cent. in fire insurance rates recently decided upon at a meeting in New York became effective in Kentucky Monday.

THE effort to pass the Governor's pet measure, the school book bill, precipitated about the liveliest fight during the session of the legislature. The bill could not connect.

IN the year of 1870 there were in the State of Tennessee 800,000 sheep and 200,000 dogs. Thirty years later, in 1900, there were in the same State 200,000 sheep and 800,000 dogs.

THE Vienna press has given as their inference from Prince Henry's visit to the United States that it will greatly tend to remove all antagonism between monarchies and republics as such.

HAD the legislature been compelled to consider all the bills that were introduced, it would have been in session this time next year. The record maker predominated largely among the members.

GOV. BECKHAM and the legislature parted ways towards the last of the session. The school book bill was the rock on which they split, and the majority of the members were "agin" the Governor.

THE beet sugar advocates in Congress are bitter against Speaker Henderson and are threatening to oppose him for renomination in case the next House is Republican. They are booming Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, for the place.

THE McKinley memorial committee of Honolulu proposes to devote $20,000 of its funds to the improvement of a public park to be named after the late president. The local papers are opposed to this project, believing that the money could be better expended in the building of a children's hospital.

DANIEL TARBOE JEWITT of St. Louis, Mo., who is ninety-five years old, is still practicing law and spends six hours at his desk every day. Mr. Jewett witnessed the inauguration of Andrew Jackson in 1829, and was a college boy at the national capital when Webster, Clay, Calhoun and Hayne were familiar figures on the streets of Washington.

UP to the time Congressman Wheeler made his famous speech on "floukeyism," Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the President, expected to be present at the crowning of King Edward, the VII, but immediately after Wheeler's philipic her plans were modified, and she will not go to Europe. Did Wheeler's speech have an influence at the White House?

THE dog-in-the-manager policy inaugurated by some of the Senators in the last days of the session of the General Assembly was not at all becoming any man in whose good sense the people had had confidence enough to choose him as a lawmaker for the great State of Kentucky. It was silly and ridiculous, and the conspirators to block legislation ought to be remembered hereafter.

AN interior province of China has produced one of the most remarkable curiosities in the shape of long-tailed fowls in the world. The specimens, recently brought to light, were kept by the imperial household gardens. The cock has feathers six feet long. There are four varieties—white head and body, with white feathers and tail black; white all over with yellow legs; red neck and body feathers; reddish color, mixedwith white of body.

Farmers sowed their wheat very late to escape the ravages of the fly that much was not up when winter began, therefore, the outlook for the coming crop is not encouraging, to cold to the adverse conditions. A very heavy rain fell December 13 and 14, followed by severe freezing at night and thawing during the day until very little wheat is in sight on the early sown fields, and none on the late. Farmers say in forty years there have never been a poorer prospect than they are now.

THE bank at New Castle was dynamited last Wednesday morning by five men who took away $3,800 in cash, $1,000 in registered bonds, and about $300 in postage stamps. The bank was entered by a rear door and the vault was blown open by a heavy charge of dynamite. The robbers made their escape going north toward the Ohio river. The loss to the bank is covered by a burglary insurance.

THE survey on the electric railway is completed to Warsaw, with the exception of a little gap below town. All the people along the route are enthusiastic and little trouble has been experienced in getting the right of way. The citizens of Gallatin and Boone are helping us out and with a long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether everything will be O. K. It takes time, patience and money and we hope no one will cease for one minute from doing his utmost to see this grand enterprise brought to a successful end. Carrollton can't do it all, neither can Ghent, Warsaw, Burlington or Covington, but if all will work in unison and petty jealousies be put aside, there is no doubt of a grand and glorious success.—Carrollton News.

AT this seasion of the year it is difficult to secure capable help on farms, and those out of employment will find plenty of work on farms if they are willing to learn. Only experienced men need expect the highest wages, but farmers will use beginners if the latter are willing to work at moderate wages. It requires some skill on farms, and inexperienced persons are as useless on farms as in the factories. The best farm hands are those who know what to do, and which requires no supervision on the part of the employer, who is often too busy himself to devote time to instruction. While the country is full of laborers, there is a lack of those who are capable of using judgment in their work and making it an object to the farmer to pay high wages.

A traveling man reports that the tobacco trust is just now engaged in an effort to break up all the tobacco buyers, so that it will have the market completely in its own hands. The representative of the trust goes around and buys some tobacco at more than the market price, thus inducing the producers to demand more than the market price of the regular buyers. Later the trust goes into the market and buys at a lower price, thus bringing a loss to the dealers who attempt to buy of the producer at the price first fixed by the trust. As soon as the local dealer's losses drive him out of the business, the trust will be able to pay whatever it pleases, and the producer must take whatever he can get. Thus the trust is preparing to rob the producer of raw material on the one hand while it extorts from the consumer on the other. It is impossible to overcome this except by legislation. The small dealer cannot apply a remedy to the trust, and it is too much to expect that the producers, either individually or in concert, can withstand the schemes put forth by concentrated capital.—Blue Grass Clipper.

THE Danville News gives this novel method for preparing tobacco seeds for sowing, it having been successfully practiced by a Washington county farmer:

"Mac Wilhoit, the well-known horseman, has discovered an inventor near Texas, Washington county, who will yet become famous through his method of utilizing hens in tobacco culture. This gentleman is Joe Bagley. Mr. Wilhoit had occasion to pay him a visit this week, and was astonished to find him employed in placing small bags beneath a number of setting hens in the poultry house. Inquiry elicited the information that the bags were filled with tobacco seed. Mr. Bagley said that the scheme had been the best yet devised by him for the sprouting of tobacco seed, and has worked successfully for two years. With the aid of his hens, Mr. Bagley was enabled to get his crop above ground and in a flourishing condition while the crops of his neighbors were still reposing beneath the cold sod. His method is to moisten the bags with warm water before placing under the hens, and keep them damp by sprinkling with tepid water every day or two thereafter. The seed sprouts in about ten days and is ready for sowing."

No extra session, if you please, Mr. Governor. The members are at loggerheads, and as now constituded the legislature will never accomplish anything.

COVINGTON, KENTUCKY.

That Traction Road.

GRANT, KY., March 10, 1902.

I rejoice to know of the steps taken by the citizens of our county, relative to the proposed Traction road, and trust some day it will be a go. It is very natural for one to desire the road contiguous to himself, but I hope I am not prompted by any selfish motive when I attempt to speak in favor of any particular course.

After studying the geography of the different routes, and carefully considering the agricultural interests which would support the road by both travel and freight as well as some points of interest which would be adjacent, I am of the opinion that the most profitable route, and built with less labor, would be via. of our county seat and strike the Ohio at this place; then down the river to its termination. Our place is supported by an agricultural section of four miles square, which, according to the oldest riverman, freights more produce from this wharf than is freighted from any other point between Cincinnati & Louisville. We have a level land here that will grow anything that can be produced along any other route, besides our land is adapted to many products that other regions will not produce so well, such as small fruits, melons, cantaloups, etc. This place is above high water and sells annually from 30,000 to 50,000 bushels of coal, and same number of pounds of pork, some of which goes to many different States of the union. It is also well located for manufacturing interests, canneries, etc. Besides, in coming this way the road is only three or four miles from the Petersburg bottoms, which produce like products as ours, and also not far from that historical, picturesque and noted summer resort, known as Split-Rock, which is much admired by pleasure-seekers.

Said route will pass through the bottoms of East Bend, which is some of the best farming land in the county of Boone, and also run contiguous to Ohio county, Ind., Rising Sun county seat. Said county has no railroad and can reach none from Rising Sun, except by busline 10 miles to Aurora.

Someone may say, "he is blowing his own horn," to whom I would say, I haveendeavored to deal in facts, besides, Billings says, "Let a man blow his own horn, less it be not blown."

ONE INTERESTED.

Urging the Republicans to get in line for the November elections, the Louisville Commercial: "The defeat of the Republican nominee for Judge of the Court of Appeals in the Louisville district would mean something awful to those now under indictment for alleged complicity in the Goebel affair. By keeping the Court of Appeals Republican the schemes of the Goebel conspirators may be blocked at every turn." How can the election of a Republican Judge of the Court of Appeals block the punishment of any alleged murderer of Gov. Goebel? Has any promise to that effect already been made?—Glasgow Times.

A BILL has been passed by the legislature that requires registration in all cities from the first to the fifth class, inclusive, and every voter that registers must receive a certificate of registration. This certificate must be presented to the election officers before voting. If the certificate is lost or destroyed a person by making affidavit to that effect and paying the County Clerk a fee of fifty cents may secure a new one.

THE Labor Union Journal of Campbell and Kenton counties, says:

"It is claimed that Col. D. Linn Gooch will have as his opponents for the Democratic nomination for Congress, Col. Al. Berry, Col. Wm. Garrison, of Boone County; Judge J. T. Hodge, of Newport; John M. Lassing, John S. Vaunt, of Carroll County, and possibly Joseph L. Rhinock."

Some of the gentlemen enumerated above are entire strangers in this part of the district, notwithstanding the home of one is given as Boone county.

A member of the Hopeful church says that not that church alone, but both Hebron and Ebenezer churches, and numerous good people not members of either, made Pastor Slater the present of the overcoat. He desires that the item of last week be thus amended.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fai s to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Jacob Rouse, of Limaburg neighborhood, sowed a field to rye, last fall, since which time conditions had been so unfavorable that he supposed the rye was a complete failure, and bought oats to sow on the land. How to Cure the Grip.

Remain quietly at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed and a quick recovery is sure to follow. That remedy counteracts any tendency of the grip to result in pneumonia, which is really the only serious danger. Among the tens of thousands who have used it for the grip, not one case has ever been reported that did not recover. For sale by all druggists.

Mrs. O P. Conner narrowly escaped a very serious accident, one day last week. She was out in her back yard, where she stepped on a large flat rock which she felt giving way beneath her. She sprang forward and grabbed a rose bush that saved her from going into the cavity beneath the rock, which proved to be an old, anbandned well, of which she nor her husband had any knowledge of being on the premises. Mrs. Conner was badly frighteued upon discovering what a narrow escape she had.

Mr. Robert Fowler, of Livingston county, Illinois, is visiting his relatives here. He is a brother of the late Edward Fowler, of this county, and is the only one living out of a family of thirteen children. He was born, 78 years ago the 4th day of last July, in the stone house now occupied by Uncle Frank Smith, near Union. Only two or three of his companions in boyhood days are living. He has been a citizen of Illinois for over twenty years, but his love for his old Kentucky home has never abated in the least. He looks very much like his bother Edward did.

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called La Grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use in these ailments. For sale by all druggists.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The great danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these disease, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of lagrippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant to take. For sale by all

THE HAGUE TREATY.

United States Senate Ratified the Convention.

Provisions of Treaty Is Binding Only on the Contracting Powers in Case of War Between Two or More of Them.

Washington, March 15.—The senate spent an hour in executive session on the convention growing out of the Hague peace conference relating to the conduct of war on land and sea and finally ratified the agreement without a division. The discussion turned entirely on the conduct of the war in the Philippines, and related especially to Gen. Funston's capture of Aguinaldo.

The countries who are party to the treaty are Germany, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Spain, the United States, Mexico, France, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Japan, Luxemburg, Montenegro, Netherlands, Persia, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Servia, Sweden and Norway, Turkey and Bulgaria.

The provisions of the treaty are binding only on the contracting powers in case of war between two or more of them, and ceases to be binding when a non-contracting power joins either of the belligerents.

The most important feature of the treaty, the contents of which have been generally known, is that prohibiting the use of "dum dum" bullets. Among things specially prohibited are: To employ poison or poisoned arms; to kill or wound treacherously individuals belonging to the hostile nation or army; to kill or wound an enemy who, having laid down arms, or having no longer means of defense, has surrendered at discretion; to declare that no quarter will be given; to employ arms, projectiles of material of a nature to cause superfluous injury; to make improper use of a flag of truce, the national flag or military ensigna and the enemy's uniform, as well as the distinctive badges of the Geneva convention; to destroy or seize the enemy's property unless such destruction or seizure be imperatively demanded by the necessities of war.

The treaty provides as follows regarding spies: An individual can only be considered a spy if acting clandestinely or on false pretenses he obtains or seeks to obtain information in the zone of operations of a belligerent with the intention of communicating it to the hostile party. Thus, soldiers not in disguise who have penetrated into the zone of operations of a hostile army to obtain information are not considered spies. Similarly, the following are not considered spies: Soldiers or civilians carrying out their mission openly, charged with the delivery of dispatches destined either for other information or that of their army.

NEW BANKING SCHEME.

The Proposition Is to Enter the Money Order Field.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 15.—Chas. L. Farrell, assistant cashier of the Central national bank and secretary of the Indiana Bankers' association, left Friday to attend a meeting at New York city Saturday of prominent bankers from nearly every state in the union in one of the most important banking schemes of late years. The proposition is to enter the money order field as a competitor of the express companies and the government itself. It is proposed to issue a uniform bank money order payable through an immense clearing house in New York city, probably the Western national bank, with branch clearing houses in all other large cities.

To compete with the express companies the rates for the issuance of the order will be placed at a minimum price, which it is believed the express companies will not be able to meet, because of their limited banking facilities. The rate proposed is one tenth of one per cent., which on orders for $100 or more would be 10 cents, or just one-third the charge by express companies.

TRAIN ROBBERIES.

Report on the Bill to Suppress Them Made to the House.

Washington, March 15.—Representative Kahn, of California, submitted the report of the judiciary committee on the bill to suppress train robberies. He points out the extent of these depredations, particularly in sparsely settled localities where it is difficult to organize a posse, the robbers escaping before the posse gets in pursuit. The report says we are accustomed to sneer at the futile efforts of Turkey, Greece, Spain and other countries to stop brigandage, yet we have in train robbing a system involving both robbery and murder as atrocious as brigandage. The bill reported provides the death penalty to train robbers when death results to any one on the train; otherwise imprisonment from five to ten years.

THE OLD LINCOLN FARM.

It Will Be Sold in a Few Days For Delinquent Taxes.

Evansville, Ind., March 15.—The old Lincoln farm in the heart of Lincoln City, Spencer county, will in a few days be sold for delinquent taxes. For years the taxes on the farm have not been paid and the county officials decided the best thing to do was to offer the farm for sale. Attempts have heretofore been made to turn the farm into a park and ask congress to make an appropriation for this purpose and this may be done after the farm passes into other hands.

The old cottage that stood on the farm and in which Abraham Lincoln lived was removed to New York many years ago and was sold for several thousand dollars. The commissioners of Spencer county have received many letters from people over the country wanting to buy the farm and bidders will doubtless be numerous when the tax sale is held. The mother of Lincoln is buried on the farm. The burial lot is kept in good condition by the commissioners. The county received a deed for the lot several years ago.

The late Gov. Mount, of this state, was an advocate of turning the farm into a park, and brought the matter to the attention of the legislature, but nothing was done.

AMBASSADOR CLAYTON.

The Mexican Herald Says the Charges Against Him Are Purile.

Mexico City, March 15.—Ambassador Clayton is now out of the city and his reply to the charges against him in connection with the Meely case can not be had.

The Mexican Herald says the charge that Gen. Clayton is interested in Mexican mines is simply purile and can only have been introduced to throw doubt in the eyes of the public who may fail to see the absolute lack of connection between the fact in question and the act of which Mr. Meely complains. It is not true, the paper continues, that Mexican officials are interested in these mines with Gen. Clayton.

Washington, March 15.—Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance, U. S. A., has been informed that the recent test of field guns at the Sandy Hook proving grounds has resulted in the elimination from further tests of all but four pieces, viz: The gun designed by the ordnance in the department; the gun known as the Erhardt gun, and two guns constructed at the Bethlehem iron works, one of which is the Lewis or French gun. It has been decided that the successful field guns shall be given a practical field test at Ft. Riley, Kan., in April next.

THE BIG STRIKE OVER.

Trouble of the Boston Freight Handlers Settled.

Traffic of All Descriptions, Which Had Been Practically at a Standstill For Several Days, Was Resumed With a Rush.

Boston, March 14.—Through the united efforts of representatives of the great mercantile bodies of the city, seconded by the chief executives of city and state in conference with the recognized leaders of organized labor, the great strike of freight handlers and kindred trades represented in the Allied Freight Transportation Council, was broken Thursday night. Fully 20,000 men who have been idle for four days went to work Friday morning.

This result was obtained at a conference Thursday evening at the office of Gov. Crane. The decision was at once reported to the Allied Freight Transportation Council at a special meeting Thursday night and unanimously endorsed.

The settlement was the result of an expressed determination of Gov. Crane and those representing the merchants of Boston to bring all possible pressure to bear upon the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. to adopt the rules in force upon the Boston & Maine railroad, forbidding freight handlers to unload teams except at their own option and risk.

All of the old men for whom places can be found were taken back by the railroads Friday, but owing to the suddenness with which the strike was ended and the large number of new men who have been installed, many of the old employes Friday found no vacancies for them. Eventually it is believed they all will regain their old positions.

Teamsters and longshoremen found an unprecedented demand for their services and traffic of all descriptions which has been virtually at a standstill for the past three or four days, was resumed with a rush.

The Brine Transportation Co., the loading and unloading of whose nonunion teams precipitated the strike of the New York, New Haven & Hartford freight handlers, does not appear to have figured in the settlement of the present controversy and as far as that company is concerned, the sentiment against it on the part of the labor union is as bitter as ever.

Under the new arrangement, however, men will not be required to load or unload that company's teams.

TRUE BILLS RETURNED.

Mrs. Catherine Soffel Indicted on Three Counts By Grand Jury.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 14.—Indictments in three cases against Mrs. Catherine Soffel, wife of ex-Warden Peter K. Soffel, growing out of the escape of the Biddle brothers from jail on January 30, were considered by the grand jury Thursday and true bills returned.

Should Mrs. Soffel be convicted upon the three charges the maximum aggregate sentence that could be imposed upon her would be 16 years to prison and a fine of $2,500. The first charge is for aiding criminals to escape. The other charges are separate indictments for felonious assault and battery upon Charles Reynolds and James G. McGary, jail guards.

Reynolds was shot by one of the Biddle brothers and McGary was thrown over or jumped over the railing from the cell tier and seriously hurt on the night of the escape.

It will probably be a month before Mrs. Soffel is brought to trial.

The Statue of Marshal Rochambeau.

Washington, March 14.—The house Thursday adopted a resolution authorizing the president to invite the families of Marshal Rochambeau and Marquis De Fafayette and the people of France to be present at the unveiling of the statue of Marshal Rochambeau in Washington May 24, 1902, and appropriating $20,000 to carry out the purposes of the resolution.

Another Boer Resolution Introduced.

Thursday introduced a joint resolution extending recognition and sympathy to the people and governments of the South African republics and the Orange Free State, appealing to the British government to cease hostilities and requesting the president to tender the good offices of this government.

Constantinople, March 14.—The town of Krankari, northeast of Angora, in Asia Minor, was destroyed by an earthquake March 12. No details have been received.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, March 11.—Senate—For nearly two hours Monday Mr. Vest (Mo.) addressed the senate in opposition to the pending ship subsidy bill. No member of the body has been accorded more flatteringly close attention than he received. Mr. Tillman (S. C.) followed with a brief speech in opposition to the bill. The senate passed a considerable number of unobjected bills on the calendar.

House—The bill to classify the rural free delivery service and place the carriers under the contract system, which has been debated in the house for over a week, was passed Monday, but in a form that completely changed the purposes for which it was framed. Before it passed the bill was altered radically by its opponents. All the provisions relating to the placing of carriers under the contract system were stricken out and the salary system not only was continued but the maximum salary of carriers was increased from $500 to $600 per annum. A motion offered by Mr. Williams (dem., Ill.) to recommit the bill with instructions to report back an amendment providing for the dismissal from the service of carriers who should use their influence in favor of any particular party and for any particular candidate was voted down—96 to 141. As passed the bill classifies the rural free delivery service and fixes the compensation of employes as follows: Special agents in charge of divisions, not exceeding $2,400 per annum; special agents, four classes, graded from $1,300 to $1,600; route inspectors, four classes, from $900 to $1,200; clerks, four classes, from $900 to $1,200. The compensation of carriers is not to exceed $600.

Washington, March 12.—Senate—For several hours Tuesday the senate had the ship subsidy bill under consideration. Prior to consideration of the subsidy measure, a lively debate occurred over an effort on the part of Mr. Barry (Ark.) to ascertain when the committee on privileges and elections might be expected to report to the senate the resolution providing for the election of senators by the direct vote of the people. Mr. Hoar (Mass.) indicated his vigorous opposition to such a resolution on the ground that it would subvert the fundamental principles upon which the senate was founded.

House—The house entered on the consideration of the post office appropriation bill, but as usual during general debate on an appropriation bill, the members who spoke devoted themselves to everything except the bill before the house.

Washington, March 13.—Senate—Again Wednesday the ship subsidy bill occupied practically the entire time of the senate. The following bills were passed: Appropriating $1,000 for an examination of the property of the Little Kanawha River Navigation Co., of West Virginia; appropriating $1,500,000 for a public building at Sherman, Tex.; relating to the redemption of Hawaiian silver coins and silver certificates and the substitution therefor of American silver coins, after the section giving the territorial government of Hawaii the benefit of the seignorage had been stricken out; appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Charlottesville, Va.; reducing the number of appraisers at the ports of Philadelphia and Boston from two to one; amending the revised statutes so as to allow each major general of the army to have three aides and each brigadier general two aides. A joint resolution was agreed to authorizing army and navy officers who served in the Chinese campaign in 1900 to wear the distinctive badges of the organizations to which they belong on all occasions of ceremony.

House—General debate on the post office appropriation bill continued in the house, a number of topics being discussed. The house adjourned at 4:30 out of respect to the memory of Doorkeeper Glenn.

Washington, March 14.—Senate—After the passage of a considerable number of unobjected and unimportant bills Thursday the senate resumed consideration of the ship subsidy measure.

House—The house closed general debate on the post office appropriation bill and completed consideration of 12 of the 27 pages of the bill. No amendments were adopted. The principal portion of the general debate Thursday was devoted to the discussion of the appropriation for several mail facilities. Mr. Jenkins (Wis.) presented a detailed statement of his reasons for his theory that Cuba is now under the sovereignty of the United States, which sovereignty he contends can not be alienated without an act of congress. Mr. Jenkins' views attracted considerable attention.

Washington, March 15.—Senate—Throughout the session of the senate Friday the ship subsidy bill was under consideration. The measure was discussed by Mr. Foraker (O.), Mr. McLaurin (Miss.) and Mr. Harris (Kan.).

House—The house passed the post office appropriation bill. The only amendment of importance adopted was one to incorporate in the provision of the bill to classify the rural free delivery service, passed a few days ago. Quite a number of other bills were passed, including three bills for marine hospitals at Buffalo, Savannah and Pittsburg. The Burleson resolution calling on the secretary of state for the facts relative to the case of Dr. Thomas and wife who desired to go to South Africa to distribute relief funds, was adopted after a short debate in the course of which Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, introduced a letter from Secretary Hay explaining what the department of state had done in the premises.

A Car Load of Dimes.

One would naturally think that the package dye business was a small industry, but there is more than one million dollars worth of package dyes sold in the United States every year.

One of the largest package dye factories in the world is that of the Putnam Fadeless Dyes Co., Unionville, Mo. In this factory alone, three million packages of Putnam Fadeless Dyes are made every year. To put up this amount of dyes requires the handling of seven million of envelopes, think of it, seven millions of envelopes laid lengthwise would reach a distance of seven hundred miles; if laid one upon the other they would make a pile of Putnam Fadeless Dyes 44 miles high. As each envelope has to be handled five times before a package is complete, the completion of three millions of packages requires that they be handled thirty-five million times. This of course gives employment to a number of people, the Putnam Fadeless Dye Company alone employ almost a hundred people, 90 per cent. of whom are young ladies.

As each package retails for 10c the weight of the retail price of the three millions packages in dimes is 18,000 pounds, or almost a car load.

A BRILLIANT FUNCTION

Court of King Edward Held in Buckingham Palace.

The Diplomatic Circle Included Joseph Choate, American Ambassador, Mrs. Choate and Others of the United States Embassy.

London, March 15.—The king's court, held in the palace, was a brilliant affair. In spite of a blinding rain which turned the roads to quagmires and hid the entrance of the palace in blurred mist the constant stream of arriving carriages was watched by a large crowd which cheered most loyally when their majesties, in a state coach, and escorted by officers of the life guards, came along the Mall and passed into the palace, the guard of honor giving the royal salute and the grenadiers band, stationed in the court yard, playing national anthems. Their majesties were bowing all along the route. Once inside the palace the contrast was most striking. Nothing so brilliant has been seen since the early days of the reign of Queen Victoria. The blaze of new electric lights, the scent of flowers heaped along the corridors, the glitter of ladies' jewels and dresses and the court uniforms, made a memorable and magnificent scene. King Edward's private band played in a gallery of the ballroom where the court was held.

The breast of King Edward was blazing with orders and stars and he appeared to be in the best of health and spirits. Queen Alexandra wore a golden yellow dress, embroidered with irises. Rows of pearls hung from her neck and she wore a dainty diamond crown. The queen stood throughout the fatiguing ceremony, graciously smiling. The princess of Wales was attired in white and silver and the other princesses were robed in white.

On one side of their majesties stood a brilliant group of ambassadors and diplomats and ladies displaying gorgeous dresses and jewels; on the other side stood the members of the royal household. King Edward received the guests according to precedence and afterwards moved freely amongst the brilliant company.

An informal supper was served after the reception and the court continued until midnight. Among the striking beauties present were Lady Cynthia Graham and Viscountess Castlereagh. Lady Arthur Butler, daughter of Gen. Anson Stager, of the United States army, was also noticeably pretty.

The diplomatic circle included Joseph H. Choate, the American ambassador, and Mrs. Choate; Henry White, secretary of the American embassy at London, and Mrs. White; John R. Carter, second secretary of the embassy; William Corcoran Eustis, third secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. Eustis, and Commander Richardson Clover, the naval attache.

Among the Americans present were Mrs. and Miss Padelford. Altogether 950 invitations were issued, but a large number of those invited did not attend the court. Mrs. Choate wore a Worth dress of pink satin, with a train of black velvet trimmed with pink roses.

BLOCKADED BY SNOW.

Severe Storm in North Dakota and Northwest Canada.

High Wind Has Piled the Snow in Miniature Mountains and Packed It in Solid Masses, Cuts Being Filled.

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—North Dakota and the Canadian northwest has experienced the worst snow storm in many years and railroad traffic is practically paralyzed. The Northern Pacific and Great Northern have not moved a wheel for nearly 36 hours in the blizzard stricken district and have abandoned all efforts to do so until the fury of the storm abates. The high wind has piled the snow in mountainous drifts and packed it in solid masses, many deep cuts being entirely filled. The temperature has been gradually falling and it is now at or below the zero mark. Not a transcontinental train has arrived in St. Paul since Friday and none is expected for several days. The Northern Pacific reports its westbound coast train which left St. Paul Saturday morning tied up at Fargo, the road beyond there being blocked. It will start a coast bound train and hopea to be able to get it through. The eastbound train due here Saturday morning is held at Manden, N. D., and no attempt will be made to move it before Monday. Every effort is being made by the road to keep its passengers, who are snowbound, warm and well fed, and for this reason trains are being held at stations, where the accommodations are good, rather than attempt to get them through with a possibility of being tied up between stations.

The Red River Valley division of the Northern Pacific between Frankfort and Winnipeg is entirely abandoned. No trains have attempted to run since Friday night, and the exact condition on these divisions are not known by the general officers here, as the telegraph wires have been carried down by the burden of sleet, which preceded the heavy snowfall.

The situation on the Great Northern is equally bad. The line is tied up entirely between Grand Forks and Williston, N. D., a distance of about 35 miles, and all wires have been lost beyond Fargo. Thirty miles of wire are gone between Fargo and Casselitcn, N. D., and all communication with Western Dakota and Montana points has been lost. So fierce has been the storm that it has been deemed inadvisable to attempt to re-open the road until it abates. Reports received at the general offices indicate that the gale has somewhat subsided, but that the snow still continues to fall.

The branch of the Great Northern running to Winnipeg is also tied up. No trains have been started northbound since Friday night, and those that were caught out on the road by the storm have been held at the station near the border.

Winnipeg is reported entirely cut off from railroad communication with the outside world. The Canadian Pacific Transcontinental trains are snowbound somewhere west of there and no prospects of relief is yet in sight.

North Alabama was deluged as were portions of South Georgia and Northern Florida, and streams in those sections of the south are out of their banks.

Pierpont Morgan and party, who were to have left Brunswick Saturday for Cincinnati by way of Atlanta. Mr. Morgan, however, expected to depart Monday morning.

Traffic on the Central of Georgia was delayed several hours by a washout near Union Springs, Ala.

Some damage was done to the town of Cordele, Ga., by the heavy rains and a washout is reported near there.

A special to the Constitution from Brunswick, Ga., says:

Information reaching Brunswick Sunday night is to the effect that the surrounding country is flooded as a result of the recent rains. Rain has been coming down in torrents here since noon and there is no indication of cessation. Not a train is moving over the Brunswick & Birmingham railroad. Through Buffalo swamp water is over the track for nearly a mile and passengers are unable to get to Brunswick. The Plant System's track is intact.

The Altamaha river is still high, but is reported falling north of here.

It was amended by adding a proviso doing away with voting booths for women. KENTUCKY BANK LOOTER.

The Citizens Held at Bay By the Robbers, Who Escaped.

Eminence, Ky., March 13.—About 2 o'clock Wednesday morning the citizens of New Castle were aroused by a loud explosion in the direction of the bank of New Castle. Upon investigation it was found to be burglars looting the bank of its surplus cash, which was, all told, about $4,500, also a lot of jewelry and diamonds belonging to Isaac W. Kelly, the president of the bank, and about $500 in United States postage stamps, which had been placed in the bank vault by Postmaster James P. Gray, for safekeeping. The robbers were six in number, and had had considerable difficulty in entering the large time-lock safe and had to make four blasts before they could get to the cash. Pete Ridgeway, a well-known citizen, who lives across the street, and a drummer by the name of Moore, who was stopping at his boarding house, were the first to hear the reports and started at once to the scene, and when within about 50 feet of the three men stationed in front of the bank to keep watch while the others did the work inside, were ordered to return to their rooms or be shot, which demand they promptly obeyed, but as soon as they got inside they raised a side window and yelled fire, which brought a good number of citizens upon the scene, but were held helpless at bay with nothing to protect themselves with. The crowd could hear the robbers pouring the money out of tin boxes into their sacks. The bank resumes business at once. The burglars made good their escape.

TRUE BILLS FOUND.

Violaters of the Inter-State Commerce Law Indicted.

Louisville, Ky., March 15.—Indictments were returned by the federal grand jury Friday against railroads and shippers charged with violations of the inter-state commerce laws, but the names of the firms and persons involved have not been made public. It is said three of the largest roads in this district are mentioned in the true bills, as well as prominent grain shippers of Henderson, Memphis and St. Louis.

The federal officials refuse to give out any definite information on the subject, but it is alleged that the specific offense charged will be the billing of goods shipped from east of the Mississippi with an Omaha or western date mark. Goods shipped to the south and southeast from points west of the Mississippi, it is alleged, are given a rebate of three cents on the bushel. The investigations have been conducted with great secrecy and John T. Marchand, attorney, and J. M. Smith, auditor of the inter-state commerce commission, who have been assisting District Attorney Hill in the work of obtaining evidence, left Friday night for Washington.

THOUGHTS.

Who should have charge of education,—school education? Should it be persons trained and experienced in educational matters, or the chance selections of political parties? Should the illiterate teach the younger illiterates? How far should the State, as the sustainer of the public school, interfere in the methods and details of instruction? The present condition of our public schools demands that these questions should be reconsidered.

In the height of an experience of the worst tyranny that ever any people suffered under, in the grip of a visionary few who represented the unenlightened mob, France in 1794, decreed the establishing by government of schools in every commune of the republic, whose teachers were to be paid by the government, whose books were such only as were passed upon by government inspectors, and no instruction was permissable beyond that of these schools, no academies or universities were admissable, because an education beyond this point would be a mark of aristocracy, and endanger the reign of republican equality. The politicians were to limit education to their own standard, select the books, appoint the teachers. Then, blackguardism was a trade, vulgarity a profession, and enlightment a crime. In our republic the public school is the creation of enlightened minds, and it has been the salvation of the republic, which without its aid, universal suffrage would have ruined. It was inevitable in a State that selects all its instruments by popular vote, that the common school should get mixed with politics.

In many times and places it has as equally been impossible to keep politics and its twin brother, nepotism, out of the sanctuary. How often do they stride hand in hand up the broad aisle, desecrate the sacred altar, pollute the stand from which should be heard only God's Word?

The politician was quick to see the advantage in the school machine. It gave him an influence to be used for other purposes.

Now let us look around for results. In how many instances are not incompetent men chosen as superintendents of States and counties, members of State boards, and school trustees, and how often in the selection of text books do we see a "rake off" paid an agent by the manufacturers.

Another result is the lowering of the standard of teachers by the farming out of the schools by illiterate trustees, who think that all the teacher needs is capacity to read the text books better than they, and to hear the pupils recite from them. From being the highest office in the world, this relegates the teacher to the lowest.

I am pleading now for the nobility of the office of the teacher, the trainer of the young minds.

In time it will be recognized and education will be in the hands of experts, who will be chosen for their fitness, and will be paid as those should be paid, who are the creators of the minds of the nation.

Under our present system of running the educational machine, tens of thousands of "hands" are employed who would be more appropriately placed if they were killing weeds, or wrestling with the ornaments of the cuisine department.

But the politicians are not the only ones who see an opportunity for their ends in the public school machine. The reformers and the faiths have raised their howl, and rushed to the front. I am not at all saying that ethics, that morals, that good conduct should be neglected. The business of the public school is the training of the mind, the development of its forces, its reasoning faculties, its power of discrimination. With the right sort of a teacher, the teacher of high character, one with independence, with nerve to meet the backbitings, the fireside criticisms, one that will cast sectarianism, politics, policy and fads out of doors, and keep them there, the moral training will go along with the intellectual, and the schools will not then be vehicles of certain fads, nor will they be diverted from their true intent, and turned into propagandas of schemes which are often badly digested and illusory. Again school education should be in the hands of experts, not of politicians, not of men and women unfitted for the position. It should be in the hands of teachers who are able to teach, not text book parrots, not they who never stop to prove a statement, come from whom it may, before they attempt to teach it, not they who are only a degree removed from the pupils by the fact that they hold the text book, and the pupil recites without it. The time has come when school teaching like other profession, must be placed upon a scientific basis, lifted into nobility in the public mind, into respect in the social life. Two things will do this and they may as well be plainly stated, one is that the teachers themselves must be educated, thoroughly trained in their profession, competent to deal with and develop that most delicate sensitive, and always individual thing, the mind of the child. It may be that the power of teaching is a natural gift—that the excellent teacher is born, not made. This is true to some degree of all profession but, it is also true that industry, training, and the right method will do wonders in the education of a teacher and that any trained teacher of ordinary ability is superior to an untrained teacher of the same ability; character goes hand in hand with ability else why should the law draw so fine a line. Children are shrewd judges and they soon find out whether the teacher knows as much or more than the text book, and is also worthy of respect. There is no such breeder of mediocrity in this republic as the mediocre, one gallus school teacher. Now the other thing necessary to raise the office of teacher and improve the public school is to increase the pay of the teacher. Attract the best minds into the profession, this is even more necessary in the primary, than in the higher education. It is absured to put the compensation for intellectual ability below that of business shrewdness. I know it is said that learning should not be degraded by putting a pecuniary value upon it, that the honor of the intellectual position should be the main stimulus to the teacher. Will honor fatten? Will honor clothe? Will honor pay the board bill? Talent is attracted to office and service that are the most renumerative to the attainment of prizes that are most esteemed by the public, and teaching, which in all the lower grades, is poorly paid, is regarded by the best men as a make-shift, a stepping stone to better pay. This matter of pay is of a more serious nature in our common schools. The local idea is to get the cheapest, and many communities in choosing between two teachers, one wholy incompetent, the other well educated, will choose the incompetent because he will work for pay in unison with his competency. Now this error, on the part of employers, does not always arise from stinginess, but from a radical misconception of business shrewdness, and education, and it is a most costly misconception, too, especially in a country where the children get very little school education beyond the common school. Now it is imperative that the little training they do get should be the very best.

The awakening of an inert mind, the guidance of a quick and impressionable mind requires the greatest skill and knowledge. The impression made upon children from six to twelve is the most important in shaping their lives as good citizens. Can we American people, of the twentieth century, afford to leave it to chance and ignorance? Take any rural community where the common school is conducted on the cheap plan, running just enough weeks to fulfill the stautory requirements, by teachers paid a mere pittance, young fellows and young girls, green from the farm, or the cookstove, whose general knowledge is slender, and who cannot inspire either love of learning, or any high ideal of conduct, and I will show you a community unintelligent, bigoted, superstitious, with a contempt for everything except "smart alexism," and probably immoral. Well taught schools, produce well attended churches and well attended churches demand intellectual ministers and teachers, and intellectual ministers and teachers demand high grade pay. Now the choice of teachers, the course of study, the whole method of education should be in the hands of those trained to this business. We are beginning to brag loudly that this is a scientific age. We are learning to put our charity institution into the care of experts, then why not treat the profession of teaching as we do that of law, medicine and theology? If we have a lawsuit we do not place it in the hands of a faithhealer. If we have diptheria, we do not call in a ward politician. Then, why in the name of common sense, do we turn over the education of children, the one real vital interest in the republic, to those who know nothing about education, and who are too busy to study the subject? How about the five nights in the week, and gad about all over the country Saturday and Sunday female, and the sixth night in the week party running, burgoo slushing, egg boiling male teacher being in condition for her or his duties in the schoolroom?

Is the mind clear, is the ear acute, is the eye bright, is the nerve steady, is the energy alive, is the "get-up and goativeness" in the schoolroom on tap? not much nor does he or she make it a business to always walk sufficiently in front of their pupils in intellectual matters as to inspire better work on their part, and cause an hungering to come up to his attempt to walk hand in hand with him when on one of his intellectual jaunts, as to sit down by his side and assist in cracking and eating his intellectual nuts.

It is not necessary to keep chickens fat especially while growing but very important to keep thrifty.

Don't tie the top of your jelly and preserve jars in the old fashioned way. Seal them by the new, quick, absolutely sure way—by a thin coating of Pure Refined Paraffine. Has no taste or odor. Is air tight and acid proof. Easily applied. Useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions with each cake.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1902. NO 8

GASBURG.—Last St. Patrick's day found considerable light, sandy land broken in this neighborhood, and a few potatoes planted.

A big lot of tobacco has been hauled through here from the Bellevue neighborhood to the buyers at Petersburg.

In some districts there is a scramble for overseer of roads, while in this no person has, so far, signified a willingness to serve as such.

James Burns, until recently a citizen of Flickertown, now occupies the Harbison Bros.' house near the Bellevue end of the bridge.

Ben Berkshire shipped his crop of 6 hogsheads of tobacco to Cincinnati, and realized 50 cents per hundred less than he had been offered at home.

Frank Klopp, sr., came over from Lawrenceburg, a few days since, he now being a citizen of that place, and worked our roads for the last time, preparatory to turning them over to his successor next month.

Three of the four drugstores in Aurora are owned by men who were born and raised in this county—Marshall, Riddell and Tinch. The latter is now clerk of the Dearborn county circuit court. He and Riddell were born and raised in Petersburg, and Marshall first saw light at Waterloo.

RICHWOOD. Mrs. Sarah Robinson has been quite ill the past week.

John Tanner is on the sick list.

Wm. Carpenter's child is still in a precarious condition.

Several wild ducks have been killed in this neighborhood, recently.

Called meeting of Excelsior Grange Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Louis Schnider, of Covington, was visiting Mrs. Johanna Harvey, Sunday.

Mrs. Susie Adams, of Covington, is at the bedside of her father, Mr. Geo. Lipp.

J. W. Carpenter, wife and new baby, Gilbert, were visiting Bud Carpenter, Sunday.

J. Z. Bristow, the poultry fancier, has shipped over 50 of his thoroughbred chickens, recently.

E. L. Glacken has taken his saddle stallion, Ben Hur, to Hubert Nead's farm in Indiana, for the season.

We hear that Jovie Carpenter has compromised with the C. N. O. & T. P. R. for $3,000, for the injuries and loss he sustained a few months ago.

For the benefit of Pomona Grange members we will say that the smallpox is thoroughly stamped out here, reports to the contrary, notwithstanding, and at no time has there been a case within three miles of our hall. If you will attend the meeting at Excelsior Hall on Saturday, the 29th inst., I will guarantee no danger or contracting the smallpox while there.

Your scribe received a letter from Jerry W. Dixon, of Crescent, in which he says he contemplates making Cocoa, Florida, his future home. He speaks of catching Mullets two feet long, hunting deer, and says oranges are nearly all gathered, and enclosed some orange blossoms. He says the trees are in full bloom. We hope Jerry will change his mind and return to us and his old "Kentucky Home," but if he does not, we wish him well in the "Sunny South," and if he ever wishes to return to his native heath, he'll find the latch string hanging out.

WALTON, March 24.—The entertainment given by Miss Lake Wolfe, at the close of her school, was well attended by the patrons of the same, and was a delightful recreation for the children, and highly appreciated by their parents as well as themselves.

Mrs. J. R. Craven was able to come up town this week.

Dr. James Adams had the pleasure of entertaining his brother, the Hon. Samuel Adams, of Erlanger, last Sunday.

C. H. Lermond has had a long siege with Brights disease, and comes out on exceptionally fine days. He is improving as the weather moderates.

Rev. Lafayette Johnson thinks there wont be a peach tree alive in the old orchards two years from now. Mr. Johnson is one of our most noted and intelligent horticulturists and as able a pulpit orater as can be found in Kentucky or any other state.

Mrs. C. E. Morris, of Memphis Tenn., is home for the benefit of her health. In making the change of climate to Memphis, a person must become acclimated and it sometimes takes a year or two for one to become used to the climatic conditions of a new locality.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Pangelis, of Louisville, are making a pleasant visit to their friends in this town. They had not been here more than an hour when some one with more gab than gumption started a story that they were coming back here to live and wanted to rent a house. A party asked Pangelis' father-in-law, Mr. Fritz Waltz, as to the truth of this gossip and was answered that it was unconditionally false, and stated that they had a house to move into whenever they felt like getting back to the place. The truth is that there are more than the usual number of houses to rent in Walton and there is less work to be had than in other towns of its size.

Those who attended the open Grange meeting on Saturday at the Opera House were treated to a rational and intelligent discourse on the "Grange, What it is," etc. by Master of the State Grange Wolcott. He began with the first movement of the Grange some 35 years ago, and showed its rapid rise and how enthusiastic the farmers then were for some change that would afforded them relief. How the grange was prosperous until numbers of its members began to imagine they were not doing so well as they might do if they became merchants, and at it they went to make the Grangers merchants, and a pretty mess they made of it. Some others favored politics, while others jumped themselves into Life Insurance business. All these and other issues foreign to the principles on which the order was founded, soon put the Grange on the down grade, when it left the track and was dumped in the morass of nowhere. Earnest men who sought the good of the community, held on; and now, when the farmer is again burdened with more than he can stand under, the cry of relief is raised in all the land, and the farmer is made to see that unless he combines with others of his gild he must fall into the gulf of oblivion. If he does not as the phrase is, get a move on himself his grave is dug and the corpse will be ready at the appointed time.

Mr. Wolcott says the greatest merit of the order is its educational facilities. Bring your wives and daughters to the Grange with you. It is the best school on earth. Let them enjoy the recreation of a Grange meeting, and you will soon see the improvement that will go on all over the house, in the garden, on the farm, and be not surprised if you find much improvement in yourself.

The social feature of the order is a very attractive one to the youth of both sex, and in the old time Grange meetings they always made a point to be there and have their share of the amusement at once innocent and instructive.

It is hoped that too much space is not already taken on this subject, but excuse must be made for an old master of a Subordinate and member of Pomona Grange of Kenton county. Before closing, let it be remembered that on next Saturday several Granges will meet at Richwood. I ought to have stated that the Grange will make no fight against anyother business.

CALLED ON KITCHENER

Schalk-Burger, Under Flag of Truce, Had an Interview.

The Boer Position at Rhenoster Kop Had Become Almost Hopeless and Mr. Schalk-Burger Once Narrowly Escaped Capture.

Pretoria, March 24.—Acting President Schalk-Burger, F. W. Reitz, ex-secretary of state of the Transvaal, and Commandants Lucas, Meyer and Krogh, with their secretaries and attendants, arrived here Friday, March 22, at 2:04 p. m. on a special train from Balmoral, about 50 miles east of here. They came into Balmoral under a flag of truce.

Upon arriving here Mr. Schalk-Burger and his party drove immediately to Lord Kitchener's headquarters, where he had an interview with the British general. The Boers then proceeded to the railroad station and entrained at 5 o'clock for Kroonstadt, whence they will go out under a safe conduct.

For a week past Mr. Schalk-Burger and his colleagues have been stationed at Rhenoster kop, north of Balmoral, where they have been closely pressed by British columns. The advance guard entered Balmoral Friday night and notified the British of the approach of Mr. Schalk-Burger and his party.

It is reported that the Boer position at Rhenoster kop had become almost hopeless and that Mr. Schalk-Burger once narrowly escaped capture.

London, March 24.—Nothing is actually known here of the intentions of Messrs. Schalk-Burger, Reitz, Meyer and Krogh. It is possible they have only sought permission to traverse the British lines in order to consult with Mr. Steyn and the Boer generals De Wet and Delarey. But whatever their object the news has been welcomed in London as pointing to the possibility of peace.

Some correspondence, which was seized a short time ago, when Mr. Steyn narrowly escaped capture, proved that he and Mr. Schalk-Burger were anxious to conclude peace. No extravagant hopes, however, are being built on the outcome of the movements of Mr. Schalk-Burger and his companions, chiefly because it is feared that Delarey, in the flush of his success, will refuse to be a party to any negotiations.

Manager Elmer Shaner says that the park as remodeled is not greatly inferior to Elkwood park, New Jersey, and Inter State park, Long Island. The club house will easily accommodate the 400 shooters and the grounds will make 2,000 spectators comfortable.

Seventeen thousand pigeons are in the coops at the park and 5,000 more are held in reserve. The handicap committee will meet on Thursday to decide the marks from which the 400 wing shots will shoot. Manila, March 24.—There have been four more cases of cholera here and two more deaths from the plague are reported. The health authorities believe that their rigid precautions have averted an epidemic. As Gen. Chaffee did not want the men of the 3d infantry to run the risk of cholera as a result of contact with the city, that regiment has already been taken aboard the United States transport Grant, which will sail for San Francisco one week ahead of her scheduled time. Five cases of cholera have been reported from the provinces.

Washington, March 20.—Senate—During the entire session of the senate Wednesday the bill providing for the protection of the president of the United States was under consideration. Mr. Spooner (Wis.) contended that the government had an absolute and inherent right to protect itself against assault made either upon its or upon any of its officers. He maintained that an assault on the president was, in the very nature of things, an assault upon the government, for there never was a time when the president was not in the exercise of the duties of his office. Mr. Bailey (Tex.) spoke briefly upon the bill. The Texas senator said he could not support the measure as it stands because he could conceive of an assault made upon the president as a personal and not as an official of the government.

House—The house made fair progress with the river and harbor bill. After the close of general debate, 27 of the 116 pages of the bill were disposed of. No amendments were adopted. The general debate Wednesday was featureless.

Just before adjournment an agreement was reached to vote on the measure and pending amendments at 4 o'clock Friday. House—The house made very slow progress on the river and harbor bill, disposing of only 30 pages and leaving 50 pages still to be considered. The river and harbor committee again succeeded in defeating every amendment offered. Mr. Bellamy (N. C.), during the day took occasion to denounce the Crumpacker proposition to investigate southern election laws as designed to stir up sectional strife. He appealed to the conservative republicans to defeat the resolutions.

Washington, March 22.—Senate—Two important measures were passed by the senate Friday—the bill for the repeal of the war revenue taxes and that for the protection of the president of the United States. The revenue bill was passed without division and after only one short speech. Mr. Tillman embraced the opportunity afforded by the bill's consideration to protest against the repeal of the duty of ten cents a pound upon tea. The bill for the protection of the president provides that any person within the United States who shall wilfully and maliciously kill the president or any officers on whom the duties of president may involve, or any sovereign of a foreign country, or shall attempt to kill any of the persons named, shall suffer death; that any person who shall aid, abet, advise or counsel the killing of any of the persons named, or shall conspire to accomplish their death, shall be imprisoned not exceeding 20 years; that any person who shall threaten to kill or advise or counsel another to kill the president, or any official on whom the duties of the president may devolve shall be imprisoned not exceeding 10 years; that any person who shall wilfully aid in the escape of any person guilty of any of the offenses mentioned shall be deemed an accomplice and shall be pushed as the principal. The secretary of war is directed to detail from the regular army a guard of officers and men to protect the president, "without any unnecessary display," and the secretary is authorized to make regulations as to the dress, arms and equipment of such guard.

House—The house passed the river and harbor bill, which had been under consideration throughout the week. Although several minor amendments were adopted, not a single dollar was added to the measure and, as passed it carried exactly what it did when it came from the committee—$60,688,267, including authorizations.

Washington, March 21.—An order was issued Thursday relieving Brig. Gen. Jacob H. Smith from further duty in the division of the Philippines and directing him to proceed to San Antonio, Tex., to assume command of the department of Texas.

War Tax Repeal.

Washington, March 21.—The senate committee on pensions Thursday reported the bill repealing the war revenue act. Except in one instance the intention of the house bill of repealing the entire act is respected.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, March 18.—Senate—After prolonged debate the senate Monday passed the ship subsidy bill, the final vote upon the measure being 42 to 31.

House—The house Monday began consideration of the river and harbor bill. Mr. Burton (O.) made an extended speech in explanation of the measure in the course of which he presented many interesting facts relative to it.

Washington, March 19.—Senate—For three hours Tuesday the senate had under consideration the bill providing for the protection of the president of the United States and for the punishment by United States courts of those who commit assault upon him. Mr. Bacon (Ga.) opposed the bill and Mr. Hoar (Mass.) and Mr. Mason (Ill.) supported it. Earlier in the day a lively debate was precipitated by the effort of Mr. Rawlins (Utah) to have printed as a document some Philippine correspondence. Eventually the matter was ordered printed as requested. Thirty-nine private pension bills were passed and the calendar cleared.

House—The general debate on the river and harbor appropriation bill was enlivened Tuesday by Mr. Hepburn (Ia.), who made his annual onslaught on the measure. Contrary to his usual custom, Mr. Hepburn found several things in the bill to recommend, although some of his criticisms were quite severe. The other speakers of the day were Messrs. Ball (Tex.) and Lawrence (Mass.), both members of the committee, and Messrs. White (Ky.), Thompson and Burnett (Ala.) who spoke in favor of improvements of interests to their districts. It was agreed that general debate on the bill should close Wednesday at 3 o'clock. Saturday, April 26, was set aside for memorial services on the late Representative Stokes (S. C.), and the late Representative Crump (Mich.).

Washington, March 20.—Senate—During the entire session of the senate Wednesday the bill providing for the protection of the president of the United States was under consideration. Mr. Spooner (Wis.) contended that the government had an absolute and inherent right to protect itself against assault made either upon its or upon any of its officers. He maintained that an assault on the president was, in the very nature of things, an assault upon the government, for there never was a time when the president was not in the exercise of the duties of his office. Mr. Bailey (Tex.) spoke briefly upon the bill. The Texas senator said he could not support the measure as it stands because he could conceive of an assault made upon the president as a personal and not as an official of the government.

House—The house made fair progress with the river and harbor bill. After the close of general debate, 27 of the 116 pages of the bill were disposed of. No amendments were adopted. The general debate Wednesday was featureless.

Washington, March 21.—Senate—Throughout Thursday's session of the senate the bill providing for the protection of the president of the United States was under discussion. Just before adjournment an agreement was reached to vote on the measure and pending amendments at 4 o'clock Friday. Three substitutes for the bill are pending and will be pressed when the voting begins Friday.

House—The house made very slow progress on the river and harbor bill, disposing of only 30 pages and leaving 50 pages still to be considered. The river and harbor committee again succeeded in defeating every amendment offered. Mr. Bellamy (N. C.), during the day took occasion to denounce the Crumpacker proposition to investigate southern election laws as designed to stir up sectional strife. He appealed to the conservative republicans to defeat the resolutions.

To Cure Woman's Ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds. Mrs. Pauline Judson Writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Soon after my marriage two years ago I found myself in constant pain. The doctor said my womb was turned, and this caused the pain with considerable inflammation. He prescribed for me for four months, when my husband became impatient because I grew worse instead of better, and in speaking to the druggist he advised him to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. How I wish I had taken that at first; it would have saved me weeks of suffering. It took three long months to restore me, but it is a happy relief, and we are both most grateful to you. Your Compound has brought joy to our home and health to me."—MRS. FORMER DECISION AFFIRMED.

W. T. Nugent Must Pay $14,000 or Go to Prison For Life.

Louisville, Ky., March 20.—According to a mandate of the United States supreme court, which was received in the federal court in this city Wednesday, W. T. Nugent, the son of the late E. B. Nugent, a dry goods merchant of this city, must either pay $14,000, which he received for goods taken from his father's store on the eve of the latter's assignment, two years ago, or he will be obliged to serve an indefinite sentence in prison for contempt of court. Nugent was tried in the federal court here and Judge Evans ruled that he must pay the money or go to jail for contempt of court. The case was carried to the circuit court of appeals, which reversed Judge Evans' decision, but the attorneys for the creditors carried it to the supreme court and there Judge Evans' decision was upheld. A petition for a rehearing was denied, the final mandate being received Wednesday.

It is probable that the order of the court will be executed Thursday and that Nugent will be at once required to produce the $14,000 or go to prison to stay until the sum is forthcoming.

The purpose set forth is to establish a university for Christian and economic education at or near this city, to be controlled by a board of seven trustees, with authority to employ a faculty not to exceed 70 in number. If established the incorporators hope to raise an endowment sufficient to sustain it.

A HEAVY LOSS.

Part of the State School of Reform, Near Lexington, Destroyed.

Lexington, Ky., March 20.—At 1 a. m. Thursday the local fire department was notified that the state school of reform, six miles from the city and in which 287 children are confined, was in flames. A fire engine was sent from this city. At 1:10 o'clock the boys' building collapsed.

At 2 o'clock the Bradley building, used as offices and dormitory for boys, was in ruins, and the flames had attacked the manual training building. The engine sent from this city had arrived and was playing a stream of hose on the flames.

At 2:30 o'clock the fire was under control and a further spread was not expected. The Bradley building, erected at a cost of $37,000, and insured for two-thirds its value, was destroyed.

Lexington, Ky., March 21.—It develops that the Bradley cottage, at the house of reform here, which was destroyed Wednesday night, was set on fire by Lexington and Covington boys, who had planned a general escape for the entire number during the excitement.

Grover Brecken, of Lexington, who was convicted of housebreaking, and Will Rooderick, of Covington, are accused of the crime by their companions. They escaped and have not yet been apprehended.

EXCITEMENT AT MADRID BEND.

Two Negroes Killed By Whites and Three Horribly Beaten.

Paducah, Ky., March 21.—Great excitement prevails at Madrid Bend, Ky., 40 miles below Hickman on the Tennessee line. Two Negroes were murdered by whites and three horribly and probably fatally beaten. Elijah Drake, it is claimed, was caught stealing chickens and was attacked by enraged whites, being driven into the Mississippi river and shot dead. The body floated to shore and the whites made another Negro tie a rope around the neck and pull him out to deep water. Jim Stewart was also shot and killed in the melee that followed, and three Negroes, names unknown, were almost beaten to death. There is much fear of further trouble and the law abiding citizens have asked the governor to offer a reward for the apprehension and punishment of the murderers.

A CO-INSURANCE CLAUSE.

It Is Declared Void So Far as It Concerns Real Estate.

Louisville, Ky., March 21.—The Kentucky court of appeals has rendered a decision declaring the 80 per cent. co-insurance clause adopted several years ago by the Louisville board of fire underwriters to be void so far as it concerns real estate. The decision, it is claimed, is the first definite expression by any court of last resort in this country covering partial losses by fire under such conditions, though it has been held heretofore that the 80 per cent. or three-fourths value clause in insurance policies is illegal in cases of total loss. The case just decided was a suit brought by Morris A. Sachs, of this city, against the London and Lancashire Insurance Co., of Liverpool.

FEAR AN EPIDEMIC.

A Case of Smallpox in the Franklin County Jail.

Frankfort, Ky., March 22.—Alfred Campbell, of Breathitt county, a government prisoner in the Franklin county jail, was found to have the smallpox Friday afternoon. Wallace, local physician for the government, secured authority from Marshal Steve Sharp, of Covington, to have Campbell removed from the jail to the county pesthouse and to vaccinate the 47 government prisoners in the jail. The county prisoners were also vaccinated. The jail has been quarantined against the breaking out of the disease therein.

GRAND CENTRAL HANDICAP.

Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, Ia., Again Took the Honors.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 22.—Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, Ia., again took the honors at the Limited Gun club shoot, winning the Grand Central handicap with a score of 26 straight. He had to fight it out with F. E. Hicks, of Columbus, O., who killed 25 straight, but who missed the first bird of the shoot. All through Hicks set the pace, being in the first squad, while Gilbert was several squads down the list. Hicks had a bit the advantage, too, for he shot from the 28 yard mark, while Gilbert was on the 32 yard mark. It was the most severe handicap ever given a man at the traps in Indianapolis.

Considering the handicap with the other experts shooting at a yard closer, the work of the Spirit Lake man was all the more brilliant. He had some fierce birds too, while Hicks had a little the better of it in this; still the flight of some of his birds was hard.

The two men divided first money and shot off for the medal. There were 37 entries in all and the first money amounted to $277.50, netting each man $138.75, from which is subtracted his entrance fee of $25, making a nice winning.

The second men were Rhoads, Head, of Peru; and Fox, who divided $208.10. The third men were Ahlers, Vories, of Crawfordaville; Heikes, of Dayton, and Budd, of Iowa. They split up $138.75.

The fourth hole men were Rike, of Dayton; Clay, Phil, Young and Neal. The money amounted to $69.40, and was split five ways.

BORACIC PRESERVED MEAT.

Comments on Its Exclusion From the German Empire.

Berlin, March 22.—The criticism made in the United States of the exclusion by Germany of meats preserved with borax is answered here with the statements that the prohibition applies to domestic and foreign meats equally and that American exporters have nothing to complain of that does not apply to German preserved meat dealers. But the agents here of American meat exporters say that this is no answer at all, because boracic meat preserving is an unknown art in Germany and never likely to be much used, as it is unnecessary to preserve meat that is consumed where it is produced. Besides, they declare, the regulations are aimed at America alone and can serve no other object than to prevent American exporters from competing with domestic meat producers.

FEDERAL PLAN LAW.

If Knocked Out Cleveland Will Be Left Without a Government.

In View of This a Strenuous Effort Will Be Made to Pass the Municipal Code Bill Now Before the Legislature.

Cleveland, O., March 22.—A Columbus dispatch says that the supreme court judges are practically unanimous for a decision that will knock out the Cleveland federal plan law, and that the decision will be rendered within a few days.

Action was brought some time ago by Attorney Charles D. Gibbons and others in a suit to oust the federal plan on the grounds of unconstitutionality. The decision of the supreme court will be final, and if the petitioners' case is sustained Cleveland will be without any form of government whatever. In view of this it is said that strenuous efforts will be made to pass the municipal code bill now before the legislature. Should this bill be held over for an extra session and an adverse decision rendered by the supreme court in the meantime, the city of Cleveland will find itself in a very bad fix.

The federal plan is a one-man power government, the mayor and his appointive board of control being the executive.

Created by special legislative act for cities of the first class, Cleveland alone is under the system. The municipal code bill seeks to make the system general, to apply to all the cities in the state. The constitutionality of special legislation enactment is questioned.

HE CONFESSED.

Charles F. Ruter Charged With Using the Mails to Defraud.

St. Louis, March 22.—St. Louis government officers have placed under arrest a man named Charles F. Ruter, alias George W. Werner, whom they will endeavor to convict of using the mails to defraud, he having attempted to induce 200 women located all over the country to correspond with him, ostensibly with a view to matrimony. Inspectors in charge of the case stated that the majority of these women would be subpoenaed before the federal grand jury as witnesses. Ruter broke down under the "sweating" process and confessed to numerous fraudulent transactions.

Carter and his victim were gamblers. Whistler won money at craps. Carter went to a barber shop where Whistler worked the next day and demanded part of the money. Whistler refused to divide and Carter shot him.

Rules and regulations similar to those that are to be the vogue at the St. Louis fair grounds will govern the contest. Several successful tests of the Chicagoan's machine are said to have been made.

Mysterious Case of Frank Rogers and Miss Florence Ely

The Fruitless Search Which Has Been Made For the Missing Couple.

THAT fact is often stranger than fiction and the mystery in real life sometimes too deep for even the keenest detective of the country to find a solution thereof is strikingly illustrated by the Ely-Rogers case, of Evanston, Ill. Since the disappearance of Frank Ely Rogers, a boy of 14 years, from his home last July accompanied by his aunt, Miss Florence Ely, the police and detectives of Chicago and the country have been untiring in their efforts to trace the couple and return them safely home to the sorrowing parents of the boy and the aged mother of Miss Ely. Every clew has been followed up and every means employed which might possibly furnish a solution of the mystery or induce the infatuated aunt and her young nephew to return to the home where only loving welcome awaits them.

Miss Ely, up to last July, had been a music teacher in Evanston. She is a handsome gentlewoman of more than usual intelligence, with large, expressive dark eyes, dark brown hair and slender form and a delicate physique. She is 40 years old, and for 20 years has made her home with her sister, the wife of Mr. James C. Rogers, as did her mother, who is heartbroken over the peculiar conduct of her daughter. The family lives on Hinman avenue, one of the beautiful residence streets of Evanston, only a short distance from the campus of the Northwestern university. Mr. Rogers is connected with the mercantile firm of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., in Chicago, and is a man of ability and some means.

Fourteen years ago, when Frank was born, Miss Ely idolized the baby, and was as devoted to him as if she had been his mother. It was her supreme delight to care for and amuse him, and as he grew into boyhood her affection grew to be an infatuation which led her to forsake all her social duties and devote her entire time to her nephew.

On the morning on which they disappeared (July 12) it is known that Frank left home ostensibly to attend a picnic in the woods near the town, but that he walked by a circuitous route to the station of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. There he met his aunt, Miss Ely, who had left a satchel with the station agent the day before. This she secured and placed therein the contents of a box she carried, and then threw the box away.

"Frank," she called to the boy.

The boy turned quickly, took the satchel from his aunt's hand, and the two walked out of the depot together. They took a north-bound electric car which runs from Chicago to Milwaukee, and that was the last time they were seen in Evanston. On the 29th of last December a bundle of clothing belonging to Miss Ely and Frank Rogers was found tucked away under the Central street station of the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad in North Evanston, and where it is now surmised by the police that the pair stepped and changed their clothing, the boy possibly disguising himself as a girl—for he left his collar behind—and Miss Ely transforming herself into an old and shabbily dressed woman. Since then dozens of clews have been followed, but not one has led to a reliable trace of the couple.

FRANK ELY ROGERS.

Several times the couple have been reported as being in Chicago. Hallie Winger, of Evanston, declares that by one day saw Frank Rogers sitting in a window of Le Grand hotel, Chicago, but when the police whom he notified arrived, the boy had gone. At other hotels and restaurants the couple have been partially identified, but have always eluded capture. They are believed to have spent some time at Waukegan, a summer resort. The latest clew, from Casselton, N. D., appears more hopeful than any of the others.

MISS FLORENCE A. ELY.

A woman and a boy answering the description were living in that town, but are now proved not to be the Evanston runaways.

Hoping against hope and with the heartbreaking sorrow crushing their hearts, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers early last December inserted an advertisement in the newspapers calling upon the missing boy and his aunt to come home for Christmas and all would be forgiven. All day Christmas they watched for the return of the fugitives, and during the night a lamp was kept burning brightly in the window of the home on Hinman avenue to welcome their return. The family felt sure that they would come, but they were doomed to disappointment.

As a last effort to reach the missing couple or secure information regarding them, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have resorted to the chain letter scheme. Here is their plea for help:

Dear Friend—Will you kindly help a heartbroken father and two mothers in an effort to find their loved ones by writing three copies of this letter and sending them over your own signature, to three friends, making the same request of them, and so on, forming an endless chain.

Miss Florence A. Ely and nephew, Frank Ely Rogers, disappeared from their home, 713 Hinman avenue, Evanston, Ill., July 13, 1901. Nothing has been heard of them since.

Miss Ely is 40 years of age, about five feet three inches in height, very thin and weighs from 90 to 100 pounds; face rather long and very expressive; dark brown hair; large dark brown eyes, with an intense expression, are her most noticeable feature; good music teacher; attractive to children.

713 Hinman avenue, Evanston, Ill.

As these letters, by the aid of sympathetic and kind people, go broadcast over the country in ever widening circle and reach perhaps every nook and corner of the United States, the result sought for may be attained and a mystery cleared up which in some respects is one of the most puzzling ever coming to the notice of the police. If Frank Rogers and Miss Ely are alive, how has it been possible to elude the shrewdest detectives of the country? If dead, what has become of their bodies and why have they not been discovered? If they have left the country, where have they secured the means for so long an absence and so extended a trip? These are some of the questions one is led to ask in considering the case, and which may never be answered this side the grave.

A DISAPPOINTED DARKY.

His Watermelon Proved to Be Unripe and There Was a Terrible Transformation.

I stood one Saturday afternoon on the porch of a Luray (Va.) hotel, and saw file past a hundred or more darkies, returning from work, each and every one of them carrying a "watermillion" under his arm. They had been paid off, and a convenient farm wagon loaded with melons happened to pass as they filed along and the darkies all bought, relates a writer in Forest and Stream.

One young buck, after lugging that melon for several blocks, "just couldn't stand it no longer," and without ado sat down upon the curb, and in the absence of a jackknife he deftly tapped the melon against the edge of the curb until it broke asunder. Mansfield, in transforming his Jekyl face into that of Hyde upon the stage, never equaled the lightning change of countenance exhibited by that darky. One moment his eyes bulged, his mouth distorted, his teeth glistened, and his face fairly glowed with pleasurable expectancy, and in the twinkling of an eye, when the parted halves of that unripe and white-seeded melon fell from his palsied hands, his eyes contracted to mere slits, showing an angry, snake-like red, his face became of an ashen hue—call it pale, if you will—and through his slightly parted lips like a devil incarnate, he hissed out imprecation after imprecation upon the farmer, showing the fact clearly that the disappointed one was a past grand master in the art of profanity.

In the Wrong Place.

An old printer is quoted as authority for this story of Horace Greeley: "One day as he sat at his desk he looked up and saw a small boy standing beside him. 'Well, sonny, what do you want?' he piped. 'I want a place to work in your office.' 'And what do you want that for?' asked the old man. 'I want to grow up and get rich,' was the answer. Mr. Greeley looked at him for a moment. 'Get rich?' he said. 'I guess you didn't notice that this is a newspaper office. You must be looking for the druggist next door.'"—Detroit Free Press.

FROM the reading of the Frankfort papers it is evident that Senator Taylor, of Franklin county, is a very accomplished parliamentarian.

AMONG the bills passed by the last legislature are two of considerable importance. One regulates horses' caudle appendages; the other, barbers.

THE tobacco growers of the county will meet again next Monday afternoon at the court house, when the situation will be fully discussed. A good attendance is very much desired.

The ill-temper and bad feeling displayed by the members of the legislature at the close is in marked contrast with the friendly spirit that marked the convening of that body, says the Blue Grass Clipper.

FRANKFORT has not succeeded in getting an appropriation for new capitol buildings, but she has always succeeded in outgeneraling every attempt on the part of those who want to take the capitol away from her.

THERE are a great many very busy people in this county just now. They are preparing for large crops which they hope to get planted at the earliest possible time, and in the best condition they can have their land.

THE U. S. Senate is not the only legislative body in which unparliamentary language is occasionally used, and of the very hottest kind. A member of the English Parliament called another a d—n liar, the other day, for which he was suspended in about ten minutes.

THE failure of the redistricting bills to pass the legislature is a blessing to the Democratic party in Kentucky. The bills were conceived in a desire to advance person political interests and not for the purpose of conforming the districts to the provisions of the constitution.

THE Department of Agriculture will prepare a list of articles imported into this country in which boracic and other acids are supposed to exist. This action is the first step taken by the Government looking to retaliation for the German prohibition on the importation of meats containing boracic acid.

GOV. BECKHAM has been a very busy man since the legislature adjourned. A very large portion of his work accruing from the deliberations of that body, was placed on his desk about the close of the session, and to give it a careful and critical examination has required great labor on the part of the Executive.

MUM is the word with all the officers of the army and navy in this government. They are not allowed to express an opinion on any public question that is contrary to that entertained by the army and navy click at Washington. Freedom of speech is not allowed to go in army and navy circles unless it suits the bosses.

THE people of Carroll and Gallatin counties are putting their shoulders to the wheel handsomely in the effort to secure the traction road. They fully realize the benefits to be derived from such a thoroughfare. Boone should not be a laggard in the matter. The benefits she would derive from the road would exceed those of the lower counties.

THE farmers are very busy preparing to pitch their 1902 crop. The land is said to be breaking nicely, and with favorable conditions crops will be planted early. There may be some trouble on account of good seed corn, but this troble can be remedied by testing the corn before planting.

GEN. MILES may be subjected to discipline for the testimony he is alleged to have given before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs. He announced his intention of resigning in case Congress should enact into a law the bill introduced by Senator Hawley, and which provides for the organization of a general staff for the army. In the course of his testimony he is alleged to have said the bill is calculated merely to allow the Secretary of War and the Adjutant General to promote the interests of their personal favorites.

The exhibition to Prince Henry of the sword presented to Gen. Washington by Frederick the Great at the Executive chamber, at Albany, N. Y., was attended by a peculiar incident. When the will of Gen. Washington was read after his death it was found that he had willed his five swords to his five nephews with the provision "that they should not be drawn from their scabbards except in the defense of the country."

The sword presented by Frederick the Great has been strictly kept in the scabbard in compliance with the provisions of the will.

When it was handed to Prince Henry he drew the blade from the scabbard. Of course he did not know of the provisions of the will, but he had, nevertheless, innocently violated them. No mention of the occurrence was made to the Prince.

A leading Democrat of the Sixth Congressional District who is familiar with the vote in every precinct in the District gives it as a sure "tip" that neither Gooch nor Berry will receive the nomination for Congress. When he was reminded that Congressman Gooch was reported as the busiest member in Congress he said: "Yes, busy sending out books and seeds that cost him nothing, as you know he has a frank which carries his letters and his packages free through the mails, yet he cannot look into the political seeds of time and bank upon which grain will grow and which will not." And thereupon he laughed at what he supposed was a witty paraphrase of the words of Banquo in Macbeth.

In the opinion of the Commonwealth the political pot is brewing a stew which will soon bring to the surface a candidate who will be supported by Westover, of Grant; Lassing, of Boone, and Pugh, of Kenton, aided by other politicians in Pendleton and Campbell.

"There has always been more or less argument over the question of dehorning, and while it may be admitted that the process is painful, and, in the case of an adult animal, causes a shock to the nervous system, it is not at all likely that the young calf suffers more than momentary pain, and the process certainly does not injure the animal in any way. The process of preventing the growth of the horns on the young calf is to take the animal when it is three or four weeks old, and after locating the embryo horn with the finger, rub the spot for a minute or two, or until it gets quite red, with a stick of caustic potash, which may be bought at any drug store. The potash should be moistened slightly, but not enough so that it will run, for it will take off the hair wherever it touches it. Wrap the end held in the hand with a cloth, to prevent burning the hand. The work is quickly done, and if thoroughly done, the horns will not grow. It is generally considered that the age named—about a month—is nearer the right time than earlier, and the work should never be attempted with potash after the calf is six or eight weeks old or after the button has assumed much prominence."

But about the Philippines all that can be said for and against the Republican party will range itself."

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called La Grippe," says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use in these ailments. For sale by all druggists.

Remain quietly at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed and a quick recovery is sure to follow. That remedy counteracts any tendency of the grip to result in pneumonia, which is really the only serious danger. Among the tens of thousands who have used it for the grip, not one case has ever been reported that did not recover. For sale by all druggists.

Jack Sandford and Wood Maxwell have made reps as veterinaries. Last Saturday Jack found one of his calves choking on a potato. He located the potato, which he forced into the animals stomach by rubbing the throat. He then discovered the larynx, which he mistook for another potato, and began to try to remove it. All his efforts being in vain, he called in his neighbor, Maxwell, and they tried all manner of means to dislodge the supposed obstruction. Hoe handles, tobacco sticks and buggy whips were thrust down the calf's throat but all to no purpose. Finally they concluded to examine another calf's throat, and were surprised to find a like enlargement, when each looked at the other as much as to say, "you ought to have known that knot was not a potato." The calf is now being treated for sore throat.

DIED.

RUNYAN.—At 9 o'clock p. m., on the 20th inst, in Burlington, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Revill, Mrs. Mary M. Runyan, aged 85 years, 5 months and 4 days.

Mrs. Runyan was a daughter of the late Isham G. and Lavinia Eve (McGlasson) Hamilton. She was born in the Petersburg neighborhood, this county, on October 16th, 1816, and was united in marriage with James M. Runyan in 1837. To them were born five children, Lavinia E., Lizzie, Georgia, William and Monette. Georgia married Thomas J. Ellis, of Kenton county, and Monette married Joseph C. Revill, who is cashier of the Boone County Depost Bank.

Mrs. Runyan was a member of the Christian church, and her life was in accord with the teachings of the Savior she followed. She was of an even temper, and was ever considerate of those with whom she was associated, and her life is worthy the emulation of all. Young and old alike held the good old lady in the highest esteem, and in her death all unite in saying a good, christian woman has been called to her reward.

A short service was conducted by Rev. Sproles, at one o'clock Saturday, at the house, after which the remains were laid to rest by the side of those of her husband, who departed this life in 1859.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The great danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these disease, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of lagrippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggist.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. GRANDMOTHER'S EASTER HYMN.

By Mrs. Bradley Barlow.

EVERY year she softly sang it, bending
Above the lilies there,
With the sunlight dancing, glancing, resting
On her silv'ry hair;
And her voice still sweet, though quav'ring,
Mingling with the bells' clear chime,
Is a memory most precious, of our earliest Easter time!

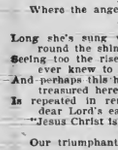
"Jesus Christ is risen to-day,
Alleluia!
Our triumphant holy day,
Alleluia!
Who did once upon the Cross,
Alleluia!
Suffer to redeem our loss,
Alleluia!"

And at church one Easter morning, I remember how she sang,
In her pew so feebly sitting, loudly the responses rang!
Hymn-book grasped by trembling fingers, dim blue eyes upraised in prayer,
Every word of long forgetting, rounded out with tender care:

"Hymns of praise then let us sing,
Alleluia!
Unto Christ our Heavenly King,
Alleluia!
Who endured the Cross and Grave,
Alleluia!
Sinners to redeem and save,
Alleluia!"

How we children loved to listen, while she sung for us alone,
Sitting in the Easter twilight, even when far older grown!
She would speak of Christ's great suffering, death, and resurrection too,
Ending with these Easter hymn-words, all so wonderful and true:

"But the pain which He endured,
Alleluia!
Our salvation hath procured,
Alleluia!
Now above the sky He's King,
Alleluia!
Where the angels ever sing,
Alleluia!"



Long she's sung with myriad angels, round the shining throne above,
Seeing too the risen Saviour, whom she ever knew to love;
And perhaps this hymn inspiring, she so treasured here below,
Is repeated in remembrance of their dear Lord's earthly woe:

"Jesus Christ is risen to-day,
Alleluia!
Our triumphant holy day,
Alleluia!
Who did once upon the Cross,
Alleluia!
Suffer to redeem our loss.
Alleluia!"

THE MESSAGE OF THE LILIES

By L. McRoss.

"WHY, yes, Mis' Barr, of course we must have the church dec'rated Easter; we always do. Mis' Perkins, the minister's wife that was here before you came, was a master hand to fix up the church. I'd be proper glad to let you have some of my plants, only I know just how they'd look when they'd come home; ev'ry-body'd be a-helpin' themselves to slips an' pickin' off the flowers. You can have that wunderin-jew, though; it wandered off'n the shelf onto the floor, an' broke it up some. Sister Wilder'll prob'ly let you have hers if you'll go an' git 'em an' bring 'em home ag'in. They're all covered with red spiders an all manner of creeptiks, so it won't hurt 'em to go most anywheres."

Mrs. Barr could not restrain a smile as she said: "I have heard that Miss Prescott had a great many handsome plants; perhaps—"

"Land of freedom!" interrupted Mrs. Saunders. "You don't think of askin' her for any, do you?"

"Why not?"

"Why not!" scornfully; "because she never gives nor does anything for anybody but herself, an' hasn't for more'n fifteen years!"

"Did anything happen—"

"Yes, I suppose there did," Mrs Saunders again interrupted. "Olivia Prescott wa'n't more'n seventeen or so when she an' Philip Eustis was keepin' company, in spite of the Squire who did his best to stop it. 'Livia's mother was dead, an' the Squire brought his girl up awful strict; wouldn't listen to an engagement between such children, as he called 'em. But the trouble all come over religion; beats all how folks will quarrel over religion!"

"Over beliefs," Mrs. Barr quickly corrected her. "It is difference of belief that often kindles quarrels which true religion must heal."

"Religion never healed that one. You see, Phil was strong Episcopal, an' Squire Prescott was just the unitest kind of a Unitarian, an' I s'pose there is some difference between the two. Well, just this same day, the Saturday before Ecaster, Phil went to get 'Livia to help dec'rate the church, 'cause sometimes she used to go with him to the Episcopal. He an' the Squire got to arguin, just as they always did when they met, an' got to quarrelin', just as they always did when they argued. Somehow 'Livia got drawn into the jangle, an' at last the Squire brought his fist down an' says: 'Olivia Prescott, don't you ever dare set foot inside that Episcopal church ag'in; if you do I'll—' but he never finished, for 'Livia spoke up: 'You needn't be afraid that I will go into that or any other church again as long as I live! If religion can breed such angry words and hard feelings I don't want it! As for you, Philip Eustis, before I speak to you again you will have time to get that temper of yours under better control!'

"By the time she was through talking both men had cooled off some and tried to make her take back what she had said; but 'twan't in her to take back, any more'n 'twas in the Squire. She's never been to church since and she and Phil never made up."

"What has become of Philip Eustis?"

"He went off out west somewheres. The old Squire died a few years ago, an' late years 'Livia doesn't go hardly anywheres."

"At any rate, I think I shall call upon her," decided Mrs. Barr, as she at last rose to go.

"You won't get any further than her doorstep if you try," answered Mrs. Saunders, laughing indulgently.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, sure. When you ring, 'Livia'll come to the door; she won't ask you in, but just stand there and freeze you with her cold looks until you'll be glad to go home."

"Mrs Saunders was not far wrong," Mrs. Barr thought, as she was confronted by Olivia, standing tall and straight in the doorway, a look of inquiry upon her cold, handsome face.

"I am Mrs. Barr, the minister's wife," she introduced herself, with an embarrassed smile. "May I come in and talk to you a few moments?"

In silence Olivia led the way to the sitting-room. It was a chilly April day, but the wood fire blazing upon the hearth made the room warm and cheerful. Soft carpets, rich hangings, well-filled book-cases and a table piled high with the latest books and periodicals spoke of the occupant's luxurious tastes.

Olivia made no effort to break the silence, and at last Mrs. Barr said:

"Ever since I came here I have been hoping to meet you, Miss—"

"I am not a member of any church; it has been many years since I was in a church, and I never intend to go again."

She spoke decidedly, but without anger, and Mrs. Barr looked perplexed.

"I am sorry, not alone for ourselves, though with your abilities you might do a great deal for us, but I am sorry for you, too, because you are losing the happiness that comes from doing and giving."

Olivia gave no sign of interest, and Mrs. Barr did not have the courage to pursue such a one-sided conversation. She looked toward the large bay window filled with blooming plants; conspicuous among them was a tier of Easter lilies, a mass of snowy, fragrant bloom.

"'Consider the lilies,'" quoted Mrs. Barr, reverently. "Do you consider them?"

"I have taken all the care of them since I put the bulbs into the soil, so I suppose that I have considered them more or less every day."

"I do not mean their manner of growth alone, nor the beautiful raiment; have you thought of the pleasure that the sight of them would give to those who never see a flower during the long, cold winter?"

"I suppose you mean that I ought to send them to the church to-morrow," said Olivia, contemptuously.

"We certainly would like them there, but you can do good with them by sending them to other places. You can put them into the homes of the poor and sick, and every lily-bell will ring out a message of love and gladness."

There was another long silence; and finally the discouraged Mrs. Barr rose and took her leave.

As soon as she had gone Olivia took up a book and read a page or two mechanically; but the only words that she saw were: "Consider the lilies; consider the lilies." And the air of the room was heavy with their perfume.

"I've been staying in the house too closely," she thought. "I'll go to the woods and get rid of this mental fuzz."

On her way she passed a little cottage; at the window was a crippled boy caressing the leaves of a sickly flowerless geranium.

"Consider the lilies; consider the lilies." The words rang in her ears, whistled through the leafless branches and vibrated in the air.

She filled her hands with twigs of budding willows, partridge vine and princess pine, and hurried nerrously home. When she opened the door the lily-scented air rushed upon her with sickening force; she sank into a chair, and looked at the lilies long and steadily until the beautiful waxen bells changed to reproachful faces. Old memories crowded upon her—of that quarrel years ago; of Philip Eustis, her father and old schoolmates. Somehow she felt that she had not done altogether well. The past years seemed so barren and useless; the future loomed before her dreary and desolate.

She went upstairs, shut the door to keep out the scent of the lilies, and again tried to read, but the lilies kept telling their story. She threw down her book and sprang angrily to her feet.

"Consider the lilies! Consider the lilies!" she cried. "It seems to me I am considering them whether I want to or not! I'll try repeating the words a hundred times; they say that is the way to lay such hearts!"

Back and forth she walked, repeating the words over and over; but the charm failed. The perfume of the lilies stole into her room, and their message surged through her brain as she lay awake through the long night. She rose in the morning unrefreshed by sleep, but with mind at rest. After breakfast she said to Jane Simmons her old housekeeper "Jane, can you harness Prince into the open wagon?"

"Why, yes, of course I kin; but what are you going t' do with him on a Sunday?" asked Jane, with the familiarity born of 20 years' faithful service.

"You'll see," was the smiling answer. The smile was as rare as the flushed face and elated manner. Jane stared a few moments, then went reluctantly to the stable.

"Now help me put these lilies into the wagon," was Olivia's next command. The lilies were followed by palms, ferns and flowering plants until the wagon was full; then Olivia drove away, and Jane gazed after her, muttering:

"She's either gone clear out of her senses, or else," Jane paused, "she's come into them; now, which is it?"

There was more astonishment than reverence in the faces of the congregation assembled in the old meeting-house that Easter morning. Olivia sitting in the Prescott pew! Olivia's lilies perfuming the air, her flowers making the dingy room beautiful! What could have worked the miracle?

Oliva was outwardly calm and attentive; in reality she was thinking of the little cripple who had that morning clasped in his arms a pot of her choicest lilies; she could see him as he touched the flowers with his lips, laid his thin cheeks against them, and hugged them in an ecstasy of enjoyment. She thought, too, of Auntie Cooper, bedridden for many years, and of how the tears had run down the old woman's cheeks as she clasped the lilies in her arms. And as she thought of these things she closed her eyes and murmured:

"I thank Thee, Lord, not alone for these lilies, the emblem of His resurrection, but also that I, Olivia, have at last come out of the grave of selfishness, where I have lain buried by pride and stubbornness."

The sermon was ended and the benediction spoken, yet not one of the congregation moved; they stood, almost breathlessly watching Olivia until the minister stepped from the pulpit and walked toward her pew; then old friends surged around her, with kind faces and cheery voices. She met them with outstretched hand and friendly smile and led them to the lilies.

"I have never before had so many nor so fine lilies. I want to give them to you." The hardness and coldness had left her face; instead there shone a warmth of tenderness and glow of kindness.

"You see I have 'Considered the lilies,'" she said, as she handed a pot of them to Mrs. Barr.

"Seems as if you an' the lilies must be related, 'Livy, you look so much alike," said old Mrs. Price, as she looked first at Olivia and then at the lilies.

A flash of color swept over Olivia's face, leaving it deadly pale. Philip Eustis had once told her that she was like the pale, slender lilies, and that he loved them for the likeness!

Reaction from her excited feelings was fast taking place, fatigue and depression of spirits settled upon her. With a weary smile she said good-by. As she stepped into the church vestibule a man came forward to greet her. "Olivia!" he said, and held out his hand.

"Philip!"

"Olivia, I came back here just to get a glimpse of you; I didn't expect that you would care to see me after all this time; but something in your face this morning, while I watched you giving away your lilies, gave me courage to wait and speak to you."

"You did right," she said, as they turned together and walked slowly down the path from the church.

"I have come to ask your forgiveness."

"My forgiveness, Phil!" she exclaimed; and the old name sounded good from her lips. "It is I who should ask yours, for it was I who did the wrong, not you. I had shut you out; I had determined to forget you, and I had almost succeeded. And all these days my heart has been hardened against the good. I have been selfish, so selfish. But it is over now; the flowers, Phil, my Easter lilies, they made me see and understand. I have asked God to forgive me, too?"

He smiled at her without answering, but she understood.

"We must both forgive," she said.

"And with your forgiving you must also give."

She looked up.

"Will you give me—yourself?" he questioned.

There was a glow in her eyes as she put out her hand to touch his sleeve.

"Yes, Phil," she said, quietly, "though I don't deserve it. I would have been punished more. Instead, I am made happy."

They drove home together in the wagon, and Olivia laughed over it.

"See," she said, suddenly, as they passed a small house at the end of the village, "it is the little cripple to whom I took some flowers!"

The boy in the window waved his hand and laughed to them, and the blossoms by his side seemed to nod, too.

"They have done so much good—the lilies," said Olivia, looking up into her companion's face. "We must have them every year, Phil, you and I."—Woman's Home Companion.

EASTER EGG-ROLLING.

One Day in the Year the Little Folks May Play in the President's Yard.

In the Woman's Home Companion Waldon Fawcett gives a lively description of the children's egg-rolling carnival which takes place every year in the president's yard:

"The event of the day—the climax looked forward to by the older folks as well as the juvenile visitors—comes when the president, who has from time to time all day peeped out at the glad gathering, steps out on the veranda of the white house and bows in greeting to the sea of little upturned faces. Then as the band strikes up some patriotic air the youngsters all shout lustily and clap their hands, and as likely as not testify their appreciation in some of these unique unconventional ways so dear to the hearts of youth, and which are prone to make the dignitary on the portico laugh outright.

"The one element of seriousness which characterizes this great outing you may discover as you stroll down to the little building which ordinarily serves as a 'central station' for the policemen who guard the white house grounds. For this one day, however, the watchmen's house is transformed into an asylum for lost little folks. Hither the big blue-coated officers bring the little tots who chance to go astray in the great medley of humanity, and here a nurse soothes and comforts the tiny weeper until the inevitable anxious mother appears. At a recent egg-rolling festival there were 27 'lost children' in the little habitation at one time, but mothers and nurses so universally understand where to seek for missing little ones that scarcely any confusion is caused by these separations."

HOME OF THE EASTER LILY.

There is a striking analogy in the fact that Bermuda, the home of the Easter lily, was called, on its discovery, "the Isle of Devils."

Although the lilies of Bermuda—the fields white with their satiny leaves, the air heavy with their fragrance—have been known and loved by all visitors to the "Isles of summer," they did not become "Easter lilies" until so recently as 1875. It is said that they were introduced into the United States in that year by an American woman who brought a few plants to a Philadelphia florist. Charmed by the beauty of the flowers, he cultivated the plants carefully from the bulbs until he had a number. Other florists purchased from him, then bulbs were imported from Bermuda, and now the lily is grown here profusely in all the hothouses.

The tremendous growth in the last 25 years in the custom of celebrating Easter by decoration of churches and homes has made exportation of the bulbs one of the principal industries of Bermuda, as the lily of that country became associated by "natural selection" with Easter. Its beautiful chalice, its delicacy of form and color, its mystic perfume, all tend to suggest the fresh, pure beauty of spring and its herald, Easter.

The lily fields are not exceedingly large, as a rule, and seldom contain more than a few acres. The largest bulbs are sent to London and New York, as they command the highest prices in those cities. The bulbs of medium size also are exported, the planters reserving only the smallest for their own use.—N. Y. Tribune.

"If yer please, yer honor," said Mary, "the copper beyant pulled me in, sayin' I was drunk. An' I don't drink, your honor; I don't drink."

"All right," said the justice—his former bartender habit getting the best of him—"all right; have a cigar."—Beverages.

GIGANTIC ADVERTISING.

Grand Trunk Arranges Plans for Picture Exhibit.

Though the Grand Trunk Railway system carried over 30,000 tourists and sportsmen into one district of Canada's summer playgrounds last year, the company is starting out this year with a vigorous policy of advertising to still further increase the influx of pleasure-seekers who annually travel over this system.

The company has now decided to give the populace of some of its larger cities in the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Kentucky and Pennsylvania an opportunity of seeing the series of photographic views it had on exhibition at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. There will be over 100 pictures in the collection, each measuring 3 feet 6 inches by 4 feet 2 inches, in addition to one of the finest collections of mounted fish that has ever been shown. The fish include specimens of black bass from the "Highlands of Ontario," dore and maskinonge from the St. Lawrence, land-locked salmon from their native waters, and other specimens of rare value. A representative of the Grand Trunk will accompany the exhibit and the art gallery will be installed in the business portion of the cities visited. Thousands of copies of literature, describing the several regions to be advertised, will be distributed. The exhibit will open at Saginaw, Mich., March 10, and goes from there to Grand Rapids, thence south to several points in the other states.

The tour will occupy ten weeks, two days being allowed in each city.

Acquired Skill.

Methodically the angry wife hurled the cup and saucer at her husband. Seizing the meat platter, she batted the salt cellar and pepper holder at him, and followed with a volley of sugar bowl, butter dishes, cream mug, and knives and forks.

Seeking safety in the hall, the bruised husband mused to himself:

The Wheels of a Railroad.

On the Burlington Railroad system of 2,000 miles, over 385,000 wheels are in service under the various passenger, freight and way cars, locomotives and other rolling stock. An average of 40,000 wheels are purchased each year and they are very carefully inspected, as they are bought with a guarantee. According to the stipulation, each is warranted to last six years or cover seventy-five thousand miles. All the wheels are numbered and a careful record kept. When they fail to do the work they are returned to the manufacturer, who is compelled to make the loss good.

At the "captains of industry" luncheon to Prince Henry one of the hosts asked the conventional question: "How do you like America?" The prince, in a burst of sailor-like confidence, replied: "Oh, I'm having the time of my life. I don't count for much over there, you know. They only use me to send to funerals."—N. Y. Sun.

Encouragement and Consolation for Those in Trouble.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

From a process familiar to the farmer Dr. Talmage draws lessons of consolation and encouragement for people in sorrow and adversity. The text is Isaiah 28: 27, 28: "For the fitches are not threshed with a thrashing instrument, neither is a cart wheel turned about upon the cummin, but the fitches are beaten out with a staff and the cummin with a rod. Bread corn is bruised because he will not ever be thrashing it."

Misfortune of various kinds come upon various people, and in all times the great need of 99 people out of a hundred is solace. Look, then, to this neglected allegory of my text.

There are three kinds of seed mentioned—fitches, cummin and corn. Of the last we all know. But it may be well to state that the fitches and the cummin were small seeds, like the caraway or the chickpea. When these grains or herbs were to be thrashed they were thrown on the floor, and the workmen would come around with staff or rod or flail and beat them until the seed would be separated, but when the corn was to be thrashed that was thrown on the floor, and the men would fasten horses or oxen to a cart with iron dented wheels; that cart would be drawn around the thrashing floor, and so the work would be accomplished. Different kinds of thrashing for different products. "The fitches are not thrashed with a thrashing instrument, neither is a cart wheel turned about upon the cummin, but the fitches are beaten out with a staff and the cummin with a rod. Bread corn is bruised because he will not ever be thrashing it."

The great thought that the text presses upon our souls is that we all go through some kind of thrashing process. The fact that you may be devoting your life to honorable and noble purposes will not win you any escape. Wilberforce, the Christian emancipator, was in his day derisively called "Doctor Cantwell." Thomas Babbington Macaulay, the advocate of all that was good, long before he became the most conspicuous historian of his day was caricatured in one of the quarterly reviews as "Babbletongue Macaulay." Norman McLeod, the great friend of the Scotch poor, was industriously maligned in all quarters, although on the day when he was carried out to his burial a workman stood and looked at the funeral procession and said: "If he had done nothing for anybody more than he has done for me, he would shine as the stars forever and ever." All the small wits of London had their fling at John Wesley, the father of Methodism. If such men could not escape the maligning of the world, neither can you expect to get rid of the sharp, keen stroke of the tribulum. All who will live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution. Besides that, there are the sicknesses and the bankruptcies and the irritations and the disappointments which are ever putting a cup of aloes to your lip. Those wrinkles on your face are hieroglyphics which, if deciphered, would make out a thrilling story of trouble. The footstep of the rabbit is seen the next morning on the snow, and on the white hairs of the aged are the footprints showing where swift trouble alighted.

My subject, in the first place, teaches us that it is no compliment to us if we escape great trial. The fitches and the cummin on one thrashing floor might look over to the corn on another thrashing floor and say: "Look at that poor, miserable, bruised corn! We have only been a little pounded, but that has been almost destroyed." Well, the corn, if it had lips, would answer and say: "Do you know the reason you have not been as much pounded as I have? It is because you are not of so much worth as I am. If you were, you would be as severely run over." Yet there are men who suppose they are the Lord's favorites simply because their barns are full and their bank accounts is flush and there are no funerals in the house. It may be because they are fitches and cummin, while down at the end of the lane the poor widow may be the Lord's corn. You are but little pounded because you are but little worth and she bruised and ground because she is the best part of the harvest. The heft of the thrashing machine is according to the value of the grain. If you have not been much thrashed in life, perhaps there is not much to thrash! If you have not been much shaken of trouble, perhaps it is because there is going to be a very small yield. When there are plenty of blackberries, the gatherers go out with large baskets, but when the drought has almost consumed the fruit, then a quart measure will do as well. It took the venomous snake on Paul's hand, and the pounding of him with stones until he was taken up for dead, and the jamming against him of prison gates, and the Ephesian vociferation, and the ankles skinned by the painful stocks, and the foundering of the Alexandrian corn ship, and the beheading stroke of the Roman sheriff to bring Paul to his proper development. It was not because Robert Moffat and Lady Rachel Russell and Frederick Oberlin were worse than other people that they had to suffer. It was because they were better, and God wanted to make them best. By the carefulness of the thrashing you may always conclude the value of the grain.

Next, my text teaches us that God proportions our trials to what we can bear—the staff for the fitches, the rod for the cummin, the iron wheel for the corn. Sometimes people in great trouble say: "Oh, I can't bear it!" But you did bear it. God would not have sent it upon you if He had known that you could not bear it. You trembled and you swooned, but you got through. God will not take from your eyes one tear too many nor from your lungs one sigh too deep nor from your temples one throb too sharp. The perplexities of your earthly business have not in them one tangle too intricate. You sometimes feel as if our world were full of bludgeons flying haphazard. Oh, no; they are thrashing instruments that God just suits to your case. There is not a dollar of bad debts on your ledger or a disappointment about goods that you expected to go up, but that have gone down, or a swindle of your business partner or a trick on the part of those who are in the same kind of merchandise that you are, but God intended to overrule for your immortal help. "Oh," you say, "there is no need of talking that way to me. I don't like to be cheated and outraged." Neither does the corn like the corn thrasher, but after it has been thrashed and winnowed it has a great deal better opinion of winnowing mills and corn thrashers.

"Well," you say, "if I could choose my troubles, I would be willing to be troubled." Ah, my brother, then it would not be trouble. You would choose something that would not hurt, and unless it hurt it does not get sanctified. Your trial perhaps may be childlessness. You are fond of children. You say: "Why does God send children to that other household where they are unwelcome and are beaten and banged about when I would have taken them in the arms of my affection?" You say: "Any other trial but this." Your trial perhaps may be disfigured countenance or a face that is easily caricatured, and you say: "I could endure anything if only I was good looking." And your trial perhaps is a violent temper, and you have to drive it like six unbroken horses amid the gunpowder explosions of a great holiday, and ever and anon it runs away with you. Your trial is the asthma. You say: "If it were rheumatism, or neuralgia, or erysipelas, but it is this asthma, and it is such an exhausting thing to breathe." Your trouble is a husband, sharp, snappy and cross about the house and raising a small riot because a button is off. How could you know the button is off? Your trial is a wife ever in contest with the servants, and she a sloven. Though she was very careful about her appearance in your presence one, now she is careless, because, she says, her fortune is made! Your trial is a hard school lesson you cannot learn, and you have bitten your finger nails until they are a sight to behold.

Again, my subject teaches that God keeps trials on us until we let go. The former shouts "Whoa!" to his horses as soon as the grain is dropped from the stalk. The farmer comes with his fork and tosses up the straw, and he sees the straw has let go the grain and the grain is thoroughly thrashed. So God. Smiting rod and turning wheel both cease as soon as we let go. We hold on to this world, with its pleasures and riches and emoluments, and our knuckles are so firmly set that it seems as if we could hold on forever. God comes along with some thrashing trouble and beats us loose. We started under the delusion that this was a great world. We learned out of our geography that it was so many thousand miles in diameter and so many miles in circumference, and we said: "Oh, my, what a world!" Trouble came in after life, and this trouble sliced off one part of the world, and it has got to be a smaller world and in some estimations a very insignificant world, and it is depreciating all the time as a spiritual property. Ten per cent. off, 50 per cent. off, and there are those who would not give ten cents for this world—the entire world—as a soul possession.

Another thing my text teaches us is that Christian sorrow is going to have a sure terminus. My text says: "Bread corn is bruised because he will not ever be thrashing it." Blessed be God for that! Pound away, O flail! Turn on, O wheel! Your work will soon be done. "He will not ever be thrashing it!" Now, the Christian has almost as much use in the organ for the stop tremulant as he has for the trumpet, but after awhile he will put the last dirge into the portfolio forever. So much of us as is wheat will be separated from so much as is chaff, and there will be no more need of pounding. They never cry in Heaven because they have nothing to cry about. There are no tears of bereavement, for you shall have your friends all round about you. There are no tears of poverty because each one sits at the King's table and has his own chariot of salvation and free access to the wardrobe where princes get their array. No tears of sickness, for there are no pneumonias in the air and no malarial exhalations from the rolling river of life and no crutch for the lame limb and no splint for the broken arm, but the pulses throbbing with the health of the eternal God in a climate like our June before the blossoms fall or our gorgeous October before the leaves scatter.

In that land the souls will talk over the different modes of thrashing. Oh, the story of the staff that struck the fitches and the rod that beat the cummin and the iron wheel that went over the corn! Daniel will describe the lions and Jonah leviathan, and Paul the elmwood whips with which he was scourged, and Eve will tell how aromatic Eden was the day she left it, and John Rogers will tell of the smart of the flame and Elijah of the fiery team that wheeled him up the sky steeps and Christ of the numbness and the paroxysms and hemorrhages of the awful crucifixion. There they are before the throne of God—on one elevation all those who were struck of the rod, on the highest elevation and amid the highest altitudes of Heaven all those who were under the wheel. He will not ever be thrashing it.

Is there not enough salve in this text to make a plaster large enough to heal all your wounds? When a child is hurt, the mother is very apt to say to it: "Now, it will soon feel better." And that is what God says when he embosoms all our trouble in the hush of this great promise: "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." You may leave your pocket handkerchief sopping wet with tears on your death pillow, but you will go up absolutely sorrowless. They will wear black, you will wear white; cypresses for them, palms for you. You will say: "Is it possible that I am here? Is this Heaven? Am I so pure now I will never do anything wrong? Am I so well that I will never again be sick? Are these companionships so firm that they will never again be broken? Is that Mary? Is that John? Is that my loved one I put away into darkness? Can it be that these are the faces of those who lay so wan and emaciated in the back room that awful night dying? Oh, how radiant they are! Look at them! How radiant they are! Why, how unlike this place is from what I thought when I left the world below. Ministers drew pictures of this land, but how tame compared with the reality! They told me on earth that death was sunset. No, no! It is sunrise! Glorious sunrise! I see the light now purpling the hills, and the clouds flame with the coming day."

Then the gates of Heaven will be opened, and the entranced soul, with the acuteness and power of the celestial vision, will look thousands of miles down upon the bannered procession, a river of shimmering splendor, and will cry out: "Who are they?" And the angel of God, standing close by, will say: "Do you not know who they are?" "No," says the entranced soul. "I cannot guess who they are." The angel will say: "I will tell you, then, who they are. These are they who came out of great tribulation, or thrashing, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the lamb."

Would that I could administer some of these drops of celestial anodyne to these nervous and excited souls. If you would take enough of it, it would cure all your pangs. The thought that you are going to get through with this after awhile, all this sorrow and all this trouble. We shall have a great many grand days in Heaven, but I will tell you which will be the grandest day of all the million ages of Heaven. You say: "Are you sure that you can tell me?" Yes, I can. It will be the day we get there. Some say Heaven is growing more glorious. I suppose it is, but I do not care much about that. Heaven now is good enough for me.

History has no more gratulatory scene than the breaking in of the English army upon Lucknow, India. A few weeks before a massacre had occurred at Cawnpur, and 260 women and children had been put into a room. Then five professional butchers went in and slew them. Then the bodies of the slain were taken out and thrown into a well. As the English army came into Cawnpur they went into the room, and, oh, what a horrid scene! Sword strokes on the wall near the floor, showing that the poor things had crouched when they died, and they saw also the floor was ankle deep in blood. The soldiers walked on their heels across it, lest their shoes be submerged of the carnage. And on that floor of blood there were flowing locks of hair and fragments of dresses.

Out in Lucknow they had heard of the massacre, and the women were waiting for the same awful death, waiting amid anguish untold, waiting in pain and starvation, but waiting heroically, when, one day, Havelock and Outram and Norman and Sir David Baird and Peel, the heroes of the English army—huzza for them!—broke in on that horrid scene, and while yet the guns were sounding, and while cheers were issuing from the starving, dying people on the one side and from the travel worn and powder blackened soldiers on the other, right there, in front of the king's palace, there was such a scene of handshaking and embracing and bolsterous joy as would utterly confound the pen of the poet and the pencil of the painter. And no wonder, when these emaciated woman, who had suffered so heroically for Christ's sake, marched out from their incarceration one wounded English soldier got up in his fatigue and wounds and leaned against the wall and threw his cap up and shouted: "Three cheers, my boys, for the brave women!" Yes, that was an exciting scene. But a gladder and more triumphant scene will it be when you come up into Heaven from the conflicts and incarceration of this world, streaming with the wounds of battle and wan with hunger, and while the hosts of God are cheering their great hosanna you will strike hands of congratulation and eternal deliverance in the presence of the throne. On that night there will be bonfires on every hill of Heaven, and there will be illuminations in every palace, and there will be a candle in every window. Ah, no! I forget, I forget. They will have no need of the candle or of sun, for the Lord giveth them light, and they shall reign forever and ever. Hail, hail, sons and daughters of the Lord God Almighty!

Big Hole in Solid Rock.

A HAT CHAIN LETTER.

Harvard Graduate Becomes Victim of Friends and Has Headgear Enough to Start Store.

Chester W. Bliss, assistant superintendent of the Boston & Albany division of the New York Central system, a Harvard graduate and son of William Bliss, president of the Boston & Albany corporation, remarked at the last Yale-Harvard football game to several friends who objected to his headgear that they could buy him a new hat.

The suggestion was acted upon and a "chain letter" was sent out. As a result hats of every description addressed to Mr. Bliss have been pouring into the Springfield (Mass.) post office from all parts of the country. When Mr. Bliss was notified to call for the packages he refused. The hats accumulated until the holiday season, when wagons were used to dismiss the Christmas mail. Several loads of hats were then sent to Mr. Bliss' house, only to be returned.

Every incoming mail brought its quota of hats until the post office storage room was exhausted. The clerks say that over 1,000 hats have arrived and that they are still coming. They vary in style from the silk hat to the Tyrolean, sombrero, and come from Chicago, St. Louis and other western cities as well as from the east. Mr. Bliss refuses to see the joke or receive the hats, which may be sold at auction.

WILL USE THE ANCIENT MACE.

Curious Scepter Which Will Be Employed in the Coronation of King Edward.

Since the lord mayor laid claim to the privilege of carrying the crystal and silver scepter or mace at the coronation there has been a great deal of interest displayed by Londoners to know the significance of this scepter and what it is like, for it is no exaggeration to say that not one of 100,000 was aware that this curious and ancient relic was still in existence.

It is indeed a curious thing. The staff is about 18 inches long and composed of crstal, cut and channeled with alternate bands of gold and silver. The divisions are decorated at intervals with eight strings of large seed pearls. Other pearls are arranged in groups.

There is no record of the period when this curious relic was made. It is evident that it has been altered from time to time, but in its present shape it has been assigned to the early part of the fifteenth century. This emblem of the lord mayor's authority has not been seen at any state function since the coronation of George IV. It will likely, therefore, be one of the objects of most curious interest next June.

ROMAN RELICS IN GERMANY.

The new work on the canal at Treves brings to light some relic almost daily of Roman antiquity. A short time ago a magnificent tesselated pavement was discovered at a depth of four meters. The portion already laid bare shows two beautiful medallions, the colors of which are still vivid. The first represents a woman holding a vase in one hand and a spear in the other. The second medallion shows two lions in the act of springing. The pavement, which is in a good state of preservation, will be removed to the Provincial museum. The Imperial German Archaeological institute is about to form a special committee for promoting archaeological researches in those parts of the German empire which were under the Roman dominion.

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Pe-ru-na is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy---I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."

DAN. A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."—Dan. A. Grosvenor.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systemic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The Modern Woman.

[From the Grange Bulletin.]

If there is a marked difference between the "modern woman" and her grandmother, the modern man is largely responsible for the difference. Do not conclude that I condemn him for this; the modern woman, as I know her, is in some ways an improvement on her grandmother. There is no lack of veneration in this expression. The housewife of a century ago, whose willing hands and pure heart guided her household in "paths of peace" truly deserved that "her children arise up and call her blessed." But "all the rivers run into the sea, and the sea is not full."

God-fearing were the wives and daughters of the Puritans of Plymouth Rock. The brave Huguenot women, who, with the Scotch-Irish good-wives and lassies left their noble impress upon the south-eastern shores of Columbia, followed the dictates of their consciences, as directed by Holy Writ; but, none the less, does the woman of today deserve that "the heart of her husband safely trust in her."

There may be widely differing types of modern women, but I speak of the one I know, and the one which I believe largely predominates.

The model woman, portrayed to King Lemuel by his wise mother sought wool and flax and worked willingly with her hands; she considered a field and bought it; she laid her hands to the spindle and the distaff.

The modern woman, too, seeks wool and flax and worketh willingly with her hands; she considers a field and buyeth it; if she does not lay her hands to the spindle and the distaff, it is because she can find them no more, and so, seizes the chisel of the sculptor, the brush of the artist, or the knife of the surgeon, which, wielded by her tender but firm hand, brings life and ease to agonized humanity.

The woman of Proverbs 31-22, made herself coverings of tapestry, and her clothing was silk and purple. We modern women can only view such richness of apparel from afar—we can not afford it. The next verse of this famous chapter tells how she could afford it, and why many of us can not. Study this verse, ye modern men, and repent!

"She maketh fine linen and selleth it and delivereth girdles unto the merchants." Thus reads the twenty-fourth verse, which came to my mind with force, as I recently examined some exquisite needle work done upon fine linen, and "delivered to a merchant" in order to supply food and fuel for some little children, whose mother is a "modern woman" left to care for these tender plants, while the modern father frequents the saloons of his city. While my heart was full of pity for the mother, these words comforted me: "Strength and honor are her clothing and she shall rejoice in time to come."

I believe a thoughtful investigation will convince us that the "modern woman" is somewhat a "model woman," and, while we find now, as in all ages, pitiable imitations, degraded specimens and the would-be mannish woman, yet, I maintain that the woman of today who "walks unspotted from the world;" the thousands of daughters and sisters, wives and mothers, who martyr-like, immolate self, and go with burdens of great weight—these are women whose crowns will sparkle with jewels of real worth.

There is a certain class of men who assume a contemptuous expression when discussing the modern woman, ever implying that they prefer the vine like helplessness of poetry, to the sturdy helpfulness of the prose of life. This is not true. If it were, these men would endeavor to protect the women of their own households at least from the stern necessity which has produced the self-dependent woman. The attitude assumed is merely a weak attempt to defend themselves. It seems a pity to talk about these men behind their backs for not one of this kind is in the Grange, and I regret that my weighty (?) opinion is thus lost. Perhaps, one of the good brothers will meet such a one, and tell him how we modern women denounce him. Would his shell of satisfied selfishness be pierced, do you think?

Some of the types of modern womanhood are not far from us. The girl who seeks and faithfully fills a position of physical, mental and almost moral hardships to sustain parents in enfeebled age; she who braves the winter's storms to reach the remote country school house, where she earns the food and raiment for men of her family who never give her anything—except good advice; she, who midst death's alarms, bathes the wounds of our soldiers and whispers the peace of Jesus' love to the writhing soul; she who goes down into the slums of the great cities and extends a saving hand, alike to the sin-steeped soul and the innocent child; these are "modern women."

What think ye of them?

Helen Gould, who has, with her millions, surely blessed of God, provided shelter, food and modern women as nurses for wounded and disease stricken soldiers, homes and education for newsboys and the general poor of her city, is another type that shines like a brilliant gem mid the dross of the nineteeth century.

The Red Cross Nurses are modern woman, and so are the missionaries who carry "tidings of great joy" to their sisters in the dark places of the earth.

There is much ado about the clubwomen who neglects the highest privileges and duties of wifehood and motherhood. Of her I know nothing, and am inclined to think her a myth. Of the women who waste the precious hours of life over the soul-blasting and mind-withering whist or euchre table I have no time to discuss, except to wonder—why?

The club woman who is such for the improvement of talents God-given, and the betterment of humanity, is a type of the modern woman greatly to be praised.

If some modern women want to exercise the right of suffrage, is it not merely an objection to "taxation without representation?"

We pay our taxes with less clamor than most men; then why not have a voice in the matter?

Two things the modern American woman is rising against, "Taxation without representation," and "Annexation without due benefits." Some of the already annexed are asking for a fair share of profits, and are slowly but surely getting what they justly claim. If the twain are one, why not enjoy equal privileges?

"My lord" has his club, why may not "my lady" have hers?

A solution to that question, among farmers and their wives, is the Grange—a club for both, where father, mother, son and daughter, meet for social and mental enjoyment and benefits untold.

I conclude that woman in all ages has not differed greatly; that my modern woman is pretty well fashioned after the model woman of the Bible; that the modern man likes her as she is, and finds her a helpful and rather "free and equal companion;" that the Grangé is a good place to develop a noble womanhood, and that we, as modern women, should keep our lamps filled with the beautiful oil of Christ's righteousness, and by walking circumspectly, "clad in the whole armor of God," lead the modern man to a higher standard of purity of life.

May we as men and women of these wondrous latter days keep the great Pauline injunction well in view: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true; whatsoever things are honest; whatsoever things are just; whatsoever things are pure; whatsoever things are lovely; whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, if there be any praise, think on these things."

NANNIE D. BRISTOW.

Young men cannot estimate too highly the advice of parents and friends. It affords them the benefit of experience and is given them from sincere solicitude for their welfare. It should be remembered, and weighed, and acted upon. But, after all, every man has his own individual existence; he has his own life to live, for which he alone is accountable. He should sit down and mediate by himself, and make up his mind as to the course which he wishes to pursue in the world. Having done this, he should enter upon the execution of his plans with a determination to accomplish what he undertakes, without reference to the opinions of others. No man is of any real account in the world unless he is something in and of himself.

Cure For Croup.

Wring flannel cloths out of hot water and apply them to the throat changing them frequently. Make a tent over the crib by means of sheets over a screen or umbrella; then place a small teakettle over an alcohol lamp near the crib and let the child inhale the moist vapor which may be conducted inside the tent, care being taken that the child does not come close enough to the hot steam to get burnt. If the attack is severe you may give ten drops of syrup of ipecac every fifteen minutes until vomiting results. It would be best to keep the patient indoors for a day or two after the attack.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A pig neglected and stunted at the start is like the hacked and bark-peeled tree when it is young. Neither ever overcome the harm done them when starting growth.

Quite a force of hands on last Monday jumped on the Odd Fellows' building, and have given a good showing of work done for the past week. Nothing strikes more dread in the hearts of people than the fact that a well defined case of hydrophobia has developed in the near vicinity of their homes. Saturday some children, were playing with the shepherd dog, belonging to Mrs. Rice, the widow of the late Louis Rice, when of a sudden it showed strange symptoms of rabies, turning around and round and snapping, as the young ones thought, at its tail and especially at anything it chanced to touch. At length it dawned upon some of the children that the dog was mad. One lively chap, Charley Venable, had his wrist seized by the animal and the skin was bruised enough to show that it was broken. They finally got some weapon and shot at the dog two or mabe three times. Kirtley Roberts and G. W. Hawkins then joined the crowd and Kirtley shot the dog five times before the animal was killed. Mr. Hawkins, who has had experience with rabid animals was satisfied this one was mad.

THE FINAL VICTORY.

Appropriate Discourse of Dr. Talmage for Easter.

About 1,870 Easter mornings have wakened the earth. In France for three centuries the almanacs made the year begin at Easter until Charles IX. made the year begin at January 1. In the Tower of London there is a royal pay roll of Edward I. on which there is an entry of 18 pence for 400 colored and pictured eggs, with which the people sported. In Russia slaves were fed and alms were distributed on Easter. Ecclesiastical councils met in Pontus, in Gaul, in Rome, in Achaia, to decide the particular day and after a controversy more animated than gracious, decided it, and now through all Christendom in some way the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21 is filled with Easter rejoicing.

The royal court of the Sabbaths is made up of 52. Fifty-one are princes in the royal household, but Easter is queen. She wears richer diadem, she sways a more jeweled scepter, and in her smile nations are irradiated. How welcome she is when, after a harsh winter and late spring, she seems to step out of the snowbank rather than the conservatory, to come out of the north instead of the south, out of the arctic rather than the tropics, dismounting from the icy equinox, but welcome this queenly day, holding high in her right hand the wrenched off bolt of Christ's sepulcher and holding high in her left hand the key to all the cemeteries in Christendom.

My text is an ejaculation. It is spun out of hallelujahs. Paul wrote right on in his argument about the resurrection and observed all the laws of logic, but when he came to write the words of the text his fingers and his pen and the parchment on which he wrote took fire, and he cried out: "Death is swallowed up in victory!" It is an exciting thing to see an army routed and flying. They run each other down. They scatter everything valuable on the track. Unwieldy artillery; hoof of horse on breast of wounded and dying man. You have read of the French falling back from Sedan, of Napoleon's track of 90,000 corpses in the snow-banks of Russia, of the retreat of our armies from Manassas or of the five kings tumbling over the rocks of Beth horan with their armies while the hailstorms of heaven and the swords of Joshua's hosts struck them with their fury.

In my text is a worse discomfiture. It seems that a black giant proposed to conquer the earth. He gathered for his host all of the aches and pains and malarias and cancers and distempers and epidemics of the ages. He marched them down, drilling them in the northwest wind and amid the slush of tempests. He threw up barricades of grave mound. He pitched tent of charnal house. Some of the troops marched with slow tread commanded by consumptions, some in double quick commanded by pneumonias. Some he took by long besiegement of evil habit and some by one stroke of the battleax of casualty. With bony hand he pounded at the door of hospitals and sickrooms and won all the victories in all the great battlefields of all the five continents. Forward, march! ordered the conqueror of conquerors, and all the generals and commanders in chief and all presidents and kings and sultans and czars dropped under the feet of his war charger. But one Christmas night his antagonist was born.

As most of the plagues and sicknesses and de-potisms come out of the east, it was appropriate that the new conquerer should come out of the same quarter. Power is given Him to awaken all the fallen of all the centuries and of all lands and marshal them against the black giant. Fields have already been won, but the last day of the world's existence will see the decisive battle. When Christ shall lead forth His two Brigades, the brigade of the risen dead and the brigade of the celestial host, the black giant will fall back and the brigade from the risen sepulcher will take him from beneath, and the brigade of descending immortals will take him from above, and death shall be swallowed up in victory.

The old braggart that threatened the conquest and demolition of the planet has lost his throne, has lost his scepter, has lost his palace, has lost his prestige, and the one word written over all the gates of mausoleum and catacomb and necropolis, on cenotaph and sarcophagus, on the lonely khan of the arctic explorer and on the catafalque of great cathedral, written in capitals of azalia and calla lily, written in musical cadence, written in doxology of great assemblabes, written on the sculptured door of the family vault, is "Victory." Coronal word, embannered word, apocalyptic word, chief word of triumphal arch under which conquerors return.

Victory! Word shouted at Culloden and Balaklava and Blenheim, at Megiddo and Soiferino, at Marathon, where the Atheuians drove back the Medes; at Poitiers, where Charles Martel broke the ranks of the Saracens; at Salamis, where Themistocles in the great sea fight confounded the Persians, and at the door of the eastern cavern of chiseled rock, where Christ came out through a recess and throttled the king of terrors and put him back in the niche from which the celestial Conqueror had just emerged. Aha! When the jaws of the eastern mausoleum took down the black giant, "death was swallowed up in victory." I proclaim the abolition of death.

The old antagonist is driven back into mythology with all the lore about Stygian ferry and Charon with oar and boat. Melrose abbey and Kenilworth castle are no more in ruins than in the sepulcher. We shall have no more to do with death than we have with the cloakroom at a governor's or president's levee. We stop at such cloakroom and leave in charge of a servant our overcoat, our overshoes, our outward apparel, that we may not be impeded in the brilliant round of the drawing room. Well, my friends, when we get out of this world we are going to a King's banquet and to a reception of monarchs, and at the door of the tomb we leave the cloak of flesh and the wrappings with which we meet the storms of this world. At the close of an earthly reception, under the brush and broom of the porter, the coat or hat may be handed to us better than when we resigned it, and the cloak of humanity will finally be returned to us improved and brightened and purified and glorified.

You and I do not want our bodies returned as they are now. We want to get rid of all their weaknesses and all their susceptibilities to fatigue and all their slowness of locomotion. We want them put through a chemistry of soil and heat and cold and changing seasons, out of which God will reconstruct them as much better than they are now as the body of the rosiest and healthiest child that bounds over the lawn in Central park is better than the sickest patient in Bellevue hospital. But as to our soul we will cross right over, not waiting for obsequies, independent of obituary, into a state in every way better, with wider room and velocities beyond computation, the dullest of us into companionship with the very best spirits in their very best mood, in the very parlor of the universe, the four walls burnished and paneled and pictured and glorified with all the splendors that the infinite God in all the ages has been able to invent. Victory!

This view, of course, makes it of but little importance whether we are cremated or sepultured. If the latter is dust to dust, the former is ashes to ashes. If any prefer incineration let them have it without cavil or protest. The world may become so civilized that cremation may be universally adopted by law as well as by general consent. Many of the mightiest and best spirits have gone through this process. Thousands and tens of thousands of God's children have been cremated. P. P. Bliss and wife, the evangelistic singers cremated by accident at Ashtabula bridge; John Rodgers, cremated by persecution; Latimer and Ridley, cremated at Oxford; Polhinus and Blandina, a slave, and Alexander, a physician, and their comrades cremated at the order of Marcus Aurelius; at least a hundred thousand of Christ's disciples cremated, and there can be no doubt about the resurrection of their bodies. If the world lasts as much longer as it has thus far, there perhaps may be no room for the necrage set apart for resting places, but there is plenty of room yet, and the race need not pass that bridge of fire until it comes to it. The most of us prefer the old way. But whether out of natural disintegration or cremation we shall get that luminous, buoyant, gladsome, transcendent, magnificent, inexplicable structure called the resurrection body. You will have it; I will have it.

I say to you to-day, as Paul said to Agrippa: "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?" That far up cloud, higher than the hawk flies, higher than the eagle flies, what is it made of? Drops of water from a river, ether drops from a lake, still other drops from a stagnant pool, but now embodied in a cloud and kindled by the sun. If God can make such a lustrous cloud out of water drops, many of them soiled and impure and fetched from miles away, can he not transport the fragments of a human body from earth and out of them build a radiant body? Cannot God, who owns all the material out of which bone, muscle and flesh are made, set them up again if they have fallen? If a manufacturer of telescopes drops a telescope on the floor and it breaks, can he not mend it again so you can see through it? And if God drops the human eye into the dust, the eye which he originally fashioned, can he not restore it? Aye, if the manufacturer of the telescope, by the use of a new glass and a change of material, can make a better instrument than that which was originally constructed and actually improve it, do you not think the Lord Jesus Christ, human eye may improve its sight and multiply the natural eye by the magnificent additional forces of the resurrection eye?

"Why should it be thought with you an incredible thing that God should raise the dead?" Things all around us suggest it. Out of what grew all these flowers? Out of the mold and the earth. Resurrected! Resurrected! The radiant butterfly—where did it come from? The lothsome caterpillar. That all across that smites the tempest with its wings — where did it come from? A senseless shell. Near Bergerac, France, in a Celtic tomb under a block, were found flower seeds that had been buried 2,000 years. The explorer took the flower seed and planted it, and it came up. It bloomed in blue-bell and heliotrope. Two thousand years ago buried, yet resurrected! A traveler says he found in a mummy pit in Egypt a garden pea that had been buried there 3,000 years ago. He brought them out and on the 4th of June, 1844, he planted them, and in 30 days they sprang up. Buried 3,000 years, yet resurrected! "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?"

Where did all this silk come from:—the silk that adorns your persons and your homes? In the hollow of a staff a Greek missionary brought from China to Europe the progenitors of those worms that now supply the silk markets of many nations. The pageantry of bannered host and the luxurious articles of commercial emporium blazing out from the silkworms. And who shall be surprised if out of this insignificant earthly body, this insignificant earthly life, our bodies unfold into something worthy of the coming eternities? Put silver into diluted niter, and it dissolves. Is the silver gone forever? No. Put in some pieces of copper, and the silver reappears. If one force dissolves, another force organizes.

"Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?" The insects flew and the worms crawled last autumn feebler and feebler and then stopped. They have taken no food. They want none. They lie dormant and insensible, but soon the south wind will blow the resurrection trumpet, and the air and the earth will be full of them. Do you not think that God can do as much for our bodies as He does for the wasps and the spiders and the snails? This morning at half-past four o'clock there was a resurrection. Out of the night the day. In a few weeks there will be a resurrection in all our gardens. Why not some day a resurrection amid the graves?

I called at my friend's house one summer day. I found the yard all piled up with the rubbish of carpenter's and mason's work. The door was off. The plumbers had torn up the floor. The roof was being lifted in cupola. All the pictures were gone, and the paper hangers were doing their work. All the modern improvements were being introduced into that dwelling. There was not a room in the house fit to live in at that time, although a month before when I visited that house everything was so beautiful I could not have suggested an improvement. My friend had gone with his family to the Holy Land, expecting to come back at the end of six months, when the building was to be done. And, oh, what was his joy when at the end of six months he returned and found the old house had been enlarged and improved and glorified. That is your body. It looks well now—all the rooms filled with health, and we could hardly make a suggestion. But after awhile the soul may become so enfeebled that cremation may be universally adopted by law as well as by general consent. Many of the mightiest and best spirits have gone through this process. Thousands and tens of thousands of God's children have been cremated. P. P. Bliss and wife, the evangelistic singers cremated by accident at Ashtabula bridge; John Rodgers, cremated by persecution; Latimer and Ridley, cremated at Oxford; Polhinus and Blandina, a slave, and Alexander, a physician, and their comrades cremated at the order of Marcus Aurelius; at least a hundred thousand of Christ's disciples cremated, and there can be no doubt about the resurrection of their bodies. If the world lasts as much longer as it has thus far, there perhaps may be no room for the necrage set apart for resting places, but there is plenty of room yet, and the race need not pass that bridge of fire until it comes to it. The most of us prefer the old way. But whether out of natural disintegration or cremation we shall get that luminous, buoyant, gladsome, transcendent, magnificent, inexplicable structure called the resurrection body. You will have it; I will have it.

And so when the world's last Easter morning shall come the soul will succeed, crying: "Where is my body?" And the body will ascend, saying: "Where is my soul?" And the Lord of the resurrection will bring them together, and it will be a perfect soul in a perfect body, introduced by a perfect Christ into a perfect Heaven. Victory! Do you wonder that on Easter day we swathe our churches with garlands? Do you wonder as we celebrate with the most consecrated voice of song that we can invite, with the deftest fingers on organ and cornet and with doxologies that leaf these arches with the billows of sound as the sea smites the basalt at Giant's Causeway? Only the bad disapprove of the resurrection. A cruel heathen warrior heard Mr. Moffatt, the missionary, preach about the resurrection, and he said to the missionary: "Will my father rise in the last day?" "Yes," said the missionary. "Will all the dead in battle rise?" said the cruel chieftain. "Yes," said the missionary. Then said the warrior: "Let me hear no more about the resurrection. I cannot be no resurrection; there shall be no resurrection. I have slain thousands in battle. Will they rise?" No, there will be more to rise on that day than those whose other kin are ever keen regretted of will want to see. But for all sailors who allowed Christ to be their pardon and their life and their resurrection it will be a day of victory.

The thunder of the last day will be the salvo that greets you into harbor. The lightnings will be only the torches of triumphal procession marching down to escort you home. The burning worlds flashing through immensity will be the rockets celebrating your coronation on thrones where you will reign forever and forever. Where is death? What have we to do with death? As years reunited body and soul swings off from this planet on that last day you will see deep gashes all up and down the hills, deep gashes all through the valleys, and they will be the emptied graves, they will be the abandoned sepulchers, with rough ground tossed on each side of them, and slabs will lie uneven on the rent hillock, and there will be fallen monuments and cenotaphs, and then for the first time you will appreciate the full exhilaration of the text: "Death is swallowed up in victory."

Half the Lord of earth and heaven!
Praise to thee by both be given.
Thee we greet triumphant now;
Hail the resurrection thou!

POST CHECK MONEY.

A New Suggestion for the Easy and Safe Transmission of Currency Through the Mails.

A clear-headed business man has put his practical mind to work and evolved a sensible plan for postal currency which has been embodied in the McMillan-Gardner bill now before congress. It seems to be altogether the best suggestion yet put forth for securing a safe and convenient method of sending money through the mail.

In brief, it is proposed to re-issue all one, two and five-dollar treasury notes, coin or silver certificates now in circulation and have the faces of the new bills provided with blank lines. This would be the ordinary money of the day. When one wishes to send money by mail, say $2.00, he takes such a bill from his pocketbook, writes on its face the name of the person or firm to whom it is to go, the city and state, affixes and cancels a two-cent stamp in the square indicated (one-cent stamp for fractional bills), and signs his name on the back. The bill which previously was negotiable money now becomes a personal check on the United States government for $2.00, as safe for transmission as any bank check. It is enclosed in a letter to the person or firm desired and is collected by the receiver upon identification at the post office named, a new bill being given for the old one.

The scheme would be of great benefit to farmers, business men and publishers; ladies would appreciate its convenience. Business houses now receive large quantities of postage stamps through the mails. One Chicago publisher reports the receipt of $350,000 in stamps in one year, nearly $1,000 per day. Others have this same experience on a smaller scale. With post check money this nuisance is avoided as well as the tiresome and time-consuming trip to the post office to secure a money order; a convenient, safe and instantly available form of money is supplied with which the public can safely transact mail business which now aggregated in small sums upwards of two billion dollars a year. The small fee charged would probably aggregate a larger revenue to the government than is received from the present money order system. The continual retirement and re-issuing of these bills would insure clean money and keep the circulation at par.

The financial policy of the government is not disturbed, the only change being in the form of printing upon the bills. The inventor offers the government his patent free of cost upon adoption. The acceptance of this system would be hastened if all who desire it would write their senators and representatives in Washington urging its adoption.

A CASE OF PROVIDENCE.

Jones Had Everything Fixed All Right So There Was No Blame Coming to Him.

"I have heard more or less about the ways of Providence," said a Detroiter who was in a reflective mood the other day, relates the Free Press, "and I can cite what looks like a fair instance of it. I was in the western part of the state this last winter, and business took me out to a farm where a portable steam engine was sawing wood. Things were running at high pressure, with half a dozen men at work, and I sat down on a log with my man to talk business. An engineer might have noticed by the hiss of the steam that the water in the boiler of the engine was low, but of course I had no suspicions. I had been talking for perhaps ten minutes when a big rat ran out from under a pile of wood and made for the barn. Some one raised a yell, and we all jumped up and grabbed clubs and started after the rodent. The snow was deep enough to bother him, and we overtook him about 200 feet from the engine. We were in a circle and whacking at him when there was a roar like a cannon and every man was knocked flat. The boiler had burst, and if we had kept our places not a man of us would have escaped death. As it was, no one was even hurt. A justice of the peace came along just then and said he thought he'd better hold an inquest.

"'As no one has been killed, what's the use of an inquest?' was asked.

"'To fix the blame for the burst-up,' he replied.

"'But how are you going to do it?'

"'You'll see. Now, then, Jones, you was running the engine?'

"'I was.'

"'You know all about engines and boilers?'

"'I do.'

"'Steam wasn't too high nor water too low in this case?'

"'No, sir.'

"'Everything just as it should be when she took a bust, and you can swear to it?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'All right. When a biler busts either Jones or Providence is to blame for it, and as Jones has cleared himself there's nothing to do but to lay it on to Providence and be durned glad it was no worse!'"

Dummy Weapons for Officers.

The new war office regulations will lay down that an officer is still to carry a revolver in his belt, but is also to be equipped with a carbine. Some wiseacre has induced the authorities to add that no carbine ammunition whatever is to be allowed. The carbine is to be merely a dummy weapon, the idea being to make the officer as little distinguishable from his men as possible, but at the same time to prevent him from yielding to the temptation to shoot when he should be looking after his men.—Allahabad Pioneer.

PROGRESS OF PROTECTION.

What the Party of Tariff for Monopoly Has Accomplished for Its Masters.

At the fourth republican caucus, or conference, as some of the brethren prefer to call it, as to what, if anything, shall be done for the relief of Cuba those who are opposed to doing anything and who came near carrying the day submitted their formal protest against doing anything, says the Chicago Chronicle.

They declared that they were in favor of adhering to so much of the republican national platform of 1896 as condemned the administration then in power for alleged breach of faith with the sugar producers of the country and demanded such protection of the sugar industry as would lead to the production in the country of all the sugar consumed therein.

They also declared that they were in favor of adhering to the declaration of the republican platform of 1900 approving the "associated" policy of reciprocity "so directed as to open our markets on favorable terms for what we do not ourselves produce in return for free foreign markets."

These statesmen did not refer at all to the declaration of their platform of 1896 in which it was declared that "the repeal of the reciprocity arrangements negotiated by the last republican administration was a national calamity, and we demand their renewal and extension on such terms as will equalize our trade with other nations, remove the restrictions which now obstruct the sale of American products in the ports of other countries and secure enlarged markets for the products of our farms, forests and factories. Protection and reciprocity are twin measures of republican policy and go hand in hand."

That was republican reciprocity doctrine in 1896. All that is necessary by way of explanation is the statement that the reciprocity arrangements whose abrogation was deplored as a national calamity included one by which Cuban products were admitted into our markets at reduced rates.

By 1900 the party of tariff for monopoly only had made progress. It had embodied certain reciprocity provisions in the tariff law of 1897 and the McKinley administration had negotiated a number of treaties in accordance therewith. But in the meantime the monopolists who owned the party decreed that the reciprocity plank of 1896 must be repudiated and that no treaties negotiated in accordance therewith must be ratified.

Accordingly all the treaties were hung up in the senate committee on foreign relations and there they hung still. It is understood that they are now to be taken down, but only in order that they may be killed in such wise as not to give unnecessary offense to the countries which have entered into futile negotiations with a republican administration on the assurance given by a republican congress that they would be dealt with in good faith.

Now the statesmen who are bent on doing the bidding of their tariff-fattened masters regardless of all considerations of good faith or even political expediency, tell their own party associates that they are unwilling to do anything for the relief of Cuba because any reduction whatever in the duty on sugar would "constitute, in essence, an abandonment of the protective principle."

That is to say, nothing less than the Dingley duties would be consistent with the protective principle. These statesmen who represent monopoly say: "A reduction of one-fifth by the house of representatives means that elsewhere, both in and out of congress, the extent of that reduction shall be measured by the varying views of those who consider it. And if that republican majority is once constrained to such a policy what license have we to believe that the citadel of protection will not be further assaulted in the house of its friends?"

So these gentlemen announce to the country that the Dingley rates are the minimum and that no matter how well able to stand alone any industry may become any proposal to lower by the smallest fraction the monstrous Dingley duties by which it is sheltered in practicing extortion upon the American people will be construed as an assault on the sacred citadel of protection, and woe to him who dare to lead the assault!

These servants of the tariff bosses were beaten by only 13 majority. And they would have won by much more than that majority if the leaders of the house had followed their own inclinations instead of yielding to the earnest persuasions of the president. Even the president is understood to be with them so far as the economic question is concerned. The republican party has evidently become the most obedient servant of the haughty masters who have been created by protection.

——It must be admitted that when Speaker Henderson flops—and his record in this line is something remarkable—he comes down with both feet. About a fortnight ago he was, if not openly and avowedly for beet sugar first, last and all the time, leaning strongly toward beets as the basis of harmony. Later he was friendly to Cuba with all the zeal of the convert who has come to a definite conclusion as to which side of the bread is buttered. He was for harmony without beets as ingredients. In effect he warned the extremists among the opponents to Cuban relief that if they persisted they had better make an assignment to the democratic party and be done with it.—Boston Transcript.

THE SUBSIDY BILL INIQUITY.

Nothing But a Glaring Attempt by Monopolists at Class Legislation.

Senator Foraker made the somewhat remarkable statement the other day that he was opposed to the subsidizing of special interests, but would make an exception in the case of the ship subsidy bill because he thought it would result in the accomplishment of the purposes indicated in the title of the measure. In other words, says the Detroit Free Press, he cooked upon the principle as wrong and pernicious, but fell back upon the dangerous doctrine that the end justifies the means. Senators Allison, of Iowa, and Spooner, of Wisconsin, cannot thus easily reconcile themselves to the demands of party politics. They are not satisfied with the bill, and we fail to comprehend how any number of amendments can attract them to its support. It is based upon a false hypothesis, and one that antagonizes the very essence of our institutions. The laws of a number of states against trusts were recently nullified because they discriminated in favor of certain interests, and were thus voidable because of class legislation.

It has been shown beyond controversy that the bill under consideration is a glaring attempt at class legislation. As pointed out in the able address of Senator Clay, of Missouri, there are tens of thousands engaged in meritorious industries, farmers and manufacturers, who are losing money or barely making ends meet. It is as incumbent upon the government to give them means to promote their undertakings as to subsidize the shipping interests that it is proposed to benefit. As for that it would be easier to defend a wholesale distribution of money, taxed from the people, to assist languishing domestic interests than to vindicate under false pretenses a gift of undetermined millions to a monopoly of maritime operators.

It is unwarranted to assume from the number of questions being asked and amendments offered by them that the two leading senators will eventually frame a subsidy bill that they will support. Their objection is fundamental and opposed to the subsidy upon any terms or conditions. They questioned Frye, one of the authors of the bill, and forced admissions of lack of information on his part until he grew peevish and was relieved of torture as a matter of senatorial courtesy. They put Senator Hanna where he had to side step and spar for time. Senator Depew had to apologize for mistaken statements under misinformation. The very fact that those who prepared the bill and are backing it are not informed as to the material evidence hearing upon it, and give nothing but speculative estimates as to the outcome; that they propose to leave out in the cold the smaller vessels that are doing the bulk of the trade upon our Atlantic seaboard, suggests a selfish impetus behind the movement.

RECIPROCITY OF TWO KINDS.

The Kind That the Republicans Favor Is That Which Is Approved by the Sugar Trust.

From the standpoint of pure theory, reciprocity is a fine thing. If, while getting rid of our own absurd tariff we can induce other nations to abolish their equally absurd tariffs, it is obvious that we shall confer a great boon upon them as well as ourselves. Reciprocity that reciprocates is "more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold." It is the best possible way to free trade. But unfortunately that kind of reciprocity doesn't exist except as an ideal in the mind of the theorist. The kind of reciprocity that has any chance of passing a republican senate is the kind approved by the sugar trust and other monopolistic interests. This kind of reciprocity is truly "the handmaid of protection." It makes it possible for the protected monopoly to get a portion at least of its raw material cheaper, while holding the price for its manufactured product at the same level. Consumers at home will not receive any benefit. Incidentally our exporters will receive some gain from more extended markets, but the field of this trust regulated reciprocity will be so narrow that the increase in exports will not be large. The tariff is bound to be a leading issue in the next political campaign. The republicans will no doubt lug in reciprocity and attempt to show what an excellent thing it is. Let the people beware of the reciprocity that has for its object the perpetuation and strengthening of the protective system. On the other hand, the democratic party can strengthen the cause of free trade by advocating reciprocity by legislative enactment for the benefit, not of the few, but of the whole people.—ROYAL MEEKER.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——The west is not fanatical with regard to the tariff. It demands adaptation to the new conditions. It wants markets and outlets, and realizes that these can be secured only by a policy of "give and take."—Chicago Evening Post (Rep.).

——Foraker is not enthusiastic in his support of the shipping subsidy bill. But after all, that is not especially surprising. If Senator Hanna can just secure his associate's support, no doubt he will himself supply all the enthusiasm the occasion demands.—St. Paul Globe.

——In effect the sugar trust has said to the legislators: Do what you want to gain your own political purposes; increase or decrease tariff rates on Cuban sugars, but do not interfere with the tariff so far as it affects our monopoly.—Philadelphia North American.

TYPICAL APPLE BOX.

Western Fruit Growers Use It to the Exclusion of Clumsy and Heavy Barrels.

A typical box is shown here which represents the thought and experience of apple shippers on the Pacific coast. Every part of it appears to have been carefully studied, and it certainly answers the purpose well. The inside dimensions are 20½x11x9⅝ inches. This makes a cubic content of a trifle over an even bushel, and about six quarts less than a heaping bushel. The ends are three-fourths-inch material, and all four sides are one-fourth-inch hard pine. There is no partition, as in the orange box. The apples may be put in tightly, and the thin springy sides hold them without bruising. The box is put together with 32 rough wire nails 1¾ inches long. The chief advantages of this package are: Convenient size; strength, given by the solid ends and secure nailing; and springy sides, permitting the apples to be crowded in slightly, and holding them firmly without bruising. Eastern fruit-growers' associations are becoming numerous and strong. This undeveloped city trade may be theirs if they will establish uniform, convenient packages, put on labels that shall become guarantees of quality, and work systematically to get the goods introduced. This trade will never be worked up by those who take a back seat and merely think about it. Get the fruit to the consumer's door, let him see what it is, and he will be glad to invite the boxed apple in and hand over his cash for it, for even at these extreme prices fancy boxed apples are no higher proportionately than many other food stuffs which he buys.—Rural New Yorker.

NEAT BOXES FOR APPLES.

SCIENCE OF SPRAYING.

Every Farmer Should Study Its Rudiments Before Applying Poisonous Substances.

Injury to plants by insects falls under two heads; first, where the plant itself has been eaten; second, where the juice has been sucked out, leaving the tissues. Insects causing injury of the first class are called biting or chewing insects, such as grasshoppers, caterpillars, cabbage and army worms. They have well-developed jaws fitted for cutting and chewing plants. They can be destroyed by using poisons such as the arsenics. The insects of the second type have long lancelike beaks which they insert into the tissues of the plant, sucking out the juice, causing the plant to collapse, wilt and die. This class includes all the scald insects, plant lice, squash bug, harlequin and terrapin bug, etc. The external application of arsenical poisons to plants would have little or no effect upon this group, as the poison does not enter the cells of the plants. Materials are used to act externally on the bodies of such insects either as a caustic or to smother or stifle them by closing their breathing organs. Insects do not breathe through their mouths, as do higher animals, but through small openings on either side of their beaks called spiracles. By spraying anything of a caustic or oily nature over the body, these spiracles are closed and the creature is destroyed.

These remarks apply especially to insects which feed upon the exterior of plants or pass the greater portion of their lives in an exposed condition where they can be readily reached by one of the methods mentioned. Insects of both classes at times feed upon plants above the ground, for a short while, and pass a portion of their lives upon the roots below the surface. The white grub or root lice are common examples, the former being a biting insect, while the latter is one of the sucking group. Still other insects live in straw, grain, seeds and manufactured products of the mill where neither arsenics nor irritants can be used. In such places the fumes of various gases are employed for their destruction. Farmers should carefully consider the nature of the insect before applying any remedy.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Best Way to Feed Wheat.

The best form in which to feed wheat is to roll or grind it fine to a coarse meal. It may then be fed alone or mixed with corn meal or ground oats. When ground fine it is pasty and adheres to the teeth, gums and cheeks, so that it is not so readily masticated or eaten. In the form of a coarse meal it is relished by all animals. It is in a condition to be attacked by the digestive processes whether thoroughly masticated or not, and in most cases it gives the best results.

THE CRANBERRY CROP.

It Is Far More Important Than the Ordinary Observer Would Have Supposed.

The first cranberries of the season come from Cape Cod. It was here that cranberry cultivation was inaugurated at the beginning of the last century. Cape Cod furnishes a large proportion of the best berries and about two-thirds of the total crop of New England. Next in volume of productiveness comes New Jersey. Part of the state's crop is made up of wild cranberries. These are sometimes picked before they have begun to color, then spread on the ground and exposed to the sun for six weeks. It is claimed that in this way a deeper color is secured.

Following New Jersey comes New York berries, most of which are grown on Long Island. These, as a whole, are particularly good berries, large in size, and, for that reason, attractive. The cranberry is the one fruit whose quality is held second to its appearance.

There are cranberry bogs in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Indiana and northern Ohio. The western berry seldom finds its way east, for the home demand is as great as the supply. For this reason the eastern berry often finds its way well toward and sometimes beyond the Mississippi. Generally it is of better quality, for the production of western berries gathered from wild vines is large.

Every year cranberries are shipped to Europe and statistics show a steady increase of exportation. It is only natural that this increase should occur, because the American cranberry is superior to the European.

England receives most of its cranberries from Norway and Sweden, but they are not nearly as good as the American product. Perhaps poor quality has caused the cranberry to lack in popularity abroad. Certain it is that nowhere is this berry so popular as in the United States, where the quantity consumed is larger than the rest of the world uses.—Newark (N. J.) News.

GRAFTING MADE EASY.

A Down East Method Which Has Never Failed to Produce Fairly Satisfactory Results.

In grafting a seedling one or two years old the graft is put on just above the ground and but one cutting is used. To graft a tree to change the fruit is another matter and instead of cutting the tree off below the limbs three or four of the lower limbs are cut off eight or ten inches from the trunk or the main branch and two cuttings or grafts are placed in each limb. Should the operation prove successful the following year all the branches above the grafts may be removed with little danger of losing the tree. A tree of most any age may be grafted in this way and in a few years be in good bearing. The grafting outfit is simple, comprising a jackknife, small saw and a dish of grafting wax. In selecting grafts only the last year's growth of new wood should be chosen.

Figure A shows how to make the scion. They may be several inches long and contain two or three buds each. The bottom end which is to be inserted into the limb should be wedge shape. Figure B gives an idea how the limb appears with a split top in which the grafts are set. Two cuttings should be placed in each limb to be sure of a good stand. After they are placed in position some orchardists bind them in place with cord or twine to make them secure before the grafting wax is applied. This answers as a safeguard, but it is not absolutely necessary. In placing the scion it is important to have the inner bark of scion and stock come together so that the sap will flow from the tree to the cutting. After this is done the wax should be applied so that the joint or splice is well covered, thus keeping out the air and water. Should all the grafts live the weaker ones should be pruned away.—Orange Judd Farmer.

THE SCION AND STOCK.

Asparagus on the Farm.

One of the plants most serviceable in the farmer's garden is asparagus. Once well established an asparagus bed is perpetual, if it is handled right after it comes into bearing. Fifty plants will supply an ordinary family with all the asparagus tips they can use. The plants should not be set closer than 18 inches in the row, and should not be permitted to go to seed. If the seeds are permitted to ripen and fall on the ground they will send up innumerable stalks and these make trouble in asparagus growing. This can be prevented by cutting out the sprouts that bear seeds just before they turn yellow. When one-year old plants are set, cutting for use may begin the third season. Each day all the sprouts should be cut, even if some of them have to be thrown away.—Farmers' Review.

FACTS FOR PHILATELISTS.

An official recognition of philately in art is the large fresco in the main corridor of the Brussels post office, representing a grandfather and grandchildren looking over a stamp album.

There are now 72,000 post offices in the United States. This is more than any other nation has; but if Great Britain and her colonies were taken as a whole the United States would occupy second place in number of post offices.

The contention that the term philately was not intended to include fiscal stamps is met with the argument that the derivation of the word is from roots that mean primarily a fondness for exemption from tax, or stamps denoting that the postage or tax had been paid. And this is in accordance with the philatelic lexicon of to-day.

Collectors often growl about United States stamps being heavily canceled, but the Australian collectors have a hard time to secure high value recent issues in used conditions in a fit shape for preservation. A paper of remonstrance has been signed by prominent Australian collectors and sent to the post office officials, and it is hoped there will be a beneficial change in the manner of cancellation.

The smallest postage stamp ever issued appears to be the one-quarter schilling of Mecklenburg-Schwerin which measures ten by ten mm. or 100 square mm. It is run rather close by the first issue for Bolivar, both values of which—ten cents and 1 penny—measure only 10 by 12 mm. each. For the sake of comparison, it may be mentioned that the current 1d. British stamp measures 18½ by 22½ mm.

Cabinet Ministers Come High.

A cabinet officer who not very long ago retired to private life started to build up anew his law practice. A corporation case was sent to him by a brother lawyer. Meeting that lawyer later, the ex-cabinet minister asked what he ought to charge.

"What did you think of charging?" asked his friend.

"My dear fellow," the other lawyer responded, "if you do that you will never get another case. Ex-cabinet ministers are a luxury, if they are worth anything. Send a bill for $5,000 retaining fee and you will get a check to-morrow. Then go get your regular charges at your leisure."

The thing was done, with the result predicted. It is said that the gentleman in question made in a month as much as the sum of his salary during his entire official term.—N. Y. Post.

It is a noticeable fact that the dining car department of the Grand Trunk Railway System is second to none on the American Continent, and new improvements and modern innovations are continually being made. The Cafe-Parlor cars which have been running on nearly all of the divisions of this great System are a constant source of praise from the traveling public. The company has recently altered the style of the menu cards used on all of the dining cars and cafe-parlor cars, and has gotten up a very handsome and neat bill of fare that appeals to the artistic sense.

Hoax—"I thought at one time he was getting the gutter-snipe bee in his bonnet." Joax—"So did he." "And didn't he get it?" "Not in his bonnet; in the neck."—Philadelphia Record.

Kicks and Flats.

Herr Meyer Lutz tells the following story: "Conducting once in Bradford, I noticed that the clarinet player, a young but clever and steady lad, jumped up a good deal during the progress of the opera. I found that his father, who played the trombone, sat just behind him, and every now and then he gave his son a kick, with the remark: 'Look out, Sammy! there be a flat a-cummin'."—Mainly About People.

Mark Twain on Autographs.

To ask a doctor or builder or sculptor for his autograph would be in no way rude. To ask one of these for a specimen of his work, however, is quite another thing, and the request might be justifiably refused. It would never be fair to ask a doctor for one of his corpses to remember him by.—Chicago Chronicle.

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - April 2, 1902.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

THE Populists will hold their national convention in Louisville on the 2d of April.

THE Western Argus published at Frankfort for sixteen years, suspended last week. It was established by Pat McDonald, and at his death his son took charge of the paper.

MR. WATTERSON'S efforts to line up the Democrats for the next Presidential campaign are well enough, but one cannot help thinking how he tried to disorganize the party in 1896.

A SUIT has been filed at Frankfort for a mandamus to compel Gov. Beckham and Adjt. Gen. Murray to approve the pay-rolls of the Maysville militia company for services rendered in guarding W. S. Taylor during the political trouble of 1900.

A LATE census bulletin fixes the market valuation of poultry raised in the United States in 1899 at $36,891,876, while the value of eggs was $144,286,158. The total was the imposing aggregate of $281,178.035. The egg crop only comes behind the wheat, corn, cotton, hay and possibly one or two other great farm staples.

Mexico has the smallest navy in the world in proportion to her population. Twelve million people are protected by a fleet of two dispatch vessels, two unarmored gunboats, each carrying one four-ton muzzle-loading gun and four small breech-loader, and five second-class torpedo boats. This fleet is manned by 90 officers and 500 men.

THE Judges of the Court of Appeals who are candidates for their party's renomination, are making good use of their vacation organizing their friends for the conventions which will be held in a few months. Judge Paynter will have no opponent in his party. His record on the Applate bench is eminently satisfactory, and there is no doubt of his reelection.

JUDGE LASSING'S attention being called to the editorial copied from the Commonwealth by the RECORDER, last week, he said he wished it understood that he is not dabbling in the approaching contest for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district—that he is a candidate for Circuit Judge, again, and to that matter he intends giving his undivided attention.

IN the opinion of many leading members of the Havana bar, Estes G. Rathbone, former Director of Posts, has several good reasons for a new trial. This can be ordered by the Supreme Court of Cuba in granting a writ of error, though the higher Court cannot pass upon questions of fact. Attorneys for Neely and Reeves are also confident that they can obtain a new trial for their clients.

THE State Board of Valuation and Assessment is in session to make the annual assessment of the intangible property of the railroad companies in the State for the purpose of franchise taxation. This action is generally taken in January of each year, but was delayed because of the session of the General Assembly. Business incidental to the session of the Legislature occupied the attention of the members of the board.

CHAIRMAN RINGO of the State Board of Equalization announces that the preliminary equalization work of the board has about been completed and that this week the counties whose assessment has been increased will be notified and will be given an opportunity to appear before the board and discuss the matter. As is always the case, only a few counties in the State have not been raised over the work of the local Assessor. The hearing of county delegations will consume a month.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is proving himself a record breaker all along the line. Tradition requires that a president shall not go upon foreign territory, and an embassy or legation is held, in international law, to be foreign soil, and so far as the records appear, President Roosevelt is the first of the Presidents to enter the house of a representative of a foreign government in Washington. He went to the German embassy to call upon Prince Henry as a matter of courtesy, though he did not dine there.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by all druggists.

It makes the farmer wrathful to be called to his mail box, a quarter of a mile or more from his work in the field, to find nothing but a circular from some patent medicine dealer, or a bargain sale advertisement from some cheap John in town. But this happens every day all over the State. The mail box flag is becoming a necessary nuisance in this way. Who can devise a better scheme, one that will enable the farmer to know whether it is a letter or a circular before going to the box?—Indiana Farmer.

THE noted Hereford cattle breeder Mr. T. F. B. Sotham, of Missouri, in an extended review of the supply and demand of beef cattle in the Breeder's Gazette, says that the future outlook for cattle breeders and growers is the best the country has ever seen. Continued growth and settlement of the west, southwest and northwest has continually narrowed the opportunities of grazing and ranching on public lands, and is now rapidly increasing the demands upon the cattlegrowers of the agricultural states.

Judge John H. Westover, of Grant county, and Claude B. Terrill, of Carroll county, are entitled to the credit from the country portion of the Sixth Congressional district for the victory in the Congressional redistricting fight. Grant county was in and out of the Ninth Congressional district a number of times during the session, but the above-named gentlemen always pulled her back to her old moorings again. Both of them are carrying about a Congressional bee, but they will not oppose each other, as the country districts of the Sixth are joined in an effort to nominate Mr. Gooch's successor from among them.—Louisville Times.

IT is said that Colorado, Montana, Utah, Idaho, Kansas and Nebraska have determined to create a new kind of hog, by feeding and breeding. It is to be a bacon hog, with more lean and fat mixed. The basis of this creation is more protein in the feed, and alfalfa furnishes that. The belief there is that a series of years in selecting breeding animals, feeding on alfalfa and no corn at all, will bring about this new creation, and that such a hog can be made on such feed as will have a distinct claim in the market demand for bacon. It is a unique proposition, and if they can do it, the supply of the lard hog will be left to the corn states.

The Scandinavian bridegroom gives his betrothed a prayer-book and many other gifts, which usually include a goose. She in turn, gives him, especially in Sweden, a shirt, and this he inevitably wears on his wedding-day. Afterward he lays it away, and under no circumstance of state or poverty will he wear it again while alive. But he wears it in his grave, and there are Swedes who earnestly believe not only in the resurrection of the body, but in the veritable resurrection of the betrothal shirts of such husbands who have never broken their marriage vows. The Swedish widower must destroy upon the eve of his second marriage the wedding-shirt his first wife gave him.—Woman's Home Companion.

We take pleasure in acknowledging the splendid service of our State Senator, S. W. Tolin of Boone County, whose course in the late General Assembly was conservative and deserving of the hearty endorsement of his constituents. Senator Tolin has not been a "professional" politician, but has contented himself to apply his energies strictly to his profession, that of law, and right well has he succeeded. His home is in the quiet little city of Burlington where he enjoys an enviable happiness. He has a large and paying practice and did not seek the office at all, but this was a case where the office sought the man. We trust that when it again becomes Boone County's time to elect a Senator that they will give to the district Senator Tolin or a man equally as worthy, if there are any more such in the good county of Boone.—Owenton News Herald.

A friend wants to know what price hogs must bring to make a profit on feeding them 67 cent corn. Fed under proper conditions, a bushel of corn will make ten pounds of pork, and for all ordinary purposes this rule is accepted as a standard of measuring the relative values of corn and pork. Thus the pork so made from 67 cent corn must bring $6.70 per hundred weight in order to let the feeder out. Under present conditions we should try other rations for the fattening hog. Wheat at 65 cents per bushel will go further than corn at 67 cents. Barley at 50 cents is a cheaper feed; also mill stuff and the low grades of wheat and flour. There is a certain loss in making pork which sells for $5.80 out of 57 cent corn wholly.—Richmond Climax.

When a stamp is placed on a letter, it represents one of 60 made for every man woman and child in the United States. Enough stamps will be issued this year to supply every individual in the United States with at least 60 stamps each. Distributed among the population of the globe, they supply every person with postage for not less than three letters. Placed side by side in a continuous line, the total issue would girdle the earth three times, forming a variegaed ribbon around it nearly three inches in width. If spread out in the same manner across the United States the stamps would form a paper sidewalk from New York to San Francisco over three feet wide. Pasted into a stamp collector's book of conventional size, the issue would half fill 1,000,000 volumes, which placed one upon the other would form a solid column over 25 miles high. If it is true as Edward Everett Hale says, that the United States postal system is the greatest of popular educators, these figures will serve to show the extent of Uncle Sam's present service as a school teacher.

The late legislature made a number of changes in the school law. Many of them referred to the business of the Superintendent's office, etc. Among those of interest to the general public were the following:

The June examination for graduates of the common schools was changed to the second Friday and Saturday in May and two days instead of one assigned to the January examination for the same purpose.

It has never been possible to pay the forty per cent of the public fund in October, as the law provided and the payment of the forty per cent is deferred until December.

The minimum salary that any county may pay to the County Superintendent is raised from $250 to $400.

Heretofore when a schoolhouse was condemned, the trustees, under penalty, were required to have it replaced in a year. This penalty is now removed and the trustees may levy and collect a tax from year to year until enough has accumulated to build a house.

When two thirds of the voters of a district have voted a tax the trustees may borrow the money to build a house.

Heretofore the week of the Teachers' Institute has been counted as a week taught when it occurred during the session of the school, but now the teachers must teach twenty weeks without County Institute week.

THE currency of the Philippine Islands is to be silver.

A FULL account of the storm in Tennessee and portions of Kentucky, will be found on an inside page.

FROM the efforts that have been made to sow plant beds, it appears that Kentucky farmers are striking for a large crop.

THIS is the winter of the farmers' discontent, especially on the part of those who sowed grass seed several days ago.

IF there is a question as to Gov. Beckham's eligibility for another term he ought not to think of offering as a candidate. Eminent lawyers differ on the question.

AT NOON.

The January Appellate Term Will Close.

Four Judges Going Home. They Will be Candidate for Re-Election.

Compliments for Paynter

The January term of the Court of Appeals closes at noon to-morrow. A period of three weeks will intervene before the opening of the April term on the 14th day of that month. During the term just closing the Court has disposed of a large amount of work, deciding altogether exceeding 360 cases. Next Tuesday is the last day for the filing of records of cases to go on the new docket.

During the brief vacation, Judges Paynter, Durelle, Guffy and White, will repair to their respective districts to make formal announcement of their candidacy for re-election this fall to the bench. Judges Paynter and Guffy will be renominated by their respective parties without opposition, Judge Durelle's friends expect him to be nominated without serious opposition, but Judge White will have a lively contest on his hands.

COMPLIMENTARY LETTERS.

The esteem in which Judge Paynter is held and his career on the bench for a period of seven years is shown in the following correspondence between two of his former associates on the bench former Chief Justices W. S. Pryor and Joseph H. Lewis. Judge Pryor has made the letters public. Upon learning that Judge Paynter would stand for re-election Judge Pryor addressed the following letter to Gen. Lewis:

Frankfort, Ky., March 15, 1902.—Hon. Joseph H. Lewis, Duvall Station, Ky.—Dear Judge: As our friend and former associate, Judge Paynter, is a candidate for re-election I think it our duty to give him some testimonial of our high regard of his character as a man and his ability as a Judge. His career on the bench is indeed remarkable, coming from political life to the discharge of such responsible duties as belong to the bench, he has from the beginning manifested such an aptitude for the place as to exceed the expectation of his best friends. His labor is unceasing, his opinions clear and convincing and he now ranks with the ablest jurists in the State. He is, in fact, a natural born lawyer, and I trust will have no opposition.

W. S. PRYOR.

Judge Lewis responded as follows:

Duvall Station, Scott County, Ky., March 19, 1902.—Hon. W. S. Pryor, Frankfort, Ky.—Dear Judge: I agree without reservation with the high estimate expressed in your letter of Judge Paynter. During the association with him on the bench four years I became much attached to him as a man, because he is upright and fair minded; and formed a high opinion of him as a Judge, because he proved to be just, able, painstaking and hard working.

To displace him would be almost certain loss to the Commonwealth, because it would be very difficult to find a successor his equal, and next to impossible to find one in all respects his superior.

Truly yours,

JOSEPH H. LEWIS.

A twister tore out one end of the mansion of Anderson Johnson, colored, here in town Sunday morning. Johnson is domiciled on a lot belonging to Dr. Furnish, and the serious damage to the building will be a heavy blow to the landlord, and a great inconvenience to tenant, but not enough to cause him to vacate.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to our friends and relatives for their sympathy and many kindnesses on the occasion of the death of our son and only child, Linneus. And we especially thank Dr. J. G. Furnish for the kind and unceasing fatherly attention he gave our son while in his care, as he left nothing undone that would contribute to his comfort.

The Great Dismal Swamp

Of Virginia is a breeding ground of Malaria germs. So is low, wet or marshy ground everywhere. These germs cause weakness, chills and fever, aches in the bones and muscles, and may induce dangerous maladies. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial troubles. They will surely prevent typhoid. "We tried many remedies for Malaria and Stomach and Liver troubles," writes John Charleston, of Byesville, O, but never found anything as good as Electric Bitters." Wants A Requisition.

It will be remembered that away back in the eighties Richard Walton killed his brother-in-law, Kerg Craig, one Sunday evening, on the public highway, near Normansville, this county. Walton was arrested and indicted for the killing, but before his trial he escaped from jail here. Although it was believed Walton was not far back in Indiana, no effort was ever made to have him returned to Kentucky for trial, and the killing had almost been forgotten, but it was brought to mind again last Friday night when a stranger giving Indiana as his home, registered at the Boone House. It was not long until Mr. Reed's, (for that was the stranger's name) business was know, as he began inquiring what steps were necessary to obtain a requisition for a Kentucky fugitive from justice. It was then learned that Mr. Reed wanted a requisition issued for the above named Richard Walton, who had been living on a farm of his in Dearborn county, Indiana, for the last two years. It seems that the interest Mr. Reed is taking in the matter is prompted by a desire to get rid of an undesirable tenant. No application has been made to the Governor for the requisition.

To the County Superintendent:—The delay in shipping the census supplies is due to the fact that the blank paper for the printing was lost in shipping and has not reached the printer. Supt. of Public Instruction.

In taking census, will the Trustees please to use pen and ink, and be as plain and correct as possible, as the work has to be copied by County Clerk? Will send blanks as soon as received.

NOT FORGOTTEN.

It was a sad occasion to witness the interment of Lineous at the Big Bone church on the 29th of March, 1902, the son of James L. and Jennie Huey. He left this world of affliction and sorrow, to pass through the golden gates that stood ajar for his admission. From his youth up to his affliction he was an exceptional boy—most dutiful and obedient to his father and mother, and quite an obliging and sociable young man. He had, at all times, a kind word for everyone with whom he was acquainted, and great sympathy for all persons in trouble of any kind. He was never seen with a frown of contempt on his face, and never was he heard, on any occasion, to utter a word of any kind to make the least shadow on his good name.

He not only loved his God—our God—but loved everybody. I can tell what Linnie was; but for all I might say of him, I would frankly, truly and honestly say of him, "the half has not been told. While his departure from his kind and indulgent parents, his connection and large circle of friends for only a short time, we feel sure our loss is only his eternal gain. In conclusion, and in connection with the above, we offer, as it is written that "all things work together for good with them that love God."

UNCLE JOHN.

Special to the Recorder from Beaver:—George Osman, a prominent hilltop resident, was repairing his poultry house the other day, when he fell through the roof to the ground, a considerable distance. For a day or so it was thought he had broken two or three ribs, but, happily, it turns out that he was only badly bruised, and will soon recover.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE

For Coughs and Colds in Children.

"I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlains Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas. M. Cramer, Esq., a well known watch maker, of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the City Dispensary first called my attention to this valuable medicine and I have repeatedly used it and it has always been beneficial. It has cured me quickly of all chest colds. It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the results." For sale by all druggists.

WITH HEAVY LOSSES.

Venezuela Revolutionists Defeated by Government Troops.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, March 28.—It was learned here Thursday that the Venezuelan government had received a report to the effect that Gen. Varela had defeated the revolutionists under Montilla in the state of Coro, who have been trying to effect a junction with Gen. Riera and his forces.

Gen. Riera is also said to have suffered heavy losses at the hands of government forces.

News reached here Thursday that the British legation in Caracao had notified the government of Venezuela that the governor of the British island of Trinidad had been instructed not to permit, in the future, the presence of the revolutionary steamer Bolivar at Port of Spain, the harbor of the island of Trinidad or in the British West Indies.

Under these instructions the Bolivar would not be allowed to coal at Port of Spain; she will, therefore, probably leave Venezuelan waters immediately, proceeding to the French island of Martinique. The execution of these orders will place the revolutionary steamer in a critical situation.

Venezuelan officials consider the usefulness of the Bolivar to the revolutionists to be greatly hampered because of the presence at Port of Spain of the Venezuelan gunboats Miranda, Bolivar and Zumkador. These vessels are under steam day and night and are ready to attack the revolutionary ship outside British waters.

Students Dismissed For Halting Girls on the Campus.

Columbia, Mo., March 29.—For halting young women on the campus and examining their feet nine students of Missouri university have been dismissed, and the names of others are being secured with a view to similar punishment. The girls were on their way to a banquet in the academic hall, given by the freshmen. The building was surrounded by a mob of the university students, bent on kidnaping as many of the male guests as possible. A number of the latter disguised themselves as girls in order to pass through the line. One young man, thus attired, was identified as he stepped into the light of the main entrance. The mob tore his silk dress to tatters and dragged him away. After this the besiegers were suspicious, and, as the guests approached, those who were girls, or appeared to be, were halted, and made to thrust forward their feet for examination. Nearly all submitted to the ordeal with surprising good nature.

CECIL RHODES' FORTUNE.

London, March 29.—The Daily ... says it is in a position to assert that the late Cecil Rhodes left the bulk of his fortune, except some personal and family bequests, to the promotion of his vast imperial plan of education. This project embraces every land where the union jack flies. Its purpose is the intellectual betterment of the British race throughout the world, and the fostering of the imperial sentiment.

The Daily Mail adds that this idea of better fitting "younger Britain" to cope successfully with rival nationalities was long a dominant scheme with Cecil Rhodes, but even his closest friends little imagined the absorbing hold it obtained upon him until this was disclosed by the terms of his will. The details of this plan of education will be made public in a few days.

HE HANGED HIMSELF.

Condemned Murderer of Sheriff W. C. Ricker Lynched.

After the Mob Had Tightened the Noose Around His Neck the Victim Jumped From the Side of the Structure to Death.

Casper, Wyo., March 29.—Charles Francis Woodward, the condemned murderer of Sheriff W. C. Ricker, of this county, was hanged by a masked and armed men on the scaffold erected for his legal execution. The men overpowered Sheriff Tubbs, secured the keys and led the condemned man from his cell with as little ceremony as possible. There came a loud rap at the sheriff's door and determined men demanded the keys to the jail. On refusing the demand Sheriff Tubbs was seized and bound and the keys secured. After this there was no resistance to the lynchers. They soon secured the prisoner and led him to the scaffold erected in the jail yard on which Woodward was to have been hanged Friday, but for the intervention of a respite granted by the supreme court. A rope was quickly fastened to a beam and a noose placed around Woodward's neck. While this was being done, Woodward talked rapidly. His words were partly incoherent.

Then somebody gave the condemned man a push, forcing him on to the trap, and the rope began to tighten. Woodward gave a leap before the trap could be sprung and fell off the gallows, hanging himself.

One of the lynchers pinned to the dead man's clothing a card bearing the following words:

"Process of law is a little too slow, so, this is the road you will have to go. Murders and thieves beware—People's verdict."

Sheriff Tubbs took the body down and removed it to the city hall, where the rope was cut from the neck. It was then turned over to the coroner.

The county attorney received a telegram from Acting Gov. Chatterton calling upon him as "the county prosecutor to institute and make a thorough investigation of the crime with a view to the punishment of the guilty parties."

A Noted Knight Templar Owes His Health to Peruna.

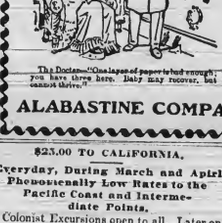
Colonel T. P. Moody, a prominent Knight Templar, is well known in every city in the United States west of Buffalo, N. Y., as a jeweler's Auctioneer. In the city of Chicago as a prominent lodge man, being a member of the K. T.'s and also of the Masons. The cut shows Colonel Moody in the costume of the Oriental Consistory of Masons, 32nd degree.

In a recent letter from 5900 Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill., Mr. Moody says the following:

"For over twenty-five years I suffered from catarrh, and for over ten years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach terribly.

"I have taken all kinds of medicines and have been treated by all kinds of doctors, as thousands of my acquaintances are aware in different parts of the United States, where I have traveled, but my relief was only temporary, until a little over a year ago I started to take Peruna, and at the present time I am better than I have been for twenty years.

"The soreness has left my stomach entirely and I am free from indigestion and dyspepsia and will say to all who are troubled with catarrh or stomach trouble of any kind, don't put it off and suffer, but begin to take Peruna right away, and keep it up until you are cured, as you surely will be if you persevere.



"My wife, as many in the southwest can say, was troubled with a bad cough and bronchial trouble, and doctors all over the country gave her up to die, as they could do nothing more for her. She began taking Peruna with the result that she is better now than she has been in years, and her cough has almost left her entirely. The soreness has left her lungs and she is as well as she ever was in her life, with thanks, as she says, to Peruna. Yours very truly, T. P. Moody.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a general curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues, and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

If one were to make a list of the different names that have been applied to catarrh in different locations and organs, the result would be astonishing. We have often published a partial list of these names, and the surprise caused by the first publication of it to all people, both professional and non-professional, was amusing. And yet we have never enumerated all of the diseases which are classed as catarrh. It must be confessed, however, to see even this partial list drawn up in battle array is rather appalling. If the reader desires to see this list, together with a short exposition of each one, send for our free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

TENNESSEE FLOOD.

Damage Will Be $4,000,000, With Twenty-Two Lives Lost.

Nashville, Tenn., March 31.—Reports from the flooded districts of Tennessee emphasize the gravity of the situation. The damage resulting, it is believed, will reach $4,000,000, while 22 lives are known to be lost. Several counties certain to have suffered heavily are yet cut off from communication and the loss in property and life may go higher than these figures. The Louisville & Nashville railroad is running a few trains from here to Lynnville, 18 miles south of Columbia, while the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis has only succeeded in getting through to Murfreesboro. Neither line can resume regular traffic before Tuesday.

The section visited by the flood embraces one of the richest portions of the state and damage to farm lands is a serious item. It includes counties lying between the mountains on the east and the Tennessee river on the west and between the Cumberland river and the Alabama line. Stone fences that have stood the storms of 40 years were washed away in many of the well-known river side farms of Lincoln county and crops destroyed.

Thousands of logs are reported adrift in the upper Cumberland, which stream at Carthage at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon was rising at the rate of six inches per hour. The bridge of the Nashville & Knoxville railroad at Lancaster, a 300 foot span, said to have cost $100,000, went down Saturday night.

It was predicted at Carthage that the Cumberland would go beyond the flood tide of 1882. If such be the case the work of destruction is not yet over. There is no communication with Linden, in Perry county, or with Lynchburg, in Moore county, but both sections are believed to be seriously damaged.

THE MISSISSIPPI FLOOD.

The Damage to Railroad and Other Property Is Enormous.

Memphis, Tenn., March 31.—Advices from the flooded districts in Mississippi are that the waters are slowly receding and it is believed that the worst is over. The damage to railroads, farms and other property will foot up an enormous sum. It is reported that many Negroes lost their lives but the exact number can not be given at present.

Meridian, in the eastern part of the state, has had no railroad communication for several days. Railroad traffic continues paralyzed in that section. Not one of the five railroads entering the city have yet been able to get trains through either north or south. Mail, however, is being transferred on the Alabama Great Southern at Narkeeta creek, where the bridge was swept away. Large forces are at work on all washouts and traffic may be resumed north of Meridian Monday. The damage south on the Northeastern, Mobile & Ohio, and Alabama & Vicksburg is more disastrous than first anticipated, and it is doubtful if traffic will be resumed inside of eight and possibly ten days. The railroad officials are having difficulty in securing workmen.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Nothing Definite Has Transpired In South Africa.

London, March 31.—Nothing definite has transpired concerning the peace negotiations in South Africa. Messrs. They expressed their hope that a satisfactory compromise would follow Mr. Schalk-Burger's mission.

Mr. Wessels is credited with declaring Mr. Kruger would approve any terms of peace arrived at in South Africa.

The law, however, was subsequently repealed. Mr. Garfield is a resident of Mentor, a suburb of Cleveland.

A TERRIBLE STORM.

Several Persons Were Killed and Others Injured.

A Minister Fatally Hurt While in the Pulpit, By the Side of the Building Being Blown In—Other Church Edifices Damaged.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 31.—One of the fiercest wind storms ever known in this section struck the city Sunday just before noon and did tremendous damage to property and injured many people, some of whom will die. Scores of houses were unroofed, many trees were blown down, mill stacks toppled over and telegraph and telephone wires generally disabled. The most serious accident reported was the unroofing of the Knoxville Presbyterian church in Knoxville. The church was filled with an Easter congregation numbering about 600 persons. While the minister was in the midst of his sermon a particularly strong gust of wind blew over the large chimney and lifted a portion of the roof of the building. The bricks from the chimney crashed through the roof and carried a huge piece of the hardwood ceiling, measuring about 40x20 feet, down upon the people. A panic ensued and a rush was made for the doors and windows. The excitement soon subsided and the work of rescue began. At least 40 persons were caught by the wreckage and more or less hurt. Of this number five may not recover.

The towboat Nellie McGowan was blown over in the Ohio, opposite Saw Mill run, and completely wrecked. Her crew narrowly escaped drowning but all were finally rescued by harbor boats.

The corrugated iron roof of the Union bridge at that point was lifted from its fasteninga by the wind and parts of it carried a distance of a mile.

Greenville, Pa., March 31.—The Easter services being held in the United Presbyterian church at Jamestown, this county, six miles north of here, came to an abrupt ending at 12 o'clock Sunday. The sky became overcast and a funnel-shaped cloud was seen approaching from the northwest. The tail dipped to the ground just before the church was reached. The congregation became uneasy but the pastor, Rev. J. M. Jamison, continued the acrvices. All of a sudden there was a terrific crash and part of the south end of the church crashed in, burying the minister beneath bricks and timbers. The men of the congregation rushed to the pulpit and when the stricken minister was removed from the debris it was found he had received fatal injuries. His jaw was broken and the temporal bone crushed.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, March 25.—Senate—Consideration was begun by the senate Monday of what is popularly known as the oleomargarine bill. The measure places a tax of 10 cents a pound on oleomargarine colored in imitation of butter and reduces the present tax of two cents per pound on oleomargarine to one-quarter of one cent a pound in its uncolored form. A few bills of minor importance were passed before the oleomargarine bill was taken up.

House—Mr. Boreing (Ky.) injected an attack on the Goebel election law into the discussion of the Moss-Rhea contested election case from the Third district of Kentucky, which again occupied the attention of the house Monday, but Mr. Rhea declined to be drawn into an extended debate on an issue not directly involved in the case. He contented himself with paying his respects to Mr. Boreing. The vote will be taken about 2 o'clock Tuesday.

Washington, March 26.—Senate—A sharp attack on the pending oleomargarine bill was made in the senate Tuesday by Mr. Money (Miss.). He denounced the measure as "unconstitutional, immoral, dishonest and unjust." Mr. Hansbrough (N. D.) began an argument in support of the measure, but yielded the floor until Wednesday.

House—The house, by a majority of ten, unseated Mr. Rhea (Ky.), a democrat, and seated in his place J. McKenzie Moss, who was formerly a democrat, but who, according to his brief, is in accord with the republican party on the dominant issues. The republican majority in the house is 43. While only two republicans, Hanbury and Vreeland (N. Y.), voted for Rhea, enough republicans remained away or declined to vote to reduce the majority to ten. After the vote the house began consideration of the army appriation bill.

Washington, March 27.—Senate—Throughout Wednesday's session of the senate the oleomargarine bill was under discussion. The debate was interesting at all times and some phases of it were amusing. Mr. Hansbrough (N. D.) concluded his speech begun Tuesday in support of the measure.

House—General debate on the military appropriation bill was in order Wednesday and consideration under the five minute rule begun. At the beginning of the session the house passed the Burleson resolution calling on the president for information relative to the application of Gen. Miles to go to the Philippines.

Washington, March 28.—Senate—Thursday Mr. Harris (Kan.) and Mr. Quarles (Wis.) spoke at length on the oleomargarine bill. The following bills were introduced: An amendment to the post office appropriation bill making an appropriation of $500,000 for pneumatic tube mail service for next year and authorizing contracts for this service for four years at an annual expenditure not to exceed $800,000; a bill instructing the postmaster general to make contracts for pneumatic tube service in cities and limiting the annual cost in each city to four per cent. of the gross postal revenues.

House—The army appropriation bill was passed without material amendment, and a rule was adopted to make the bill to retire officers of the revenue cutter service a continuing order until disposed of, the order not to interfere with appropriation or revenue bills or conference reports.

Washington, March 29.—House—The house spent Friday passing private pension bills. In all 215 were passed. With one exception this is the record for the number of such bills passed at a single session. The president's policy with regard to the veto of bills to remove the charge of desertion from the records of soldiers came in for discussion during the day. Early in the day a number of minor bills were passed. The sundry civil appropriation bill was reported and Mr. Cannon gave notice that he would call it up on Monday.

Weekly, a union man, was seriously beaten and his recovery is doubtful. Union men are charged with entering the mine and cutting off the air, thus imperiling the lives of the men working. Officers are guarding the mine and the men working are told to shoot for self-protection and in defense of property.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

LOST OR STOLEN.

The Farris Certificates of Registration Bill Is Missing.

Frankfort, Ky., March 26.—The Farris bill, requiring that certificates of registration be issued to voters in cities and towns of Kentucky, without the presentation of which at the polls on the day of the general election, no such voter could exercise his right of suffrage, which was adopted at the recent session of general assembly, will not become a law for the reason that the official enrolled copy of it has been either lost or stolen. The discovery that the bill was not among those sent to the state executive department for approval was made by Gov. Beckham. An investigation showed that the enrolled copy was properly signed in the lower house by the speaker and sent to the enrollment committee of the senate. There is no further record of the bill. The matter has been placed in the hands of Commonwealths Attorney Franklin, of this judicial district, who will prosecute an investigation before the grand jury. The penalty for mutilation or destruction of an official enrolled bill is confinement in the state penitentiary.

Lancaster, Ky., March 28.—Leading democrats of this place are circulating a petition that Gov. Beckham call an extra session of the legislature to reenact the stolen Farris registration law, which passed both houses of the last legislature.

KENTUCKY EXHIBIT.

The People of the State Will Attempt to Raise the Funds Necessary.

St. Louis, March 29.—The movement of the Louisville Commercial club in behalf of a Kentucky exhibit at the St. Louis World's fair has brought to the president of the club, Mr. Clarence Dallam, a letter from a young woman of Pineville, who suggests that it will be easy to find 100,000 Kentuckians willing to contribute $1 each to a Kentucky World's fair fund and thus raise the $100,000 which the state senate voted, but which failed in the house.

Mr. Dallam approves the suggestion and believes that the amount can be raised in that way as he is in receipt of a great many letters showing that the people in all parts of the state are mortified by the unexpected failure of the appropriation in the house. He has received assurances from the Louisiana Purchase exposition authorities that ample space will be given Kentucky, and the club will hold an open meeting April 3 to formulate plans for a thorough canvass of the state. In connection with this move Mr. Dallam will soon visit St. Louis to confer with the managers of the exposition.

VETOED BY THE GOVERNOR.

Frankfort, Ky., March 27.—Gov. Beckham Wednesday afternoon vetoed senate bill 33, known as the Colson bill, which reclassified the cities and towns of the state according to population shown in the census of 1900. The executive took this action because of the errors in the measure, which set Versailles, Princeton and Nicholasville back from the fourth to the fifth class. Its approval would have made necessary a reorganization of the municipal government of those towns, causing much confusion. The error crept into the bill during the closing hours of the session and were not noticed for several days after the assembly adjourned. The veto does not affect the transfer of the city of Paducah from the third to the second class, which was also made in another bill.

It will have its headquarters in Louisville and will be supported by a fund to which the distilling and liquor jobbing interests of the entire country are expected to contribute. It is underatood that the organization will have unlimited financial backing for representatives of the trade everywhere are taking a deep interest in the movement and have already authorized the promoters of the organization to call on them for funds. The money will be used in employing speakers to conduct a campaign in states where the prohibitionists are strong; in distributing printed matter, in employing statisticians and writers on economic subjects and anti-prohibition arguments particularly.

The Poultry Yard.

The best kind of a poultry house is one that is low behind and high in front.

Economy and good management go hand in hand in profitable poultry keeping.

Fifteen hens may be with a male of the smaller breeds and ten with the large breeds.

In all flocks, even the most carefully bred poor specimens will frequently appear.

It is well to be in building poultry houses now that cold weather will be coming later on.

Unlimited range for fowls is not necessary for fine breeding although it is great saving of food.

One disadvantage in feeding sloppy food is that it increases the filth around the feeding places.

The cause of hens eating eggs is usually idleness but it may be from lack of some element in the food.

If troughs are used for feeding they should be long enough to give each fowl a chance to get a share of food.

Cocks after the breeding season closes are only a nuisance and a torment to the other members of the flock.

A chicken or fowl which has had a bad case of roup is not fit to breed from even if it has apparently recovered.

Commence feeding the turkeys early to get them in good condition so that at the proper time they can be fattened rapidly.

Wood ashes when scattered over the poultry yard are apt to induce sore feet on account of the alkaline properties in the ashes.

When the hens appear droopy and yet show no indication of disease or injury remove the rooster, especially if the hens are fat.

Chicken-pox in poultry is characterized by the appearance of numerous small ulcers on the head and face which become covered with scabs. It should not be confused with roup nor mistaken for scurvy. The disease is contagious but not particularly dangerous. For treatment the affected parts should be kept clean with castile soap and warm water and applications of chloride of potassium should be made.

In nearly all cases it is best to commence feeding the turkey in good season in the fall, not only will a better growth be secured but by keeping in a good condition a better opportunity is afforded of taking advantage of a rise in market should one occur, as a few days liberal feeding with a good fattening ration would be all that would be necessary to put in a proper condition for market. It always pays to fatten turkeys well before marketing but this can be much better done if they are kept thrifty.

One danger to the amateur in getting several varieties is that each is often crowded into such limited quarters as to keep all from being profitable. If he gives one breed special range it is apt to mix with the others, and he can never so positively guarantee purity as when no other breed comes near. The man who has but one breed and follows it patiently and carefully year by year can give his fowls greater liberty and better range, can cull his flocks more successfully and can get better and more uniform prices for eggs and fowls.

Live Stock Notes.

Not more pigs so much as better pigs, is the road to success and greater profits in swine growing.

If the land is foul the sheep will clean it up more cheaply than any other laborers you can employ.

Both clover and sorghum hay are good for hogs, and with plenty of it will require much less grain feed than is usual.

The Kansas Experiment Station, in tests at feeding steers, say that the saving in feeding corn and cob meal over whole corn was 35 per cent.

When ewes become too old it is best to sell them off in the fall to feeders of sheep, for there is no money in keeping old ewes on the range for breeding purposes. If a man has good alfalfa pasture, old ewes can be bought in and kept two or three years longer than if required to rustle on the short grass with the other sheep.

An epidemic among horses is reported from Randolph county, Ind., and the local veterinarians do not know the nature of it, but Dr. Henry Meisner says it is carebro spinal meningitis. The direct cause of this disease he attributes to the eating of ragweed and unclean corn, but the fact remains that some of the horses that have died have not eaten either of these things. Dr. Meisner recommends strict sanitary measures as another preventive of the disease.

The West Virginia Experiment Station tested the value of soaking corn for hogs by dividing some cross-breed hogs into two lots, alike as to size, breed and sex. They used Western corn and for one it was ground into meal, mixed with water and fed as a mash. For the other lot corn was soaked in water until soft, the supply being kept up as needed. Both lots had all that they would eat up clean. The lot fed on soaked corn consumed 2,138 pounds of corn and gained 555 pounds, or 385 pounds of corn for each one hundred pounds of gain. Those given meal used 410 pounds for each hundred pounds of gain, a saving of 25 pounds of corn, beside the cost of grinding or for a gain of 550 pounds a saving of 139 pounds of grain.

In a recent issue of the Baltimore News an article by Richard M. Evans gave the following statistics on the growth of the South:

Total value manufactured products twenty years ago, $450,000, in 1890, $1,466,000,000. There should be added to this $120,000,000, the value of the mineral products.

Twenty years ago $397,000 tons of pig iron were made; today more than 2,000,000,000 tons are turned out each year.

The South had $21,000,000 invested in cotton mills, with 600 spindles in operation twenty years ago. Today these figures read, $150,000,000 and 6,000,000 spindles. The South furnishes three quarters of the world's supply of cotton.

In twenty years the cotton oil business has increased from forty mills, with a capital of $3,500,000, to 500 mills with a capital of over $50,000,000. During the same time the value of the South's products has increased from $270,000,000 to $1,200,000,000.

In 1889 the South mined 6,000,000 tons of coal; last year its output was over 50,000,000 tons. Then its production of phosphate rock was 190,000 tons, last year it was 1,500,000 tons. Then its production of petroleum was 179,000 barrels; last year it was 15,000,000 barrels, and this quantity will be doubled, trebled and possibly quadrupled by Texas alone within the next year or two.

It is not many years ago that farmers in the Western States were burning their straw stacks to get them out of the way. There was apparently no market for it excepting at points where the cost of transporation was likely to exceed the price for which they could sell it. Now at nearly every market in the States the price of good straw is as high as that of No. 1 hay, and in some places it is higher. There were some who would not burn it, but put it in the yards for the farm animals to pick what they wished to of it, and to trample the rest into manure. After a few years it was found that the farms of these men increased in fertility and productiveness, and the practice of burning straw was nearly discontinued, even before the common use of the baling press made it profitable to ship it to Eastern markets. A change almost as great has taken place in the opinion of the value of corn fodder. It is but a very few years since the corn growers of the Western States cut no corn fodder, but after picking off ears, let the cattle and hogs in to pick and break down the fodder or what they would of it, and then it was a task in the spring to break down the rest so that it could be plowed under. Now it is nearly all being put through the shredder, and made so fine that any stock eats it, and it is thought as valuable as the average Western hay.—New England Homestead.

A certain officer of an Albany corporation owns a pet Skye terrier dog named Rags. It is a very intelligent animal, as all who know the dog will admit, for it not only reads signs of a certain class of beer, but when the nine-o'clock bell rings at night it will manage in some way to awaken its master and lead the way to a place where that particular beer is drawn—of course the dog wants the beer, not the master.

This famous dog, so the master says, was locked up one day in the room occupied by the master during the winter, and was forgotten. The telephone in the room and its use had been carefully studied by Rags. After being alone about 10 hours that dog, hungry, thirsty, and disgusted, in some way managed to ring up central and the operator hearing three distinct barks coming from that telephone, knew what number was wanted and the number was called. Immediately upon lifting the receiver the master recognized the voice of his pet, and remembering that the poor thing had been locked up all day he instantly called the boarding house and had the chambermaid liberate Rags, and in a few moments those two companions were united in the office of the officer and the dog broke its fast of 10 hours or over.

All milk utensils should be scalded most thoroughly daily. Never let cold water come in contact with utensils unless they are scalded before using for milk again.

A Nearly Fatal Runaway.

Started a horrible ulcer on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill., which defied doctors and all remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. Just as good for Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c at W. F. McKim's. Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton, and O. N. Grant's, Grant.

The floors of all the rooms where ropy milk has been kept should be disinfected with a mixture of five parts crude sulphuric acid to 95 parts of water.

Utensils after washing and scalding should stand upside down to prevent the accumulation of dust on the inside.—Cornell Experiment Station.

Exercise the greatest care to prevent even a drop of water from the cooling tank getting into the milk. That occurrence is probably the most common cause of trouble from ropy milk. If water must spatter about, the cans standing in ice water should be covered.

STOPS PAIN

Athens, Tenn., Jan. 27, 1901.

Ever since the first appearance of my menses they were very irregular and I suffered with great pain in my hips, back, stomach and legs, with terrible bearing-down pains in the abdomen. During the past month I have been taking Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and I passed the monthly period without pain for the first time in years. NANNIE DAVIS.

What is life worth to a woman suffering like Nannie Davis suffered? Yet there are women in thousands of homes to-day who are bearing those terrible menstrual pains in silence. If you are one of these we want to say that this same will bring you permanent relief. Console yourself with the knowledge that 1,000,000 women have been completely cured by Wine of Cardui. These women suffered from leucorrhœa, irregular menses, headache, backache, and bearing down pains. Wine of Cardui will stop all these aches and pains for you. Purchase a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui to-day and take it in the privacy of your home.

Since Mrs. Batterson joined the Grange, she has become a great lover of gardening, and, without a doubt, she has the greatest variety of vegetables planted to the square inch of ground of anyone in this vicinity. She keeps well posted on agricultural affairs by reading several papers on the subject, and is strictly up to date. In fact, we think she is little ahead, as she was telling us a few days ago that she was sprouting Lima beans under setting hens instead of by the old hot bed process.

We were rusticating down in the North Bend neighborhood, a few days last week, with Hubert Cropper and wife. Mrs. Cropper, knowing our fondness for cabbage, took great pains in the preparation of a few heads for the occasion, and it is useless for me to attempt to describe how greatly they were appreciated. Hubert is one of this county's extensive farmers, and to view the broad acres he is cultivating, makes us think that he and Mrs. Cropper ought to join the Grange.

BERKSHIRE.—A pretty wedding took place on the afternoon of the 30th ult., Mr. Odney Ross and Miss Emma Hance being the high contracting parties, with Rev. Cram officiating in a brief but beautiful ceremony. The wedding took place at the home of the bride, in the presence of a few relatives and close friends. The bride was beautifully and tastefully gowned in a head colored cloth, trimmed in white silk and applique. The groom appeared in conventional black, and looked the pride he felt in the jewel he had won.

The event had long been looked forward to by many friends of the parties. It came at last in one of those beautiful spring days, the sweetest of all the year, when nature is just budding, and robed in her beautiful, green garment. The attendants were Gertrude Ross, sister of the groom, Gerdy Harris, Edna Ransom and Elsia Ross, brother of the groom.

After the ceremony sincere and hearty congratulations were extended, and then the wedding party departed for the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross, parents of the groom, where they were entertained with an elegant supper. The following day they were honored with another delightful feast given by the bride's mother, Mrs. Ambrose.

The groom is a son of William Ross, one of the county's most prosperous farmers. He is a young man worthy in all respects of success in life, and worthy of the splendid woman he has chosen for a wife.

The bride is the charmiug daughter of Mrs. John Ambrose, formerly Mrs L. Hance, and is one of the sweetest and most winsome young ladies—to know her is to love her, and she is deserving of all the good things that can be said of her.

The engineers will be in this county in a few days.

HEAVENLY LIFE

by Dr. Talmage.

Is Activity Also Brought Out—The Immortal Half-Hour When Everything Was Silent—Valuable Fragments of Time.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In the following discourse, prepared by Dr. Talmage before his illness, a vivid glimpse of the splendors and glories of heavenly life is presented; text, Revelation viii., 1: "There was silence in Heaven about the space of half an hour."

The busiest place in the universe is Heaven. It is the center from which all good influences start; it is the goal at which all good results arrive. The Bible represents it as active with wheels and wings and orchestras and processions mounted or charioted. But my text describes a space when the wheels ceased to roll and the trumpets to sound and the voices to chant. The riders on the white horses reined in their charges. The doxologies were hushed and processions halted. The hand of arrest was upon all the splendors. "Stop, Heaven!" cried an omnipotent voice, and it stopped. For 30 minutes everything celestial stood still. "There was silence in Heaven about the space of half an hour."

From all we can learn it is the only time Heaven ever stopped. It does not stop as other cities for the night, for there is no night there. It does not stop for a plague, for the inhabitant never says: "I am sick." It does not stop for bankruptcies, for its inhabitants never fail. It does not stop for impassable streets, for there are no falling snows or sweeping freshets. What, then, stopped it for 30 minutes? Grotius and Prof. Stuart think it was at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem. Mr. Lord thinks it was in the year 311, between the close of the Diocletian persecution and the beginning of the wars by which Constantine gained the throne. But that was all a guess, though a learned and brilliant guess. I do not know when it was, and I do not care when it was, but of the fact that such an interregnum of sound took place I am certain. "There was silence in Heaven about the space of half an hour."

And, first of all, we learn that God and all Heaven then honored silence. The longest and widest dominion that ever existed is that over which stillness was queen. For an eternity there had not been a sound. World making was a later day occupation. For unimaginable ages it was a mute universe. God was the only Being, and as there was no one to speak to there was no utterance. But that silence has all been broken up into worlds, and it has become a noisy universe. Worlds in upheaval, worlds in congelation, worlds in conflugration, worlds in revolution.

If geologists are right—and I believe they are—there has not been a moment of silence since this world began its travels, and the crushing and the splitting and the uproar and the hubbub are ever in progress. But when among the supernals a voice cried: "Hush!" and for half an hour Heaven was still, silence was honored. The full power of silence many of us have yet to learn. We are told that when Christ was arraigned "He answered not a word." That silence was louder than any thunder that ever shook the world. Ofteatimes when we are assailed and misrepresented the mightiest thing to say is to say nothing and the mightiest thing to do is to do nothing. Those people who are always rushing into print to get themselves set right accomplish nothing but their own chagrin. Silence! Do right and leave the results with God.

Learn also from my text that Heaven must be an eventful and active place from the fact that it could afford only 30 minutes of recess. There have been events on earth and in Heaven that seemed to demand a whole day or whole week or whole year for celestial consideration. If Grotius was right and this silence occurred at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, that scene was so awful and so prolonged that the inhabitants of Heaven could not have done justice to it in many weeks. After fearful besiegement of the two fortresses of Jerusalem, Antonia and Hippicus, had been going on for a long while, a Roman soldier, mounted on the shoulder of another soldier, hurled into the window of the temple a firebrand, and the temple was all aflame, and after covering many sacrifices to the holiness of God the building itself became a sacrifice to the rage of man. The hunger of the people in that city during the besiegement was so great that as some outlaws were passing a doorway and inhaled the odors of food they burst open the door, threatening the mother of the household with death unless she gave them some food, and she took them aside and showed them that it was her own child she was cooking for the ghastly repast. Six hundred priests were destroyed on Mount Zion because, the temple being gone, there was nothing for them to do. Six thousand people in one cloister were consumed. There were 1,100,000 dead according to Josephus. Grotius thinks that this was the cause of silence in Heaven for half an hour. If Mr. Lord was right, and this silence was during the Diocletian persecutions, by which 844,000 Christians suffered death from sword and fire and banishment and exposure, why did not Heaven listen throughout at least one of those awful years? No! Thirty minutes! The fact is that the Celestial programme is so crowded with spectacle that it can afford only one recess in all eternity, and that for a short space. While there are great choruses in which all Heaven can join, each soul there has a story of Divine mercy peculiar to itself, and it must be a solo. How can Heaven get through with all its recitatives, with all its cantatas, with all its grand marches, with all its victories? Eternity is too short to utter all the praise.

In my text Heaven spared 30 minutes, but it will never again spare one minute. In worship in earthly churches where there are many to take part we have to counsel brevity, but how will Heaven get on rapidly enough to let 144,000 get through each with his own story and then 144,000,000 and then 144,000,000,000 and then 144,000,000,000,000? Not only are all the triumphs of the past to be commemorated, but all the triumphs to come. Not only what we now know of God, but what we will know of Him after everlasting study of the deific. If my text had said there was silence in Heaven for 30 days, I would not have been startled at the announcement, but it indicates 30 minutes. Why, there will be so many friends to hunt up, so many of the greatly good and useful that we will want to see, so many of the inscrutable things of earth we will need explained, so many exciting earthly experiences we will want to talk over, and all the earthly spirits and all the other spirits and all the ages will want the same, that there will be no more opportunity for cessation. How busy we will be kept in having pointed out to us the heroes and heroines that the world never fully appreciated—the yellow fever and cholera doctors who died, not flying from their posts; the female nurses who faced pestilence in the lazarettos; the railroad engineers who stayed at their places in order to save the train, though they themselves perished. Hubert Goffin, the master miner, who, landing from the bracket at the bottom of the mine just as he heard the waters rush in and when one jerk of the rope would have lifted him into safety, put in the bucket a blind miner who wanted to go to his sick child and jerked the rope for him to be pulled up, crying: "Tell them the water has burst in and we are probably lost, but we will seek refuge at the other end of the right gallery," and then giving the command to the other miners till they digged themselves so near or that the people from the outside could come to their rescue. The multitudes of men and women who got no crown on earth we will want to see when they get their crown in Heaven. I tell you Heaven will have no more half hours to spare.

Besides that, Heaven is full of children. They are in the vast majority. No child on earth who amounts to anything can be kept quiet half an hour, and how are you going to keep 500,000,000 of them quiet half an hour? You know Heaven is much more of a place than it was when that recess of 30 minutes occurred. Its population has quadrupled, sextupled, centupled. Heaven has more on hand, more of rapture, more of knowledge, more of intercommunication, more of worship. The most thrilling place we have ever been in is stupid compared with that, and, if we now have no time to spare, we will then have no eternity to spare. Silence in Heaven only half an hour!

My subject also impresses me with the immortality of a half hour. That half hour mentioned in my text is more widely known than any other period in the calendar of Heaven. None of the whole hours of Heaven is measured off, none of the years, none of the centuries. Of the millions of ages past and the millions of ages to come not one is especially measured off in the Bible. But the half hour of my text is made immortal. The only part of eternity that was ever measured by earthly timepiece was measured by the minute hand of my text. Oh, the half hours! They decide everything. I am not asking what you will do with the years or months or days of your life, but what of the half hours? Tell me the history of your half hours and I will tell you the story of your whole life on earth and the story of your whole life in eternity. The right or wrong things you can think in 30 minutes, the right or wrong things you can say in 30 minutes, the right or wrong things you do in 30 minutes are glorious or baleful, inspiring or desperate.

Again, my text suggests a way of studying Heaven so that we can better understand it. The word "eternity" that we can handle so much is an immeasurable world. Knowing that we could not understand that word, the Bible uses it only once. We say "forever and ever." But how long is "forever and ever?" I am glad that my text puts under our eye Heaven for 30 minutes. As when you see a great picture, you put a sheet of paper into a scroll and look through it or join your forefinger to your thumb and look through the circle between, and the picture becomes more intense, so this masterpiece of Heaven by St. John is more impressive when we take only 30 minutes of it at a time. Now, we have something that we can come nearer to grasping, and it is a quiet Heaven. When we discourse about the multitudes of Heaven, it must be almost a nervous shock to those who have all their lives been crowded by many people and who want a quiet Heaven. For the past 30 years I have been much of the time in crowds and under public scrutiny and amid excitements, and I have sometimes thought for a few weeks after I reach Heaven I would like to go down in some quiet part of the realm, with a few friends, and for a little while try comparative solitude. Then there are those whose hearing is so delicate that they get no satisfaction when you describe the crash of the eternal orchestra, and they feel like saying, as a good woman in Hudson, N. Y., said after hearing me speak of the mighty chorus of Heaven: "That must be a great Heaven, but what will become of my poor head?" Yes, this half hour of my text is a still experience. "There was silence in Heaven for half an hour."

You will find the inhabitants all at home. Enter the King's palace and take only a glimpse, for we have only 30 minutes for all Heaven. "Is that Jesus?" "Yes." Just under the hair along His forehead is the mark of a wound made by a bunch of twisted brambles, and His foot on the throne has on the round of His instep another mark of a wound made by a spike, and a scar on the palm of the right hand and a scar on the palm of the left hand. But what a countenance! What a smile! What a grandeur! What a loveliness! What an overwhelming look of kindness and grace! Why, He looks as if He had redeemed a world! But come on, for our time is short. Do you see that row of palaces? That is the Apostolic row. Do you see that long reach of architectural glories? That is Martyr row. Do you see that immense structure? That is the biggest house in Heaven; that is "the house of many mansions." Do you see that wall? Shade your eyes against its burning splendor, for that is the wall of Heaven, jasper at the bottom and amethyst at the top. See this river rolling through the heart of the great metropolis? That is the river concerning which those who once lived on the banks of the Hudson or the Alabama or the Rhine or the Shannon say: "We never saw the like of this for clarity and sheen." That is the chief river of Heaven—so bright, so wide, so deep. But you ask: "Where are the asylums for the old?" I answer: "The inhabitants are all young." "Where are the hospitals for the lame?" "They are all agile." "Where are the infirmaries for the blind and deaf?" "They all see and hear." "Where are the almshouses for the poor?" "They are all multimillionaires." "Where are the inebriate asylums?" "Why, there are no saloons." "Where are the graveyards?" "Why, they never die." Pass down those boulevards of gold and amber and sapphire and see those interminable streets built by the Architect of the Universe into homes, over the threshold of which sorrow never steps and out of whose windows faces, once pale with earthly sickness, now look rubicund with immortal health.

"Oh, let me go in and see them!" you say. No, you cannot go in. There are those who would never consent to let you come out again. You say: "Let me stay here in this place where they never sin, where they never suffer, where they never part." No, no! Our time is short, our 30 minutes are almost gone. Come on! We must get back to earth before this half hour of heavenly silence breaks up, for in your mortal state you cannot endure the pomp and splendor and resonance when this half hour of silence is ended. The day will come when you can see Heaven in full blast, but not now. I am now only showing you Heaven at the dullest half hour of all the eternities. Come on! There is something in the celestial appearance which makes me think that the half hour of silence will soon be over. Yonder are the white horses being hitched to chariots, and yonder are seraphs fingering harps as if about to strike them into symphony, and yonder are conquerors taking down from the blue halls of Heaven the trumpets of victory. Remember we are mortal yet and cannot endure the full roll of heavenly harmonies and cannot endure even the silent Heaven for more than half an hour. Hark! The clock in the tower of Heaven begins to strike, and the half hour is ended. Descend! Come back! Come down till your work is done. Shoulder a little longer your burdens. Fight a little longer your battles. Weep a little longer your griefs. And then take Heaven not in its dullest half hour, but in its mightiest pomp, and, instead of taking it for 30 minutes, take it world without end.

But how will you spend the first half hour of your heavenly citizenship after you have gone in to stay? After your prostration before the throne in worship of Him who made it possible for you to get there at all I think the rest of your first half hour in Heaven will be passed in receiving your reward if you have been faithful. I have a strangely beautiful book containing the pictures of the medals struck by the English government in honor of great battles. These medals are pinned over the heart of the returned heroes of the army on great occasions, the royal family present and the royal bands playing—the Crimean medal, the medal of the mutiny, the Victoria cross, the Waterloo medal. In your first half hour in Heaven in some way you will be honored for the earthly struggles in which you won the day. Stand up before all the royal house of Heaven and receive the insignia while you are announced as victor over the drafts and freshets of the farm field, victor over the temptations of the stock exchange, victor over professional allurements, victor over domestic infelicities, victor over mechanic's shop, victor over the storehouse, victor over home worriments, victor over physical distresses, victor over hereditary depressions, victor over sin and death and hell. Take the badge that celebrates those victories through our Lord Jesus Christ. Take it in the presence of all the galleries, saintly, angelic or divine, while all Heaven chants: "These are they who came out of great tribulation and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb."

Thy saints in all this glorious war
Shall conquer though they die;
They see the triumph from afar
And seize it with their eye.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, April 1.—Senate—During the entire session of the senate Monday the oleomargarine bill was under consideration. Three speeches were delivered, two in support of the measure and one against it.

House—The house Monday began consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill, completing the general debate before the close of the session. Little of the speech making Monday was pertinent to the bill.

Washington, April 2.—Senate—An agreement was reached by the senate Tuesday to vote on the pending oleomargarine bill before adjournment next Thursday. Debate on the measure was continued throughout Tuesday's session.

House—The house Tuesday made rapid progress with the sundry civil appropriation bill, completing 93 of the 139 pages of the bill. Efforts to amend the bill were successfully resisted as a rule by Mr. Cannon, the chairman of the appropriations committee, who was personally in charge of the measure. The proceedings were without incident.

Washington, April 3.—Senate—Discussion of the oleomargarine bill in the senate Wednesday was enlivened by two or three bright colloquies between senators. Mr. Bailey (Tex.) concluded his speech begun Tuesday in opposition to the measure, occupying most of the time devoted by the senate Wednesday to the bill's consideration. Senator Quarles introduced a bill providing for the ratification of the agreement with the Creek Indians looking to the allotment of lands in several territories.

House—The house passed the sundry civil appropriation bill. This is the eighth of the regular annual supply bills which has passed at this session. Only a few unimportant amendments were attached to it. After it was disposed of debate on the revenue cutter bill was resumed. Messrs. Sulzer (N. Y.), Bellamy (N. C.), Ryan (N. Y.), Lessler (N. Y.) and Goldfogle (N. Y.) spoke for the measure, and Messrs. Loud (Cal.) and Crumpacker (Ind.) against it. Representative Patterson (Tenn.) introduced a bill to abolish slavery in the Philippines and to invalidate the treaty between Gen. Bates and the suitan of the Sulu islands.

Washington, April 4.—Senate—At the conclusion of a lively debate Thursday the senate passed the oleomargarine bill by a vote of 39 to 31. The measure as passed by the senate differs in some respects from that passed by the house of representatives. It provides that oleomargarine and kindred products shall be subject to all the laws and regulations of any state or territory or the District of Columbia into which they are transported, whether in original packages or otherwise; that any person who sells oleomargarine and furnishes it for the use of others, except to his own family, who shall mix with it any artificial coloration that causes it to look like butter, shall be held to be a manufacturer and shall be subject to the tax provided by existing laws; that upon oleomargarine, colored or not, resemble butter a tax of ten cents a pound shall be levied, but upon oleomargarine not colored, the tax shall be one-fourth of one per cent. per pound; that upon adulterated butter a tax of ten cents a pound shall be levied and upon all process or renovated butter the tax shall be one-fourth of one per cent. per pound. The manufacturers of process or of renovated or of adulterated butter shall pay an annual tax of $600, the wholesale dealers shall pay a tax of $480 and the retail dealers a tax of $48 per annum. The measure provides regulations for the collection of the tax and prescribes minutely how the various products are to be prepared for market.

House—The senate bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service passed the house Thursday by a vote of 135 to 49. The bill gives the commanding officers of the revenue service relative rank as follows: Captains with majors in the army and lieutenant commanders in the navy; first lieutenants with captains in the army and lieutenants in the navy; second lieutenants with first lieutenants in the army and lieutenants (junior grade) in the navy, and first lieutenants with second lieutenants in the army and ensigns in the navy. It gives the officers of the service longevity pay equivalent to the corresponding rank in the army, and provides for their retirement with three-fourths pay for disability or upon reaching the age limit of 64 years.

Washington, April 5.—Senate—The senate Friday began consideration of the Chinese exclusion bill, Mr. Mitchell (Ore.) making the opening speech. The indian appropriation bill was under consideration for a time but was not completed. A concurrent resolution was adopted providing for the appointment of a joint committee of the two branches of congress to attend the ceremonies incident to the transfer of the remains of Gen. William Rosecrans from California to their final resting place in Arlington cemetery, near this city. The committee on the part of the senate was named as follows: Senators Foraker, Spooner, Proctor, Bate and Pettus.

House—The house Friday began consideration of the Chinese exclusion bill. No opponents of the general principle of exclusion appeared, but members were divided in their support of the two bills presented. Messrs. Hitt (Ill.), Perkins (N. Y.) and Adams (Pa.) supported the majority bill, and Messrs. Clark (Mo.), Kahn (Cal.) and Nathan (Mass.) spoke for the minority substitute. During the consideration of the Chinese exclusion bill by the senate, Mr. Wu was in the gallery and took a lively interest in the proceedings.

His Sarcastic Comment.

"What did you think I was trying to dictate to you?" asked the gruff man, as he looked over the sheet she handed him.

"Why, a business letter, of course," replied the new typewritist. "What do you think I thought?"

"Judging by the punctuation and the spelling," said the gruff man, "I felt justified in inferring that you thought I was trying to dictate a dialect story."—Chicago Evening Post.

THE GAS RANGE FOR COUNTRY HOMES

Do not bother with wood, coal or ashes this summer. Buy a Khotal and keep cool while cooking. The Khotal is a gas range but needs no gas connections, and can be used miles distant from any gas house; generates its own gas from ordinary kerosene. It is economical, powerful, and does not heat up the kitchen; it is smokeless, wickless, odorless, and can be run at any temperature from a gentle simmering warmth to 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Prices range from $8.75 upwards, according to size. Send stamp for catalogue to the HYDRO-CARBON BURNER CO., 184 Fulton Street, New York City.

AGENTS WANTED We want one good, enterprising Agent to represent us in every town. Good money can be made selling the Khotal, and on account of its light weight it is easy to carry a sample store from place to place. Liberal terms to the right parties. Address the Agency Department, HYDRO-CARBON BURNER CO., 184 Fulton Street, New York City.

A WISCONSIN PAPER ON WESTERN CANADA.

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, One of the Favoured Districts.

The following clipped from the correspondence columns of the Eau Claire, (Wisconsin) Leader, is but one of many letters of a similar character that might be published concerning Western Canada, the land of No. 1 Hard Wheat and the best cattle on the continent. It is a simple matter to reach the lands spoken of, the Canadian Government having agencies established at St. Paul and Duluth, Minnesota; Grafton, North Dakota; Watertown, South Dakota; Omaha, Nebraska; Kansas City, Missouri; Des Moines, Iowa; Wausau and Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Chicago, Illinois; Indianapolis, Indiana; Sault Ste. Marie, and Detroit Michigan; Toledo and Columbus, Ohio, and by writing to or calling upon any of these Agents at these points full information can be secured. This is a great opportunity to secure a home free of cost or if you desire to purchase lands, they can be bought now at prices much lower than will exist in a few months. But read what the correspondent referred to has to say of one particular district.

To the Editor of the Leader:

"The rush of the land seekers will be to the prairie provinces of the Dominion of Canada. The allurements of a soil that yields 40 bushels of wheat to the acre are too great to be resisted, and an immense migration from this country may be confidently predicted. People here laughed at first at the idea of any one leaving the United States for Canada, but the Dominion authorities knew they had a good thing and they stuck to it. Their officials evidently knew the value of printer's ink. They spared no expense in letting the people of this country know that these lands were there and that they were exactly as represented. They did more. They sent out specimens of the crops raised and samples of the grain. We have had them here at four consecutive street fairs, presided over by one of their ablest immigration officers. This gentleman spared no pains. He explained the value of the lands and the richness of the soil from morning to night to all comers.

"All this told in the long run. Several went up from here to spy out the land, and, like Caleb, the son of Jeppuneh, and Joshua, the son of Nun, brought back a good report, and now some ten families will leave here in a few weeks for Saskatoon to settle upon farms there, and others are preparing to follow. Of course many will appear shocked at the idea of any one leaving the stars and stripes for the Union Jack, but patriotism is but a nomenclature after all, and our experience has been that in nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand, a man is the most patriotic where he can make the most money and do the most harm to those whom he hates."

PRAIRIE WINDS ARE QUIETED.

Flour Mill in Dakota That Had to Be Abandoned Because of Lack of Breezes.

The old windwheel flour mill at Hurley has been torn down and the material of which it was composed will be converted into a more paying enterprise, says a Yankton report. This old mill and its failure to justify the faith of the parties who built it point to the fact of one big change in the conditions of this country during the last 20 years. When settlers first began to arrive there the constant and heavy winds which were a source of extreme annoyance to all, as also of positive loss as well, in grain blown out of the grounds in the spring and broken down in a more mature state, was at the same time an inspiration that a fortune would go to the man or men who could successfully utilize this great power in the industries of the country.

Many attempts in this direction were made, and covered the whole range of farm operations from a threshing machine to running the whole farm from a central station. None of these attempts was more successful than that of milling, and many mills of the wind variety have run continuously for years and made money. The atmospheric conditions seem to have changed, however, and mill after mill lost money and was dismantled. Unless the old mill at Kampseka is still standing, the Hurley mill was the last in the state, and none have been able to run for many years.

The Southern Way.

"Your northern girls may have the style and all that sort of thing," said a southern gentleman to a northern gentleman the other day, "but our girls have the breeding." And, indeed, says the Boston Transcript, southern manners and southern courtesy are a different fabric from that which is known in our strenuous social and industrial life. Take, for instance, the southern way of issuing invitations. Instead of intrusting them haphazard to the mail by a careless messenger, the southern girls fill the family carriage with their girl friends, and a generous hamper of lunch, to be enjoyed en route, making a pleasant day's outing, while stopping along the way to leave the invitations for the forthcoming festivity. It is a delicate personal attention almost unknown to northern customs.

Decorated Boleros.

The fashion of elaborating lace with embroidery, hand painting and jewel work or small gold sequins prevails more extravagantly than ever. Decorated evening boleros are among the most extreme notes of the season's extravagance, and the girdles and neckpieces that usually accompany them are quite as lavishly decorated.

RUNS BACK AND FORTH.

It is a well-known fact that with mowers and reapers it is difficult to cut grass or grain which has been blown down by the wind and become lodged on the ground. This trouble arises largely from the necessity of having to cut around and around the piece on all sides with the machines now in use, instead of doing all the cutting on the most convenient side.

To provide a machine which can be run back and forth on the same side of the field Nils S. Hindbjorgen, of Hendricks, Minn., has designed the reversible mower which is shown in the illustration. The tongue of the machine is pivoted at the center and by pulling a lever the pin which locks the tongue to the carved frame is drawn and the team is swung around to pull the mower in the opposite direction. The cutter bar has a double set of knives and the running gear works as well in one direction as the other. The mower is also designed for use in large fields, where it is not desirable to cut clear around the piece on account of its size.—Chicago Daily News.

RUNS IN EITHER DIRECTION.

FOLLOW ROTATION.

Good Results Can Only Be Obtained When the Prescribed Lines Are Adhered To.

A proper rotation is of prime importance, but one cannot have its good results and continually break in upon its prescribed lines. Many make no effort to pursue a well-defined policy. Others follow a rotation after a fashion, but violate its rules upon very slight pretexts. If rotation is good for part of a field, it is good for all of it, and the part interfered with is always the poorest part of the field, the very part needing systematic care. Practical farmers have found that a careful rotation not only increases the quantity and improves the quality of all crops grown, but gradually improves the texture and the fertility of the soil. In the face of these well-known facts farmers will break their rotation, when with a little effort it might have been kept intact. Perhaps a clay point of three or four acres is poorly seeded to clover. Clearly the right thing to do would be to reseed in the spring when seeding the wheat land. But no, this man plows it for corn. What has he done? He has deprived the soil of the renovating crop and has subjected it to the hard task of growing two consecutive crops, a task hard even for the best of soil. Nor is this all. The next time in the rotation that this field is seeded to clover, it will be found still less able to grow a good crop without liberal quantities of manure. In a rotation of crops, no part of the soil intended for the plow should be pastured. Don't pasture young clover, for it needs a good growth to insure it against freezing out. Don't pasture what is to be broken in the spring, as it has a tendency to make clods, and twentieth century farming is not to be done among clods. Soil, climate and market must determine what your rotation is to be, and when it is once established treat it with respect.—A. N. Springer, in Agricultural Epitomist.

How to Lay Out Lawns.

A good and fairly well-kept lawn is the foundation for all decorative effect. Make it as continuous as possible. With most people the term "lawn" is associated with a thick, closely cut mat of green. This, with the water facilities and time at the disposal of the average farmer, is rarely to be secured. Such a lawn is desirable, but not indispensable, nor is it necessary that the grading be perfect. A slope from the house is, of course, preferable. The same preparation and care that most farmers give their meadows—if there isn't time for more—will, with the proper seed, secure a fairly good lawn. Of course, as with any of his crops, the better the preparation the better the results. For seed use pure blue grass, with a little red-top and white clover if wanted. Cheap "lawn mixtures" are to be avoided—they are "mixtures" usually of old and poor grass seeds and weeds.—Farmers' Voice.

Filling Soil with Humus.

One man took 70 acres, which had grown corn for years and yielded 30 bushels of ears, and seeded it at the last working with crimson clover. The following spring, when the clover was in bloom, it was plowed under and the soil well harrowed. The last of June it was seeded with cow peas, with a little South Carolina rock. The cow peas were plowed under when 18 inches high, which required three mules and a heavy plow. Wheat was sown in the fall, a month after the plowing. The yield was 35 bushels to the acre, and it has given 120 bushels of corn since. Filling the soil with humus is very profitable.

AGRICULTURAL SUCCESS.

Prime Essentials Are Good Seed, Planting in Good Soil and Systematic Cultivation.

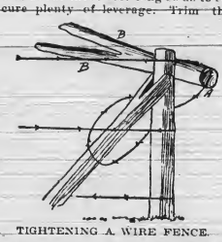
Good seed is one of the foundations of successful agriculture. Good culture is needed to make the best success, but no amount of culture can make worthless seed grow or indifferent seed produce good crops.

Whether one is planting corn as a field crop or pansies to beautify the home, cabbage by the acre of a bit of parsley to garnish the Christmas turkey, the quality of the seed measures the quantity and quality of the product.

The cost of the seed and the time used in getting it into the ground is lost if it does not grow. Worse than this, when it is discovered poor seed has been planted, the season may be too far gone to get it in at all or in time to have it do its best. Then how foolish to plant any but good seed, charged with vitality!

The quality of the seed makes no difference in the labor necessary to plant, no difference in the work of culture and harvesting, but a vast difference in the quality and quantity of the product. Then why not plant seed that will produce the best quality, whether grain, vegetables or flowers? The first cost of the seed for the best and the indifferent sorts varies but little, and it is very poor economy to waste money on poor seed when a trifle more will procure the best.

In speaking of good seed as the foundation of successful agriculture it is well to remember that horticulture is a branch of agriculture and that trees, bushes, plants, cuttings and selons may be regarded as the "seed" in the fruit plantation and that it is just as important to have this "seed" as good as that used in the field, garden or flower bed.



We wish it could be impressed upon all that the seed question is of first importance in any and all branches of agriculture; get that settled right and the question of proper soil and right culture will adjust themselves.

Get good seed, plant in good soil and give good culture and success may be looked for. Get poor or indifferent seed, and the best soil and culture the most thorough cannot bring agricultural success.—Farmer's Voice.

BARB WIRE FENCING.

Anyone Following These Directions Can Stretch a Wire as Tightly as May Be Needed.

To tighten barb wire fencing, cut a limb about four feet long, shaped as at a b. Saw or cut the large end smooth as at a, and then split the end as shown. Have the handles or prongs, b b, about three feet long so as to secure plenty of leverage. Trim the large end small enough to slip the wire in the split end and leave the barbs on the outside. Turn the handles and stick either way. Anyone can stretch wire by this method as tight as in any other way.—A. V. Herron, in Farm and Home.

TIGHTENING A WIRE FENCE.

EARLY FORAGE CROPS.

They Should Be Planted as Soon as It Is Possible to Get the Seed in the Ground.

The present scarcity of stock feed in many sections where last season's drought prevailed will be a strong incentive to our readers to be prepared at the earliest possible moment to get seed for quick maturing forage crops in the ground. A few small patches of ground so situated that they can be grazed and sown to oats, corn, rape, Kaffir corn, etc., as soon as it is possible to get the seed in the ground, will be found very helpful. If oats and rape seed or corn and rape seed be sown together the oats or corn will afford the first grazing and the rape will provide, as it were, a second crop of forage without further preparation. Early varieties of sweet corn will be found very useful for forage purposes, either to be grazed or later in the season cut and fed green.

Pasturing corn may strike some as a novel suggestion, but it is a perfectly feasible one. In from four to six weeks from time of sowing the seed, broadcast, or better, in drills, the corn can be grazed. Just after the plants come up, run a light harrow over the ground and sow Dwarf Essex rape seed—about two pounds to the acre—and harrow again, and one will have pasturage for a good portion of the season. The corn can be pastured when 12 to 14 inches high. This will be found particularly valuable for sheep, pigs and young cattle. Heavy stock will cause more waste.—Rural World.

Improvement in Plants.

The superiority of our present varieties of plants over those grown even within the memory of those of us in middle life, is very great in many instances. The results achieved with some are indications of those that are possible with many, perhaps all. In the case of staple crops the improvement possible, even if it should prove to be but in small degree, may in the aggregate be of great economic moment.

LEGAL POINTERS.

A conductor on a passenger train is not a "public officer" within the statute which provides for an appeal in "actions where the defendant in good faith pleads in excuse or justification that he was acting as a public officer," holds the supreme court of Vermont in the case of Wyman vs. Hayes (50 Atl. Rep. 546).

An ordinance requiring all dogs to be securely muzzled and declaring any dog found running at large without a muzzle to be a nuisance and that it shall be the duty of the marshal and policemen to kill such dog is held in Walker vs. Towle (Ind.), 53 L. R. A. 749, to be a valid exercise of the power to enact ordinances for the protection of life, health and property granted by statute.

A joint liability against the owner of property abutting on a street and the municipality, is held in Beeler vs. St. Louis Brewing association (Mo.), 53 L. R. A. 805, to exist where he negligently suffers rainwater to be discharged from defective pipes on his roof, so that it freezes and forms a dangerous condition of the sidewalk, which is permitted to remain for an unnecessary period, until a passer-by falls and is injured.

A person managing and controlling a public place of amusement to which he invites the public, on payment of an admission fee, who sells intoxicating liquor to one in attendance at such place and thereby renders him drunk and disorderly, well knowing that when in that condition he is liable to commit assault upon others, is held in Mastad vs. Swedish Brethren (Minn.), 53 L. R. A. 803, to be bound to exercise reasonable care to protect his other patrons from such assaults and to be liable in damages for the failure to do so at the suit of one assaulted.

"TIRED ALL THE TIME,"

A Beautiful Club Woman's Recovery.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—"I suffered with pain in my right side for over eight years. Doctors said my liver was affected. My complexion was dark and yellow, I had a bad taste in my mouth, and was tired all the time. I took a great deal of medicine, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I read in the paper of Peruna, and decided to give it a trial. I felt better before the first bottle was gone, and after taking three bottles I was cured, and I have enjoyed perfect health since."

LENA HILTON.

Miss Lena Hilton is President of the Wednesday Whist Club, of Los Angeles.

As a spring medicine Peruna is a never failing remedy. It cleanses the blood through digestion, and gives tone to the whole system by increasing the nutritive value of the food. "Spring fever," as it is sometimes called, which produces a tired out, sleepy feeling, and inability to do much mental or physical work, is the result of a sluggish digestion.

The great popularity that Peruna has is due to the fact that in all such cases it at once corrects digestive derangements and enriches the blood by purifying this very important source of that vital fluid.

Mrs. J. E. Finn, 82 East High street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely, as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete change and rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look around for other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated it, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need."

MRS. J. E. FINN.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

JUST THINK OF IT!

Every farmer his own landlord, no encumbrances, his land accounts increasing year by year, land value increasing, stock increasing, splendid climate, excellent schools and churches, low taxation, high prices for cattle and grain, low railway rates, and every possible comfort. This is the condition of the farmer in Western Canada—Province of Manitoba and districts of Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Thousands of Americans are now settled there. Reduced rates on all railways for homeseekers and settlers. New districts are being opened up this year. BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - April 9, 1902.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

IT is said that rain on Easter Sunday is a never failing sign of a good crop year.

AN effort will be made to raise $100,000 for a Kentucky building and exhibit at the St. Louis exposition in 1903.

THE Boone county colony in Covington is already grooming one of its members for the next Judge of the Kenton County Court.

IT is said that the ladies of Egypt stained their cheeks with alcohol 1,000 years ago. It is now used as a nose tint by some men in this country.

THE man who lives in the mountains is not always above high water mark, as was demonstrated by the recent flood in this State and Tennessee.

THERE is considerable activity in this district on the part of the politicians who undertake the job of making candidates for Congress for the people to elect.

THE Prison Commissioners gave several of the boys the grand bounce and installed others in their places at the Frankfort and Eddyville prisons last week. Mostly guards.

MR. HANNA has said distinctly and unqualifiedly that he is not a candidate for the Presidency. Mr. Hanna possesses too much political sagacity to be anything of the sort.

GOV. BECKHAM'S veto of the anti-docking law enacted by the legislature, has been the subject of much criticism, but then there are some people who would destroy any branch of business, if in their power, and it did not accord exactly with their notions.

THE investment companies that started out in this State to make everybody rich in a short time, are going to the wall with a rush. As is always the case poor people and those in moderate circumstances are the ones upon whom the frauds subsisted while in operation.

IF Boone county was penetrated by two or three traction roads it would soon develop into one of the most popular residence districts in the state, owing to its proximity to Cincinnati, and its long established reputation as one of the healthiest localities in Kentucky.

GOV. BECKHAM approved 100 of the 131 bills sent to his desk by the General Assembly. Four bills were vetoed and twenty-seven became laws without his approval. The Revenue Bill is the most important of those to become laws without executive approval. The State Fair Bill is an other important one which the Governor did not sign.

CHEAP corn, says the Chicago Live Stock Record, is not to be expected for a long time to come no matter how bountiful the crop of 1902 may be. The granaries of the world are empty and old corn in the feeding districts will be a scarce article next winter. At the same time the country is full of cattle and the demand for pork sufficient to justify raisers in raising more hogs than ever. Several bountiful crops of corn will be needed to glut the market with that cereal.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by all druggists.

IT begins to look like every county in this Congressional district, except probable Boone and Gallatin, will have one or more candidates for the next Democratic nomination for Congress. Some of them will be candidates in good faith while others will be in the field in order to contribute more extensively to the defeat of someone they want to keep out of Congress. The latter class should be set down on good and hard by the Democrats in the district. Be a man or a mouse in politics as well as in other matters.

ONE day last week a lady who had been reading a neighbor's RECORDER for some time came in and subscribed for the paper, saying, "I have borrowed the paper as long as I intend to, and now want it myself." The lady's good opinion of the paper while reading that of her neighbor, is appreciated at this office, but more is it appreciated since she subscribed. The RECORDER has a large number of friends in the county who should follow the example of the lady above referred to. The RECORDER has a large number of subscribers who have been with it a quarter of a century, and it is these very friends who made its existence a possibility, and it will try to merit their support for another quarter of a century. The staying subscribers are the class that makes a paper a success.

WHAT is hoped will become a national political party was born in Louisville, on the 3d inst., composed of reform elements opposed to the Democratic and Republican parties. The platform embodies the platform adopted at the conference held in Kansas City last September. It reaffirms the spirit of the principles adopted at the national conventions of the People's party in St. Louis, Omaha and Cincinnati, and includes the demand for the initiative and referendum and the Government ownership of all public utilities. The convention was practically dominated by the People's party. At times discussions of a lively nature took place, and for a while it seemed as if the movement was about to fail, owing to unwillingness of a number of the People's party delegates to make any concessions to the other reform forces present.

THE Winchester Democrat, the Democracy of which is all wool and the proper width, charges that the upper House (the Senate) of the last General Assembly was dominated by trusts. It says that "it was an open secret at Frankfort during the last half of the session that the American Book Company owned a majority of the Senate." This is a serious charge to make against a set of lawmakers, and made in such general terms that even the members to whom it does not apply will have to bear the odium among those who are not familiar with their record in regard to the school book bill. The Democrat does not desire to do any member of the Senate an injustice, but when it uses the expression, "a majority of the Senate," the reader does not know what particular members constitute that majority. As thirty-eight members constitute that body, the Democrat, in a spirit of fairness ought to be more specific, and designate the twenty or more who were owned by the American Book Company.

From some 5,000 inquiries, covering every township of the eleven principal Winter Wheat-growing States, we are led to the following conclusions:

In Oklahoma and Indian Territory, isolated points in Texas, and a small section of Kansas, Winter Wheat has suffered some in vitality through lack of nourishing moisture during the Winter. Later this has been remedied by general rains revitalizing a large percentage of the fields.

The Nebraska outlook is a favorable one, with acreage showing decided increase.

Ohio is in excellent condition, except on high, sandy soil, which has suffered some from lack of moisture.

The Illinois outlook is brilliant.

Indiana reports some damage early, but the recent rains have materially allayed any fears as to an average crop.

The amount of Wheat fed we do not believe will foot up a very large total. Farmers' holdings are less than usual in the extreme Southwest, Oklahoma, Indian Territory and Texas, but are fully equal to last year's as we get into the more northern section, and are at their maximum in the Central States.

The approaching harvest, with present favorable conditions for the crop continuing, will undoubtedly lead to a freer movement of Wheat from first hands.

Unless there is a material change for the worse, the Winter Wheat at present gives every promise of being the largest raised in the history of the United States.

On an increase of about 4,500,000 acres we estimate percentage of condition as follows: Ohio, 84; Indiana, 87; Illinois, 91; Iowa, 87; Kansas, 80; Nebraska, 92; Kentucky, 88; Missouri, 89; Oklahoma 74; Indian Territory, 76; Texas, 78.

The Great Dismal Swamp

Of Virginia is a breeding ground o Malaria germs. So is low, wet or marf shy ground everywhere. These germs cause weakness, chills and fever, aches in the bones and muscles, and may induce dangerous maladies. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial troubles. A VALUABLE MEDICINE

"I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlains Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas. M. Cramer, Esq., a well known watch maker, of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the City Dispensary first called my attention to this valuable medicine and I have repeatedly used it and it has always been beneficial. It has cured me quickly of all chest colds. It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the results." For sale by all druggists.

The Fiscal Court met in regular session, yesterday, Judge Casou presiding and County Attorney Castleman and all the Justices of the Peace being present.

Dr. Fennell, the Cincinnati chemist, who analyzed the stomach of Mrs. Dr. Tilley, who died in Petersburg, several months ago, presented a bill for $210 for making the analysis, of which amount the court allowed $100. This the claimant by his attorney, O. M. Rogers, refused to accept, and took an appeal to the circuit court.

It appearing to the court that the county's cash may be exhausted before the collection of taxes begin for this year, arrangements were made with the Boone County Deposit Bank to furnish what money, that may be needed, if any.

The court jumped on Dr. McCormic's claim for waiting on a smallpox patient, with both feet. He claimed $10 for fumigating the house and $3 per visit while attending the patient. He was allowed $5 for fumigating and $2 per visit. The claims of the guards were allowed as presented.

The claims allowed by the court at this session amounted to about $600.

Breed, of Marion, says there has been an overproduction and prices have been so low, largely on that account, that the manufacturers intend to dispose of their stocks before starting again. It is the understanding now among the "flints" that the factories shall be closed from the middle of May until October 1.

RHODES' BEQUESTS.

Provides Funds for Colonial and American Scholarships.

Also Provides For Five Scholarships For Students of German Birth at Oxford to Be Nominated By Emperor William.

London, April 5.—The will of Cecil Rhodes provides for the establisbment of colonial scholarships and two American scholarships to each of the present states and territories of the United States. The will of Mr. Rhodes also provides for five scholarships for students of German birth at Oxford, to be nominated by Emperor William, and commenting on the bequest, Mr. Rhodes in a codicil telegraphed from South Africa, said: "For a good understanding between England, Germany and the United States will secure the peace of the world, and educational relations form the strongest tie."

Mr. Rhodes divides the £100,000 bequested to Oriel college into several funds, indicating concisely how he wishes them to be applied and adds this characteristic sentence:

"And finally, as college authorities live secluded from the world, and so are like children as to commercial matters, I would advise them to consult my trustees regarding the investment of these various funds, so far as they would receive great help and assistance from such advice."

Regarding the American scholarships Mr. Rhodes says:

"Whereas, I desire to encourage and foster an appreciation of advantages which, I implicitly believe, will result from a union of the English speaking people throughout the world, and to encourage in the students from the United States who will benefit by these scholarships, an attachment to the country from which they have sprung; but without, I hope, withdrawing them or their sympathies from the land of their adoption or birth."

The will provides that the executors may, at their discretion, delay establishing any territorial scholarships until such time as they may think fit, but it provides also that the territorial scholarships, once established, shall not lapse upon the admission of the territory to statehood.

Another provision is that no student shall be qualified or disqualified for election to a scholarship on account of race or religious opinion.

Mr. Rhodes desires that the students should not patronize any particular college, but distribute themselves throughout the university. The trustees are allowed to suspend or remove any scholar at their discretion.

Mr. Rhodes expresses the hope that the trustees will arrange an annual dinner and reunion for all students and scholarship graduates who are able to attend and invite thereto as guests "Persons who have shown sympathy with the views expressed by my will."

In a codicil to his will, Cecil Rhodes settles the Dalham Hall estate on his brother, Col. Francis William Rhodes, and his male heirs, with remainder to his brother, Ernest Frederick Rhodes and the male of his heirs. In a clause referring to this settlement, Mr. Rhodes expresses his objection to the expectant heir developing into "loafer," and says that the essence of a proper life is that every man should have a definite occupation during a substantial period of his career. Disposition of the Dalham Hall estate, it is provided that the successor to the estate must have been ten years in business or in a profession other than the army, or, in the case of an infant heir, he must enter business and remain there for ten years, otherwise the entail will terminate. The will guards strictly against encumbering the estate.

THE DANISH WEST INDIES.

There Was An Exciting Debate in the Landsthing on the Treaty.

Copenhagen, April 5.—There was an exciting debate on the Danish West Indies treaty in the executive session of the landsthing or upper house. The opposition members violently attacked the treaty and plied the foreign minister, Dr. Deuntzer, with numerous questions, to which he replied firmly and clearly. There is great public interest in the question and the agitation and excitement is intense. Both sides are confident of success.

A strong effort is being made to identify the members of the landsthing, who are suspected of furnishing information to Congressman Richardson. So far it has not been successful.

THE CANADIAN RIFLES.

Heavy Casualties in a Battle Near Dreikuil, Transvaal.

Ottawa, Ont., April 5.—His excellency, Lord Minto, has received the following cable from Cape Town concerning the casualties in the engagement of the 2d Canadian mounted rifles on March 31:

"Dasch Poort, Kleinhart's River, March 31.—Lieuts. R. H. Ryan and W. J. Louden, formerly of the Northwest mounted police, are dangerously wounded along with Lieuts. G. B. McKay, of Montreal, and R. F. Markbard, of New Brunswick. Non-commissioned officers and men killed, nine; wounded, 40. Names of latter not yet received."

London, April 5.—Gen. Lord Kitchener reports a heavy engagement near Dreikuil, Western Transvaal, on March 31, in which 1,500 Boers under Gens. Delarey and Kemp were completely routed by the British under Gens. Kookson and Keir. The dispatch reads:

"Our forces were reconnoitering toward Hart river, when they struck gun tracks. They caught up with the Boers and carried on a running fight with them for eight miles through the bush. On emerging in the open country the British were advanced upon by large Boer reinforcements, who attacked our flanks, forcing them to hastily entrench their position. Fighting ensued at close quarters till the enemy were repulsed on all sides.

"Delarey and Kemp and other Boer leaders vainly attempted to rally the men, who retreated northwest and to the south, suffering heavy losses.

"Our casualties were also severe."

Lord Kitchener also says: "A party of the Canadian rifles held their post till every man was put out of action."

London, April 5.—The Brussels correspondent of the Morning Post wires that Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Transvaal, has received a dispatch from Lourenzo Marques saying that the force under Gen. Botha is advancing towards the Natal frontier.

London, April 5.—The Boer junta in London says that it has received news of a recent action in South Africa in the course of which the burghers captured a loaded British convoy and 600 men, releasing the soldiers, according to custom, after having relieved them of rifles, cartridge belts, ammunition and superfluous clothing. The war office denies knowledge of such an engagement, and the Boers assert that the information of the capture has been deliberately suppressed either by Lord Kitchener or his subordinate commanders.

TO AVOID DUTY.

Washington, April 5.—Complaints are coming in to the treasury department that large quantities of merchandise, particularly rice, is being brought into the Danish West Indies ports in the expectation of being able to ship into the United States after the ratification of the treaty of cession free of duty. The ports of the islands are free ports and hence goods landed there are not subject to customs duties. It is pointed out that after the ratification of the treaty and before congress takes action to prevent it, all goods shipped from the islands to this country or Porto Rico must be admitted free of duty. Therefore a ship load of valuable Havana tobacco might now be sent to St. Croix and if reshipped to Tampa or another nearby United States port after the ratification, and before congress takes action, it must be admitted duty free.

A DESPERATE BATTLE.

Will Reynolds Killed Two Men and Mortally Wounded Three.

Three Houses Were Burned In An Effort to Reach the Desperado—Every Shot Fired By Reynolds Brought Down a Man.

Tuscumbia, Ala., April 7.—Three men are dead, three mortally wounded and four seriously wounded as the result of Sheriff Gassaway attempting to arrest Will Reynolds, a desperate Negro.

The dead: Hugh Jones, shot through head; Bob Wallace, Will Reynolds. Fatally wounded: Sheriff Charles Gassaway, shot through the arm and abdomen; Will Gassaway, shot through abdomen; P. A. Prout, shot through stomach. Seriously wounded: —— Paine, shot through chest; Jim Pinney, shot through right shoulder; Robert Patterson, shot through leg; Joseph E. Davis, shot through jaw.

All the foregoing casualties except the death of Reynolds himself are the result of the deadly fire of Reynolds with a 45-caliber Winchester. The Negro was in his turn riddled and thrown into a fire.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Sheriff Gassaway went to a Negro settlement, "Knardtown," to arrest Will Reynolds for obtaining goods under false pretenses. The officer was met by the Negro, who opened fire with a Winchester, wounding the sheriff and immediately firing upon the deputy, Will Gassaway, who was 300 yards away, mortally wounding him.

As soon as possible every man in town who could procure a gun was in the neighborhood, but owing to the location none dared to venture within the open space. Dynamite was procured, and the house in which the Negro was barricadcd was fired upon but to no effect.

At 1 o'clock Capt. Simpson, of the Wheeler rifles, arrived with 12 guns and 1,000 cartridges, which were distributed among 12 picked men. This company was stationed around the house and riddled it, but the Negro had taken refuge in the cellar and returned the fire, killing Jones and wounding Finney. Coal oil was then procured and after four hours of hard work the houses adjoining that in which the Negro was located were fired. About 8 o'clock the house in which the Negro was located was fired by the Wheeler rifles, who had arrived on the scene. The Negro took refuge in a shed and opened fire, killing Wallace and wounding Davis, but the posse and militiamen riddled the Negro and the crowd, numbering 1,000, grabbed the body and threw it in the burning building. Wallace, who was killed, was closing in on the Negro, who shot him through the body. His body fell in the burning debris, but was recovered. Davis, Wallace and Faikner were the men who fired the building.

Relic seekers cut off the Negro's fingers and such parts of the body as could be procured.

Three houses were burned in the effort to reach the Negro.

Several horses were killed in the battle. Sunday night it was reported that the sheriff and his brother have no chance to live. So deadly was the Negro's aim that it was possibly an hour before the body of Prout could be recovered. Not a shot was fired by Reynolds that did not tell, when those whom he was firing upon could be seen. The excitement all day Sunday was intense, but there is no fear of an uprising among the Negroes.

A HEALTHY SHOWING.

American Farm Products Bought by Foreign Countries.

For the First Time in Several Years Our Exports of Cotton Exceeded in Value Our Exports of Breadstuffs.

Washington, April 7.—The department of agriculture has issued a statement of the foreign trade of the United States in agricultural products. It shows that during the fiscal year 1901 foreign countries purchased American farm products to the value of $952,000,000, representing the largest agricultural exports in our history. Compared with the record for 1900 they show an increase of over $100,000,000.

Our agricultural imports, on the other hand, disclosed considerable falling off when contrasted with the trade of the year preceding. The various products of agriculture received from foreign sources during the year 1901 has an aggregate value of only $392,000,000, or $28,000,000 less than in 1900.

In comparison with the value of our agricultural imports, our agricultural exports shows the exceptionally large excess of $560,000,000.

It is further shown that owing to the fact that our import and export trade with Hawaii and Porto Rico was not included, as previously, in the foreign commerce returns of the United States for 1901, a comparison of the statistics for that year and the year preceding is not altogether satisfactory, and that to make an accurate comparison of our total agricultural imports and exports for 1901 and the year before, the 1901 figures should be increased to the extent of our trade with Hawaii and Porto Rico, but complete statistics as to the value of the products of agriculture exchanged in that trade during 1901 were not to be had. In 1900 our agricultural imports from Hawaii and Porto Rico were valued at about $24,000,000 and our agricultural exports to those islands at about $5,000,000.

The leading items among our agricultural imports for 1901 were sugar, coffee, hides and skins, silks, vegetable fibers, fruits and nuts, tobacco, wool, tea, wines, cocoa, vegetable oils, distilled spirits, seeds, vegetables and spices, the combined value of these items amounting to about $358,000,000.

During 1901, for the first time in several years, our exports of cotton exceeded in value our exports of breadstuffs. After cotton and breadstuffs, which held the first and second places in our agricultural export trade, meat products formed the largest item. Additional exports of leading importance as named in the order of their value, were live animals, tobacco, vegetable oils, oil cake and oil cake meal, fruits and nuts, dairy products and seeds. These ten items comprised in value nearly 97 per cent. of our total shipments of farm produce for 1901.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

But Little Progress Has Been Made in South Africa.

Kroonstadt, Orange River Colony, April 7.—Owing to the great distance separating the members of the Transvaal mission here from Mr. Steyn, the former president of the Orange Free State, and Gen. Delarey, the negotiations between the Boer leaders in South Africa looking to the conclusion of the war make little progress. It is expected, however, that Mr. Schalk-Burger and his colleagues on the mission will shortly leave here for a more convenient center from which to conduct the negotiations.

POPE'S SILVER JUBILEE.

Solemn and Elaborate Services Were Held in Baltimore.

Baltimore, April 7.—The silver jubilee of Pope Leo XIII. was observed with solemn and unusually elaborate services at the cathedral Sunday. The ceremony was marked by the presence of two cardinals, Cardinal Martinelli, the apostolic delegate who came over from Washington Saturday night to take part in the services, pontificated, and Cardinal Gibbons preached the sermon. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather a large congregation was present.

THE STAND COLLAPSED.

Glasgow, April 7.—The casualty lists of the Ibrox Park disaster when a number of persons were killed or injured by the collapsing of a spectator's stand during the international football match between England and Scotland, were completed Sunday. They eclipse all the reports and estimates of the casualties which were current Saturday night.

The disaster has resulted in the death of 21 persons and the injury of 250. Nearly 200 of the latter was so seriously hurt that they were taken to infirmaries for operations and treatment. One hundred and fifty of them still remain in the infirmaries. A large proportion of the injured had limbs broken, bodies crushed and mangled, heads and faces gashed. Several more deaths will undoubtedly result from the most critical cases of fractured skulls.

Sunday the infirmaries were besieged by friends and relatives of the victims of the disaster, and heart-rending scenes were witnessed when the names of those who died Sunday were posted outside the buildings.

The action of the authorities at Ibrox park in averting a more general panic by permitting the game to proceed, while they encouraged the impression of the crowd within the enclosure that the accident was not so direful, is now generally commended. The incongruity of the yells of applause mingling with the groans of the struggling sufferers will never be forgotten by those who witnessed the scene at the rear of the terrace.

NEW OCEAN CABLE.

It Will Connect the United States With the Philippines.

San Francisco, April 7.—George G. Ward, of New York, vice president of the Commercial Cable Co., arrived here to select a landing place for the projected cable between this coast and the Philippines. Mr. Ward is accompanied by Charles Curtis, the company's chief electrician. While here Mr. Ward will consult with John W. Mackay, president of the company. Mr. Ward said Sunday night:

"We are going to build the cable irrespective of congressional action. The first link between San Francisco and Honolulu will be completed by the end of next October. The cable will be shipped from England next July, it has not yet been decided where we will land on this coast. It will either be at Monterey or this city, probably the latter."

CHAMPION WING SHOT.

H. C. Hirschy Won the Great American Handicap.

Kansas City, Mo., April 7.—H. C. Hirschy, with a handicap of 29 yards, Saturday won the Great American handicap, and thus became champion wing shot of America. The last man to stand up with him on the shoot off out of the 14 men who had clean scores Friday was C. C. Spencer, of St. Louis, also a 29-yard man, who finally failed to kill his 53d bird, a towering outgoer.

Both men were straight up to the 52d bird. The 53d was a towering outgoer. Spencer shot first, and although he hit it, the bird fell dead out of bounds. Hirschy's 53d was an ordinary right quarterer. He killed it with his first barrel, but used the second to make sure.

FOR SYNDICATE GAIN ONLY.

The Spirit of Extravagance Is Becoming Ominously Apparent Under Republican Rule.

There has been no more graphic characterization of the ship-subsidy bill yet voiced in congress than that uttered by Representative Brundidge, of Arkansas, in his recent speech protesting against the spirit of extravagance now so ominously apparent in this government under republican control, says the St. Louis Republic.

"High as these figures are," says Judge Brundidge, referring to the fact that the appropriations by the Fifty-seventh congress will probably reach the staggering total of $2,000,000,000, "we are given to understand that they do not represent all, for this congress is expected to pass the ship-subsidy bill, by which between $160,000,000 and $200,000,000 is to be taken from the taxpayers of this country and turned over to the ship owners in order that they may be able to carry on their private business for their own private gain to a better advantage. Every unprejudiced mind will condemn such an act as unfair and unjust, for if government aid is to be extended to build up one business, why withhold it from another?"

The plain fact that nearly $200,000,000 is to be taken from the taxpayers for the exclusive benefit of a syndicate group interested in shipping in itself accounts for the strenuous advocacy of the ship-subsidy bill by such men as Senators Hanna and Depew. These senators are in public life as the agents of the syndicates. Their mission is to bleed the people for the further enrichment of the privileged multimillionaire class to which they belong. You never find Hanna and Depew advocating legislation for the people's benefit. They are invariably the champions of the protected caste that has been built up in this country at the people's bitter cost.

The Fifty-seventh congress is teaching us a lesson that is too expensive not to be thoughtfully studied. The $2,000,000,000 expenditure of the people's money will break all American records for extravagance. On top of this will come the voting away of nearly $200,000,000 of the people's money in subsidies to enable certain ship owners "to carry on their private business for their own private gain to a better advantage." The time has come for American taxpayers to call a halt. They are being ridden to death in the interest of the syndicates.

EDUCATION WAS NEEDED.

The Beet Sugar Fight and the Ship Subsidy Business Enlighten the People.

The beet sugar men are, we are told, "undecided" whether to oppose the 20 per cent. reciprocity measure or not. We imagine that it will make little difference. It would not be a bad idea to have the controversy carried to the floor of the house because we should then have still further and more emphatic proof of the sordidness of protectionism. The people are being rapidly educated on this subject, and the beet sugar fight and the ship subsidy business have been wonderful enlighteners, says the Indianapolis News (Ind.). No doubt many republicans are for the first time in their lives beginning to question the divinity of the protection theory. The farmers and the laboring men in Indiana whom the senate proposes to burden with the task of protecting the Pennsylvania railroad and its wealthy coparceners, find it difficult to understand, even though they may hitherto have been protectionists, why they should be taxed for any such purpose.

Thus the educational work is going on. Many of the most important things that this government has wanted or found it necessary to do in the past few years has been antagonized by the protectionists. We could not have free trade with Porto Rico because it might create an "unfortunate" precedent. Free trade with Cuba is impossible because it would hurt our sugar and tobacco interests. We cannot treat the Philippines as part of this country for similar reasons. Moreover, to give the Philippines free trade would destroy the open door in the islands. Even the isthmian canal question is thus complicated, for there has been talk of discrimination in favor of American ships, and our coasting laws are involved. And finally many of our manufacturers are firmly convinced that our tariff is now one of the greatest obstacles to the development of our foreign trade. So the education that our people are getting is sorely needed.

ROOSEVELT THE DICTATOR.

While present at a democratic banquet in Washington a few days ago Henry Watterson, of Kentucky, severely scored the republicans as a party sold to the trusts and vigorously denounced President Roosevelt as a dictator and despot. In the course of his remarks Mr. Watterson said:

"The republican party is a syndicated party. Arbitrary power is its motor, the almighty dollar its trade-mark. If it be not checked in the gait it is going it will in the end surely Mexicanize the republic.

"Once again in the white house we have the man on horseback. Affecting the simplicity of the cowboy, he conceals beneath the self-confidence and queer manners of the broncho buster the sentiments and ambitions, if not the talents, of a Diaz. To him a little thing like treating an admiral of the navy, wearing the laurel leaves of imperishable renown, as if he were a baby in arms, is held to be dandled and now to be spanked, is merely an undress affair begun and ended during off moments between breakfast and luncheon. To him the reprimanding of the lieutenant general of the army, grown gray in the fighting of the battles of his country, becomes an amusing horse play, meant to relax his muscles and illustrate his high-mightiness, while warning lesser officers of the army to obey orders and say nothing.

"As these things go forward, partaking somewhat of the character of feats to divert and blinds to hoodwink the public opinion, a bill of army reorganization is prepared and urged upon congress which, if it becomes a law, will make the power of the president absolute, and which it is not too much to say ought to be entitled 'An act to make the president of the United States a military dictator.'

"Because the reprimanded lieutenant general, answering the summons of a committee of congress—as was his duty—expresses an opinion adverse to this bill it is proposed to retire him from the service.

"But turn from the white house to the capitol and look at the republicans in congress. The trail of the trade-mark is over them all. Old High Tariff dances the can-can in the house, while old Ship Subsidy does the regular cake walk in the senate. Everything for the syndicates. Nothing for the people.

"And, not content with their arbitrary power in the white house and their mercenary power in congress, the leaders of this party of federalism and false pretension would rip open Pandora's box to filch thence the black piratical flag of negro domination, the equally disreputable and bloody shirt of section agitation, and in order to make sure of the next house, they are proposing to bring forward another force bill to smite the south, to blight the north and to convert a land teeming with love and peace into a land reeking with hate and strife.

"Such is the banquet to which the exit of McKinley the statesman and the advent of Roosevelt the rough rider has invited us."

ELECTIONS FOR CONGRESS.

Excellent Warrant for Confidence That a Democratic Majority Will Be Returned.

Democratic hopefulness of victory in the congressional elections this year should be backed by a thoroughly democratic organization for victory and an aggressive prosecution of the congressional campaigns which shall not leave anything undone that would tend legitimately to insure a democratic majority in the next house.

The party is in excellent shape for a winning fight, despite the claims of would-be reorganizers and disorganizers, says the St. Louis Republic. These ordinarily disturbing elements have found their assertions of democratic dissension or weakness discredited in every test of party strength that has come since the general elections of 1900. The democratic party has been found harmonious, well organized and capable of victory.

The present session of congress is following a line of action certain to arouse the people to the necessity for a return to democratic principles. It will be a $2,000,000,000 congress. On top of this vast expenditure of the people's money, an additional tax of nearly $200,000,000 will be placed upon American taxpayers in order that certain ship-owning corporations can collect subsidies for their private profit, at the people's expense, and with no benefit to the people. The dominant spirit of the Fifty-seventh congress is the new and ominously un-American spirit of imperialism and colonialism. Imperialism and colonialism have already cost us in the Philippines enough to have built 300 warships for the American navy and to have constructed the Nicaraguan canal.

The record of the present congress should alone defeat every republican candidate for congress in this year's elections. The republican party's abandonment of American principles and surrender to the land-grabbing and empire-building policies of monarchical Europe must of necessity warn the American people against the peril and the folly of keeping such a party in power. There is excellent warrant for democratic confidence that a democratic majority will be returned to the next house of representatives. But this confidence must be supported by unceasing effort in the direction of effective organization and aggressive campaigning. Make sure of victory.

Autocracy Closely Imitated.

No one will imagine that Mr. Roosevelt has imperial ambitions or that his disposition to inflict summary punishment upon any officer who presumes to express an opinion of his own has more than an accidental likeness to the temperament of the tyrannic emperor. It is, nevertheless, a temperament that, when combined with the advocacy of imperialistic military methods, is not without its dangers. The so-called "settlement" of the Schley controversy was an example of the gross injustice that may result from arbitrary personal selection and the exercise of bureaucratic power. The war department scheme is an extension of the same system upon much more dangerous lines, when it may very easily develop into a positive menace to the republic.—Philadelphia Times.

THE OFFICERS SUED.

Southgate Seeks Money Drawn From a Deposit Company.

Lexington, Ky., April 4.—Butler Southgate, receiver for the Industrial Mutual Deposit Co., brought suit Thursday afternoon for the recovery of money drawn by the officers of the company, which, he alleges, was taken unlawfully. Separate suits are brought against each of the officers. One petition alleges that Dr. A. P. Taylor and F. A. Taylor, partners under the firm name of the Porter syndicate, as it figured in the matured coupon lists of the company, received divers sums of money from the investment company in contemplation of insolvency and well knowing that the company was insolvent. It is alleged that the payments made the Porter syndicate were intended to operate as an assignment of that much of the available assets of the company to the exclusion of its other creditors.

The sum he alleges was so paid to the defendants was: To A. P. Taylor $215.47, and to the Porter syndicate $1,718.10. The amount asked from W. N. Bush is $332.29, of W. E. Bannister $236.08, William Curren $1,053.27 and of J. H. Baker $430.92. Receiver Southgate says that the only cash asset he found was a tin box filled with postage stamps.

The managers of this company Thursday asked for time to answer the petitions of the receiver, but Judge Parker turned them down and set next Monday for a hearing. It is stated upon good authority that after he receives the reports of the receivers for the various companies Judge Parker will call a special grand jury and lay the evidence before it.

Mrs. Sackett contracted the disease in New York, where she stopped at a leading hotel, and was taken down after her return a few days ago. She visited a great many stores and establishments while at the metropolis, and says there is no particular reason to believe that the disease was contracted at the hotel. She was Miss Olive Speed, and is a daughter of Mr. J. B. Speed, the capitalist. Her home is quarantined, and she will be permitted to stay there, as an attempt to move her would endanger her life.

THE RAPE PLANT.

The rape plant was first introduced into the United States in 1891 through the Wisconsin Experiment Station, and has been growing in favor very rapidly since. Rape is a near relative of cabbage, and resembles it very much, though it does not head. It is very heavy, nutritious and productive, and excels red clover in that respect, but will not improve the soil as quickly.

The best time to plant is in the early spring. Plow and pulverize the ground as early as April 15, if the weather will permit. Sow broadcast four pounds of seed to the acre, and cover lightly with a short tooth harrow or drag. In six or eight weeks it should be from six to 12 inches high, according to the season and the fertility of the land. Stock may be turned on for a short time at first, or in the afternoon on a full stomach.

Nearly every agricultural State in the Union is supporting an agricultural college at great expense, and are supposed to employ the most competent and trustworthy men to conduct them, therefore, what they have to say on the subjects in their line should be considered of the highest authority. I will quote from a few of them and some others:

Will Henry, of the Wisconsin Experiment Station, and author of a standard work, "Feeds and Feeding," in the Breeders' Gazette, has this to say:

"The sheep feeder has first claim to rape, the hog feeder the second, while stockmen, with many cattle, will find it extremely helpful. If rape seed were only sold at $1 per pound, and thousands of dollars spent in advertising, it farmers would take hold of it quickly. As it is, the seed is so cheap, so easily procured, and the plant does its effective work so quickly, that the introduction of the rape plant has gone on far too slowly." Again in his book, "Feeds and Feeding," we find this: Therape crop, which will grow anywhere in the United States at some season of the year, is recommended to farmers and stockmen as well worthy of trial since it is produced at small expense for seed and culture, and yields an immense amount of nutritious forage, the flavor and succulence of which are highly appreciated by cattle, especially sheep and swine."

Gavity, of the Ontario Agricultural College, reports a yield of 27 tons per acre from two pounds of seed sown in drills twenty-seven inches apart, the crop being cultivated every ten days. At the Wisconsin station Craig secured a yield of nine and three quarter tons of rape at a single cutting from a half acre of land, while a small flat yielded at the rate of thirty-six tons per acre from two cuttings.

In Stewart's "The Domestic Sheep," page 150, he says in part: "Rape has become exceedingly popular with the most advanced farmers of late. During the last three years it has been the subject of many experiments at the various stations where it has been mostly fed to feeding lambs in preparation for the market. Being a deeprooted plant, it easily recovers after having been fed down, and the improvement of the land for a succeeding crop is worth all the cost of it." Again on page 153, he says: "This plant has been extensively tried and has been found valuable and successful everywhere from Minnesota and Wisconsin to Missouri, Kansas and Arizona in the Southern States—where the winter variety may be sown—and all through the Middle States and Canada."

Several communications to the American Sheep Breeder from correspondents have been published in that journal, testifying to the value of this crop. One from Kansas says: "I live 80 miles south and 60 miles east of Kansas City. On April 6 I sowed broad-cast 10 pounds of Dwarf Essex rape seed on a little less than two acres of ground. Notwithstanding we had a very backward spring, it came up and grew rapidly. On May 20, at which time it was fully knee high I turned 96 head of ewes and lambs on it, only for a short time at first, but afterwards allowing them to eat their fill twice a day, when they would be turned back on grass pasture. At the time the sheep on it, it was very dry and continued so for two weeks, yet it had furnished feed for 96 head for three weeks, and is not all eaten up yet."

One other is from Ohio and runs as follows: "I sowed 22 acres of corn with rape sown ahead of the cultivators, at last cultivating July 15, and made an immense lot of feed. Turned lambs in the corn field the latter part of August, and kept them there most of the time until the corn was husked. I next turned in 52 ewes and 12 heed of cattle until January 10. Fed little else excepting a light feed of hay occasionally, when the weather was too rough to turn stock in the field. A year ago I advocated in the Sheep Breeder one pound of seed to the acre for the corn field: My second year's experience justifies my early judgment. The thorough cultivation of the corn kills the weeds and leaves the rape an uninterrupted growth in the protecting shade of the corn, where it makes a luxuriant and bushy growth, much better indeed than when sown alone in the open field. I think this the cheapest way to secure a great lot of very valuable feed in the corn-belt state. The 22 acres gave me 2,116 bushels of corn in the ear, and from 150 to 200 tons of rape, the corn not in the least affected by its companion crop of rape."

When we consider that the above reports are from reliable persons who have no other motive but the betterment of mankind in general, and the farmer in particular, it seems every tiller of the soil should give this much praised plant a trial at least.

My limited experience with the rape plant fully justifies in believing that their reports are not exagerations, but plain facts. It also leads me to believe that lambs weaned on rape pasture will not be troubled with stomach worms, which probably causes the death of more lambs after being weaned than all other diseases put together. Fall before last we lost about one-half of our lambs from stomach worms, after doing all we could to save them. Last fall we weaned them on rape, and did not even have a sick one from that cause

In conclusion, let me caution those who contemplate sowing rape to be sure, when ordering seed, to order Dwarf Essex forage rape seed or you may get the bird seed rape which would prove a failure. It can be had at 10 cents per pound retail.

A Nearly Fatal Runaway.

Started a horrible ulcer on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill., which defied doctors and all remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. After milking at night the milk pails and strainer cloth should be washed and scalded before using in the morning, or a second set thoroughly clean should be used in the morning. The practice of merely rinsing pails and strainers in cold water at the barn at night offers an opportunity for the introduction of the bacteria into milk directly from the water.

Ropy milk contains bacteria that are responsible for its viscid condition. These bacteria live naturally in water. Measures for the prevention of the trouble must be directed towards preventing the bacteria from getting into the milk. Following are some of the more important measures that should be taken to stop the trouble and to prevent its recurrence.

Wields A Sharp Ax.

Millions marvel at the multitude of maladies cut off by Dr. King's New Life Pills—the most distressing too. April 14.—Sunday morning your correspondent boarded a traction car that was bound for Plattsburg, the scene of his boyhood days. At the school house on the outskirts of the village a Sunday school was being organized, and a large crowd of people from the surrounding neighborhoods was in attendance, several coming from Burlington, Bellevue and Petersburg. The school, by a unanimous vote, adopted a resolution thanking the trustees and the Insurance Co. for the use of the house. The Sunday school will meet at 3 p. m. every Sunday.

Mr. Editor, will the electric cars come through Burlington, if not how close will they come?—[We beg for time on these questions.—ED.]

Mrs. Courtney Walton was visiting Mrs. B. Graddy, Thursday, it being the first time she was away from home since recovering from her recent serious illness.

As Rev. J. A. Kirtley was passing through his barn on March 30th, a door was blown against him, knocking him down and bruising bim considerably, but he has about recovered.

Mrs. Geo. Walton recently entertained Miss Blanch Obisman, a popular young lady of Hollow. On Tuesday of last week she went to La wrenceburg and was married to a coudoctor on a railroad named William Coleman. There had been parental objection to the match.

BEAVERLICK, April 14.—The contract for building the parsonage at the Hughes Chapel was, last week awarded to F. D. Grubbs, he having made the most acceptable bid for the work.

Miss Alpha Hance, of Big Bone, was visiting a number of her relatives and friends at Beaver, the past week.

Deputy Sheriff, B. B. Hume and wife were visiting Mrs. Hume's brother and family, James Carroll, in Covington, last Thursday and Friday.

Burl Henry, of Bergen, Ky., is visiting his brother bere this week and attending court at Burlington. Burl is well pleased with his home at Bergen.

Owing to the convening of Judge John M. Lassing's court in Burlington, this week, several of the leastwise wayward youth bave gone way off visiting distant relatives, &c.

T. J. Hughes and Nace Conley are constantly employed stringing telephone wires and putting new Spring styles of 'phones on the many lines of his rapidly increasing system.

G. W. Ossman, who recently fell from a point where be was repairing a small shed, was quite severely hurt, and as he recovers so slowly he now believes a couple of his ribs were broken.

Uucle Ed Seniour's sale was largely attended last Friday, and things, generally, sold pretty well. "Uncle Jack" Littrell was auctioneer, and saw that each article "fotched" every penny that was in it.

A. A Roter possesses the cute st device, in the form of an emery stone with fine machine attachment, for the grinding of old scissors, razors and knives, which work be does in a jiffy in elegant style.

A trio of sas jy larks as ever left the sacred confines of Beaver, visited "Cincy," one day last week in the persou of Geo. M. Moore, Robt. Conley and J. O. Griffith. They were in pursuit of some ornamental dental work.

J. L. Jones, as is his usual habit, was the first to turn corn in this section, having planted 25 acres last week. Mr. Jones seldom pays any attention to the phase of the moon when all other conditions are favorable for the job at hand.

James Smith, who recently went into the grocery business with J. D. Moore in Covington, both gentlemen of Big Bone Springs, this county, dissolved partnership last week and Mr. Smith moved to Beaver, at which point he expects to run a buxter wagon if the business pays.

"Uncle Hull" Sleet, a shrewd old colored citizen of this precluct presents the condition in his case as very discouraging, in that he failed to wean two choice calves last fall, and while he brought the calves through the long, severe winter all right, it was at the expense of two fine milch cows and now he can't "Zackly kakulat, where et er profit is."

Miss Kate Green, the pretty and accommodating young lady who presides at the newly fitted up telephone exchange parlor, at the residence of T. J. Hughes, is greatly delighted with the newly provided switchboard, which dispenses with the continuous ringing of bells in calling up ceutral. The uew switchboard is a neat arrangement, known as the "drop system" and adquately answers every purpose of "central." Without the customary tintinnabulation so frequently heard when the exchange was located in the store of Mr. Hughes.

FLORENCE, April 15—After a protracted illness, Uncle Abel Carpenter is able to be out again.

There was a very pretty wedding at the home of Rev. T. L. Utz, last Wednesday, the contracting parties being Ransom Ryle and Miss June Clore, of Bellevue. Miss June is one of the most charming young ladies of her neighborhood, and no more industrious and clever young man can be found anywhere than Ransom Ryle. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Smith. We wish and bespeak for them a useful and happy future.

Mrs. Maggie Cody is seriously ill. A very remarkable feat has been performed in her case. Among the many complications which have arisen was that of profuse bleeding at the nose. This symptom reappeared last Friday and by Sunday afternoon had progressed to an alarming extent. The attending physician, Dr. Corey, had exhausted his medical skill in his efforts to stop the flow of blood, but in vain. Mr. Cody went to Ed Clutterbuck, who claims to be able to stop blood. Mr. Cody did not believe in his efficacy to perform such a miracle, but his anxiety for his wife led him to resort to anything which might save her, so Mr. Clutterbuck was called in. Seating himself beside her he simply placed two of his fingers ou her left ear and in less than two minutes the flow of blood had ceased.

WATERLOO—Robt. Aylor has returned to his farm near here. his neighbors are glad to have Robert and his wife among them again.

The dirt roads did not give the people much trouble last winter. Bad roads prevailed only for a few days.

R. K. Aylor sold his crop of 16,000 pounds of tobacco to Conner & Hogan, of Burlington, and hegau delivering it last week.

The dance given by Albert Kelly and sisters in honor of Chas. Kelly and wife, was the principal social event of this neighborhood, so far this year. It was attended by a large number, and the old homestead was never the scene of more gayety. Charles and his wife have the best wishes of all.

The resignation of J. N. Dickerson as postmaster at this place has created quite a rivalry for the office. Several petitions are belug circulated and quite a lively contest is likely to follow. John A. Williford, J. B. Finnell and Lafe Kennedy, all staunch Republicans, are applicants.

Circuit Court.

The April term of the Boone Circuit Court convened Monday at 9:30 a. m. with Judge Lassing presiding, Clerk Duncan with J. S. Clutternbck assisting him, on hand to keep the record, and Sheriff Allphin and deputies, his son James and B. B. Hume, and Jailer Adams ready to execute the orders of his honor.

The following gentlemen constitute the grand jury, which was organized in five minutes' time: Jno. C Byland, B C Bedinger, W Lee Cropper, R C McGlasson, B H Berkshire, D W Newman, B B Grant, B A Floyd, Nicholas Carpenter, Ben Jarrell, Joe Riddell, J R Johnson, J. C. Byland, foreman.

The charge to the grand jury required about 25 minutes and comprehended the numerous offenses set out in the statutes. Judge Lassing avoids making a stump speech in delivering a charge, and goes directly to the point, giving his grand jury more instruction in thirty minutes than many Judges do in two hours.

Petit jury No. 1.—J. F. Harris, Jas. D. Castleman, Enoch Manniug, Walter Crigler, G. H. Gordon, W. J. Rice, W. M. Walton, John Deck, Henry Florence, J. G. Jones, E. K. Stephens, Z. T. Kelly.

The following business was disposed of yesterday:

Jon Miller was fined $25 and cost for carrying a pistol.

John Ryan, William Howard and Cad Sullivan were each fined $3 for refusing to obey a summons to appear before the graud jury at the last December term of the court.

The crowd attending court is small.

The clustering of the civil business will begin today.

The grand jury is composed of an older class of men than usual.

No large cases for trial at this term unless it is the Powers will case.

No visiting attorneys present when court convened Monday morning.

Jailer Adams put in last week cleaning up the temple of justice for the use of the circuit court this week.

Deputy Sheriff Hume, of "the south end," was on hand early to assist his chief in the discharge of his duties.

The attendance at court, Monday, was small, being confined nearly entirely to the grand jurors summoned for the term.

R. L. Willis, Alonzo Utz, of Big Bone, and J. R. Johnson, of Verona, were the first to show up Monday morning for circuit court.

The trial of the Henry boys for the fight in which they indulged in at Beaver a few months ago, was continued until Friday.

Several of the prosecutions were necessarily continued on account of the absence of witnesses, and "non est comeasus" of some of the defendants.

B. F. Menifee was selected special judge to preside in cases in which Judge Lassing had been employed previous to his election as circuit judge.

Louisville, Ky., April 10, 1902.

Mr. Editor.—Dear Sir:

I see from this week's Recorder that you say I am a citizen of Louisville. In this you are mistaken. I am, as I have been, a citizen of Carrollton, Carroll county, Ky. Since I became District Attorney for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company I am compelled to be here, so my family (wife, son and myself) temporarily reside in Louisville, but I have my home office, &c., at Carrollton, and while I have an office with Bullitt & Bellitt, cor. 5th and Market St., Louisville, Ky., I also practice in Carroll, Gallatin, Boone and Owen, and regularly attend the Circuit Courts in those counties. I do not want to be understood as abandoning my own people or separated from them. For while I have my home temporarily, in Louisville, I am still a citizen of Carroll and pay my poll-tax and vote in the county. I had you change the address of my paper because I can now get it more regularly by sending it to me here, and you know I am too good a friend of the Recorder and Boone county not to miss the paper when I do not get it. Hoping you will correct the impression made, I am ready to serve you when desired.

I am your friend,

JOHN S. GAUNT,

Road Supervisors.

"I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlains Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas. M. Cramer, Esq., a well known watch maker, of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the City Dispensary first called my attention to this valuable medicine and I have repeatedly used it and it has always been beneficial. It has cured me quickly of all chest colds. It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the results." For sale by all druggists.

David Williamson, a most successful disciple of Isaac Walton, opened the fishing season last week in lower Gunpowder, by landing a four pound blue cat fish, and now the banks of that classic stream are lined with anglers who are trying to duplicate Dave's performance.

The engineers who are surveying the route for the traction road from Milton, were at Samuel Davis in Gallatin county yesterday. Mr. Davis lives about two miles from the Boone line They expect to be in this county by the last of this week.

The introduction of a new switch board at Beaver has disorganized the telephone service between this place and offices in the lower part of the county, since Monday, because of the office at Union being unable to call Beaver. Messages could be sent this way without trouble.

Later—The service is alright again.

R. O. Powers, of Verona, says his supply of water is about exhausted, notwithstanding he thought he had made ample arrangements, long since, to protect him against such an inconvenience. He took several feet of water out of his well last fall in order to clean it, and it has never replenished. He had a pond which he thought was large enough to supply his entire neighborhood, but the water in it is about exhausted. He regards the present outlook for a 1902 supply of water on his premises as anything but flattering.

DANGER IN DELAY.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In the following discourse, prepared by Dr. Talmage before his illness, the folly and danger of postponing the acceptance of the Gospel invitation are exposed on the text, Luke 14:18, "And they all with one consent began to make excuse."

After the invitations to a levee are sent out the regrets come in. One man apologizes for nonattendance on one ground, another on another ground. The most of the regrets are founded on prior engagements. So in my text a great banquet was spread, the invitations were circulated, and now the regrets come in. The one gives an agricultural reason, the other a stock dealer's reason, the other a domestic reason. All poor reasons. The fact was, they did not want to go. "And they all with one consent began to make excuse."

So now God spreads a great banquet. It is the Gospel feast, and the table reaches across the hemisphere, and the invitations go out, and multitudes come and sit down and drink out of the chalices of God's love, while other multitudes decline coming, the one giving this apology, and the other giving that apology, "and they all with one consent began to make excuse." I propose, so far as God may help me, to examine the apologies which men make for not entering the Christian life.

Apology the first: I am not sure there is anything valuable in the Christian religion. It is pleaded that there are so many impositions in this day; so many things that seeme to be real are sham. A gilded outside may have a hollow inside. There is so much quackery in physics, in ethics, in politics, that men come to the habit of incredulity, and after awhile they allow that incredulity to collide with our holy religion. But, my friends, I think religion has made a pretty good record in the world. How many wounds it has salved! How many pillars of fire it has lifted in the midnight wilderness! How many simoom struck deserts it hath turned into the gardens of the Lord! How it hath stilled the chopped sea! What rosy light it hath sent streaming through the rift of the stormcloud! What pools of cool water it hath gathered for thirsty Hagar and Ishmael! What manna whiter than coriander seed it hath dropped all around the camp of hardly bested pilgrims! What promises it hath sent out like holy watchers to keep the lamps burning around deathbeds, through the darkness that lowers into the sepulcher! What flashes of resurrection morn!

Besides that, this religion has made so many heroes. It brought Summerfield, the Methodist, across the Atlantic ocean with his silver trumpet to blow the acceptable year of the Lord until it seemed as if all our American cities would take the kingdom of heaven by violence. It sent Jehudi Ashman into Africa alone, in a continent of naked barbarians, to lift the standard of civilization and Christinnity. It made John Milton among poets, Raphael among painters, Christopher Wren among architects, Thorwaldsen among sculptors, Handel among musicians, Dupont among military commanders, and to give new wings to the imagination and better balance to the judgment and more determination to the will and greater usefulness to the life and grander nobility to the soul there is nothing in all the earth like our Christian religion. Nothing in religion? Why, then, all those Christians were deceived when in their dying moment they thought they saw the castles of the blessed, and your child, that with unutterable agony you put away into the grave, you will never see him again nor hear his sweet voice nor feel the throb of his young heart. There is nothing in religion? Sickness will come upon you. Roll and turn on your pillow; no relief. The medicine may be bitter, the night may be dark, the pain may be sharp; no relief. Christ never comes to the sickroom. Let the pain stab; let the fever burn; curse it and die. There is nothing in religion? After awhile death will come. You will hear the pawing of the pale horse on the threshold. The spirit will be breaking away from the body, and it will take flight—whither, whither? There is no God, no ministering angels, to conduct, no Christ, no heaven, no home. Nothing in religion? Oh, you are not willing to adopt such a dismal theory!

And yet the world is full of skeptics. And let me say there is no class of people for whom I have a warmer sympathy than for skeptics. We do not know how to treat them. We deride them, we caricature them. We, instead of taking them by the soft hand of Christian love, clutch them with the iron pinchers of ecclesiasticism. Oh, if you knew how those men had fallen away from Christianity and become skeptics you would not be so rough on them! Some were brought up in homes where religion was overdone. The most wretched day in the week was Sunday. Religion was driven into them with a triphammer. They had a surfeit of prayer meetings. They were stuffed and choked with catechisms. They were told by their parents that they were the worst children that ever lived because they liked to ride down hill better than to read "Pilgrim's Progress." They never heard their parents talk of religion but with the corners of the mouth drawn down and the eyes rolled up. Others went into skepticism through maltreatment on the part of some who professed religion. There is a man who says: "My partner in business was conspicuous in prayer meeting, and he was officious in all religious circles, but he cheated me out of $3,000, and I don't want any of that religion." Then there are others who get into skepticism by a natural persistence in asking questions, why or how? How can God be one being in three persons? They cannot understand it. Neither can I. How can God be a complete sovereign and yet man a free agent? They cannot understand it. Neither can I. They cannot understand why a holy God lets sin come into the world. Neither can I. They say: "Here is a great mystery; here is a disciple of fashion, frivolous and godless all her days; she lives on to be an octogenarian. Here is a Christian mother, training her children for God and for heaven, self-sacrificing, Christlike, indispensable seemingly to that household; she gets a cancer and dies." The skeptic says: "I can't explain that." Neither can I.

I can see how men reason themselves into skepticism. With burning feet I have trodden that blistering way. I know what it is to have a hundred nights poured into one hour. There are men in the arid desert of doubt who would give their thousands of dollars if they could get back to the old religion of their fathers. Such men are not to be caricatured, but helped, and not through their heads, but through their hearts. When these men really do come into the kingdom of God, they will be worth far more to the cause of Christ than those who never examined the evidence of Christianity. Thomas Chalmers once a skeptic; Christmas Evans, once a skeptic; but when they did lay hold of the Gospel chariot how they made it speed ahead! If, therefore, I address men and women who have drifted away into skepticism, I throw out no scoff; I rather implead you by the memory of those good old times when you knelt at your mother's knee and said your evening prayer and those other days of sickness when she watched all night and gave you the medicine at just the right time and turned the pillow when it was hot, and with hand long ago turned to dust soothed your pains, and with that voice you will never hear again unless you join her in the better country told you never mind, you would be better by and by, and by that dying couch where she talked so slowly, catching her breath between the words—by all those memories I ask you to come and take the same religion. It was good enough for her; it is good enough for you. Aye, I make a better plea: By the wounds and the death throe of the Son of God, who approaches you in infinite love with torn brow and lacerated hands and whipped back, crying; "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Other persons apologize for not entering the Christian life because of the incorrigibility of their temperament. Now, we admit it is harder for some people to become Christians than for others, but the grace of God never came to a mountain that it could not climb or an abyss that it could not fathom or to a bondage that it could not break. The wildest horse that ever trod Arabian sands has been broken to bit and trace. The maddest torrent tumbling from mountain shelving has been harnessed to the mill wheel and the factory band, setting a thousand shuttles all a-buzz and a-clatter. And the wildest, the haughtiest, the most ungovernable man ever created by the grace of God may be subdued and sent out on ministry of kindness, as God sends an August thunderstorm to water the wild flowers down in the grass. Peter, with nature tempestuous as the sea that he once tried to walk, at one look from Christ went out and wept bitterly. Rich harvests of grace may grow on the summit of the jagged steep, and flocks of Christian graces may find pasturage in fields of bramble and rock. Though your disposition may be all a-bristle with fretfulness, though you have a temper a-gleam with quick lightnings, though your avarice be like that of the horse leech, crying: "Give!" though damnable impurities have wrapped you in all consuming fire, God can drive that devil out of your soul, and over the chaos and the darkness He can say: "Let there be light." Converting grace has lifted the drunkard from the ditch and snatched the knife from the hand of the assassin and the false keys from the burglar and in the perilous lanes of the city met the daughter of sin under the dim lamplight and scattered her sorrow and her guilt with the words: "Thy sins are forgiven; go, and sin no more." For scarlet sin a scarlet atonement.

Other persons apologize for not entering the Christian life because of the inconsistencies of those who profess religion. There are thousands of poor farmers. They do not know the nature of soils or the proper rotation of crops. Their corn is shorter in the stalk and smaller in the ear. They have ten less bushels to the acre than their neighbors. But who declines being a farmer because there are so many poor farmers? There are thousands of incompetent merchants. They buy at the wrong time. They get cheated in the sale of their goods. Every bale of goods is to them a bale of disaster. They fail after awhile and go out of business. But who declines to be a merchant because there are so many incompetent merchants? There are thousands of poor lawyers. They cannot draw a declaration that will stand the test. They cannot recover just damages. They cannot help a defendant escape from the injustice of his persecutors. They are the worst impediments against any case in which they are retained. But who declines to be a lawyer because there are so many incompetent lawyers? Yet there are tens of thousands of people who decline being religious because there are so many unworthy Christians. Now, I say it is illogical. Poor lawyers are nothing against jurisprudence; poor physicians are nothing against medicine; poor farmers are nothing against agriculture, and mean, contemptible professors of religion are nothing against our glorious Christianity.

Other persons apologize for not becoming Christians because they lack time, as though religion muddled the brain of the accountant or tripped the pen of the author or thickened the tongue of an orator or weakened the arm of the mechanic or scattered the briefs of the lawyer or interrupted the sales of the merchant. They bolt their store doors against it and fight it back with trowels and with yardsticks and cry: "Away with your religion from our store, our office, our factory!" They do not understand that religion in this workday world will help you to do anything you ought to do. It can lay a keel; it can sail a ship; it can buy a cargo; it can work a pulley; it can pave a street; it can fit a wristband; it can write a constitution; it can marshal a host. It is as appropriate to the astronomer as his telescope, to the chemist as his laboratory, to the mason as his plumb line, to the carpenter as his plane, to the child as his marbles, to grandfather as his staff.

No time for religion here! You have no time not to be religious. You might as well have no clerks in your store, no books in your library, no compass on your ship, no rifle in the battle, no hat for your head, no coat for your back, no shoes for your feet. Better travel on toward eternity bareheaded and barefooted and houseless and homeless and friendless than to go through life without religion. Did religion make Raleigh any less of a statesman or Havelock any less of a soldier or Grinnell any less of a merchant or West any less of a painter? Why, my friends, religion is the best security in any bargain; it is the sweetest note in every song; it is the brightest gem in every coronet. No time to be religious? Why, you will have to take time to be sick, to be troubled, to die. Our world is only the wharf from which we are to embark for Heaven. No time to secure the friendship of Christ? No time to buy a lamp and trim it for that walk through the darkness which otherwise will be illumined only by the whiteness of the tombstones? No time to educate the eye for Heavenly splendors or the hand for choral harps or the ear for everlasting songs or the soul for honor, glory and immortality? One would think we had time for nothing else.

Other persons apologize for not entering the Christian life because it is time enough yet. That is very like those persons who send regrets and say: "I will come in perhaps at 11 or 12 o'clock; I will not be there at the opening of the banquet, but I will be there at the close." Not yet! Not yet! Now, I do not give any doleful view of this life. There is nothing in my nature, nothing in the grace of God, that tends toward a doleful view of human life. I have not much sympathy with Addison's description of the "Visions of Mirza," where he represents human life as being a bridge of a hundred arches and both ends of the bridge covered with clouds and, the race coming on, the most of them falling down through the first span and all of them falling down through the last span. It is a very dismal picture. I have not much sympathy with the Spanish proverb which says: "The sky is good and the earth is good; that which is bad is between the earth and the sky." But, while we as Christian men are bound to take a cheerful view of life, we must also confess that life is a great uncertainty and that man who says: "I can't become a Christian because there is time enough yet," is running a risk infinite. You do not perhaps realize the fact that this descending grade of sin gets steeper and steeper and that you are gathering up a rush and velocity which after awhile may not answer to the brakes.

Here is a delusion. People think: "I can go on in sin and worldliness, but after awhile I will repent and then it will be as though I had come at the very start." What a mistake! No one ever gets fully over procrastination. If you give your soul to God some other time than this, you will enter Heaven with only half the capacity for enjoyment and knowledge you might have had. There will be heights of blessedness you might have attained that then you will never reach; thrones of glory on which you might have been seated, but which you will never climb. We will never get over procrastination, neither in time nor in eternity.

We have started on a march from which there is no retreat. The shadows of eternity gather on our pathway. How insignificant is time compared with the vast eternity! As I was thinking of this one day while coming down over the Alleghany mountains at noon, by that wonderful pass which you all have heard described as the Horseshoe—a depression in the side of the mountain where the train almost turns back again upon itself, and you see how appropriate is the name of the Horseshoe—and thinking on this very theme and preparing this very sermon, it seemed to me as if the great courser of eternity speeding along had just struck the mountain with one hoof and gone on into illimitable space. So short is time, so insignificant is earth, compared with the vast eternity! This moment voices roll down the sky and all the worlds of light are ready to rejoice at your disenthrallment. Rush not into the presence of the King ragged with sin when you may have this robe of righteousness. Dash not your foot to pieces against the throne of a crucified Christ. Throw not your crown of life off the battlements. All the scribes of God are at this hour ready with volumes of living light to record the news of your soul emancipated.

POINTS ABOUT FLOUR.

That of Good Quality Always Has a Sweet and Nutty Smell—A Good Test.

A familiarity with the chemical relations of the food plants we cultivate makes still more apparent the relation of chemistry to the preparation of the products for bodily use, says the Washington Star.

Considering the nature of a plant from a nutritarian point of view we place wheat not only first among the cereals, but assign it second to no other growing thing in the plant world, as it is certainly the most wonderful. The wheat grain is a storehouse of strength and energy and worthy to be called the "queen of cereals."

The grain is surrounded by two coats, the outer covering or cuticle and the inner composed of bran cells; lying underneath this are the gluten cells, which contain fat and salts; the center of the grain is occupied by starch cells. Cerealine, a form of diastase, is associated with the starch and helps to make the latter self-digesting.

The covering or cuticle of the bran cells is removed by grinding, and the result is a perfectly digestible flour, white or yellowish-white in color and fine and smooth in texture. The amount of grinding, after the separation of the bran, determines the color of the flour. The yellowish-white denotes the presence of gluten, while the pure white may contain very little except starch.

Good flour always has a pleasant smell, that may be described as nutty and sweet, and with no suspicion of a rancid or acid taste. A test of good flour is the amount of water it will absorb, and it should not contain more than 13.2 per cent. of water in order to keep well. If a flour, whether of the entire wheat or a white flour, is dark-colored, it indicates dampness either in harvesting or storage and gives grounds for suspecting quality and cleanliness of the flour.

To produce extremely white flour the grain is sometimes ground to excess and a greater part of the gluten, and with it much of the fat and salts are removed. Such flour cannot make very nutritious bread, and is only suitable for cakes and pastry or in such cookery as demands a considerable amount of fat and has the addition of milk, eggs, etc., to make a rich combination of the different food elements.

Whole wheat meal, while containing more nutrition, is apt to be irritating on account of the outer coat consisting of cellulose and siliceous matters. While these qualities are useful to persons of sedentary habits, there are often objections to its use on account of the irritating qualities mentioned. There is a happy medium, however, in the decorticated whole wheat flour. The two already mentioned outer layers are stripped off and the flour finely ground so that any mechanical irritation of the digestive canal is avoided.

DREW THE LINE AT MURDER.

On his last visit to Philadelphia Col. Henry Watterson told a story that did not get into print, says the Philadelphia times. It was about a much battered old lawyer who went up into the mountain region to collect a claim. He was lame and half blind and one-armed. A local celebrity in the case was the district's dead shot, who had killed many men and who was ready to shoot anything or anybody. He came in daily to see the lawyer about a case in which he was interested until his visits became extremely tiresome.

Finally the lawyer exclaimed: "Get out of here and stay out of here. Get out right away. I'm sick of seeing you. Don't stand there. Go on out, I tell you."

The desperado looked at the wreck of a man in incredible dismay, and before he knew what he was doing he was backing out of the room. When he reached the street he burst into tears. The inhabitants crowded around and asked him what was the matter.

"He druv me out," he wailed. "Druv me right out of the room. Said he's tired o' lookin' at me and won't let me come back no more."

"Why didn't you shoot him?" asked the crowd.

"Shoot him?" echoed the slayer of many lives. "Shoot him? He couldn't walk. He couldn't see. He's deef and couldn't hear. He couldn't run and he couldn't fight. Why, fellercitizens, if I'd a-shot him it would a' been murder."

Looking on the Dark Side.

A habit of constantly looking upon the dark side of things, of thinking something terrible is going to happen, that we are unfortunate, that fate is against us, that we were born under an unlucky star, and that our lives are comparative failures; a habit of thinking that we, perhaps, are not so smart as others who have succeeded, and that we have overestimated our ability; in other words, a habit of worrying or of self-depreciation will, after awhile, dwarf the highest ideals.—Success.

Apple Custard.

Take six large apples, core, pare and cut in quarters, put in a saucepan with half a cup of cold water. As they cook, mash them, and add the grated peel of half a lemon, and sugar to taste. When cold put into a baking dish and pour over a custard made with one cup of milk, two eggs, and one heaping tablespoonful of sugar. Grate a little nutmeg on top and bake in a moderate oven about 20 minutes.—Home Magazine.

MAKES THE BLOOD BOIL.

Western Republican Rises Up Against His Swinish Brethren of the East.

A republican representative who is prominent enough to be a member of the ways and means committee is quoted as saying: "My blood boiled when I stood in our last conference on Cuba and watched the members of my party passing through the tellers."

Why did his blood boil? Was it because so many of his party voted against affording any relief to Cuba? Was it because they disregarded every consideration of honor and expediency? Not at all. This was a western republican, and his blood boiled because the eastern members of the party would not vote their western pals their share of the spoils, says the Chicago Chronicle.

Says this unnamed westerner: "For the first time there was a chance to apply the principle of protection to the advantage of western agriculturists. Yet these men from the east walked up * * * virtually saying that when it came to a division of the protection spoils the west had no rights which they were bound to respect. That was what made my blood boil with indignation."

This at least has the merit of frankness. This statesman's blood did not boil because of the wrong done to the consumer, who is the victim of the tariff system of rapine, but because the eastern republicans would not vote to victimize him still further.

There is more of cold blood than of boiling blood in his statement of what the western republicans have done for their eastern pals. "They (the easterners) have never asked anything we have not accorded them, irrespective of the rights of the consumers."

Here we have a very cool confession that this western representative (of what?) knew perfectly well that consumers had rights and that western consumers were the victims and not the beneficiaries, and yet that he and other western republicans never hesitated to give the eastern beneficiaries all they demanded, regardless of the rights of western consumers.

Will western consumers who read this confession entertain more kindly feelings toward these western representatives, who it is admitted have represented eastern rather than western interests and who have voted to bleed their own constituents to build up the private fortunes of eastern capitalists, than toward the eastern members of the tariff robbers' roost?

Not if they have a perception of the fitness of things.

While it has been true in the past that the members of the great tariff trust have succeeded in pulling together at critical times, there is much that is hopeful in the current dissensions among them. When they begin to admit that their system is one of organized rapine and to fall out over the spoils the leaders may get together again, but the followers are rather likely to perceive that they have been victims as well as followers and make up their minds that they have followed long enough and that it is high time for them to assert their rights as consumers.

Mere quarrels among leaders may not signify party disruption, but quarrels which expose the leaders in the character of contemptible plunderers of the people may reasonably be expected to produce some ... upon the minds of the people.

It may reasonably be expected to turn them away from leaders who confess to being robbers to leaders of another kind.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——Gen. Funston complains that the papers lied about him. Perhaps he would like a chance to "revise" his remarks.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——When a man really does not want to be nominated for president, as Mark Hanna says he does not, he needn't "trust that his friends will discourage" the idea. There are surer ways of dodging the unwelcome honor.—N. Y. World.

——We record with regret the Roosevelt administration's first surrender. Nor does the proposed "promotion" of Pension Commissioner Evans to the diplomatic service make the surrender any the less abject.—Boston Herald (Ind.).

——Dewey and Schley and Clark and the others have won their individual fame; Long will be remembered, if at all, only as the secretary who allowed their services to be belittled and who held on to his office long after the general sentiment of the country had demanded his retirement.—Philadelphia Times.

——"The republican party," says Henry Watterson, "is a syndicated party. Arbitrary power is its motor, the almighty dollar its trade-mark. If it be not checked in the gait it is going it will in the end surely Mexicanize the republic." Well said, Massa Henry, and well within the truth.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——Another indication that he knows his business is Hanna's announcement that he is not a candidate. He understands the perils that beset an early boom and how the people shy away from a man who wants the presidency and goes after it and then try to force it on a man who plays the game of running away from it.—Toledo Bee.

——The president's surrender to the anti-Evans pension grabbers is complete. The talk about continuing the Evans policy in the conduct of the pension department is belied by the fact that Evans is to be no longer in control. Roosevelt has tasted the sweets of power and now he is straining every nerve to be reelected to the high office. —Nashville American.

ALL ROUND CROOKEDNESS.

Crimination and recrimination over the proposed reciprocity agreement with Cuba are the legitimate outcome of the way in which the struggle has been conducted. The only class that has unanimously acted in good faith from the beginning is made up of the farmers who raise the sugar beet or intend to engage in that industry. They have been used as a political battering ram and then tossed to the junk pile. The manufacturers used them for an ulterior purpose and many of the members of congress who showed sleepless solicitude for the powerful agricultural element were up to their necks in the scheme. They stuck loyally to the farmer as long as he was a means to driving the trust to a purchase of the beet sugar factories, and are now deserting him with a cold-blooded admission that he never was a vital factor in the game, says the Detroit Free Press.

There is no way of telling what the trust may have bought in addition to the factories, but there is wholesale desertion on the part of those who had put up the horrible bluff that they would rend the republican party rather than permit a reduction of the tariff schedule as applicable to Cuba. As a result of some mysterious influence, enigmatic but scarcely occult, these boisterous and swashbuckling champions of the farmers are now welcome guests in the camp of the enemy. The whole story of the conflict is a disgraceful one and discouraging to those who work for an honest administration of public affairs. The reduction that the president and his friends declared absolutely necessary to give the Cubans a living chance has been reduced more than half. He went beyond the legitimate functions of his office in trying to hold his position and then resorted to questionable enterprise.

The senate said by vote that it had a right to confirm a reciprocity treaty made by the president, without reference to what the house might want. Senator Burrows now denies this proposition and stands by the Free Press in the attitude it took upon the question at the outset. The powerful lobby has been running the house and even forcing its way into the white house for conferences. Now it breaks and the men whom it controlled and who were going to die in the last ditch break with it. Their pleasant relations are not disturbed, though the sugar trust is in the saddle and the farmers are left to hold the bag. Their mistake was not in fighting alone and upon their own merits. With a monopolistic combine and practical politicians as allies they had about as much show as the lamb that called on the wolf for assistance.

EXPANSION AND PROTECTION.

The Republican Policy at War with the Acquisition of Insular Property.

Heretofore, when any great acquisition of territory has been added to the area of the United States—as in the case of the Louisiana purchase, the cession of Florida, and the later additions of territory ceded by Mexico and purchased from the Mexican government after the close of the Mexican war—the task of incorporation and subsequent assimilation has been left to the hands of a party with a genius fitted to the occasion. Under wise democratic administration and without stretching or straining of the limits fixed by the constitution nearly all the acquired territory has been state after state, incorporated in the body of the union, says the Philadelphia Record.

Following in the line of democratic precedent, the republican party would have had little or no difficulty in dealing with the people in the East and West Indies when the islands of Spain fell into our hands at the close of the late war. But there was a departure from "plain duty." The free trade which has been from first to last a binding tie between the people of the states and territories, and which, by leveling all barriers to commercial intercourse has built up the national prosperity, was denied to the populations of these islands. The principle of protection was at war with the policy of insular acquisition that followed upon the ratification of the Spanish treaty. The expenditure in blood and treasure in the effort to superimpose protection upon expansion is the awful price the country has been obliged to pay for the abandonment of democratic precedents in refusing to carry the constitution along with the flag. The dishonor attaching to our present treatment of the Cubans is only a further amplification of the same disastrous policy.

Almost Too Good.

The republicans threaten to pass the Crumpacker resolution for an investigation of suffrage conditions in the southern states only, with a view to diminishing their representation. The democrats see in this a new "force bill" issue, and a desperate attempt on the part of the republicans to get "one more congress" out of the old sectional and race issue. As this would instantly solidify, past need of campaigning, every southern and border state, and cause a sharp reaction against the party in power among the business interests that have large investments at the south, it seems an incredible folly. Coming on top of the Philippine fiasco, the denial of justice to Cuba and the refusal to mitigate any portion of the tariff for monopoly only, it would be almost too much luck for the reviving democrats.—St. Louis Republic.

PRUNING CHERRY TREES.

Until the Bearing Age Is Reached This Operation Is One of Paramount Importance.

Authorities on the subject have fallen into the habit of saying that cherry trees need "practically no pruning whatever." Of course this is a general statement, which, like most general statements, does not contain all the truth or all the facts. It is somewhat misleading also, to the inexperienced fruit grower; for he, naturally, is inclined to apply such a rule to every cherry tree on his farm, regardless of variety, age or condition. My own observation and experience convince me that most cherry trees need regular and systematic pruning until the bearing age is reached. After that, if the first five or six years' trimming has been properly attended to, very little if any pruning is required.

Commercial cherry orchards are rarely seen in Michigan or Ohio, but in New York state, California, Idaho, etc., cherry culture has received much attention. Personally I take great pride and pleasure in a little block of 50 trees which I set with my own hands four years ago. The varieties are mostly Montmorency and Early Richmond, with a few sweet varieties such as Gov. Wood, Windsor, Black Tartarian and Yellow Spanish. For four years this little cherry orchard has received the same care and attention that my peach and pear orchards have. Each spring the trees have been pruned; each winter moderate amounts of stable manure and wood ashes have been applied; each year the orchard has been plowed and regularly harrowed. Spraying (for the slug which attacks the leaves) has been attended to; and, early in August, the ground has been "seeded down" to oats or rye or crimson clover.

The result is exceedingly satisfactory. The cherry trees have made a splendid growth, and are shapely and thrifty and promising. I bought these 50 trees for about $6 four years ago; to-day I would not take $100 for the orchard. Indeed, if I am not greatly mistaken, and if I live long enough, I expect to see seasons when I can market $100 worth of cherries from these 50 trees. That is not an extraordinary expectation, either. It's fully within the bounds of reason, judging from the yield and net profit derived from occasional door yard cherry trees in this neighborhood.

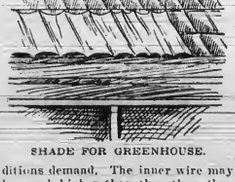
But, of course, to attain such success with cherries—or any other fruit—the location must be right, the soil and climate congenial, and the details of cultivation must all be attended to. And, in my opinion, pruning is one of the essential details. It is true, however, that cherry trees require much less pruning than do other fruit trees. A very little suffices. The accompanying photo engraving shows the amount of "brush" removed from an average Montmorency tree last spring. As you will notice there were no "big limbs" removed; nothing but small and occasional twigs and branches that threatened to cross or grow inward. By pruning a little every year, no necessity for removing large limbs has existed; nor should it exist.

My aim has been merely to remove surplus branches, which either hung so low as to interfere with horse cultivation, or which promised to make the center of the tree too dense, or which interfered with other branches. I have never "headed back" the limbs (as is customary with peach or pear trees) and I have always been careful not to shock the trees by over-pruning in any one year. No case of bark-burst or injury has ever resulted from this pruning. The sweet varieties of cherries, I find, require less pruning than the sour varieties; and the Montmorency needs less trimming than does the Richmond. Each variety has its own peculiar habit of growth, and should be treated accordingly.—Walter E. Andrews, in Ohio Farmer.

Standard Box for Apples.

A standard apple box has been adopted by the Inland Empire Horticultural association, of Washington. The box is to contain 2241 cubic inches of space and will be made in two shapes in order to conform to the different varieties of apples. One size will be 10x11x12¼ inches inside measure and the other will be 10½x11x18 9-16 inches inside measurement. The official standard adopted by the association is slightly over a bushel. Each box of apples is to be branded "One bushel." The next legislature will be urged to adopt a standard by law, coupling therewith a penalty for using any other.

MAKING FARM HOTBED.



If You Have Neglected to Construct One This Year Save This Advice for Next Season.

The site for a bed should be on a slope facing south, and if sheltered on the north and west by buildings or grove so much the better. Mark a space on the ground at least one foot larger each way than the sash to be used. Throw out earth to the depth of two feet, which should be done in the fall. Fill this with horse manure having plenty of litter in it. Tramp it down firmly. Make a frame the size of the sash, set it over the pit, and put the sash on; if the frame is built so the sash fits inside, and cleats are nailed on the inside inch from the top to hold it, the sash cannot blow off or slip out of place. The north end sash should be from four to six inches higher than the south end. Bank round the outside of frame with horse manure. The heat at first will be too intense, but when it has subsided to about 80 degrees put on five or six inches of the best soil obtainable, and sow the seed. Keep the temperature at from 70 to 75 degrees in the day time, and do not let it get below 55 at night. At night it may have to be covered with blankets or mats if very cold. Do not remove sashes to give air immediately after removing covering or the plants will damp off. Make the hotbed about April 1 and sow in it tomatoes and peppers. Sometimes it is best to start plants in boxes in the house, then about April 20 make a hotbed and transplant into it, giving each plant from four to six inches space each way. In this way tomatoes will be in blossom when it is warm enough to set them in the open air, which will generally be from June 1 to 10. Nothing is gained by putting them out as long as it is cold and frost may destroy them. Be sure to give plenty of air on warm sunny days. I lost a fine lot of plants one spring by neglecting to raise the sash one morning, says the writer; at noon when I went to look at them they were all dead, scalded as if by hot water. As the weather becomes warmer remove the sashes altogether in the day time, replacing at night. A couple of days before setting in the open ground, water very sparingly. Then take up carefully with as much soil as possible and transplant.—Farm, Stock and Home.

SHADE IN GREENHOUSES.

Simple Device Which Prevents All Danger from Injury to Tender Plants by the Hot Sun.

Shade in greenhouses to protect plants against the hot sun becomes more necessary as spring advances. A simple device to obviate such ill effects is shown in the sketch herewith. Two wires are stretched above the bench, and on these is hung, with brass rings, a length of cotton cloth, to be pulled over the plant or shoved aside to one end of the house, as conditions demand. The inner wire may be much higher than the other, thus being out of the way. The cloth will thus be nearly at the same angle of the slope over the bench as the glass roof. Each bench in the greenhouse can be thus provided with covers at a trifling expense of time or money.—Farm and Home.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Do not any longer put off getting your garden seeds.

Cut away old and dead portions of the raspberry, blackberry, currant and gooseberry bushes.

The average cost of growing an acre of sugar beets in Colorado, exclusive of rent of land, is about $30.

Sunlight let into gooseberry bushes will reduce the number of those that produce mildewed berries.

Make up a list of plants and bushes needed this spring to keep up the assortment in your berry patch and to replace the dead and dying.

Under proper culture and protection from fire Norway spruce can in 25 or 30 years be grown of sufficient size to furnish a crop of wood for paper pulp.

The berry patch can be cleaned out now with less work than at any time between now and this time next year. Don't forget this till the bushes are all leaved out.

A strawberry grower found that by removing one-third of the berries from the vines, allowing only the best to grow, he got one-third more berries by the measure, and that when sold in market they not only paid for the labor, but increased the profit.—Farmers' Voice.

Club Root of Cabbage.

The treatment of this disease by fungicides has not proved successful up to the present time, and until some better means of combating this pest is found, the best plan will be to starve it out of the soil by growing other crops upon which it cannot thrive. The same land should not be used for cabbage and allied species oftener than once in three or four years. All materials, such as stumps of cabbage and root trimmings of turnips, which are capable of spreading the disease should be destroyed.—Midland Farmer

Fictitious.

It is very seldom that we pay much attention to reports circulated in reference to the virtue of a patent medicine, as we have always considered that reports of this nature were more or less fictitious and gotten up for the purpose of creating a demand from the public. But the publication in various papers of the wonderful results obtained from using that famous remedy St. Jacobs Oil, and Jr.● the fact that it is a remedy for outward application only, led us to make trials of it in our own family. One, a case of lumbago of long standing which had previously resisted every form of treatment, was permanently cured by a few applications of the Oil. Another was a sprained ankle, with severe pain. This was instantly relieved and permanently cured in a few days by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, while for severe toothache and neuralgia it acted almost like magic, so quickly did the pain depart after the Oil was applied. Our own experience in using the Oil, as above indicated, was so highly satisfactory that we determined in the interest of the general public to make a thorough local investigation among dealers and others who have sold and used St. Jacobs Oil. Recognizing Messrs. Taylor and Co. as head-quarters for all proprietary medicines, we called at their Briggate Store, and on making known the object of our visit to the general Manager, he stated that their three stores in Leeds were selling more than a thousand bottles of St. Jacobs Oil every week, and the trade was constantly increasing—that it was the most popular remedy sold and was highly spoken of by everyone who used it. The Manager said he had heard hundreds of people say they had been permanently cured of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, and similar complaints by the use of this famous Oil.

LARGE INCREASE IN NAVY.

Indications Point to Congressional Action Which Will Add Many Ships to the List.

All indications point to a large increase in the navy at this session of congress. The naval committee is considering the appropriation bill, which provides for an increase of the naval force both in ships and men. There is scarcely any doubt that the committee will authorize the increase recommended by the secretary of the navy.

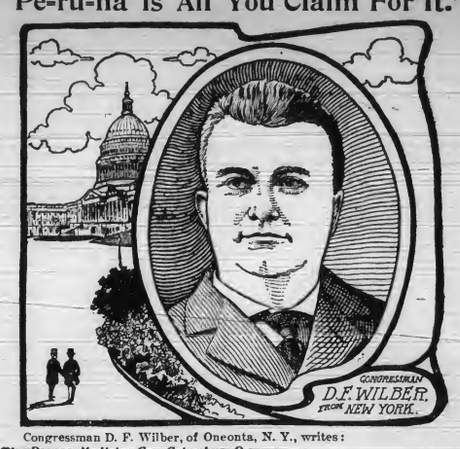
If this is done there will be three new battleships of the first class, two armored cruisers of the first class, three gunboats of 1,000 tons displacement, three gunboats of 200 tons displacement for insular service, three picketboats of 650 tons displacement, three steel sailing training ships of 2,000 tons displacement, one collier of 15,000 tons displacement, and four tugboats.

It is also highly important that the number of seamen and marines be increased as well as the officers. The bill is likely to provide for an increase of 3,000 seamen, 750 marines, as well as additions to the corps of constructors and civil engineers.

Secretary Long has recommended that the number of lieutenants be increased from 300 to 350, and that the limit of the number of junior lieutenants and ensigns be fixed at 600, which is a large increase. This recommendation is likely to be adopted. Secretary Long again has recommended the grade of vice admiral, but there seems some doubt whether this will be agreed to.

NORDICA IN A TEMPER.

Sings at Concert in Kansas and Finds That Her Music Has Been Transmitted by Telephone.



Lillian Nordica sang to an audience of 2,000 persons at Wichita, Kan., the other night. A unique feature of the concert was the transmission of the music by telephone to various parts of the city, also to other cities, even to Kansas City. Receivers the size of the ordinary telephone mouthpiece were placed among the footlights. Mme. Nordica did not learn of the shrewd arrangement for the telephone concert until a few minutes before singing the last number. She was indignant and almost refused to sing the closing selection.

Mme. Nordica said after the concert that never again would she sing into a telephone, and that hereafter her managers would investigate the stage to see if there were any receivers secreted. She said that those who heard her by telephone would have a false impression of her singing.

CONGRESSMAN WILBER SAYS

"Pe-ru-na is All You Claim For It."

Congressman D. F. Wilber, of Oneonta, N. Y., writes:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen:—"Persuaded by a friend I have tried your remedy and I have almost fully recovered after the use of a few bottles. I am fully convinced that Peruna is all you claim for it, and I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are afflicted with catarrhal trouble."—DAVID F. WILBER.

Peruna a Preventive and Cure for Colds.

Mr. C. F. Given, Sussex, N. B., Vice President of "The Past-time Boating Club," writes:

"Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave after-effects on my constitution the most of the winter.

"Last winter I was advised to try Peruna, and within five days the cold was broken up and in five days more I was a well man. I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it."—C. F. Given.

Gave New Life and Strength.

Mr. Edward Laws, Crown Point, Ind., writes the following:

"I must tell you what a grand help Peruna has been to me. For over two years I suffered with catarrh of the lungs and throat, and although I doctored for it, nothing brought me relief until I tried Peruna. One bottle helped me greatly, and three more effected a complete cure, while at the same time it gave such new life and strength to my whole body that I feel like a new man and ten years younger.

"I hope that my testimonial may induce others who are similarly afflicted to try Peruna."—Edward Laws.

A Prominent Singer Saved From Loss of Voice.

Mr. Julian Weisslitz, 176 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., is corresponding secretary of The Sangerlust, of New York; is the leading second bass of the Sangerlust, the largest German singing society of New York, and also the oldest.

In 1899 the Sangerlust celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a large celebration in New York City. The following is his testimony:

"About two years ago I caught a severe cold while traveling and which settled into catarrh of the bronchial tubes, and so affected my voice that I was obliged to cancel my engagements. In distress, I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but illy describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down.—Julian Weisslitz."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

OIL has been struck in Lincoln county. With both gold and oil Lincoln will become an important piece of Kentucky territory.

JUDGE PRATT entered on his duties as attorney general Saturday and Judge Breckinridge began his canvass for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

THE Rivers and Harbors bill now pending in Congress, carries an appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of a lock and dam in the Ohio river between Home City Ohio, and Cullum's riffle.

IT is estimated that fully 20,000 people in this state are financially interested in the "wild cat" investment companies that infest Lexington, and are now being investigated by a Fayette county grand jury.

SOUTH CAROLINA did the handsome thing in entertaining President Roosevelt upon his visit to the Charleston Exposition, last week. The President was given to understand that he is the President of this entire country.

FROM the looks of the vote polled in the election for Judge of the Superior Court in Cincinnati a few days ago, Democrats are rapidly disappearing from the scene of political action in that city. They appear as one to two in the returns.

THE Courier says Grant county will lose one hundred thousand dollars by investment companies. Taking into consideration the amount said to have been lost in these companies it looks very much like the other fellows, the promoters, have made a success of the business.

THE secret service department of the dominion customs has made a seizure of from $10,000 to $15,000 worth of false teeth which had from time to time been consigned from New York to a well-known dental manufacturing firm in that city and through an alleged conspiracy were passed through the custom house free, in Montreal, Canada.

A GOOD authority says, there is no more profitable animals on a farm than a good pair of draft mares. A mare will do the work of a horse and furnish a good colt for the market each year. Moderate work, the only sort that should be required, will at no time, except for a few weeks before and a shorter period after foaling, injure the mare.

THE oldest man in the world is Noah Raby, of New Jersey, who celebrated his 129th birthday recently. The fame of this extraordinary man has penetrated all over the country, and people are in the habit of flocking from all parts to celebrate his birthday. Raby is gradually growing very weak, and his friends are fearful that the old man will not live to see another birthday celebration.

Warnings are being sent out by the State Commissioners of Agriculture all over the northern and eastern parts of the United States against the great swarm of seventeen-year locusts, which will make its appearance next month. After sleeping under ground for nearly two decades the insects will come out in May in enormous numbers, and fruit growers especially, will have reason to fear for the safety of their trees.

ONE of the bills passed by the present Legislature prohibits the selling of any quail, partridge or pheasant in this State, or shipping them out of the State, for a period of two years. Persons who kill quail may give them away, but the new law fixes a penalty of 50 dollars fine for any attempt to sell them or ship them out of the State. The law also places a license of 25 dollars on nonresident hunters.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by all druggists.

GENERAL MILES' plan of campaign in the Philippines was turned down by President Roosevelt and Secretary of War Root because the "trouble in the Philippines is over." March 23, General Davis, stationed at Zamboanga, Mindanao, reported that a detachment of the signal corps had been attacked by 200 well armed natives, one American killed and the transportation of the detachment captured, including four mules. The Presidential assertion and the Philippine fact do not track.

THE Kentucky congressman's time of seed-sowing is past. Under the law all garden seeds not already sent out reverted Tuesday to the government. It may be stated that a precious small percentage of the seeds allotted to Kentucky congressman reverted. This was campaign year and the congressman had need of those seeds. Doubtful localities were literally sown with garden seeds and seeds were used as a healing salve to allay soreness among the congressman's constituents. The garden seed is a very formidable lever when it comes to running a political machine.

Ex-Mayor O. M. Wood made a pleasant and profitable trip to Boone and Gallatin counties last week and came back greatly pleased with the prospects. Representative men of those counties have gone to work and are raising their proportion of the expense money and seem enthusiastic over the prospect of building the road. At a meeting held at Union, Col. Berry and Mr. Wood made speeches and they were heartily endorsed. It is absolutely essential that our people work hard and press the matter, for now is the accepted time and it will take hard work and money too, to accomplish tangible results.—Carrollton News.

THE bill prescribing a form of government in the Philippines, as reported in the Senate by Senator Lodge, provides that the commission may establish popular representative government in the islands so far and so fast as the communities show their capability. As soon as complete peace shall have been established a census is to be taken showing the capacity of the inhabitants for self-government. The full powers of the commission are continued. The Philippine Government is authorized to establish a mint at Manila, and any owner of silver bullion of the value of one hundred dollars or more may deposit the same for coinage into dollars containing 416 grains. The silver dollar is made the legal tender in the islands.

Good for Rheumatism.

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman. After two applications of this Remedy I was much better, and after using one bottle, was completely cured.—SALLIE HARRIS. Salem, N. J. For sale by all druggists.

MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

143 Market Street, - Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901.

In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 31, 1901. The baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again. Mrs. J. W. C. SMITH.

MURDER IN CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, O., April 12.—William Frank, a resident of Birmingham, Ala., was shot and killed by Charles Anderson, the divorced husband of the woman Frank married Thursday in this city.

The tragedy was the result of jealousy on the part of Anderson, who had been divorced from the woman some time. Frank and his wife met last summer, their acquaintance culminating in marriage, Frank having come from Birmingham Sunday for the event.

For the past few weeks Anderson has been threatening to kill Frank. Friday while Frank and his wife were walking towards their home Anderson came upon them. He was greatly excited. He took hold of the woman's arm and demanded if she had married Frank. Being too frightened to reply, her husband said that she was his wife. Thereupon Anderson drew a revolver and fired two shots into Frank's breast, killing him. Mrs. Frank ran back to her mother's house and Anderson surrendered to the police.

Washington, April 12.—Representative Moody, of North Carolina, reported from the house committee on agriculture the bill establishing a national forest reserve in the mountain forest regions of Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. The bill carries an appropriation of $10,000,000, of which $2,000,000 is immediately available. The report sets forth the need of preserving this region and argues that the national government is the only power to conduct a work of this magnitude.

Bristol, Tenn., April 12.—The report ed battle in Scott county, Va., between Jim Wright, wanted in Hancock county, Tenn., upon the charge of murder and his associates and a sheriff's posse, in which five officers were killed and two wounded is authoritatively denied. A telephone message from Church Hill, near where the battle is said to have occurred, states that no such fight took place, although there had been a rumor to that effect. A posse is searching for Wright, but it seems that he has not been located yet.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP

The Banquet Held at the Charleston Hotel in the Evening Was a Fitting Close to a Day Full of Incidents.

Charleston, S. C., April 9.—The president's train reached Charleston on time. The party did not come into the city, but left the train five miles out, where trolley cars were waiting to convey them to the naval station to take the revenue cutter for a tour of the harbor. The president's immediate party went directly to the naval station, where they were joined in a few moments by the reception committee and invited guests from the city.

The president and his party were shown about the station and then were conducted to the pier, where the revenue cutter Algonquin was in waiting. As the president set foot on the deck the flag of the commander-in-chief of the army and navy was raised and the jackies were paraded, while a salute of 21 guns was fired. In the stream the cutters Forward and Hamilton were lying and further down towards the city the cruiser Cincinnati and the training ships Topeka and Lancaster were stationed.

The president, accompanied by a few of his party and members of the reception committee, boarded a small steamer which came alongside the revenue cutter and was taken over to Ft. Sumter.

Upon arriving at the wharf, the president, escorted by a troop of cavalry, was driven to the residence of Andrew Simmonds, where an informal reception was held and a buffet lunch served, after which the party was escorted to the St. John's, where a brief rest was taken.

The banquet tendered to President Roosevelt Tuesday night at the Charleston hotel was a fitting close to a day full of incidents and served to gather together men prominent in the affairs of state, having solely in mind a greeting to the president.

Charleston, S. C., April 10.—Greeted and honored by manifestations of the respect and esteem of enthusiastic thousands, President Roosevelt was the guest of the South Carolina interstate and West Indian exposition Wednesday. The events of the day began with a grand procession through the streets of Charleston and afterwards there were speeches in the exposition auditorium, the presentation of a sword to Maj. Micah Jenkins, a luncheon at the Woman's building and inspection of the grounds and buildings. The enthusiasm of the people was unbounded and there was standing room only on the sidewalks and porches and doorways and in the wide piazzas of the houses along the line of march.

Summerville, S. C., April 11.—The visit of President Roosevelt and party to the south terminated here Thursday. No special programme had been arranged. When the president came down stairs Thursday morning he held an informal reception in the hotel parlors and shortly afterward, accompanied by most of his party, was taken for a drive to Dorchester, the site of the old Spanish fort, under the escort of Capt. F. W. Wagener and J. C. Hemphill.

The tea farm of Dr. Shepard, not far from the Inn, was next visited, and as the president alighted from his carriage a number of diminutive Negro pickers lined up in front of Dr. Shepherd's house and sang the Star Spangled Banner, America and other patriotic airs.

The train pulled out for Washington amid the cheers and hurrahs of an immense crowd which had gathered at the station. Through the towns that the president passed on the return journey crowds of cheering people lined the tracks to catch a glimpse of Mr. Roosevelt.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Prince Henry's Visit Will Not Affect It One Iota.

Berlin, April 11.—The Berliner Volks Zeitung publishes what purports to be a letter from an unnamed United States senator, living in New York, to a Berlin merchant, in which the writer says that the Germans are quite mistaken if they suppose that the visit to the United States of Prince Henry of Prussia will affect America's adherence to the Monroe doctrine one iota. America, continues the letter, showed the world it knew how to treat a prince and entertain him better than could be done anywhere else in the world.

THE BOER LEADERS.

London, April 14.—The announcement of the presence at Pretoria of the Orange Free State and Transvaal leaders and generals who have been at Klerksdorp considering terms of peace has caused a decided increase in the hopefulness of the public concerning the possibilities of peace.

The expectations aroused by the conference at Pretoria have been further heightened by the movements of Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, and other members of the cabinet in London, and evidences that important dispatches are passing between Lord Kitchener and the government.

A conference of members of the cabinet was held Saturday night at midnight at Mr. Chamberlain's house. Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Broderick, the war secretary; Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the chancellor of the exchequer, and the duke of Devonshire, president of the council, were present. The conference terminated at 1 o'clock Sunday morning and Sunday Mr. Chamberlain and several of the colonial officials were in their offices. Messengers passed between them and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach at his residence.

Sunday afternoon Mr. Chamberlain drove to Buckingham palace and remained with King Edward for two hours. During the afternoon messengers carried dispatches from the foreign office to Lord Salisbury, who, with Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the house of commons, was at Hatfield house.

These outward signs of Sunday activity have not been supplemented by any authentic or official statement.

The comparatively brief duration of the conference at Klerksdorp is regarded as an indication that the Boer leaders found little difficulty in agreeing upon some basis of negotiations. The transfer of the negotiations to Pretoria, where both Lord Kitchener and Lord Milner, the British high commissioners in South Africa, are at present, is interpreted by the morning papers as meaning that the Boers are prepared to make formal peace proposals.

The latest reports received here from the Boer headquarters at Brussels and The Hague declare that delegates will raise no opposition if honorable terms are granted, and that the Boer leaders in South Africa have agreed to accept the maxim obtainable.

CHOLERA IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The Situation in the Provinces Is Becoming Alarming.

Manila, April 14.—The cholera situation in Manila continues much the same, but the conditions in the provinces are becoming alarming. The United States army transport Grant, while on her way to Samar island, put into Legaspi, in Southern Luzon, having on board a teamster who had the cholera. The Grant asked for assistance, but was placed in quarantine for five days. As her supplies of water, food and coal were limited, she decided to return to Manila. The teamster died of the disease. Four Americans have been attacked with cholera in Manila and one of them died.

ENDED HER LIFE.

Grief Over Her Son's Trouble Caused Mrs. Goldman to Commit Suicide.

Chicago, April 14.—Grief over the difficulties in which her son had become involved is believed to have caused Mrs. Fannie Goldman, of Toronto, Can., to end her life in a room at a Madison street hotel. Mrs. Goldman had been dead several hours when found. She had ended her life by first drinking carbolic acid and then turning on the gas from three jets that were in the room. Mrs. Goldman came here last Friday in response to a letter from her son Jacob, who is in the county jail awaiting removal to the Pontiac reformatory for violating his parole.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, April 8.—Senate—Considerable time was consumed Monday in a discussion of the conference report on the bill to reduce war revenue taxes. As passed by the senate, the tax on transactions in so-called bucket shops was retained. The conferees struck out that provision, it being explained that the house would not consent to its retention. The conference report finally was adopted, 36 to 20.

House—The house passed the Chinese exclusion bill after incorporating in it several amendments which increased the drastic character of the measure. The principal one not only excludes Chinese by birth and descent, but all Chinese of mixed blood. The chief struggle was over an amendment to prohibit the employment of Chinese sailors on American ships. An amendment covering this proposition was at first ruled out on a point of order, but subsequently was modified to evade the ruling and was adopted, 100 to 74. As passed the bill practically re-enacts all the existing exclusion laws and incorporates with them the existing treaty regulations. It extends these exclusion laws to the Philippines and the other possessions of the United States, and forbids Chinese laborers in our colonial possessions coming in this country. The Philippine commission, by the terms of the bill, is directed to adopt proper measures for the enforcement of the provisions of the bill in the Philippines. The conference report on the war revenue tax repeal bill was adopted and the bill sent to the white house.

Washington, April 9.—Senate—A vigorous protest was made in the senate Tuesday by Mr. Cullom (Ill.) against the passage of the Chinese exclusion bill in its present form. Coming from the chairman of the committee on foreign relations the protest made a deep impression on the senate.

House—The first day of the debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill which opened in the house Tuesday was disappointing from a spectacular standpoint. There were no sensational clashes after the debate was actually begun and none of the bitterness which was expected to crop out on the floor or on the surface. The vote on the motion to go into committee of the whole to consider the bill, however, developed the lines of cleavage and showed that the democrats are quite as much divided on the question as is the majority. In the division which is regarded as practically a test vote on the bill 113 republicans and 63 democrats voted for the motion and 91 democrats and 39 republicans against it.

Washington, April 10.—Senate—Throughout Wednesday's session of the senate the Chinese exclusion bill was under consideration. Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) and Mr. Dillingham (Vt.) opposed the bill, and Mr. Turner (Wash.) supported it.

House—The feature of the second day's debate in the house on the Cuban reciprocity bill was an impassioned speech in opposition to the measure by Wm. A. Smith, a Michigan republican. The other speakers Wednesday were Ball (dem., Tex.) and Sparkman (dem., Fla.), both of whom opposed the bill, and Mondell (Wyo.), who advocated its passage. The indications are that the debate will be protracted. The demand for time to speak is great and there is now no expectation that general debate will be completed until next week.

Washington, April 11.—Senate—An effort was made late Thursday in the senate to obtain an agreement for a vote on the Chinese exclusion bill, but it was unsuccessful. The indications now are that the vote will be taken next Tuesday. The measure was under discussion during the entire session except for about an hour, in which time the post office appropriation bill was considered and passed. Mr. Tillman (S. C.) offered an amendment directing the postmaster general to buy metal boxes of uniform size for the use of the patrons of the rural free delivery service, at a cost not exceeding 50 cents each and to furnish them to the patrons of the service at cost. The amendment was adopted.

House—The debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill in the house Tuesday was devoid of enlivening features. The most notable speech of the day was made by Mr. Grosvenor (O.). Mr. Prince (Ill.) made a strong speech against the measure. The other speakers were Messrs. Lawrence (Mass.) and Miers (Ind.), for the bill, and Messrs. Weeks (Mich.) and Kleberg (Tex.) against it.

Washington, April 12.—Senate—When the Chinese exclusion bill was taken up Friday an agreement was reached that a vote should be taken on it next Wednesday at 1 o'clock. Mr. Teller (Col.) supported the measure in a brief speech, maintaining that it was necessary and that it was not in contravention of our treaty obligations with China. Some remarks which Mr. Depew (N. Y.) made Thursday concerning the proposed amendment to the constitution providing for the election of senators by popular vote, in the course of which he adverted to southern election methods, precipitated a lively three hours' debate in the senate.

House—Debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill continued in the house the principal speeches being made by Mr. Long (Kan.), a member of the ways and means committee, who from the first ardently auportped the proposition for reciprocity, and who originally favored a reduction of 40 per cent, and by Mr. Shafroth (Col.), who vigorously opposed the bill on the ground that the sugar trust, which he said was waging a war of extermination against the beet sugar industry, would be its chief beneficiary.

OUR CANADIAN TRADE

America Consumes More Lumber and Paper Than Any Other Nation, Which Comes Mostly From Our Northern Neighbor.

Washington, April 14.—The United States enjoys more of Canadian custom than the rest of the world put together. Attention is directed to this fact in that portion of "Commercial Relations of 1901" (now in press), which deals with United States trade with Canada, an extract of which was given out for publication by Mr. Emory, chief of the bureau of foreign commerce, Sunday. It is pointed out that so closely allied are trade conditions in this country and Canada that prosperity or depression in the United States immediately finds echo in the trade of our northern neighbors. In 1877 Great Britain lost to us her lead in the matter of goods sent into the dominion, and from that year forward, with but a slight interval, this country has steadily lengthened the gap. It is not as widely realized as it should be, says the report, that Canada is the best custom we have, excepting only Great Britain and Germany. Consul General Bittinger, at Montreal, in a report on the subject says:

"The United States does more business with Canada than with the whole of South America; as much as with central America, Mexico and the West Indies together; and nearly as much as with Africa, Asia and Oceanica."

"Our present tariff policy toward Canada," says the consul general, causes the building up of great manufacturing interests to compete with our own. If we seek trade in other countries, we must not deny them the opportunity to sell some of their products to us. Canada wants to send to the United States her lumber, wood pulp, hay, barley and minerals. The United States consumes more lumber and paper than any other nation in the world, and she should be glad to admit lumber and wood pulp free. If the United States would take off the duty on Canadian coal (which could profitably be sold only to a very limited extent along our eastern coast), our coal would be admitted into Canada free, and our sales of coal in the dominion would be double what they are at present."

Canada's total importation for consumption in the last fiscal year amounted to $181,238,000. Imports from the United States reached the splendid figure of $110,485,000, an increase of some $600,000 over the preceding year. Figures are given to show that the preferential tariff has failed to affect seriously trade movements. Dutiable goods from the United States showed a decrease of about $300,000 last year, but this is attributed in part to the growth of Canadian industries.

Arguments followed and the three men drew weapons and began firing.

REV. T. DEWITT TALMAGE DEAD

Funeral in Washington Tuesday—Burial in Brooklyn Wednesday.

Washington, April 15.—The Rev. T Dewitt Talmage died at 9 o'clock saturday night at his home in this city. It had been evident for some days that there was no hope of recovery, and the attending physicians so informed the family. The patient gradually grew weaker until life had passed away so quietly that even the members of the family, all of whom were watching at the bedside, hardly knew that he had gone. The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the brain.

Washington, April 14.—Arrangements were completed Sunday for the funeral services in this city over the remains of Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, who expired Saturday evening. The funeral will take place at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the church of the Covenant. The services will be very simple. There will be no funeral sermon, but short addresses concerning the life and works of Dr. Talmage will be made by men who have been intimately associated with him. Dr. Teunis S. Hamlin, the pastor of the church, and Dr. Thomas Chalmers Easton, of the Eastern Presbyterian church, of Washington, will both assist in the services. Dr. Samuel J. Niccols, of St. Louis, a lifelong friend, will make an address, and Dr. E. P. Terhune, of New Jersey, Dr. Howard Suydam, of Reinbeck, N. Y., and Dr. James Demarest, of Brooklyn, all school friends of the deceased, have been asked to assist. Music will be furnished by the male quartette of the Church of the Covenant.

At 9 o'clock Wednesday morning the interment will take place in the family lot at Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Silent tribute to the memory of Dr. Talmage was paid Sunday by thousands of people who walked past the residence on Massachusetts avenue, where the visit of death was marked by a cluster of violets tied with a streamer of black hanging at the right of the entrance.

Many intimate friends, including pastors of most of the Presbyterian churches of the city, were among those who called at the house. Messages of sympathy from nearly every state in the union and from England, Russia and other European countries came to the family during the day.

Gen. Wade Hampton Expired From Valvular Disease of the Heart.

Columbia, S. C., April 12.—Gen. Wade Hampton died Friday morning at 9 o'clock from valvular disease of the heart, having been unconscious for several hours.

The general had just passed his 84th birthday. Twice this winter he had sustained attacks that had greatly weakened him, but he rallied wonderfully. He was out driving a week ago, but it was evident his strength was deserting him.

Columbia, S. C., April 14.—In the presence of thousands of people who came to pay their last tribute of love and respect to the body of Wade Hampton, was buried in the old family lot in Trinity church yard Sunday. Every effort had been made by the family to have the funeral quiet, but those who attended the obsequies of John C. Calhoun, for which preparations were made by the state for a week, declare the demonstration Sunday afternoon was the greater.

The outpouring of people was spontaneous. Every railroad leading here was forced to run special trains. Veterans, their sons and daughters, military and municipal officers came from every county in the state.

During the short time Sunday the public was permitted to enter the Hampton house, several thousand people, including a great many Negroes, passed by the coffin. The procession included all the organizations, about 800 militia and the delegations from schools and colleges. All marched in double rank and close order and the line was a mile and a half long. All were on foot except Gen. Hampton's family.

LIEUT. GEN. MILES.

Gen. Brooke, Who is Miles' Senior Both in Service and in Age, Will Likely Be Appointed In His Stead.

Washington, April 14.—The issues are fairly joined between the lieutenant general and the secretary of war. The troubles, which began long ago under the Cleveland administration, have finally reached so critical a stage that the compulsory retirement of Gen. Miles at an early date is an open secret and is not denied at the white house. In explanation of President Roosevelt's position one of his close friends, who unquestionably speaks by authority, says:

"The question is not a personal one between Gen. Miles and Secretary Root. At present Secretary Root has on his shoulders a heavier burden than any other member of the administration. No man less strong could carry it all; and now, at the very time when he requires the most loyal support of every subordinate who wishes well to the army and the nation, he has to spend much of his strength in meeting the opposition to the commanding general. If Gen. Miles is retired it will be simply because after patient trial President Roosevelt feels that on the highest ethical grounds his retention would work grave and lasting injustice to the army as a whole.

As some of Gen. Miles' friends have said that it would be unfair to retire, it should be said in the first place that he secured his promotion to a brigadier generalship only through the similar forced retirement of Gen. Ord, he himself being jumped over a number of his senior officers into the vacancy thus created; and, in the second place, that the only action of the kind taken by President Roosevelt since he has been in office was in the case of Col. Noyes, who was compulsorily retired, after reaching the age of 62, on the recommendation of Gen. Miles. In other words, the general himself recommended and profited by the very action which his friends now fear may be taken at his expense. If he should go out before Gen. Brooke is retired, Gen. Brooke, who is Gen. Miles' senior, both in service and in age, and who did gallant and distinguished work as a volunteer in the civil war, would undoubtedly be put in his place as lieutenant general, as it is known that the administration has been very desirous of recognizing Gen. Brooke's long and faithful service. Gen. Brooke, during the civil war, rendered equally meritorious service with Gen. Miles; Gen. Brooke was the first to obtain a commission, and throughout the civil war he retained his advantage, ending the war as Gen. Miles' senior. After peace came Gen. Miles was promoted over Gen. Brooke's head. As Gen. Brooke will necessarily hold the position but a brief period before his retirement for age, Gen. S. M. B. Young is likely to succeed Gen. Brooke and Gen. Chaffee's promotion to follow two years hence."

Elpaso, Tex., April 14.—A battle at Juarez, Mex., Sunday between a Numidian lion and a wild Samalayuca bull was witnessed by thousands of people from all over the southwest and Mexico. One-fourth of the spectators in the amphitheater were American women. The battle continued fiercely for an hour. The bull was not fatally hurt, but the lion was gored fully 25 times and will doubtless die. His leg was broken and he was completely vanquished in strength and spirit. When the lion was incapacitated the Mexican authorities ordered the battle to be discontinued.

"I have not at any time made application for the place," he said, "and have not exerted myself to the extent of sending in a single letter of recommendation. The president mentioned it to me during my last visit to Washington, while I was there helping Attorney General Godard in the Colorado-Kansas irrigation case. I have not received any official notice of my appointment and until I receive it I will not say whether or not I will accept the place."

Mr. Ware had met Mr. Roosevelt only three times, but the president knew him through his writings.

OLEOMARGARINE BILL.

House Committee Decides to Accept the Senate Amendments.

Washington, April 12.—The house committee on agriculture, in order to expedite the bill's passage, decided to recommend the acceptance of the senate amendments to the oleomargarine bill. The opponents of the bill believe there are parliamentary difficulties still in the way of the final disposition of the measure, notwithstanding Friday's action. It is claimed that as the senate amendments make changes in the revenues they can not be concurred in until the house has considered them in committee of the whole. This, it is stated, will require a special rule and the opponents of the bill claim to have ground for the belief that this special rule will not be given.

CAME TOO LATE.

Henry Flutcher's Reprieve Came After He Was Hanged.

St. Louis, April 12.—Henry Flutcher, colored, was hanged for the murder of Louis Roth, white, aged 16, in August, 1900.

Nineteen minutes after the drop fell a telegram granting Flutcher a reprieve of 15 days was received by Sheriff Dickmann. This was a sequel to the discovery of new evidence.

Friends of Flutcher, including the pastor of the church which he attended, informed Chief of Detectives Desmond that they had found a woman who was an eye-witness to the shooting, and who stated that the Negro had fired his revolver only after being hit several times with a baseball bat. Tom Blackard Lynched Shortly After Killing the Marshal.

Fulton, Ky., April 10.—Frank Taylor, deputy marshal on the Tennessee side of Fulton, was shot down in cold blood and instantly killed Wednesday night by Tom Blackard, aged 23, a farmer residing near Dukedom, Tenn. At 10:30 Blackard was taken from the jail by a mob and hanged from a bridge, where he was afterward found dead by officers and citizens. Will Cavendar, a saloon man, was accidentally shot in the leg in attempting to capture Blackard.

Blackard had been drinking all the afternoon. Shortly after dark Taylor was walking down the street and met Blackard, who was accompanied by a boy. The boy spoke to the officer, who kindly responded: "Hello, old man." Blackard spoke up to the officer, saying: "Who in the —— are you talking to?"

Taylor replied: "To your friend."

After other insulting remarks the officer threatened to arrest him without further ado. Blackard drew a revolver and shot Taylor twice, once through the right breast and again in the head.

The officer fell to the ground, and as he sank down drew his revolver and handed it to Andrew Taylor, who was with him, saying: "Kill him, Andrew," and expired. Blackard and his companion fled, but Blackard was afterward captured by Deputy Smith and others after he had done all in his power to escape.

RIOTOUS STUDENTS.

Insubordination in the Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Lexington, Ky., April 10.—Insubordination at the Kentucky agricultural and mechanical college here came to a climax Tuesday night when in the dormitory Commandant Robert A. McKee was knocked down, deluged in slop water and egged by a division of cadets. After the evening inspection he was leaving the dormitory when a bucket of water was thrown over him from a second story window. He reentered the building and ordered the division to fall in. The order was obeyed, but suddenly the lights went out and he was knocked down, pounded with bad eggs and slop water poured over him. Wednesday morning he resigned and in chapel President J. K. Patterson announced that he would take charge of the military department, for the present. Commandant McKee was a captain in the Spanish-American war and was appointed to this office last September.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. D. B. Goode, a reporter who visited the college to investigate the matter, was egged, rocked and finally marched from the grounds by a crowd of about 200 excited students. Their reason for their treating him in this manner was objection to the matter being made public. The faculty is investigating the two incidents and endeavoring to learn who were the participants.

BERRY HOWARD'S CASE.

Again Postponed on Motion of the Commonwealth.

Pineville, Ky., April 11.—Deputy Sheriff R. W. Slusher, who arrested Berry Howard, lies at the point of death at the home of his brother-in-law, H. W. Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage

His Active Life. His Sermons for Many Years Published Weekly in Hundreds of Papers in This and Other Countries.

REV. T. DEWITT TALMAGE, D. D.

One of the world's greatest preachers has passed away. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, having devoted his life and wonderful talents to the pointing of others to the way of eternal life, has at last himself stepped over into the larger, fuller life of God's eternal day. The tenement house of clay has been given up for the one not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. The glories of the future home of the soul, which has been so often eloquently and graphically portrayed by Dr. Talmage in his sermons, has burst upon his vision as he sees face to face and realizes the force of the Scripture which his lips have spoken so many times: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

Death has been swallowed up in victory. As he fell asleep in Jesus and awoke in His likeness, this valiant soldier of the Lord Jesus Christ could exclaim in ringing tones of triumph: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" And as he passed on into the presence of his King and Saviour, the minor strain of the words: "The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law" have been lost in the mighty chorus of the redeemed with which his voice has mingled as they sing: "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Dr. Talmage was a firm believer in the Bible as the Word of God. The higher criticism could never shake his faith in the realities of all the Bible set forth. He frequently declared that he believed every jot and tittle of it between the covers of the book, every word of it as it stands. And it was because of this that his preaching was so vivid and forceful. He believed what he spoke. Did he speak of hell, he painted it as a reality and made his hearers believe that when the Bible talked about hell it meant exactly what it said. Did he undertake to set forth the realities of heaven, his graphic portrayal of Scriptural passages on the subject carried his hearers up to the very gates until they could almost see the white robed throngs passing through the golden streets. The pictures which he drew at times were startling, and his illustrations striking and forcible. Bible characters as he talked about them became living realities and that vagueness which generally surrounds sacred history in the minds of people was lifted, and Moses and Elijah, Daniel and David, and the others in the long list of Bible heroes stood out with a vividness that held the wrapt attention of his hearers and the readers of his sermons.

He was dramatic and sensational in his manner in the pulpit, but always with the purpose of emphasizing the message he was delivering. On one occasion, when it was time for him to begin his sermon, he went to the edge of the platform, buttoned his coat, raised his arms and whirling suddenly about dashed in running leaps across the platform, his arms waving like the sails of a windmill, his coat-tails flying behind him, and his trousers working above his shoe tops.

He had not spoken a word, and some of his congregation were ready to shriek, not knowing what to make of it, when Mr. Talmage stopped short, turned and walked back to the center of the platform and exclaimed, as the beginning of his sermon: "Young man, you're rushing to destruction!" And amidst the profound impression he had created he preached powerfully of the dangers of city life to young men who yielded to temptation, and made them realize that they stood on the very brink of hell.

Dr. Talmage did not belong to a class. He was a type by himself. His sermons were unique. His comment on his style of preaching was: "My positive mode of preaching seems to stir the hostilities of all earth and hell." In telling the story of his life he once said:

"Feeling called upon 15 years ago to explore underground New York city life, that I might report the evils to be combatted, I took with me two elders of my church and a New York police commissioner and a policeman, and I explored and reported the horrors that needed removal and the allurements that endangered our young men. There came upon me an outburst of assumed indignation that frightened almost everybody but myself. That exploration put into my church 30 or 40 newspaper correspondents, from the north, south, east and west; which opened for me new avenues in which to preach the Gospel that otherwise would never have been opened. Years passed on and I preached a series of sermons on amusements, and a false report of what I did say roused a violence that threatened me with poison and dirk and pistol and other forms of extinguishment, until the chief of the Brooklyn police, without any suggestion from me, took possession of the church with 24 policemen to see that no harm was done."

Dr. Talmage is said to have reached a far greater number of people with his sermons than any other preacher. The sermons he delivered to his congregation on Sunday appeared Monday morning in a syndicate of papers in this and other countries, and through these channels it is estimated that they reached 50,000,000 readers. He also made his influence felt as editor of the Christian Herald and as a constant contributor to numerous periodicals, and was a voluminous writer of books. He edited the Christian at Work from 1873 to 1876; the Advance of Chicago in 1877 and 1878 and more recently Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

Among his writings were the following: "Crumbs Swept Up," 1870; four volumes of sermons, 1872-1875; "Abominations of Modern Society," 1872; "Old Wells Dug Out," 1874; "Sports that Kill," 1875; "Night Sides of City Life," 1878; "The Brooklyn Tabernacle, a Collection of 101 Sermons," 1884; "The Marriage Ring," 1886.

Among his lectures the more prominent were the ones on the Holy Land and Athens, the material for which he gathered on his travels. The University of New York conferred on him the degree of A. M. in 1862, and he received that of D. D. from the University of Tennessee in 1881.

This busy, helpful, noble life of service was begun at Bound Brook, N. J., in 1832. He was the youngest of 12 children, five girls and seven boys. His father, David T. Talmage, was a farmer and well-known for his decision of character and good humor, while his mother coupled keen wit with marked amiability, traits which found a happy combination in the boy who was destined to fill the world with the sound of his powerful preaching.

When he was 18 years of age Dr. Talmage entered the University of New York city, but did not complete the course there, taking up instead the study of law. Not long after this he determined to enter the ministry, a calling which two of his uncles, a brother-in-law and three brothers were following, and in later years Dr. Talmage was gratified to see his own son Frank enter the ministry, and he is at the present time filling a successful pastorate at Chicago. Mr. Talmage completed his theological training at the New Brunswick theological seminary in 1856.

He became pastor of the Reformed Dutch church in Belleville, N. J. Later he went to Syracuse, and while holding a pastorate there he married his first wife, Miss Avery, of Brooklyn. Soon after he went to Philadelphia as pastor of the Second Reformed Dutch church, where he remained seven years. While in Philadelphia Dr. Talmage received three calls at once, to Chicago, San Francisco and Brooklyn. His fame as a pulpit orator had spread wide, and power to attract worshipers to his church brought demands for his services from many places. It was in 1869 that he accepted the call to the Central Presbyterian church of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dr. Talmage preached in the old church in Brooklyn for 15 months and then the congregation and membership outgrew the sanctuary. The organization therefore decided to build the first Brooklyn tabernacle. It was in the form of a horseshoe and inclosed half an acre. It was burned in 1872, after standing two years, during which time the 3,400 seats proving inadequate the capacity of the building was increased 300 more. Work was at once begun on a new tabernacle, which was dedicated February 22, 1874, with seats for 5,000 persons. It was then the largest Protestant church in America. After the church edifice had burned for the third time, in 1889, Dr. Talmage resigned his pastorate of 23 years, not asking his congregation to build a fourth time. In 1894 he accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church in Washington, D. C., and had made his home in that city up to the time of his death.

Dr. Talmage's first wife was drowned in the Schuylkill river during his Philadelphia pastorate, and two years later he married again, his wife being Miss Susan C. Whittemore, of Brooklyn, by whom he had several children. Two children, a boy and girl, were born to him of his first marriage.

With the impressive funeral services in the Church of the Covenant at Washington and the interment of the remains in the family plot at Brooklyn, passes from the activities of the earth life one of the greatest factors in the religious forces of the past century, but his words and his deeds live on. Like the ripples spreading out in ever-widening circle, the influence on the lives of the thousands who heard and read his sermons will continue and Talmage, the great preacher, though dead, will continue to speak.

HAM FAIR IN PARIS.

Peculiar Feature of Holy Week That Has Been a French Institution for Centuries.

"Ham Fair" in Paris, is a peculiar local institution that has existed for centuries. It is always held at the close of Holy Week, and had its origin in the custom, more or less universal in many European countries, for the peasants to terminate the long fasts of Lent by repasts in which ham figured as the chief food. From the country the custom was introduced into the cities, and everywhere throughout France, as, indeed, generally throughout Europe, the Easter morning breakfast consists largely of fried ham, says a London paper.

The "Ham Fair" is one of the few old relics of a past age that exist practically unchanged among the customs of the Paris of today. Pretty much the same sights are to be seen there almost these days as characterized the fairs of hundreds of years ago. One of the chief thoroughfares in the St. Antoine quarter of the city, the Boulevard Richard-Lenoir, is the place where the "Ham Fair" has been held for many years. It is a wide street, admirably suited for such a purpose, for there is ample room in the railway for the multitude of booths and stalls of the venders without blocking the ordinary traffic. It is in a section of the city renowned as the scene of many desperate historical episodes, particularly during the reign of terror, and which novelists have rendered familiar to American readers by their delineation of it as the hot-bed of the most dangerous classes of the French capital. The Bastile stood right in the heart of the Quartier St. Antoine.

From end to end of the long avenue stretches a continuous chain of venders' stalls of every conceivable variety. Some of them are big pretentious booths, decked out in flags of all nations and others are invisibly festooned, but the majority of them are simply improvised stands rigged from the rear end of country wagons and push carts.

In general appearance the thoroughfare looks not unlike an old-time street in many American cities on a market day, and before market houses were common. A close inspection, however, reveals hundreds of odd sights and picturesque phases observed nowhere else in the world outside of a Paris "Ham Fair." To the residents of the quarter the occasion is a general holiday. They march up and down the street, idling or marketing, as the case may be, and renewing acquaintances with friends from the country who had not been seen in the neighborhood since last year's fair day. Peasants from all parts of France, in their distinctive costumes, add an infinity variety to the picture.

An injury to the tongue is repaired by nature with more rapidity than is the case with any other part of the system.

HOME AND HOUSEHOLD.

Mud stains on black material may be removed by rubbing them with a raw potato cut in half.

Paint splashes on glass may easily be rubbed off with the edge of a penny dipped in cold water.

Linen may be made beautifully white by the use of a little refined borax in the water instead of using a washing fluid.

Wash fabrics that are inclined to fade should be soaked and rinsed in very salt water to set the color before washing in the suds.

Wash leather and not flannel should be used for needle-books, as the sulphur used in the manufacture of the latter causes steel to rust.

To remove grease from cloth, sponge it with a solution of salt in alcohol. The right proportion is one teaspoonful of salt to four of alcohol.

Never clear soup till the day it is wanted; the stock should be made previously, but soup should be freshly clarified or it will be cloudy.

To prevent soot in a chimney, make a brine of common salt and pour it over the coals used. This is said to keep chimney and flues beautifully clean.

When anything boils over on the stove sprinkle salt quickly over the place. This will prevent the fumes from rising and making the house smell disagreeable.

To see if paraffin oil is safe to use, put a few drops in a saucer and apply to them a lighted match. If the flame spreads over the surface of the oil reject it as unsafe, for under many circumstances it may explode. Good paraffin oil will only burn on a wick.

The secret of good packing is firmness and smoothness, and to attain that everything should be put in the trunk in layers. Before putting in the dresses have a firm layer of undergarments, and then proceed with the thickest and heaviest of your skirts.

FROM THE LATEST BOOKS.

Life may be "one grand sweet song" to a few, but the majority trip along to music written in ragtime.—Antrim, in Naked Truths.

"Art was made for joy. When it is anything else it's a dangerous explosive. Chemically separate certain natural elements and they rush together with a thunderclap."—James Hunker, in Melomaniacs.

I distrust a critic as I distrust myself. A critic never buys a book, and as often understands one. I do not quarrel with critics; I commiserate them as hopeless book invalids.—Alfred Henry Lewis, in preface to Folfville Days.

Art is at bottom only a creation of the spectator's imagination. A picture, a strain of music, would be nothing but color and noise were not their effect to stir our imagination, which does the rest. A ruin carefully restored, and therefore no longer appealing to the imagination, might as well not be. Woman, likewise, would be but a concourse of atoms, unless by her imitative genious and her power of conveying impressions she touched our imagination and suggested to it the sense of a larger life. Imagination is, so to speak, a peptone, assisting the mind's digestion and furthering the assimilation of its food. Women minister to our imagination, assisting thus toward our digestion of life.—La Claviere, in the Art of Life.

A PASTOR'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH.

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Peruna.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading women there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."—Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female disease.

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Everywhere the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

"I suffered for several years with headache brought on by nervous prostration. I was also afflicted with insomnia. I would get up in the morning more weary than when I retired and I used to dread the approach of night. Peruna came into my home as a welcome guest, and within three short months I was like another woman. I have now enjoyed perfect health for over a year, and those who have suffered as I did will know how happy I am."—Mrs. E. L. Brown.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, De Graff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy."—T. M. Mahon.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HOT WEATHER COOKING MADE EASY BY A KHOTAL

The Khotal is a stove which generates its own gas from ordinary kerosene. It gives the same results as the ordinary city gas range but has the advantage of being adaptable to country houses. It can be set up in the kitchen, wash house, or as a wood-shed. In fact, it can be moved around to suit its owner's convenience as it is not confined to one place by gas connections. It is smokeless, sootless, and has no trick to climb. It possesses the economy of an oil stove and the cleanliness, convenience of the expensive gas range. Send stamp for catalogue and price list of the various styles and sizes. Prices range from $5.75 upwards.

DANISH ISLANDS SCANDAL.

An Investigation That Republicans Are Anxious to Have Shut Off.

Representative Richardson, the democratic leader, sprung a sensation in the house at Washington by demanding an investigation into the alleged scandals affecting the honor of congressmen in connection with the purchase of the Danish West Indies. The demand was based on a copy of the secret report of Capt. Christmas, who figured as a go between in the transaction, and who claimed from the Danish government fulfillment of an alleged agreement to pay him ten per cent of the purchase money for his services as broker. In his report to the Danish premier Capt. Christmas claimed that he had been put to large expense in buying influence in congress and the press, and some names were used in connection with those charges, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

After the report was made there was a political change at Copenhagen which gave access to the secret archives. The Christmas report was discovered and has been used there in the endeavor to defeat ratification of the treaty. It has already been ratified by the United States senate, and when it goes into effect congress will be called on to pay the purchase money on which Christmas claims a commission of ten per cent. That suggested the sending of a copy of the incriminating report to Washington, and it found its way into the possession of the democratic leader in the house, who immediately on reading it demanded an investigation into the scandalous charges which affects the honor of its members.

For some reason the republican leaders were anxious to shut off, or at least to delay, the proposed investigation. The speaker was compelled to rule against his party associates on the question of its being a privileged question, and in spite of the strenuous efforts of Mr. Cannon to prevent immediate passage of the resolution the house finally decided to have the investigation proceed forthwith, and the speaker appointed a committee.

Mr. Richardson was careful to disclaim any indorsement of the charges made by this man Christmas, but for the honor of the house he wanted an opportunity given every member to clear himself from suspicion of connection with the scandal. It is not improbable that Christmas used names without warrant, and that his talk of spending large sums for the purpose of corrupting congress and subsidizing the press was wholly for the purpose of "bleeding" the Danish government. It is possible that he was himself victimized by sharp lobbyists who sold him "influence" they did not possess. That is as likely a solution of the mystery as any.

There are, however, facts suggesting the propriety of a searching investigation. It was known long ago that this man Christmas was circulating between Copenhagen, the Danish West Indies and Washington. He was reported as hinting at negotiations for the sale of the islands and he was said at that time to be in conference with some of those whose names are given in his official report. Everybody in authority in both countries disclaimed any connection with Christmas or knowledge of his mission. It was also denied, "from well-informed sources," that negotiations for the purchase of the Danish West Indies had been resumed.

Then it was suddenly announced that negotiations had been opened, and an agreement reached on all but one point. Shortly after a treaty for the purchase of the islands at a price of $5,000,000 was sent to the senate. Almost coincidentally the mysterious Christmas presented to the Danish government his brokerage claim of $500,000, and said he ought to be paid the full sum because of his heavy outlays in the United States to get the deal through.

Mr. Christmas may be a blufer, or a plucked pigeon, and it is probable that he is one or the other, but he has started a scandal that can only be disposed of by a prompt and thorough investigation. At the same time it is hardly to be expected that anything of consequence will be developed by the house inquiry.

——Many congressmen from interior districts are much disturbed at the prospect of having to explain to their constituents why they voted for the ship subsidy bill, if action is forced upon it at this session, and in that way their constituents will be benefited. Glittering generalities about "the restoration of our merchant marine" will not suffice. The question will at once follow, "How will it do it?" and "How will it benefit the western producer?" Such questions are not easily answered in a way to convince. Therefore, the probability is that the bill will be pigeonholed until after the congressional elections in November when its fate will depend on the way the elections go.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

——Speaker Henderson may be able to convince the people of his district that he is all right on the tariff question and that they are all wrong, but some of them show a disposition to argue a bit before the case is closed. There is some danger, however, so far as Speaker Henderson's sent is concerned, in the fact that the protected trusts don't do much voting in Iowa and are not so numerous and richly represented there as they are in Washington.—Toledo Bee.

THE FIRST STEP FATAL.

The Chicago Chronicle correctly estimates the effect of the ship subsidy bill should its friends succeed in engineering it through congress.

According to an estimate which seems to have been made by some advocate of the shipping grab bill the total annual cost of our ocean mail service under the provisions of the bill will be $4,700,000 and the annual receipts from all ocean postage will be $3,000,000, leaving an annual deficit of $1,700,000 on this account.

The amount to be paid for general subsidies, estimated on the basis of the number of vessels in the foreign trade in 1900, is placed at $1,072,000 and the amount of the deep-sea fisheries bounty at $475,000.

This would make a total expenditure of $2,947,000 in excess of the postal receipts.

This may be a fair estimate of the cost at the outset. Let us not forget, however, that the avowed object of the bill is to bring into existence a great merchant marine. If it fails to accomplish this object its advocates must admit that it is a failure.

Before the marine can become great under its provisions the cost will be enormous. This is virtually admitted by the friends of the bill in the senate when they voted down the Teller amendment limiting the total expenditure under both its branches to $6,000,000 a year and when they left the expenditure under the general subsidy absolutely unlimited.

Nor should we forget that if the bill is merely an entering wedge. Its purpose is to commit the country to a policy, as the London Times has pointed out. Our own history shows that when a policy of aid to any industry has once been entered upon more and more aid is demanded and granted and that it is next to impossible to scrape off the industrial barnacles.

The advocates of the subsidy grab understand this perfectly. They have no idea of resting content with the bill as it left the senate. It will not be long before they will appear with the plea that the measure has not been successful because congress has been too stingy. More will have to be granted before we can have that oversea merchant marine which is supposed to be so essential to the national welfare.

If at last enough should be granted to secure such a marine the bounty system would at once become as inviolable as the tariff, and for the same reason. The beneficiaries and their attorneys would assure us that a reduction of the bounties by the smallest fraction would ruin our oversea shipping, destroy our foreign trade and plunge the country into panic and everlasting ruin.

It is the first step that is fatal in all false economic policies. It should be resisted to the utmost, because when that step is once taken others are sure to follow. What begins as an infant in these cases is sure to develop into a gigantic master whose exactions are continually growing more intolerable.

The best time to quit paying subsidies is before we begin.

PRESS OPINIONS.

——Mr. Hanna is wise in declaring that he has no presidential ambition. Gen. Miles is suspected of having presidential ambitions, and look at all the things that have happened to Miles.—Detroit Free Press.

——President Roosevelt must find it very interesting reading to note what the broadest and best of the republican newspapers are saying about the retirement of Commissioner Evans from the pension office. Almost without exception these newspapers join their democratic contemporaries in looking upon the matter as a concession to the pension sharks and a step backward.—Savannah News.

——The policy of muzzling the free speech of all persons in the government service seems to be dashing along merrily. Now the president is reported to have directed Secretary Shaw to call Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Taylor to time for having given alleged "interviews" on a public question. Making it a misdemeanor for any official to let the people know how they are governed is quite in line with imperialistic notions.—Buffalo Courier.

——In less than 19 years Theodore Roosevelt, the young knight of politics who posed as the champion of the people, became the defender of the very people who were denounced by him as "part of an infinitely dangerous order—the wealthy criminal class." Theodore Roosevelt started out well. He reared a grand stronghold in his early strenuous years. But time has crumbled that fortification to pieces and to-day it stands a melancholy ruin, which appears to have been forgotten by the world.—Albany Express.

——It is a puzzle to the average American to think why our protectionists continue to fight bitterly for existing high tariff rates, while at the same time boasting of their ability to sell American manufactures largely in foreign markets. Year by year they sell more and more of their wares abroad and could sell a great deal larger quantities if they would systematically cater to the foreign demand. This means, of course, that they can undersell the foreign manufacturer in his own country and can undersell him here with ease. Then why—unless for pure hoggishness—do they still demand a law to enable them to keep out foreign goods.—Baltimore Sun.

DUMONT BUILDS NEW SHIP.

Santos-Dumont has finally recovered from the bad effect of being dumped into the bay by his airship and is devoting time now adjusting a new balloon, which is almost finished. This one is "Santos-Dumont No. 7." It is considerably larger than the one just destroyed, yet its two 45-horse power motors have been found too heavy for it. Therefore one has been removed, making the motive strength 45-horse power, instead of 90, as had been intended.

M. Santos-Dumont says his No. 6 cannot possibly serve again except for exhibition purposes. He has just signed an agreement to let the patched-up balloon be shown in the Crystal palace, London, from April 1.

He announces that work on another balloon will be begun immediately, because if he goes to the St. Louis exposition he wants to have two balloons in case an accident should happen to one.

Empress Eugenie has just sent to M. Santos-Dumont an album of snapshot pictures made by a young woman of her suite with an autograph letter graciously recalling her several visits to the balloon shed at Monte Carlo.

A Nasty Practice.

A nasty practice is what the Chicago Inter Ocean calls the pasting of repeated layers of wall paper, one upon another, thus covering up the filth and germs of disease that may be propagated in the very absorbent and decaying mass of flour paste, paper, animal glue, colors, etc.

They give opinions of eminent health officers and sanitarians, urging that such practice should be stopped by legal enactment, and also take occasion to say that these sanitarians recommend Alabastine as a durable, pure and sanitary coating for walls.

The Inter Ocean says: "This is a very important question, and, as it costs nothing to avoid this danger, why take any chances?"

How much of the alarming spread of smallpox and other diseases may be due to unsanitary wall coverings?

Mrs. Sophie Binns, President Young People's Christian Temperance Union, Fruitvale, Bal., Cured of Congestion and Inflammation of the Ovaries by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Eighteen months ago I was a pretty sick woman. I had felt for some months that I gradually grew weaker, but finally I had such severe pains I could hardly stand it. I had taken cold during menstruation and this developed into congestion of the ovaries and inflammation, and I could not bear to walk or stand on my feet. The doctor recommended an operation which I would not hear of. One of my friends advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a trial. Can you imagine my feeling when within two months I felt considerably better, my general health was improved, and my pains had entirely disappeared. I kept taking it six weeks more and am now enjoying the best of health, thanks to you. Yours truly, MRS. SOPHIE BINNS."

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

GEN. MILES has been forced to take his place on the retired list. His offence was that of entertaining opinions of his own.

THE Odd Fellows' Grand Lodge at a special meeting held in Lexington last week, decided to make no change in the plans for the Widows' and Orphans' Home. Money was appropriated to augment the fund now on hand and work on the building will begin at once.

REPRESENTATIVE RICHARDSON, minority leader in the House, declares that the Democratic party was never before so thoroughly compact and harmonious as at present, and predicts that it will carry the next House. He defines the paramount issue as militarism and imperialism.

BECAUSE the conductor forced her to ride in the compartment for negroes, Mrs. Louelia Thurman, of Harrodsburg, sued the Southern Railway for $10,000 damages. A jury gave a verdict for $4,000. The trainmen claimed that owing to her olive complexion they mistook her for a colored woman.

A PETITION 10,000 feet long and containing 3,000,000 signatures will, within the course of thirty days, be presented to Congress by the distillers and liquor dealers of the United States, who demand a reduction in the internal revenue tax on distilled spirits from one dollar and ten cents per proof gallon to 70c per proof gallon.

THE removal of a lot of burned baggage from the hold of a steamer from Naples on its arrival in New York the other day was the first intimation to the steerage passengers, numbering 835, that the vessel had been on fire. They saw the smoke of the fire, which broke out when one day out from Naples, but were satisfied by being told that the vessel was being fumigated.

SOME of the overseers of roads do not like the idea of the fiscal court fixing the pay of the Justices of the Peace at $3 per day, for two days, for inspecting their work on the roads, while they are allowed only $1 50 per day and that for not exceeding ten days. The road problem is the most vexing with which the fiscal court has to deal, and if the present administration succeeds in solving it, it will excell all its predecessors to a remarkable degree.

THE grand jury at St. Louis reports an extremely corrupt state of affairs in the municipal Assembly, with few exceptions no valuable franchise having been granted in ten years past without the legislators demanding sums from one hundred to a hundred thousand dollars for an individual vote and influence. One franchise cost 250,000 dollars in bribery fees, but it sold for over a million. The remedy while preserving popular government is a difficult one.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by all druggists.

REPORTS from the western states now seem to indicate a larger acreage of corn planted this year, and possibly more of the meadows broken up and put in the corn crop, but as these will probably be those which yield the least hay, the increased use of the corn shredder may make hay more abundant in the market another winter, if the season is at all favorable. When all the corn-growing sections save and shred their fodder, or put it into silos, they can either keep more stock or sell more hay. As the market is now the former would seem most profitable if stockers and feeders do not cost too much.

THE tobacco of the Philippines is grown in small patches, although one of the Manila tobacco companies has one plantation on which are several thousand hands. The average tobacco farm consists of but a few acres, and its owner produces but three or four bales of tobacco a year. The seed is first sown in beds, just as in the United States. After the plants have well sprouted they are set out about two or three feet apart; so close, indeed that, it is said, there are sometimes 10,000 tobacco plants to one acre. The planting is done late in the fall, and by March and April the leaves are ready for harvest. The crop must be kept weeded and every morning the plants must be gone over for worms. This work is done entirely by women and girls. The tobacco leaves are cured in sheds and then allowed to ferment, and then dried in the air. When ready for market they are put up in bundles of 100 leaves each, tied with strings of rattan. Forty such bundles make a bale, so that there are just 4,000 leaves to the bale. The bales are wrapped in mats of banana leaves and tied with rattan. In this shape they are floated down the Rio Grande or other rivers in covered boats to the seaports, whence they go by steamer to Manila.

Good for Rheumatism.

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman. After two applications of this Remedy I was much better, and after using one bottle, was completely cured.—SALLIE HARRIS. Salem, N. J. For sale by all druggists.

Hear some of the farmers complain that the wheat has no stool this spring, therefore a good yield will not be possible, as in a good crop of wheat a single grain of the seed invariably sends up several stalks in the spring.

In renewing her subscription to the RECORDER, Mrs. Lida Creamer, of Osborn, Mo., writes under date of April 16, "Still very dry in our country and very dusty, but to-day a gentle rain began falling. Best wishes for your paper and the many friends in old Kentucky."

J. F. Blyth had a fine sow to die the other day, and her actions just before death were so very strange, that Drs. Crisler and Clore held a postmortem, and discovered that her stomach was full of bones which she had chewed up and swallowed, and to them the doctors attributed her animals death.

Take a common iron poker, tie a short string to the end of it, wrap the string around your finger and put your finger in your ear, letting the poker dangle. Then strike the poker with a table fork at different places and you will hear all kinds of ohimes. It's new amusement under an old and well known name.

Hear that our bachelor friend, T. Z. Roberts, who resides down on Middle creek, has invented an automatic blower to be used in grates. It is a great fuel saver, and renders the burning of green wood as easy as the burning of coal or seasoned wood. With this blower in use there is no excuse for a poor fire.

County Judge Cason is in receipt of a letter from Mrs. Mary Loar, of Omaha, Nebraska, in which she claims that her father, Zachary Loar, died in this county about 45 years ago, possessed of considerable real estate located here, and asks that the records be investigated for evidence sustaining her claim. No one about here has any recollection of Zachary Loar.

The Great Dismal Swamp

Of Virginia is a breeding ground o Malaria germs. So is low, wet or marshy ground everywhere. These germs cause weakness, chills and fever, aches in the bones and muscles, and may induce dangerous maladies. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial troubles. They will surely prevent typhoid. "We tried many remedies for Malaria and Stomach and Liver troubles," writes John Charleston, of Byesville, O., but never found anything as good as Electric Bitters." Try them. Only 50c. W. F. McKim, Burlington; H. L. Eskew, Walton; Union Drugstore, Union, and O. N. Grant, Grant, guarantee satisfaction.

Circuit Court.

The grand and petit jurors were discharged Friday afternoon.

Thirteen indictments were returned, and, of course 13 was discussed as is usual.

When the case of the Commonwealth against Lon and Burl Henry was called for trial, Friday, Lon Henry failed to appear, when the bond for $200 for his appearance was forfeited and a bench warrant, with bail increased to $500, was ordered issued for his arrest. The prosecution against Burl Henry was continued.

The court recognized the witnesses in the Henry case in the sum of $100 each, and cautioned them that they must be on hand promptly on the second day of the next term, or they would have to pay the $100 or lay it out in jail.

The indictments returned were all for minor offenses.

The grand jurors are entitled to $120 and the petit jurors to $192 for their services. There was no money in the hands of trustee of the jury fund with which to pay them, and they went to their homes to await the coming of funds from State treasury for their benefit.

In the case of W. H. Goodridge vs. Veranda Goodridge, the court awarded the custody of the two children to the father, W. H. Goodridge.

The foreman of the grand jury says notwithstanding every effort was made to find out the parties who were guilty of stoning houses in Petersburg, sufficient evidence upon which to base an indictment could not be obtained.

Henry Florence, of Verona, an old ex-Confederate, was one of the petit jurors, last week, and there was not a more sprightly man among the 24, while several who were many years his junior, did not manifest near as much life.

Being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, I found quick relief, and for last ten days have felt better than for two years." PRINCE OF THE PULPIT

Washington, April 16.—Funeral services were held at the Church of the Covenant Tuesday afternoon over the body of Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, who passed away Saturday. The large church was packed and crowded to the doors.

The funeral ceremony began at 5 o'clock and lasted considerably over an hour. Rev. Dr. Teunis S. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, and Rev. Drs. Thomas Chalmers Easton, of this city; S. J. Nicholls and James Demarest, both of Brooklyn, officiated. The casket rested immediately in front of the pulpit, and over it was a massive bed of violets. The floral offerings were numerous, mostly of lillies of the valley and white roses, including a wreath sent from the white house by President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The members of the stricken families occupied pews on the right, while across the aisle from them were the honorary pallbearers: Justices Harlan and Brewer, of the United States supreme court, Senators Cullom (Ill.), Burrows (Mich.) and Dolliver (Ia.); Representative William Alden Smith (Mich.), ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster, Rev. Drs. Louis Klepsch, of New York, and Bittinger and Fiske, of this city; Dr. G. L. Magruder, of this city; F. E. Branch and F. M. Lawrence, life long Brooklyn friends of the dead minister, and B. H. Warner, of this city.

After the family had entered the male quartette sang "Lead, Kindly Light," a favorite hymn of Dr. Talmage, and during the services sang "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping" and "It Is Well With My Soul." Dr. Hamlin in his address pictured Dr. Talmage as one of the greatest clergymen of the century. He said Dr. Talmage in his marvelous word pictures always inspoke hope and cheer; that he placed at the hearts and emotions of the people instead of at their intellect.

Dr. Demarest referred to the student life of the deceased. He said Dr. Talmage some times had been charged with being sensational, but he was sensational because he must be, and it was natural. He had in his early college life shown the same marks of brilliant, meteoric genius that won their way to great achievements in the latter life.

Dr. Easton said that Beecher, Spurgeon and Talmage were the three greatest preachers of the century, but that the last named was the prince of the pulpit.

Dr. Nicholls referred to the dead man's philanthropic deeds and characterized him as a brave heart and noble soldier of the cross.

Dr. Hamlin closed the services with a prayer, asking the divine mercy and consolation for the stricken family.

Then the immediate relatives, first Mrs. Talmage leaning on the arm of her eldest son, Rev. Frank Talmage, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Wyckoff, of Utica, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Magnan, New York; Mrs. Donnau, of Richmond, and others of the family following passed to their carriages. Following this the crowd within the church passed before the bier. The casket remained in the church until late Tuesday evening, when it was placed on a special car attached to the Pennsylvania railroad train leaving here for New York at 12:10 o'clock a. m., where the remains will be interred at Greenwood cemetery in Brooklyn after services conducted by Rev. Dr. Howard Suydam, of Rhinebeck, N. Y.

A similar riot occurred in another part of Louvain and altogether five persons were killed and 12 were wounded. Some of the mob carried the dead and wounded to the Maison des Proletarios. Another riot is reported to have occurred at Bruges, in Flanders. Here the police charged the socialists with drawn swords and ten of the latter were wounded.

The rioting at Louvain began at about half-past 7 Friday evening. A band of socialists paraded the streets of the town smashing windows with bolts and rivets. They broke through the police cordon in the Rue Tirlemont. The civic guards stationed in the place Saint Antoin ultimately became hard pressed by the rioters and fired a volley. The guard fired a second volley in front of the Catholic club. It is reported that 12 policemen were wounded. In some quarters the number of wounded policemen is placed at 20 and several are said to have been mortally injured. All the streets of Louvain are barred and the maintenance of order has been assumed by the military.

THE BRITISH TERMS.

Boers Have Practically Agreed to Accept Them.

A Loyalist Afrikander Says the Boers Will Ask the British For a Large Sum and Clear Out of South Africa Altogether.

London, April 18.—Dr. Hans Sauer, a loyalist Afrikander, speaking at Bradford Thursday night was most optimistic concerning the peace negotiations. He said he thought it quite probable that the Boers would ask Great Britain for £50,000,000 or £90,000,000 and agree in return to clear out of South Africa altogether.

The Daily Mail claims to have authority to announce that bases of peace have been practically agreed upon at Pretoria, but says that some little time will elapse before the details of the plan can be perfected.

The paper adds that upon finding that the British government refused on Wednesday to modify its terms with regard to amnesty, banishment and a responsible government, the Boer delegates met again on Thursday.

The British decision practically leaving them the alternative of accepting the British terms or breaking up the conference was then communicated to them and the delegates proved much more reasonable.

When Lord Milner, the British high commissioner in South Africa, promised the delegates one or two seats on the executive council, subject to the approval of the government and pending the restoration of a reasonable government they practically agreed to accept the British terms.

Some details, continues the Daily Mail, which are not likely to create difficulty, still remain to be settled.

Lord Milner has summoned from Johannesburg an Australian expert who is to assist in estimating the cost of rebuilding and restocking the Boer farms.

The delegates, concludes the paper, have so far acted quite independently of their representatives in Holland.

London, April 19.—Peace negotiations have been postponed for three weeks. The announcement was made in the house of commons by Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, government leader, who said Lord Milner and Lord Kitchener had two conferences with the Boer delegates at their request. Kitchener, while refusing an armistice, agreed to give facilities for the election and meeting of representatives of the various commandos to consider the position. The Boer leaders have left Pretoria for this purpose, Mr. Balfour said, and it is not expected that negotiations will be resumed in less than three weeks.

The Audencia Court Accepted the Bond of $100,000 Offered.

Havana, April 19.—The audencia court accepted the bond of $100,000 offered by a fidelity company for the appearance of Estes G. Rathbone. The court requires, however, that this bond be drawn before a notary. This involves much time and expense, as the notaries fees and a state tax must be paid.

Rathbone's attorneys insist that the habeas corpus proceedings be continued and claim that the bonds should be drawn before the court as is customary without further delay or further expense. In the habeas corpus petition Rathbone's attorneys declare the court's delay illegal, and intimate that the court may be impeached for such action.

Gentlemen—I find Vogeler's Compound a remedy above all others, for about this time last year I was in a thorough bad state of health, and could hardly drag one leg after the other. I had tried dozens of remedies advertised to cure indigestion and all its attendant evils, but was rapidly going from bad to worse, when I had the good fortune to be recommended to take Vogeler's Compound. I did so without much faith, and am thankful to say it made a new man of me. I should like other people to know its virtues and how completely it knocks under the worst forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.—(Signed.) George H. Hodge.

Vogeler's Compound is the grandest remedy of the century for all stomach disorders and liver and kidney troubles in both men and women. It is sold in 2/6, and 5/6, sizes by all medicine dealers, and a free sample of liberal size will be sent to any address in the country. It is made by the proprietors of St. Jacobs Oil, Baltimore, from the formula of one of the most eminent living physicians.

"Yes, if you like, kind sir," she said.

She led him away to the ping-pong net, and then came an hour he'll never forget, for his shoulders ache from the many stoops to pick up the balls, and his eyelid droops, where she smote him twice with her racket small, which left her hand as she struck the ball, and he'll never play ping when she pongs again, for she heard him swear when she pinged him then.—Baltimore American.

OHIO RIVER DISASTER.

Lives Lost by the Burning of the City of Pittsburg.

Many Passengers Clung to the Burning Boat Until Overcome by the Fire or Water They Sank Down to Death.

Cairo, Ill., April 21.—The steamer City of Pittsburg, south bound, was burned to the water's edge at Ogden's Landing, 22 miles up the Ohio, at 4:05 a. m. Passengers 70, crew 70.

Partial list saved: James Neville, Dayton, Ky., boat carpenter; Emma Smith, Paducah, passenger; Archie M. Allen and wife, Pittsburg; L. H. McGraw, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Judge Walkey, Metropolis, Ill.; Arthur Shelby, Buckner, Ky., watchman; Mrs. Tunnymyer, Point Pleasant, W. Va., badly burned, an daughter; Margaret Bridges, Louisville, Ky.; Jennie Busick, Lexington, Ky.; C. K. Stallens and wife, Careysville, Ky.; Head Mate Shimers and wife, Miss Leech, badly burned; Pilot Pritchett, wife and child; Miss Marie Lisle, Carrollton, O., died after being on shore. Silvester Boss died after getting on shore. The captain, clerks and engineers, two engineer's stokers, two cooks.

Partial list of lost: Mr. Adams, Ohio, bound for St. Louis; Mr. Downs, Memphis; Tom Smith, steersman, Memphis; Patrick Adams, wife and ten children, Owensboro, Ky., bound for Morehouse, Mo.; Joe Ridding, Bud Jones, striker engineers, Cincinnati; Wm. Bollinger, steward, Cincinnati; a little girl named Sweeney, of Owensboro; L. L. Hunter, Litinti, Pa.; two cooks, two chambermaids and most of the deckhands.

The fire started in the forward hatch, larboard, and burned fiercely. The vessel was run ashore and escapes were made over the cabin railing. Very few of the passengers or crew were aware of the fire until too late. The captain and clerk claim in all 80 persons were lost, leaving 60 people lost or unaccounted for.

The steamer Maud Kilgore, Capt. Cole, brought the survivors to this place at 6 p. m., and the several societies of the city rendered all assistance in the way of clothing, etc.

The passengers lost all they had, and the books and papers on board were burned.

At Caledonia, three miles below the scene of the disaster, the flames could be plainly seen and the shouts of the passengers heard, and the people put out in skiffs to the wreck. They assisted in saving some of the passengers among these Mrs. S. R. Leach, of Bridgeport, O., who was terribly burned about the head; Mrs. Fennimore, of Arbuckle, W. Va., who was burned about the hands and face, and Mrs. Fannie McCullum, of Leavenworth, Ind., who was burned about the breast.

Many passengers clung by finger tips to the burning boat, with bodies submerged until overcome by fire or water, they sank to death. Wesley Neeley, a fisherman, rescued two from the wheel house. One was a man and the other a woman. The latter clung to the boat until her hands were burned.

Capt. Wesley Doss, who lost his life, had been at work for some time on a history of notable river disasters.

The scene, with the steamboatmen fighting the fast-growing fire and the passengers, blanched with fear, seeking means of escape, was, indeed, horrifying. Men, losing self-control in the moment of terror, ran hither and thither in their mad attempt to flee from the burning craft. Women screamed and moaned pitifully.

The smoke was stifling. Great clouds floated through the blazing steamer, choking the passengers and adding to the terror. Children cried pitifully, begging that they be saved. They knew, as well as their elders, that death confronted them and clung to their mothers as though they alone could save them.

Lifeboats were manned and every effort was made to save the passengers from the floating furnace of flames. Sturdy boatmen rowed as they never rowed before in their heroic work of rescue.

From the river banks the sparks from the burning craft and the dense clouds of smoke, tinged with tongues of flame from the vicious bed of fire, made a most impressive, yet weird, spectacle.

Boats were sent from the shore to help in the work of rescue, but the flames were only too surely consummating their work of destruction to save all from the veritable inferno.

Boats, laden to their limit with passengers in the scant attire they were able to gather, were landed at the river banks. As fast as one boat could be emptied it returned to the ill-fated steamer, the heroic rescuers not waiting to catch a breath of rest.

Just prior to the boat's departure she underwent her annual inspection by United States Inspectors Dameron and Fearn, and was granted first-class papers.

The Pittsburg was built at the Marietta (O.) ways in 1899, and was valued at $80,00. She is partly insured.

The craft was 300 feet long and 80 feet wide, over all, and considered the finest craft on the river.

She was of modern equipment in every way, and her furnishings were elaborate.

She was owned jointly by John M. Phillips and Al Brahm, of Pittsburg, and Dana Scott, of Zanesville.

The craft could not be replaced for $80,000, her cost, owing to the increased prices of materials used in her construction.

A SERIES OF FIRES.

Two Fatally Hurt, Fire Chief Prostrated, Property Loss of $370,000.

Dallas, Tex., April 21.—Two persons fatally injured; Fire Chief Magee prostrated, and a property loss of fully $370,000, is the result of several fires which occurred shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning. At that hour an alarm was turned in from the Dorsey printing establishment on lower Elm street, and in a short time one of the fiercest conflagrations which has visited Dallas in years was in progress. To add to the troubles of the firemen several other alarms from different parts of the city were turned in in quick succession. After fighting the fire for two hours Chief Magee was prostrated and command was turned over to an assistant. The chief was rescued from the flames by the police and was unconscious for several hours, but is now reported out of danger. Fireman Will spurr was struck in the face with a brick and it is said fatally injured. The young son of Fire Chief Magee was found on the floor of the engine room at the Central station, with a fractured skull. It is supposed that the lad attempted to slide from the bunk room to the engine room on one of the iron poles used by the firemen, and fell to the floor below. He will probably die.

BARRACKS BLOWN UP.

Many Soldiers Kill at Managua, Nicaragua.

The Cause of the Explosion Not Determined, But the Disaster Is Believed to Be the Work of Conspirators.

Managua, Nicaragua, April 21.—A severe explosion occurred here the night of April 16. A large two-story barracks, situated near the lake front and in the center of the city, was blown to fragments. Between 100 and 200 officers and soldiers are reported to have been killed, and many soldiers and other persons are reported to have been injured. A large number of houses near the barracks, including the National hotel, the Central telegraph station and the national palace were damaged or wrecked. President Zelaya was absent at Masaya at the time of the explosion, but he hurriedly returned to Managua on horseback. He has published a statement in which he attributes the disaster to the work of conspirators. He says that tons of dynamite and a large quantity of powder were stored in the barracks. The actual causes which led to the explosion have not yet been determined.

After the first explosion the police notified the terrified people to temporarily leave the city, as it was thought the burning building still contained dynamite. Large numbers consequently fled to the suburbs.

The first explosion was followed by several minor detonations, supposed to have been caused by the explosion of packages of gunpowder.

The people who fled the city at the time of the explosion were returning Sunday. The fragments of the numerous dead, who were not blown to atoms, are being buried.

The present lowest estimate of the damage caused by the explosion, in houses, furniture, cannon and war material is five million pesos.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, April 16.—Senate—The debate on the Chinese exclusion bill was practically concluded Tuesday and voting on the bill and amendments will begin at 1 o'clock Wednesday. By general consent a vote was taken Tuesday on two important amendments, offered by Mr. Fairbanks (Ind.), striking out the definition as to Chinese students and teachers, and they were agreed to without division.

House—With the close of the Cuban reciprocity debate in the house Tuesday the leaders announced that all dangers of the bill being weighted down with undesirable amendments was over and that they felt assured the bill would pass in the shape in which it came from the committee. As the bill in its present form is sure to command three-fourths of the vote of each side of the house, its passage was certain if it successfully passed the stage when amendments could be offered.

Washington, April 17.—Senate—The drastic Chinese exclusion bill originally framed by the senators and representatives from the Pacific states met defeat in the senate Wednesday and in its place was substituted a measure offered by Mr. Platt (Ct.) extending the provisions of the present exclusion law and also applying that exclusion to all insular territory under the jurisdiction of the United States. The vote by which the substitute took the place of the original bill was yeas 48 to nays 53. Once the substitution had been made all senators joined in its support with the single exception of Mr. Hoar, the substitute being passed 76 to 1. Some minor conditions were made, admitting Chinese persons connected with national expositions, and providing for certificates of identification of Chinese in our insular possessions. Otherwise, however, the substitute was adopted substantially in the form that Mr. Platt presented it. The senate failed to substitute the enacting clause of the house bill for the senate measure so that the bill now will go to the house as an original measure and from a parliamentary standpoint will have to be acted on and treated the same as though the house had not passed a Chinese exclusion bill already.

House—The friends of the Cuban reciprocity bill won a substantial victory in the house by carrying a motion to close general debate on Friday at 3 o'clock. The vote was 153 to 123. Thirty-three republicans voted against the motion, but this defection was offset by 32 democrats, who voted with the republicans for it.

Washington, April 18.—Senate—For more than four hours Thursday Mr. Morgan (Ala.), chairman of the isthmian canal committee, addressed the senate on the subject of the Nicaragua canal. He devoted the greater part of his speech to a consideration of the desirability and practicability of the two principal routes, Nicaragua and Panama. He strenuously favored the former. A parliamentary change in the situation of the Chinese exclusion bill was made just before adjournment, the measure passed by the senate Wednesday being substituted for the house bill.

House—General debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill closes Friday at 3 o'clock, and it is the intention of the house leaders if possible to force a final vote on the passage of the bill before adjournment Friday night. All day long the leaders were counting noses and preparing for the final struggle Friday.

Washington, April 19.—Senate—At Friday's session of the senate consideration was begun on the bill temporarily to provide a form of government for the Philippine islands. The measure was read and the committee amendments were agreed to tentatively, but no action on the bill was taken. Fifty-five private pension bills and a few other measures were passed.

House—The democrat and republican insurgents rode rough shod over the house leaders when the voting began on the Cuban reciprocity bill. They overthrew the ruling of the chair in committee of the whole on the question of an amendment to remove the differential from refined sugar during the existence of the reciprocity agreement provided for in the bill. The vote to overrule the decision of the chair, made by Mr. Sherman (N. Y.), was 171 to 130, republicans to the number of 37 joining with a solid democratic vote to accomplish this result. Having won this preliminary victory the amendment was adopted in committee 166-111, and later in the house by a still larger majority, 193-105. On this occasion 64 republicans voted with the democrats for the amendment. The bill then was passed by an overwhelming majority, 141-52. An analysis of the vote shows that 124 republicans and 123 democrats voted for the amended bill and 42 republicans and 10 democrats against it. Mr. Grosvenor (O.) was one of those who voted against the bill. One of the surprises of the session was the attempt of Mr. Roberts (Mass., rep.) to take the duty off hides. He offered two amendments and appealed once from the decision of the chair, but was voted down each time. The bill as passed authorizes the president, as soon as may be after the establishment of a independent government in Cuba and the enactment by said government of immigration, exclusion of contract labor laws as restrictive as those of the United States, to negotiate a reciprocal treaty agreement with Cuba by which in return for equivalent concessions the United States will grant a reduction of 20 per cent. from the Dingley rates on goods coming into the United States from Cuba, such agreement to continue until December 1, 1903. During the existence of such agreement the duty on refined sugars and all sugars above No. 16, Dutch standard, is to be 1.825 per pound.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

BERRY HOWARD CASE.

The Jury Completed and Opening Statement Made.

Frankfort, Ky., April 17.—The jury to try Berry Howard on a charge of being a principal in the Goebel murder case was completed late Wednesday afternoon, in the Franklin circuit court, and the opening statement of the prosecution made by Attorney T. C. Campbell, of New York. He spoke vigorously for half an hour, telling the jurors that the defendant would be shown by the testimony to have been close to all the parties under indictment for the crime, and to have made damaging admissions in connection with it. The first witness was heard Wednesday. The trial will consume about ten days.

Frankfort, Ky., April 18.—The trial of the case of Berry Howard moved along rapidly Thursday, the commonwealth examining 17 witnesses. All but six of them had been on the stand at former trials of the Goebel murder cases.

Several of the new witnesses placed Berry Howard in the state agricultural department at the time of the shooting of Goebel, instead of in the lobby of the house of representatives.

The most damaging testimony given was that by Mrs. Clorinda Howard, of Bell county, a relative of the defendant. She said that a few days after the shooting Howard showed her some smokeless powder cartridges and told her that it was with one similar that Goebel had been killed.

Her testimony is unsupported so far. She refused to answer questions of the defense and will be put on the stand again Friday for further cross-examination.

Frankfort, Ky., April 19.—Mrs. Clorinda Howard, of Bell county, who told Thursday afternoon of Berry Howard displaying some cartridges to her and saying that Goebel was killed with one similar and that it "did not smoke" was the first witness on the stand Friday morning. Col. Colson cross-examined, but got nothing from the witness, who seemed willing to talk only to the attorney for the prosecution. Thursday she told of a conversation which she claimed to have had with Berry Howard after his return from Frankfort after the shooting of Goebel. She said that she had been told by Sim Bailey, of Bell county, that Howard had killed Goebel and she asked him about it. He answered that he did not, but displayed to her some cartridges, and said that the one with which Goebel was killed was like them and that it did not smoke. On cross-examination Col. Colson confused her considerably and she finally refused to make further answer to his questions.

Mrs Lucy O. Bannon, of Louisville, who kept a boarding house near the state capitol in 1900, told of Berry Howard calling there in January, 1900, the day before the shooting of Goebel. He came to insist that John Howard, a relative, remain in Frankfort the next day. He said: "When I go to meeting, I stay to benediction. The contest will be settled to-morrow and the fun will begin."

By Judge A. B. Smith, of counsel for the prosecution, the commonwealth proved that he Smith, had remarked that he knew something of the Goebel case that the commonwealth would give $1,000 for. He said he made the remark jokingly. He said that Howard, in his office at Pineville after the shooting, said: "If we, or they, know that it was Harlan Whittaker they were arresting immediately after the shooting we would have got some more of them."

One night last week a young man and a young women claiming Aurora, Indiana, as their home, attempted to cross middle creek at the ford between Bellevue and Rabbit Hash. The back water was over the crossing to the depth of 12 or 15 feet, and when they drove in their buggy was upset and their horse drowned. After a considerable struggle the young man and women succeeded in getting out, and went to the residence of Martin Staley, which was 200 or 300 yards distant, where it took until daylight to get them dried out. The accident happened about midnight, and it is not known what circumstances brought the couple to that secluded and very dangerous point at that time of night.

The people of Williamstown were much shocked on last Wednesday morning to learn that Dr. E. D. Frank had been arrested in Grayson county upon the grave charge of horse stealing. It seems that the offense with which he is charged was committed some time ago and that his arrest was brought about by an offer of a reward of twenty-five dollars for his apprehension. His wife who is a very excellent Henry county lady telephoned W. W. Dickerson of this place to come at once to Grayson and defend him and offering a fee of $500. On account of a pressure of other business Mr. Dickerson declined to go. Ethel Frank was the eldest son of Dr. W. G. Frank who was for many years one of the most prominent citizens of Grant county. Ethel was born and raised in Williamstown. He graduated at medicine and for years engaged in the practice of his profession. He has been twice married. He went to school in Williamstown for years and most of the younger generation of business men and young people of Williamstown were his school mates. Since leaving Williamstown ten years ago he has had quite a checkered career. His many friends here and the many friends of the family deeply deplore this recent trouble and hope that he will be able to extricate himself from his present troubles.—Courier.

We agree with the gentleman that we are about as unhandsome as he is unmannered, but would uncommonly like to inform him that although we are totally devoid of manly beauty, we are the possessor of ordinary intelligence and decent civility, which we deem is infinitely preferable to being "good looking," and at the same time not having intelligence enough to pound sand in a rat hole.

Quite a number from here attended services down at Gunpowder church, last Sunday afternoon, and when the preaching began the congregation numbered something like 200 people, to which Rev. Sproles preached a very interesting sermon. At the close of the sermon, the house of the congregation was taken on the proposition to organize a Sunday school, and the sentiment in that direction was found to be enthusiastic, and in a few minutes a Sunday school was partially organized, with County Clerk Adams as Superintendent. The people in the neighborhood, regardless of religious procivities, are lending a helping hand to the effort to revive the cause of religion in that locality. Rev. Sproles will preach there on the afternoon of the fourth Sunday in each month. The house is in need of considerable repairs, all of which will be looked after in due time by the Baptist brethren.

Fearful Results of Gossips.

Burlington, April 30.—Word has just been received here of the disastrous results of gossiping. It seems that some person or persons circulated the report that H. L. Eskew, of Walton, Ky., is and has been for a long time, selling drugs at cut-rate prices, meeting the prices of the lowest in Cincinnati, and in many cases, a great deal cheaper. This report has been thoroughly investigated and found to be an absolute fact. While this fact will hurt Cincinnati prices, it is a matter of great importance to the public to know that they can get, on short notice, anything they wish, as cheap as in Cincinnati without any additional cost and expense. When a firm in a community places these opportunities within the people's reach, they should be encouraged.

Business has been unusually brisk for the mechanics in Burlington this season. Judge Lassing has a force of carpenters erecting new and remodeling old buildings; J. C. Revill has a force engaged in same kind of work; Dr. Rouse has three or four carpenters putting up a barn for him, and James Clore is giving several carpenters employment enlarging his barn. All of this and nothing has been said about Charles Fowler and Otto Crisler working early and late trying to accommodate those who want painting and paper hanging done. Verily there is no use for being without work in Burlington.

The unfavorable weather kept hundreds of people away from the Odd-Fellows' celebration at Bellevue last Saturday. Ample preparations had been made to entertain an immense crowd, and those present never before partook of such a splendid dinner on a public occasion. The good cooks in that part of the county simply excelled themselves. Hon. T. B. Mathews, of Petersburg, was the orator of the day, and made a pleasing address. Everybody regretted the unfavorable turn in the weather, for otherwise the town would not have contained the crowd.

Sunday when Johnnie Hogan and his father started home from church at Florence, a hen flew out from under their buggy seat, and, clucking, scampered off. Her clucking excited Johnnie's curiosity, and an investigation revealed a nest of eggs under the buggy seat. After a lively chase, in which several of the church people participated, the hen was captured and returned to her nest. Johnnie is now patiently awaiting to see what effect the 12 miles ride will have on the hatching of the eggs.

A Doctor's Bad Plight.

"Two years ago, as a result of a severe cold, I lost my voice," writes Dr. M. L. Scarbrough, of Hebron, Ohio, "then began an obstinate cough. Every remedy known to me as a practicing physician for 35 years, failed, and I daily grew worse. Being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, I found quick relief, and for last ten days have felt better than for two years." Positively guaranteed for Throat and Lung troubles by W. F. McKim, Burlington; H. L. Eskew, Walton; Union Drug Store, Union, and O. N. Grant, Grant. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Trial bottles free.

HELP ONE ANOTHER.

It Is a Duty Incumbent Upon All Christian People.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this sermon Dr. Frank De Witt Talmage shows that mutual helpfulness is a duty of our common humanity and especially a duty incumbent upon Christian people; text, Galatians 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Paul was the noblest Christian martyr who ever lived. He could well qualify himself as an example for all his contemporaries. From the very moment when his bliaded eyes were opened by the good Ananias on the Damascus street called "Straight" he never ceased to sacrifice himself for his fellow men. But so important is the lesson of vicarious burden bearing Paul would not have his friends look to any human guide. He seems to come to the members of the Galatian church in the same way that a staff officer of the commander of a great army delivers his orders to a captain, a major, a colonel or brigadier geaeral, and they are orders of beneficent import, as were those that the representatives of Gen. Grant delivered when they rode through the federal lines telling Sheridan and Meade and Humphreys and Ord and Warren and Wright and Hartranft to cease firing because the two national leaders, Grant and Lee, were meeting under a flag of truce at Appomattox.

Paul seems to say: "The duty of bearing one another's burdens is not my own command, nor is it given to us by the command of Peter or John or Apollos, but by the command of the great Divine Chieftain himself." Read the words as they were written to the rugged mountaineers who constituted the Galatian church. Hear ye the commnnd as it is spoken for us to hear: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." The law of Christ is the law with which every Christian should be in harmony. It is the law which ought to inspire us all. Like all Christ's laws, it is reasonable and is devised for the common good.

John B. Gough was able to picture the misery of the inebriate in the blackest and the reddest colors because he himself had writhed in the lowest depths of a living inferno. He had drunk the cup of horrors to the bitter dregs. He signed the pledge and broke it again and again. One day, weak and helpless with delirium, he stood in the foundry working upon a piece of iron. Suddenly that bar of iron began to twist and move in his hand like a writhing serpent. In horror the delirious man dropped it, and as it lay there he seemed to see it writhing and twisting upon the floor of the foundry. John B. Gough's crazed brain knew it was only a bar of iron, and yet there he saw it a living, hideous, hissing snake. His courage broke down. He thought it was useless to struggle longer. Just then a Christian gentleman who had the spirit of a true burden bearer came in and said: "Hello, Gough! I saw you up at the temperance meeting last week. I saw you sign the pledge. We have missed you for four days. I thought I would come around and find out how you are getting along. God bless you. Keep up the struggle. Christ will help you through."

Those few words saved John B. Gough for time and eternity. He never touched a drop of fatal intoxicant after that. Those words were the helping hand that drew him out of the ruts and pushed him over the up grade. Those few words made John B. Gough a free man—free for time, free for eternity.

To bear one another's burdens will often inspire a hopeless, helpless, purposeless sinner to put forth his own energies until after awhile he gathers strength enough to help himself. Have you ever seen a team of horses hitched to a heavy laden wagon that is stuck in the ruts? The horses struggle and pull until they become absolutely helpless and can pull no more. Then have you ever seen a couple of men come with some long, stout bars? They place those bars underneath the hind axle and begin to heave. The wagon moves. Then after the ruts have been passed have you ever seen the team of horses, which were helpless when the wheels were stuck in the ruts, easily pull the wagon along the broad highway? Have you ever seen a great engine, fastened to the end of a long train, puffing and blowing, with its wheels whirling around and around and yet not moving one inch ahead? That train is stalled upon an up grade. Then have you ever seen another engine, being fastened to that first engine, by the addition of its power draw the train up? Then after the up grade has been passed have you seen that second engine uncoupled, because the first engine was then able to do all the work?

The great trouble of this world is some men are too heavily burdened. They have too big a pack upon their backs. To use the figure of the wagon or the engine, they are stalled upon the up grade. They are stuck in the mud. When they first came to a standstill they pulled and tugged and struggled, and the more they pulled the more exhausted they became. The result was instead of getting ahead they became discouraged. They just gave up all hope and lay down to die. If you would go to that wearied and stumbling man and help him carry the load up the crossing, help him out of the ruts, you would not only accomplish a work of mercy, but you would put him in the way to walk and run and leap for joy. You would not only help him to bear his burden, but you would stimulate him to exert his own energies until after awhile he, though weakly, would be strengthened and encouraged to take care of himself.

This is an age of the specialization of talents. Instead of one man making a shoe, as in olden tim s a single cobbler did, it now takes 50 men to make the same shoe. Instead of one woman spinning her own thread and weaving her own cotton and sewing her own garments each woman concentrates her power of mind upon one distinct part of an industry. Civilization has developed its cotton mills, its cutters, its sewers, its fitters and its importers and exporters, and the combination tends to the general advantage. We buy where we can buy the cheapest, and we sell where we can sell the dearest. All these results come from the specialization of talent. The realization must come that some men can do things better than we. We in turn in another line of business ought to do some things better than those who are not proficient in our trades. A good gunsmith does not always make a crack marksman. An expert yacht builder cannot always be turned into a trustworthy sea captain.

The intelligent traveler gathers information wherever he goes. When talking with a motorman upon the street car, with the farmer in the field, with the mechanic at his bench, with the sailor upon the ship's deck, with the engineer in his cab, he can obtain answers to questions which he himself could never solve. He can always find a man who knows more, in at least some special field, than he himself knows, no matter how intelligent the questioner might be. The servant in the kitchen in all probability knows how to bake bread better than her master, even though the head of the house may be the chief owner of the great Pillsbury flour mills, where thousands and tens of thousands of bushels of grain are daily turned into the white substance which forms the staple of every meal. The skill of the eminent surgeon is never lessened by seeing a carpenter handling a saw, and there never comes a time when the man of ten talents can afford to despise the lessons he may learn from the man of one talent.

Proficiency being generated to us in mental or manual abilities, there is also proficiency given to us in spiritual abilities. Certain temptations which assail one sinner do not appeal to another sinner. One man may have a lurking propensity for gambling, another for drink, another for licentiousness, another for sloth, another for profanity, another for theft, still another for perjury. Some men are born liars. Parents testify that certain children in one family have a tendency to falsehood from their cradles; other children born in the same family never show a disposition to prevaricate. Parents can often trace the life's weaknesses of their children almost from the time those children began to walk and talk. They can distinguish certain satanic characteristics as distinctly as a stranger can tell whether a child by the color of the skin is born from white or black parents. Of course it is often a great deal harder to tell whether the white child has a black heart or a black skinned child has a white heart than to tell the color of the outside epidermal covering.

As nearly every man is stronger in a spiritual sense in some one way than his neighbor, it ought to be that strong man's duty to use his strength to compensate for the weakness of his neighbor. Bear and forbear is the teaching of the Bible. This is the reason Christ sent forth His messengers two by two. This is the reason we find impulsive Peter often walking by the side of the well-poised John; the gentle Mary living in the same house with her sister, who lost her temper in the kitchen, spiritualized by her own sweetness of soul that entire household. This is the way in which we can double our loved ones' spiritual usefulness and diminish their temptations to sin. "Bear ye one another's burdens" has a wider and deeper significance than most of us have ever realized.

Members of a Christian church are in the sight of God one spiritual family and therefore have a right to expect help one from another. Every shipwrecked mariner has a claim upon every stout keel floating the wide seas. The religion of the Lord Jesus Christ cannot be hemmed in by the four walls of a religious edifice. The parable of the good Samaritan teaches that we should love our neighbor as ourselves. Our neighbor is not alone the friend who lives next door. He is also the stranger of foreign birth who has fallen among the thieves on the road to Jericho. Any traveler who is naked, abhagered, athirst, any wayfarer who is lost upon the mountains far away from home, whose guide we can be, is our neighbor. We as Christians have a duty to foreign missions as well as to home missions, to the savage living in the jungles of Africa as well as to the heathen in the back alley half a block away from our kitchen door, to the waif of the street who has fallen asleep upon our doorstep.

But the words of the text have still another application. Paul was addressing the members of the Christian churches. Those churches were situated in Galatia. The members—sturdy, warm hearted, but hot headed mountaineers—had internal dissensions. In the course of his letter he lays down the broad statement that each member must bear with the faults and frailties of other members. They should especially do this because they were brethren and members of a church family of which God was the Father and Jesus Christ the elder brother. The bond of a belief in a common Saviour certainly ought to help the members of a church family to bear with each other's weaknesses. Worldly societies help their unfortunate members. I [illegible] not only bury their dead; they care for living masons who need help. They have certain signs and handclasps.

No man ever becomes a healthy man, mentally or spiritually, who is a mendicant by choice, crawling from door to door, begging and whining. Yet there are some burdens that are absolutely impossible for us to bear in our own strength. Some of us have had so much trouble—such an awful, awful lot of trouble! We have suffered again and again. We have had to go to the family plot, as I went two weeks ago, and to leave there a loved one. The grave did look so big, and the black hole was dug so deep. But there is a way we can all carry our own burdens. That way is to cast them upon the Lord, and He will sustain us. He has promised, and He will do it. If we will only cast our burdens upon Him, our own hands will be free. Then we can go forth like athletes stripped for the fray. We can go forth to help our brothers and sisters, our parents and children and all our friends, carry their burdens.

Let us return to the good old country times when every one helped every other person in the community. In those good old times every one was ready to halve a friend's sorrows as well as double a friend's joys. When the wedding bells began to ring the young girls, the friends of the bride, used to come from the village and decorate the church altar with the wild flowers which they had picked. Friends would sew the wedding garments, friends would serve the wedding sake; friends would help the young people furnish the new home; friends would bear the burdens, the happy burdens of joy. Then, when trouble came, the same friends would come in and help the invalid; they would pour out the medicine; they would close the eyelids in the last sleep; they would sit up all night long with the dead; they would sew the shroud and carry the casket and dig the grave. The same friends would throw into the grave the sods which would fall upon the coffin lid. The same friends would raise the headstone. Friends, the same friends who once plucked the orange blossoms, would plant the cypress.

Let us be to each other friends of that kind. Together let us help one another over whatever difficulties may beset. We have a share to bear, and as we bear it we fulfill the law of the gospel, which, in the language of my text, says: "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." There lies the merit, in bearing not merely our own, but another's; in lifting up from the bowed and stooping shoulders the heavy load under which the bearer is ready to sink. Reach out your strong hand of helpfulness and with a stout heart give a mighty heave, and the added burden will seem light in your grasp. Do it, and the sunshine of heaven will irradiate many a darkened home. Do it, and countless multitudes will be led into the kingdom. Do it, and the angels will rejoice, the celestial portals will open to your vision, and the Saviour's smile will encourage the work that shall hasten the millennium and usher in more speedily the day of His coming.

Why They Laughed.

This is one of the stories told of the recent grand opera engagement in Boston: During a presentation of "Tosca" a number of Italians, sitting in a box, became convulsed with laughter. As Ternina was in the midst of her impassioned love song to Mario the people about them first wondered what they were laughing at, and then became incensed at the foreigners. Finally an usher was sent to find out the reason of so much hilarity. One of them said:

"Do you know what Ternina is singing?"

"No," answered the attendant.

"Well, instead of a love song, she is singing in impassioned accents: 'Don't turn around; your trousers are torn. Don't turn around; your trousers are torn.'"—Washington Star.

All on the Bill of Fare.

Col. Sam Reed was breakfasting at Delmonico's. After looking over the French menu he said to the waiter:

"You may bring me some eggs blushing like Aurora, and some breeches in the royal fashion, with velvet sauce, and for dessert be sure you bring a stew of good Christians and a mouthful of ladies."

The astonished waiter said:

"Sir, we don't serve such dishes."

"Yes, you do," said the guest, pointing to the bill of fare. "Oeufs a la Aurore—culottes la royale sauce velout—compote de bon cretients—boudiee de dames."

"All right," said the waiter; "ready in two minutes, sir."—What to Eat.

Seven Principal Routes.

It is a well-known fact that the C., M. & St. P. Ry. system offers a great many different routes between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis. Its main line between those points is especially well known as the route over which runs the famous "Pioneer Limited" and the Government Fast Mail Train. There are six or seven other routes over a number of which are run through coaches and sleeping cars, which are almost as direct as the principal main line.

These various routes traverse the most interesting and attractive sections of Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota, including the celebrated "Lake Region" of Wisconsin, and cross the Wisconsin river at the famous "Dells," where is the most picturesque scenery in the Northwest. The main line and several others include from 150 to 200 miles of romantic and picturesque scenery along the Mississippi river. On these various lines are located the most important towns and cities in the Northwest.

Both one way and special excursion tickets between Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis are honored via any one of these direct lines.

The teachers attending the National Educational Convention at Minneapolis will appreciate and take advantage of this fact as they can have a choice of routes going and returning.

DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me any until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years. thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

Mr. John Vance, of Hartford City, Ind., says: "My kidney trouble is much better. I have improved so much that everybody wants to know what medicine I am using. I recommend Peruna to everybody and some have commenced to use it. The folks all say that if Dr. Hartman's medicine cures me it must be great."—John Vance.

Mr. J. Brake, of Petrolea, Ontario, Canada, writes: "Four years ago I had a severe attack of Bright's disease, which brought me so low the doctor said nothing more could be done for me. I began to take Peruna and Manalin, and in three months I was a well man, and have continued so ever since."—J. Brake.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood. Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. A DESTRUCTIVE STORM

Many Houses Were Destroyed, Being Reduced to Kindling Wood—The Finest Mining Plants in That District Wiped Out.

Joplin, Mo., April 26.—Joplin was visited by the most destructive storm in its history, during which at least three persons were killed outright, six fatally injured, a score or more seriously hurt and the lands of dollars worth of property destroyed.

The fury of the storm broke loose at 4:35. There was no premonition of its terrible violence. There was an utter absence of the usual funnel-shaped cloud and the clouds looked no more threatening than those which produce the ordinary spring thunder shower. The wind was a straight gale, but it was of terrible velocity, whipping down scores of houses in the south part of the city and reducing to kindling wood $100,000 worth of the finest mining plants in this district. The worst havoc in Joplin city was in a territory four blocks wide commencing at the west limits of the city at 17th and ending on Seventh street on the east side. Within this narrow belt the destruction done is visible on every hand. Most of the houses are not completely razed, but there is scarcely a building which is not damaged. No one was killed here, but some persons had miraculous escapes.

The home of Mrs. Nellie Sullivan was destroyed and all of the family were injured by falling timbers. Mrs. Sullivan was badly hurt about the head and face and her two-year-old baby was blown 80 yards into a pond and saved from drowning by the heroic efforts of her seven-year-old brother, who had also received injuries from the storm. One room of the residence of D. S. Brower, in Ivy street, was blown away and his young son was carried three blocks, receiving only slight injuries.

Passing east from the main portion of the city, the storm spent its fury on the suburban districts known as Moonshine Hill and Villa Heights. Three people were killed at Moonshine Hill. The hill is now a tangled mass of debris and not a single house is left standing. It is populated mainly by miners, who live in little shacks.

Of the little home of Ridwell Hunter not a timber is left standing and the three inmates of the house are dying, all having had their skulls fractured.

It is feared that the mining camps further west, which seemed to have been in the path of the storm, have suffered great damage, but no report have been received from there.

"The beef trust," he said, "is responsible for the present almost prohibitive prices of meat."

Pacific Mail Infant. New York.

THE STORY IS VERY OLD.

Senator Frye Sings the Same Sad Subsidy Song Sung by the Shipbuilders of Yore.

Senator Frye, in his speech before the senate, said:

"Of all the steamships in the world of 14 knots and upwards, 80 per cent. are subsidized by the countries whose flags they carry; of those of 16 knots and upward, all but six are heavily subsidized by the countries whose flags they carry."

This statement is not quite accurate. The report of the commissioner of navigation for 1901 gives a list of 154 merchant ocean steamships with a speed of about 16 knots. Of this number 37, or about one-fourth, receive absolutely no payments from government, and only 45, or about 30 per cent., receive anything more than payment for carrying the mails, except the insignificant admiralty subventions paid by the British government to certain steamers. Of the 383 ocean going steel screw steamships above 14 knots speed 154 or 40 per cent. receive no government payments of any kind, and less than half receive anything more than mail pay.

Mr. Frye says Great Britain paid $6,000,000 in subsidies last year. In fact during the last fiscal year Great Britain paid $3,764,055 under contract for the carriage of 3,075,800 pounds of letters and 20,970,300 pounds of prints, or at the rate of 15 cents a pound. During the same year the United States paid out under contract $913,555 for the carriage of 172,802 pounds of letters and 1,609,500 pounds of prints, or at the rate of 51 cents a pound. This shows that the United States is now paying on mail contracts more than three times as much as Great Britain, per unit of weight. On a mileage basis the showing is even more overwhelmingly against us. Yet Mr. Frye proposes to multiply the rate of pay for mail contracts by two, and attempts to justify this by pointing to the subsidies paid by other countries.

"Trade cannot precede the mail. The mail must precede the trade—and they [the other countries] paid over $25,000,000 last year for postal subsidies for one single purpose, and that was to put themselves in a position to dispose of their surplus products in the markets of the world."

By implication he says that our merchant marine has declined because we have not granted subsidies. The facts show that we are paying a large bonus or real subsidy for mail carriage, while the countries he accuses of paying subsidies for the most part pay only competitive rates for their mails. Nor is the payment of mail subsidies a new departure for us. As far back as 1850 the United States government granted a subsidy to the Collins line from New York to Southampton. In 1866 a subsidy was given to the Garrison line to Brazil. The next year the Pacific Mail Steamship company was voted a subsidy for carrying the mails to China and Japan. Every one of the attempts to foster the merchant marine at government expense was preceded by brilliant bursts of oratory predicting untold blessings, vast increase of the merchant marine, and enormous expansion of trade. Every one proved a disastrous failure, financially and commercially. In the case of the P. M. S. S. company, the failure involved morals as well as money, and the contract was evoked when it was discovered that the company had used a million dollars to induce congressmen to see the needs of the American steam merchant marine in the light of progress and patriotism.

In view of the fact that we have tried subsidies to encourage shipping four distinct times and have developed nothing but dishonesty and corruption, would it not be wise to go a little slow on Senator Frye's proposition to rehabilitate the American merchant marine?

ROYAL MEEKER.

FAILINGS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Passion for the Unusual in Life and Politics Seems to Rule His Conduct.

It is becoming increasingly evident that Mr. Roosevelt as president has failed to shake off the Nessuslike trappings of a New York police commissioner, of an autocratic department secretary, of a free-lance volunteer rough rider colonel, whose duty it seemed to be to court points of danger in time of battle and in times of quiet to compose "round robins." The president is fond of doing not only the thing extraordinary, but the thing peculiar. Passion for the outre in life and in politics seems to rule his conduct, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. Unlike his predecessor he cannot differ without clashing, and when the clash comes his policy is not to conciliate but to crush. In his message to congress he recommended tariff concessions to Cuba. Barriers innumerable stood between him and his goal. To accomplish his purpose he invoked not peaceful expedients, but unconcealed force. He first rushed Mr. Root into the breach. Failing in this he summoned Gen. Wood and made the governor a congressional lobbyist. Still baffled, he cracked his "patronage whip." "Conferences" in large number he held with members of congress. Not content with the calm statement of his cause, he persists always in advocating it. These are, of course, signs not of strength, but of weakness. It is, however, an honest weakness. No one doubts the president's sincerity. Everyone admits that, "sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish," Mr Roosevelt gives his hand and his heart to whatsoever he undertakes.

SALE OF NATIONAL HONOR.

The Colonial Policy of the Republicans Is Shaped to Satisfy the Trusts

The republican party in its colonial policy has sown to the wind, and is now beginning to reap the whirlwind, says the St. Louis Republic.

It is endeavoring to maintain the so-called "home market" for the trusts of the United States, to the positive detriment of our colonial "subjects" and of our friends, the Cubans.

It maintains free trade between the states, but objects to free trade between the states and our outlying colonies.

Prohibitive protection establishes one system of taxation for the people of the United States, and another for our territorial acquisitions.

Cameos are again in vogue—the real old-fashioned shell cameos. They are cut in the old classic heads, in "shepherdesses" and landscape designs, but more fashionable yet is the fad of having your own profile or that of your "heart's love" cut.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by all druggists.

THE agitation within the Republican party for revision of some of the highly protective schedules of the existing tariff law is gaining ground every day. Some significant developments in this direction are expected in the near future, and it is said that the House will be asked to make a declaration of policy along the line of tariff revision before this session comes to an end. The speech which Gen. Grosvenor delivered in the House on the Cuban Reciprocity Bill was a significant indication of the trend of sentiment in the direction mentioned. Gen. Grosvenor made the downright statement that the time is coming in the near future when there will be a demand which cannot be refused for changes of the tariff. He declared that the Republican party will revise the tariff along the lines of Republicanism. He said that he would yield to no man in his devotion to the principles of protection, but that protection was not a fetich which was never to be touched.

THE new school law authorizes the citizens of a county to petition the county judge and secure a vote on a proposition for a county school tax for the sole purpose of extending the terms of the schools. It provides that on a petition signed by a number of legal voters, who are tax-payers, equal to twenty-five per cent, of the number of votes cast at the last general election the county judge shall direct the sheriff to have an election held at the next regular November election on the question of the collection of a county school tax, in any sum named in the petition, not exceeding 15 cents on the $100 worth of taxable property. Cities of the first, second, third, and fourth classes, and all schools incorporated under the general graded common school law, are exempt from its provisions, as they are levying a local tax for the extension of the term. Only voters living outside of such cities and graded schools are eligible to sign the petition or to vote at the election, and of course only property outside of such cities and graded schools would be taxable if the proposition carries.

THE following in defense of Kentucky's public school system is from Superintendent McChesney's biennial report:

"Quite a lot of gratuitous criticism has been indulged in by people, both whithin and without the State, as to the length of the school term in the rural districts of Kentucky. A comparison has been made of our five months' term in the rural districts with the longer term in States lying immediately north of us. Some of this criticism may have been just, but much of it is the outgrowth of a lack of knowledge as to the conditions that have existed in Kentucky as compared with those affecting the school interests of the other States referred to. It might be well for the critics to remember that while Congress was governing the Northwest Territory, out of which those States were afterward carved, that the pioneers of Kentucky, under Gen. Geo. Rogers Clark, and others, were subduing the Indians in this same Northwest Territory, and making it possible for the inhabitants of the new States, when organized, to at once establish flourishing systems from the funds derived from the enormous land grants for public school purposes made by Congress when these States were formed. Kentucky had no land grants from Congress, and so, although Kentucky is an older State than Illinois, Ohio, Indiana or Michigan, those States had prosperous public schools for many years before Kentucky was able to even organize a system of public schools. A small loan from the Government in 1836, and the interest on 600,000 dollars Kentucky's part of the direct tax recently refunded the various States by act of Congress, constitute all the Federal aid the public schools of Kentucky have had.

"Another reason why the term remains so short is that the State is attempting to educate over 100,000 colored children, about one-seventh of the entire school population of the State, and receiving practically nothing in the way of taxation from the parents of these children. The State has very cheerfully assumed this burden, and while not complaining of it, yet recognizes that were it removed, with practically the same school fund, the term could be lengthened almost one month.

"The above discussion is not intended to convey the idea that we ought to be satisfied to let the term remain five months. The most crying need of the system to-day is an increase in the length of the term in the rural districts, and the most important question confronting us is how to reach this desired end. In another part of the report will be found some suggestions on this question."

For Coughs and Colds in Children.

I have read, with the interest born of experience, your article in the RECORDER of April 16th, prophesying an unusually prolific crop of locusts this year. The writer's first experience with this singular natural phenomenon was in 1851, and both the writer and his crops came unharmed out of the siege of that summer, as also from the subsequent 17-year periodical attacks in 1868, and in 1885.

In the interval between the two visitations last mentioned above, some would be philanthropist imported the English sparrow to this country, and we all know how kindly that bird took to our climate, and how speedily he and his progeny were unanimously declared a nuisance, a bad name which belongs to them today and which they seem destined to bear forever.

It is generally held by the survivors of 1885 that the locusts not only disappeared much earlier that year than at any other periodical visit, but that they vanished suddenly. Today the drouing monotonous song of "Pharoah," long drawn out and repeated continuously, was heard in our orchards and forests, tomorrow silence reigned, and nothing like a locust, except dry, red skins or shells was to be found.

The suddenness and prematureness of their disappearance became a theme of general comment and of some guessing.

Don Piatt, a western writer of some note, wielding a pen, sometimes witty, often sarcastic, wrote two stanzas on the subject, which appeared first in the Washington Capitol, and were extensively copied by other newspapers. In the little poem he gave his guess at the cause of the phenomenal but welcome disappearance of the locusts. It contains about the only compliment paid to the sparrows in the past twenty years, and, as we have the sparrows with us in greater abundance than ever, and, as the locusts are said to be coming in greatly increased numbers, I give the poem, because in it may be found the consolation of hope that the miracle may be repeated this year to the satisfaction of all agriculturists within the locust afflicted belt:

"A locust sat in a high locust tree,
And he sang to his mate, zee! zee!—zee! zee!
It's many a year since I've seen the bright sun;
It's many a year since I've had any fun;
And, my dear, if I don't paint everything red,
It will be, zee zee! don't you see, zee zee!
Because every green twig in the country is dead.

"But a sparrow sat up in that same locust tree,
And much oftener cussed than the locust was he;
And he said to his mate, 'there's a bug over there,
What a morsel he'll make for a nice, loving pair.
Just wait here a minute, and I'll take the boy in,
Now, don't slip, chip, chip! ain't he flip, chip, chip?'
And when they were through, there was left but the skin.'"

Mrs. Minnie Davis, of Omaha, Neb., thinks she is the youngest great grandmother in the United States. She was married at the age of 13, became a mother at 14, a grandmother at 28, and a great-grandmother at 45. She has children who are younger than her granddaughter.

The bean crop of California in 1901 is stated by the president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce to have been 54,000,000 pounds, or 900,000 bushels. The raisin crop of the state is estimated by the same authority at 72,000,000 pounds, and the prune crop at 70,000,000 pounds.

Queen Alexandra has a collection of tiny animals, birds and insects cut out of precious and rare stones. They are necessarily very small and some are extremely beautiful. The collection is quite unique, and the items have come from all parts of the world. Many of these most valuable and dainty treasures are cut from turquoise and jade.

Ah You, a Chinese pioneer, for forty-six years a resident of Alameda, Cal., is dead, aged 66 years. For fifty years he lived the life of an American, but his last wish was that his body be sent to his native town, in the province of Canton, China, and there buried in sacred ground beside the bones of his ancestors. The wish of the deceased will be faithfully carried out.

Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cemeteries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have basins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead, and, like everybody else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to curry their favor.

In justice to the people of Persia let it be said that their women are hardly such downtrodden creatures as they are generally supposed to be. The wife is not a slave to her lord, nor yet a mere toy, but his friend and counsellor, and, if a prable person, may rule his household. In many cases a young girl is betrothed to a man of her own class—if a merchant's daughter, she marries the son of a merchant, and so on.

One of the newest, most important and most expensive drugs on earth is adrenalin. Those who are not physicians will be first interested in learning that adrenalin costs $1 a grain—that is, $7,000 a pound. Now the gold that is coined into beautiful yellow eagles is valued only at about $215 a pound. The discoverer of adrenalin declares that by its use minor surgical operations can be performed without the loss by the patient of a drop of blood.

Corn oil and corn-oil cakes are by-products from the manufacture of corn into glucose and grape sugar. The oil is of a reddish-yellow color and of pleasant taste. It is used in the manufacture of paints, leather dressing, various kinds of soap, and rubber substitute. Corn-oil cake, the residue after expressing the oil, is valuable as an animal food, especially for dairy cattle. A considerable foreign demand has sprung up recently for both these products.

The Italians are discussing the advisability of pensioning Mrs. Maddalena Granatta, a woman of 57, who lives near Nocera, 12 miles from Naples. Her husband has been dead ten years, but during the 19 years they lived together as man and wife they had 62 children born to them, 59 of the lot being males. Eleven different times triplets were born, and on three different occasions four boys were announced, and once there were four boys and a girl.

Lord Kelvin, the great English scientist, who is to be entertained by American scientific societies in New York next week is entitled to use the following portentious string of initials after his name: G. C. V., D. C. L., LL. D., M. D., D. Sc., Ph. D., M. A., F. R. S., F. R. S. E. He has been decorated by nearly all governments. He is seventy-eight years old, but is still a very lively man, fond of a good dinner and a good joke and, unlike most scientific men, not at all sedentary in his habits.

One of the most ingenious plans to secure a wide usefulness for his sermons was adopted by Dr. Talmage in connection with Louis Klopsch of the Christian Herald. The sermons were put into type and sent out in advance to hundreds of newspapers in the United States and Canada for simultaneous publication on a given day. By this means readers of journals having an aggregate circulation of millions had before them each week the vivid, thrilling pulpit utterances of the Brookly preacher.

The bite of the Gila monster, as recently demonstrated by Dr. Weir Mitchell, is poisonous, but by no means deadly, except in rare instances. Among the Mexicans, however, the belief is general that once bitten by the "monster" your passport to a better world is secured. Gila monsters are numerous along the banks of the Gila river, feeding on insects and birds' eggs. They are most repulsive looking reptiles, with dark brown scales, mottled with green, white and red suggesting in their coloring a half ripe blackberry.

FOREIGN COMMERCE.

Our Trade With South America is Increasing.

Our Hardware, Type Writers, Sewing Machines, Clocks, Watches, Electric Goods and Other Wares Hold Their Own.

Washington, April 28.—Frederick Emory, chief of the bureau of foreign commerce, made public Sunday another extract from the volume entitled, "Commercial Relations of the United States During 1901," which is now in press. The extract given out Sunday deals with the trade of the United States with South America last year.

American coal, it is stated, finds a steady and ever increasing market in Brazil, in spite of deep seated prejudices and the antagonism of competitors. Our export trade to Brazil, however, it is said, never will reach its proper development so long as our merchandise has to seek foreign bottoms. It is pointed out that if a line of modern steamers were operated between New York and Brazil there would be no lack of return freights in coffee, rubber and like products. American hardware, also, it is stated, has earned a reputation for quality and finish which places it beyond competition. Our typewriters, sewing machines, clocks, watches and electric goods hold their own everywhere, and we are gaining a foothold in bicycles, locks, firearms, cutlery and picture frames.

Brazil recognizes the value of an education in the United States, and it is a notable fact that many young Brazilians are coming to this country to complete their careers of learning. Until recent years the better class of young Brazilians were sent to Portugal, France or Germany to acquire their literrary, professional or scientific training, and it was as rare to find a Brazilian speaking English as it is to discover an American speaking Portuguese. Now English is being taught in some of the higher schools of Brazil, and many young men go to the United States to study engineering, electricity, law, medicine and dentistry.

In the Argentine Republic the American goods making the greatest headway are tools and implements, cottons, hats, shoes and specialties. A banker in Rosario recently reported that for the half year ended June 30, 1901, the increase of transactions between his house and the United States had been 131 per cent., and he understood that other banks had similar experience. But while we are materially increasing the aggregate of our trade with Argentine here also the absence of direct steamship communication is a handicap.

United States trade with Ecuador shows a gratifying increase, due to purchases for the Guayaquil-Quito railroad, better and quicker communication, lower freight rates and the coming of American commercial travelers. "Our trade will steadily advance," it is stated, "but an isthmian canal alone can give us the vantage ground we should occupy."

An enlarged variety of American manufactures is appearing in the markets of Uruguay. "When our manufacturers make the effort," it is stated, "they can place here goods that in quality and economy will conquer the market."

COMMERCE OF CUBA.

The Exports and the Imports of the Island For Seven Months.

Washington, April 28.—The insular division of the war department has prepared for publication an extract showing in comparative form the commerce of the island of Cuba for the seven months ended January 31, 1902, and 1901.

The total value of merchandise imported during the seven months ended January 31, 1902, was $40,043,986, against $38,038, 930 for the corresponding period of 1901; and the exports of merchandise against $26,970,220 for 1901, was $24,113,419. These figures show an increase of five per cent. in the imports and a decrease of 11 per cent. in the exports.

The value of merchandise coming from the United States for the seven months ended January 31, 1902, was $17,118,839, a slight increase over the corresponding period of 1901; while the exports for 1902 amounted to $15,174,488, a decrease of $349,742.

New York, April 28.—The Central Federal Union Sunday adopted resolutions calling upon the American Federation of Labor to assist in urging Congress to remove the tax on foreign meats until such time as the price of domestic meats is reduced.

THE BURNED CITY OF PITTSBURG

Cairo, Ill., April 28.—A charred trunk that was once a human being was found on top of the boilers. One limb was burned to the trunk. The other was burned to the knee only. The skull was blackened and the skin was all burned off the jaw. There was no possibility of identification and it was buried on the shore near the wreck of the City of Pittsburg, this being all that could be done. Monday night ten of the friends and relatives of these met at parlor B, at the Halliday, and organized for the purpose of instituting a systematic search for the bodies of those lost in the wreck. Judge Savage, of Ashland, O., was chosen chairman, and Chas. Davis, of Jamestown, O., secretary.

Cairo, Ill., April 25.—Besides the six bodies already reported recovered Thursday from the Pittsburg wreck, 14 more were taken from the river near the scene of the accident, making the total number of 25 bodies so far recovered. Six of the bodies found Thursday afternoon were those of white persons and were identified as Patrick Burke, jr., of Owensboro, Ky.; Thos. Smith, cub pilot, Memphis; Leslie Carter, Deansfield, Ky.; Glenn Bowman, Portsmouth, O.; Fred Jones, striker engineer, Newport, Ky., and J. R. Evans. The searching party will prosecute their work vigorously and a great number of bodies will probably be recovered in the next few days. Of those who were injured in the accident the only one who still remains in the city is Mrs. Ellen Fennimore, of Louisville, Ky. She was badly burned, but is rapidly recovering in the hospital. The bodies of the colored victims were all buried near the wreck, while those of the white peraons were brought to this city.

Cairo, Ill., April 28.—Four more bodies of the victims of the City of Pittsburg wreck were recovered Sunday, making 40 to date. One was identified as that of Joseph Redding, a striker engineer, of Louisville. The other three were colored, two men and one woman.

THE NINTH INFANTRY.

A Farewell Banquet Given to the Officers in Manila, P. I.

Manila, April 28.—At a farewell banquet here to the officers of the 9th infantry, Acting Civil Gov. Luke E. Wright paid a glowing tribute to the military forces. He said the army, under circumstances of surprising difficulty, had paved the way for the work of the civil authorities, and that only a few cases of friction between the two branches of government had occurred. He said that Gen. Chaffee, whose opinion might at times have differed from those of the civil authorities, had been a most loyal supporter of civil rule.

Replying to Civil Gov. Wright, Gen. Chaffee said that the officers of the army knew that their duty to the country demanded their utmost efforts to sustain the civil authorities, and to suppress the rebellion.

BLUE LAWS IN BOCTON.

A General Compliance With the Police Order on Sunday.

Boston, April 28.—There was a general compliance with the police order enforcing the "blue laws" Sunday. A few fruit dealers in the tenement districts are reported to have made some sales, and if these can be proven the violaters will be prosecuted. The Sunday laws were more strictly enforced than a week ago, and even newsboys were driven from the streets at noontime, making the day an extremely quiet one for Boston.

CHOLERA IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The Situation There Does Not Show Any Improvement.

Manila, April 28.—The cholera situation in the islands does not show any improvement. Cholera cases are reported among the American soldiers in the Camarines provinces of Southern Luzon and elsewhere, but so far few Americans have been attacked and the disease is mainly confined to natives and Chinamen.

In Manila there have been 555 cases and 449 deaths from cholera, while provinces report 1,599 cases and 1,169 deaths.

Bad Gang Broken Up.

Clifton, W. Va., April 28.—Crip Withy and Devil Lowrey were sentenced to the Columbus penitentiary by Judge Woods, of Pomeroy, for blowing the safe in the Hocking Valley depot at Middleport a few weeks ago. This breaks up an organized gang that has been operating in Middleport for the last three years.

One Life Lost in a Wreck.

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 28.—A disastrous freight wreck occurred on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad. One man lost his life and the property loss is estimated at about $50,000.

Exodus From Ireland.

London, April 28.—Immigration from the west of Ireland to America is assuming what is called "alarming proportions." During the last fortnight hundreds of immigrants have passed through Limerick on their way to Cork.

The United States Flag Lowered.

Bayamo, April 28.—At Manzanillo the American flag was hauled down on Thursday and the Cuban flag hoisted in its stead. The American post was abandoned, and all troops embarked for America.

AN ACTIVE LIFE ENDED.

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton Dead.

The Interment Will Take Place in Nebraska City, Neb.—A Special Train Bearing the Remains Will Leave Lake Forest Tuesday.

Chicago, April 28.—Hon. J. Sterling Morton, former secretary of agriculture under President Grover Cleveland, died at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Lake Forest, at the home of his son, Mark Morton. For several weeks Mr. Morton had been gradually failing. A week ago he was brought from his home at Nebraska City, Neb., to Lake Forest for medical attendance. The change brought no improvement, and he failed gradually until death came.

The interment will be at Nebraska City. A special train, bearing the remains of Mr. Morton and members of his family and friends, will leave Lake Forest at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon for Nebraska City.

His three sons, Paul Morton, Joy Morton and Mark Morton were at the bedside when the end came.

Nebraska City, Neb., April 28.—The illness of Secretary Morton dates from last November, when he contracted a severe cold while speaking at the stock show in Chicago. The cold ran into an attack of la grippe and Mr. Morton was in a hospital for some time. When he was able to do so, he returned to his home in this city, where he suffered a relapse. After a partial recovery he left early in March for the City of Mexico, expecting to restore his health. During his stay in the southern country a disease of the bronchial arteries developed and he returned north. He suffered severely on the return journey and reached his home with his general health much impaired. Three weeks ago Mr. Morton returned to Chicago in the hope of securing the services of a specialist. The condition of his throat again became aggravated and a week ago he suffered an attack of apoplexy. From this last attack he rallied but little.

Washington, April 28.—Julius Sterling Morton was in Washington for four years as secretary of agriculture in President Cleveland's second administration. He was a man of steadfast convictions, unswerving honesty and undoubted ability. By nature a controversalist, Mr. Morton came to the cabinet with many fixed ideas about the government service. He was a practical farmer and ran his department along practical lines, but nevertheless not without many squabbles. He regarded the distribution of seeds as paternalistic and that subject found himself in opposition to congress.

The ex-secretary was the founder of Arbor day, April 22, which began to be observed generally during his incumbency as head of the department of agriculture and is now generally observed in all the states. His constant motto was to "plant trees," having it stamped in large letters under a picture of a tree on his stationery. He was an inveterate letter writer.

GEN. GRANT'S EXPEDITION.

Insurgent Leader Guevarra and Command Are Prisoners.

Manila, April 28.—Gen. Frederick D. Grant's expedition, in the gunboats Baseo and Florida, several steam launches and native lighters has ascended the Gandara river, in the island of Samar, and has been met by the insurgent leader Guevarra and his entire command down the coast. Guevarra's command consists of Rafael Sebastian, Abaki and 38 other officers, 189 men and 161 rifles.

Three hundred insurgents with 131 rifles were expected to arrive at Catbalogan, Samar, Sunday, to surrender formally to the American authorities.

Three hundred bolomen, 28 of them armed with rifles, surrendered Saturday at Suiat, also in Samar. Guevarra succeeded Gen. Luckban to the command of the insurgent forces in Samar, when the latter was captured last February. He announced his intention to surrender last March.

LADRONE LEADER RUFO.

He, With 158 Officers and Men and 3,000 Bolos, Surrender.

Manila, April 28.—Capt. L. W. V. Kennon, of the 6th infantry, reports from the island of Negros the surrender of the Ladrone leader Rufo, with 158 officers and men of his command together with 12 guns, 3,000 bolos, 7 spears and a few revolvers and daggers. Capt. Kennon says this surrender means the opening up of the whole southern coast of the island of Negros. After Papa Isio, Rufo was the most important Ladrone chief on the island. He promises to force Papa Isio and his few remaining followers to surrender. Papa Isio was appointed a colonel in the insurgent army by Gen. Malvar, one year ago.

Mammoth 16-Inch Gun.

Troy, N. Y., April 28.—The authorities at the Watervliet arsenal expect to complete the work on the 16-inch gun to be placed at Ft. Hamilton, in New York harbor, by June 1. The gun will be first sent to Sandy Hook for proving.

Forfeits Posted.

New York, April 28.—Tom Sharkey and Gus Ruhlin have each posted $2,500 with Al Smith for a forfeit to bind their match, which is to take place at the National Sporting club of London the latter part of June.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, April 22.—Senate—Without a word of discussion of the merits of the measure, the senate Monday passed the river and harbor bill, carrying in appropriations about $70,000,000. So thoroughly had the bill been considered by the commerce commission that every senator was content that it should pass as reported from the committee. As no senator was prepared Monday to begin debate on the Philippine government bill, the measure, after a few minutes of informal discussion, went over until Tuesday.

House—The house entered on consideration of the military academy appropriation bill. In addition to the regular items it contains provisions for the extensive improvement of the grounds and buildings at West Point. These improvements are to cost $6,500,000, of which a little over $3,000,000 is appropriated by the bill. Twenty-four of the 30 pages of the bill were completed. During the general debate on the military academy bill, Mr. Gilbert (Ky.) precipitated a discussion on the race question, which was participated in by Mr. Gillett (Mass.), Blackburn (N. C.), W. W. Kitchen (N. C.) and Mr. Gaines (Tenn.). Mr. Cockrell (Mo.) and Mr. Gillett discussed the question of the alleged violation of the neutrality laws in connection with the shipment of mules and horses to South Africa.

Washington, April 23.—Senate—Formal discussion of the bill temporarily to provide a government for the Philippine Islands was begun in the senate Tuesday, Mr. Rawlins (Utah), the leading minority member of the Philippine committee, opening the debate.

House—The house Friday by a vote of 75 to 72 rejected claims attached to the omnibus bill by the senate aggregating $1,800,000 and on the heels of that action non-curred in the whole senate amendment (the various items having been ruled to constitute a single amendment), and sent the bill to conference. The military appropriation bill was passed Tuesday after the limit of the cost of improvements at West Point had been reduced from six and a half to five and one-half millions and the amount of the appropriation in the bill from three to two millions. The London dock charge bill was called up, but was not disposed of.

Washington, April 24.—Senate—Mr. Rawlins (Utah) Wednesday continued his speech in the senate opposing the Philippine temporary government bill. He devoted the greater part of his speech to a discussion of the testimony presented to the Philippines committee relating to the administration of the "water cure" to natives and to other forms of torture inflicted on the Filipinos. He had not concluded his remarks when the senate adjourned. During the early part of the session the bill providing for a union railroad station in Washington was under consideration, but no action was taken.

House—The house began consideration of the senate amendments to the oleomargarine bill. A special rule for this purpose was adopted by a vote of 152 to 79. By the ruling of the chair the question of further amendment of the senate propositions was confined within very narrow limits. Slow progress was made. The opponents of the measure, who sought to modify the senate amendment in various particulars were outvoted on every proposition submitted.

Washington, April 25.—Senate—Just before the senate adjourned Thursday Mr. Rawlins (Utah) concluded his speech in opposition to the Philippine government bill. As on previous days, he devoted much of his time Thursday to a consideration of the testimony taken before the Philippine committee. The senate passed several unobjected measures of minor importance and a large number of private pension bills.

House—The house sent the oleomargarine bill to conference after agreeing to the senate amendments with some modifications suggested by the agricultural committee. The opponents of the measure offered a number of amendments, the principal one of which was designed to place renovated butter on the same footing with oleomargarine, but they were overwhelmingly voted down. The latter part of the day was devoted to the agricultural appropriation bill.

Washington, April 26.—Senate—Two speeches occupied the entire attention of the senate Friday. Mr. McCumber (N. D.) discussed his bill to prevent the misbranding and misrepresentation of food products which enter into inter-state commerce. Mr. Carmack (Tenn.), one of the minority members of the Philippine committee, spoke in opposition to the Philippine government bill now pending.

House—The house passed 145 private pension bills, including bills to pension the widow of the late Gen. Wm. Ludlow at $50 a month, and the widow of the late "Parson" Brownlow, of Tennessee, at $30 per month. The remainder of the day was devoted to general debate on the agricultural appropriation bill. Mr. Lessler (N. Y.) discussed the necessity for a new post office at New York, Mr. Cooeran (Mo.) the trust question, and Mr. H. C. Smith (Mich.) "good roads."

Congressman Cummings Ill.

Baltimore, April 26.—It was learned from reliable sources that Congressman Amos J. Cummings, of New York, is critically ill from pneumonia at the Church home in this city. The authorities at the home decline to give out any particulars of his condition, but it is understood that his recovery is extremely doubtful.

Naval Appropriation Bill Amended.

Washington, April 24.—The house committee on naval affairs Wednesday amended the provision of the naval appropriation bill so that one of the new battleships or armored cruisers must be built in a government navy yard.

To Increase Their Pensions.

THE UNITED STATES CRUISER "OLYMPIA."
Dewey's Flagship, Whose Guns Opened the Battle of Manila Bay that Caused the Downfall of Spain's Colonial Power in the Far East.

Our Fight for the Philippines

A Review of the Contest That Began in Manila Bay, May 1, 1898.

Battle of Manila Bay

May 1 four years ago Admiral Dewey won his memorable victory in Manila bay that gave to this country a new island empire in the far east. The enthusiasm with which the news of that victory was hailed in the United States has seldom, if ever, been equaled since the day it at marked the close of the long civil war. So great has been its effect upon American policies that we can afford to pause for a moment to rehearse its important details.

The admiral, then a commodore, was a man of action, and no sooner did he receive the news that war had been declared than he sailed from Hong Kong with his squadron, consisting of the Olympia, his flagship, Capt. Charles V. Gridley; the Raleigh, Capt. Joseph B. Coghlan; the Baltimore, Capt. Nehemiah M. Dyer; the Boston, Capt. Frank Wildes; the Monocacy, Commander Oscar W. Farenholt; the Concord, Commander Asa Walker, and the Petrel, Commander Edward P. Wood, for Manila.

unexpected guest, the Spaniards not being used to such energy as it took to put the American fleet into the Philippine harbor at so early a date. They had failed to prepare for his reception and he sailed past Corregidor island, containing what was supposedly impregnable defenses, almost before the garrison were aware of his presence in the vicinity. It was not until after his last ship was well past that they thought to give battle to the daring Yankees and then sent a few harmless shots after them.

Day had not yet broken when Cavite was reached, and Dewey quietly awaited its coming. When the sun rose in the east instead of immediately beginning the destruction of the Spanish ships that lay before him the daring sailorman preferred to play with his enemy, and so weighed anchor and sailed up to the defenses of Manila with which he exchanged a few shots as a matter of international courtesy, then returned to give more detailed attention to the Spanish fleet.

It was early even when he got back again to Cavite, so early that it was only 19 minutes past six, when, with the Olympia 5,500 yards from the enemy's ships, he uttered those historic words:

"When you are ready, Gridley, fire."

Instantly the eight-inch guns of the good cruiser broke forth in smoke and flame, and began raining a shower of steel projectiles upon the Spanish ships. Gradually the American fleet drew closer. Submarine mines exploded in front of them, but they did not waver. The Spanish gunners answered the challenge of the Olympia's guns with a shower of projectiles of equal size, but without doing any considerable damage. As the American boats got within closer range the smaller guns added their roar to that of the larger ones, and the terrific fire was kept up until 7:35 when Dewey felt that he had enough for a beginner, and not wanting to spoil a good thing too soon, quit for breakfast, and a pull at the pipe or cigar.

It was not until 10:50 that he again went at the Spaniards. He had furnished sufficient sport for his sailormen, and now intended to finish the job in a hurry and put the enemy out of their misery without further loss of time, and before it could interfere with his dinner arrangements. The midday meal would be served aboard the flagship at one, and it was necessary that the job be completed and the mess cleared up before that time. To accomplish this every gun, big and little, that could be brought into play, was used, and it was but little more than an hour before all of the Spanish ships were either lying at the bottom of the bay or destroyed, and at 12:30 a white flag ran up over the Spanish batteries at Cavite proclaimed their surrender.

in which to attend to the wants of the few slightly wounded and prepare dinner to which Admiral Montojo was invited, but declined.

The Spanish loss was 12 ships—their entire Asiatic squadron—and 618 men either killed or wounded.

For that little morning's work Admiral Dewey gave to the United States something like 125,000 square miles of territory, and secured for himself the thanks of the American people and the rank of admiral in the American navy—and not an American sailorman killed or an American vessel seriously injured.

The Spanish flag that came down at Cavite that day was never to rise again in the Philippines.

Our War in the Philippines

Dewey's victory at Cavite, followed by the combined land and naval fight that resulted in the surrender of Manila to Gen. Merritt and the American forces on August 13, gave to this country new and untried problems with which to deal. As in Cuba Spain had encountered for almost a century almost continuous revolutions on the part of the natives, fighting for almost the same reasons that prompted the patriots of Cuba. The victories of May 1 and of August 13, 1898, relieved Spain of her vast colonial territories, but at the same time it transferred from her to the United States the rebellious subjects that had given her just troubles for a century.

On the evening of February 4, 1899, at 9:30 o'clock was fired the first shot in the revolution of the Filipino soldiery against American occupation, a revolution that has continued to the present time, though is now, after almost two and a half years of fighting, seemingly near a close.

The Filipinos demanded absolute independence of the American people, and that this country refused to grant. That, in a concise way, may be accepted as the cause of the present rebellion in the Philippines. During the three days following the firing of the first shot the American troops drove the insurgents from the line of defenses they occupied outside Manila and secured possession of the suburbs of the city. During this three days of fighting 13,000 American troops were opposed to Aguinaldo's army of 20,000 Filipinos.

The battle of Pasig, on March 13, was the next important engagement between the two forces. It was early in March that the advance on the rebel capital at Malolos was begun. The first fight of this campaign was on March 26 at Malinta, and this was followed by the capture of Malolos on March 31, but Aguinaldo had moved his government to San Fernando, and upon his departure fired the government buildings. The victory was a signal one, however, as it resulted in the capture of subsistence stores valued at one and a half million dollars.

The American troops continued to push northward toward the new rebel capital rapidly, and on April 10 was fought the battle of Santa Cruz, which place was captured on April 25, and on May 5 San Fernando fell into the hands of the American troops. The capture of this place practically closed the campaign to the north of Manila until the close of the rainy season. Gen. Lawton's command returned to Gen. MacArthur's lines on May 24 after having marched a distance of 120 miles, fought 22 engagements, taken 28 towns, captured and destroyed 300,000 bushels of rice, and with a loss of only 8 killed and 35 wounded.

But the intrepid officer, who was later to lose his life in the conflict, was not allowed to rest his troops. He was assigned to command an expedition against Gen. Pio del Pilar, who was operating around the shores of Laguna de Bay, and from the third of June to the thirteenth of the same month succeeded in driving the insurgents not only from the shores of this body of water, but from around the shores of Manila bay as well, and soon after had driven the enemy from every stronghold in Cavite province.

First American Civil Governor in the Philippines.

Gen. MacArthur opened the second campaign to the north of Manila on August 9, when he moved against Angeles. Before it was first captured, and on August 16 the army arrived before the intrenchments at Angeles. The place was captured with a loss of but two killed and 12 wounded. During the same time Gen. Young had taken the towns of San Mateo, Baleuag and Quingua.

While American troops had been fighting the insurgents in Luzon the rebellion had spread to other islands and insurgent garrisons had been established in Panay, Leyte, Cebu, Negros, Samar and other islands. Gen. Miller had captured Iloilo on February 11; Bacolod, in Negros, was taken by Col. Smith, and on February 21 Cebu was taken by Capt. Cotnwall, of the Petrel.

On August 24 Gen. Bates returned to Manila from the Sulu group and announced the signing of an agreement with the sultan extending American authority over the entire group.

Campaign followed campaign rapidly, but there was little severe fighting for the American troops. On October 2, 1899, came the first overtures for peace on the part of the insurgents, but the attempt was looked upon by American officers merely as an effort to gain some recognition of the Filipino government and was futile of any result.

On November 1 a movement was begun against Tarlac, then the insurgent capital. Mabalacat was the first place captured, and on the following day, November 9, San Fabian fell into American hands, and Tarlac was captured on November 12, but Aguinaldo and his government had moved. The following day the insurgents were attacked at San Jacinto, the place being captured, but not until it had cost the life of Maj. John A. Logan. The fighting continued with but small loss to the Americans until Dagupan, the northern terminus of the railroad running from Manila, was reached on November 20. Four days later President Mautista, of the Filipino congress, surrendered himself to Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Otis telegraphed the war department at Washington that "the insurgent government could no longer claim an existence." At that time the insurgent treasurer, secretary of the interior and president of its congress were in American hands.

The American troops pushed steadily northward, and on December 5 Gen. Young's command arrived at Vigan, near the northwest extremity of Luzon. In order to follow the rapidly dispersing enemy Gen. Young divided his force into smaller bodies of troops and dispatched them in different directions for the purpose of capturing Gen. Tino and Gen. Del Pilar, and on December 11 Gen. Tirona surrendered the whole of the district to the American forces, Capt. McCalla, of the navy, accepting the surrender.

During the middle of December two notable events occurred. The first, on December 18, was the rescue of Lieut. Gilmore, of the navy, and his men, who had been captured near Baler, April 12, and the other was the death of Gen. Lawton, killed during the fight at San Mateo on December 19.

By the opening of the year 1900 the insurgent opposition had dwindled to but little more than a force of scattered bandits, and guerilla warfare was the rule. The northern portion of the island had been pretty generally cleared, and Gens. Schwan and Wheaton began a campaign against the insurgent forces in the south, and Gens. Bates and Bell headed an expedition which left Manila February 10 to drive the enemy from the Camarines. Both of these expeditions encountered considerable opposition from small bodies of insurgent troops, but were in the end successful in accomplishing the objects for which they were organized with but small loss of life.

BRIG.-GEN. FREDERICK FUNSTON.

The details of the campaigns of 1901 and of the present year are so fresh in the public mind that a rehearsal of their details is unnecessary. Of last year the two most important occurrences were the capture of Aguinaldo by Gen. Funston on March 23 and the establishment of civil government in the islands by the Taft commission on July 4. There has been considerable fighting since that time. The campaign in Samar, with its attendant horrors, will probably not soon be forgotten, either by the participants or the American public, and now promises to result in a number of court-martials for different army officers. The recent surrender of Gen. Malvar has seemingly virtually ended the organized opposition to American rule, and the officials at Manila are in hopes of an early and permanent peace.

Spain's Method of Government

The "little governor" was the foundation of the Spanish system of government in the Philippines. He represented the lowest rung of the official ladder, and ruled in the parish. He was an official of but little power, with but small opportunity for "graft," and whose greatest perquisite consisted in the wearing of the official hat, a stiff, much room-shaped affair, liberally covered with ornaments of silver bullion. Of far more influence were the priests, an influence that was much more often exercised for good than for bad, and many evidences of their rule are to be found throughout the islands in the shape of roads and bridges. To be sure the natives were taxed for far more of these conveniences than were built, but it is a question if any would have been built had it not been for the priests.

The real government of the islands lay in the hands of the governor-general, a crown appointee. He was assisted by a council of state. The minister of the colonies at Madrid was the direct head of the government, as he was of all the Spanish colonies, but he was assisted by an advisory council for the Philippines, residing in Madrid, and to this council was specially intrusted the interests of the Philippines.

The islands could never be properly termed a Spanish colony. They were held only as a military possession. To extort money from the people, under the various forms of taxation that cunning and rapacity had devised, was the sole purpose of Spain and the business and object of the governmental officers that were maintained there. How much these extortions amounted to will never be known outside of Spanish official circles, but there were but few Spanish officials sent to the islands who did not return to Spain with a competence, the greater part of which was the result of various forms of bribery and official dishonesty.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

THE BRADLEY BUILDING FIRE.

Ed Houston and Ben Day Confessed to Starting the Blaze.

Lexington, Ky., April 24.—Ed Houston, aged 23, of Louisville, and Ben Day, aged 17, of Jackson, Ky., Wednesday night confessed that they were implicated in a plot which resulted in the destruction of the Bradley building at the house of reform at midnight March 20. Both are inmates and they say 40 boys were implicated, the three being chosen to apply matches to oil paper stuffed in a crevice of the wall. They refuse to name the third boy. The confession was the outgrowth of a searching investigation following an attempt Tuesday to burn the manual training building, the largest of the group, constituting the institution. The fire was started in the broom factory but quickly stamped out. The boys under arrest, who were brought to the jail here Wednesday night, deny that they were implicated in the last plot, and the guilty parties have not yet been apprehended. Houston is on crutches, he having fallen from the second story of the dormitory several weeks ago while trying to escape. An improvised rope of sheets parted and his leg was broken in the fall.

The prisoners, who will be tried for arson, were sent to the school for house-breaking. There were 120 boys in the Bradley building when it burned, but all escaped safely. The loss was $25,000. The boys say their object in burning the building was to escape, but this plan was frustrated.

It is generally claimed that the boat that has the word "city" as part of its name, is an unlucky craft, and the destruction of the City, of Pittsburg, was no surprise to old river men. From the time the Pittsburg left the yards ill luck accompanied her until it was difficult to find a crew to man her. She was one of the largest boats on the Ohio river, and was designed by Captain John M. Phillips, of Pittsburg, for the Louisville-Pittsburg packet trade. The Scotch marine boilers put on the steamer, an experiment on river steamers, failed to work and these had to be taken out and replaced with the old style boilers. The initial trip from Marietta to Pittsburg took two weeks, and the crew said the boat had to stop every few miles as something was wrong. Accidents, fire and bloodshed were frequent happenings. When the steamer had been prepared for a Southern trip after landing at Pittsburg, she ran in to a bridge and narrowly escaped sinking a tow of coalboats. Another time she smashed into a railroad bridge pier at Louisville, causing thousands of dollars of damage. Fire almost wiped her out in Cincinnati, and scarcely a month ago one of the mates killed a Negro deckhand at Tiptonville, Mo.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS.

Robt. W. Jones Grocery,

Walton, Kentucky.

WALTON, May 4.—Orlando Hicks started for California, Tuesday.

Theodore Deane showed up in Walton on Sunday last.

O. W. Aldrich was in town, Sunday, the first time in eighteen months.

John Fink shows up a nice job of painting on the Wm. Holder house.

At the Florence fair the Granger's day will be on Thursday of fair week.

Hon. J. H. Westover passed through our town, Sunday, enroute to Sparta.

T. F. Curley has the foundation laid for veneering his elegant building with brick.

W. B. Norman will move, this week, to his country residence about a mile from town.

Napoleon Rich has prepared his sidewalk for being cemented and this week will probably see it done.

Miss Clara Diers is the elated possessor of four milk white kittens with not a colored hair on them. Had heard of white cats, never saw one previous to this one.

W. O. Rouse was out Sunday to see how his wife and child were getting. The boy, Wendell, is enjoying himself to his heart's content and Mrs. Rouse is better.

The plastering is on in the hall of the Odd-Fellows' building which will be probably, the handsomest in any of the country towns. The new postoffice will be finished this week and Walton is decidedly in the push.

Our esteemed friend, John J. Richards, has an engagement with the Technour Grocery House, Cincinnati. May all the good luck of which he is worthy attend his venture, is the sincere wish of his many friends.

The Masonic Order is, if the expression may be used, on a lively boom for our town. Dr. J. F. Oleek on Friday afternoon took the "Entered Apprentice" degree, while F. P. Curley, John Watson and A. M. Edwards were raised to the sublime degree of "Master Mason." For a lodge scarcely more than a year old it is moving by leaps and bounds. There appears to be work at every meeting, and every meeting there are visitors from other lodges.

T. F. Curley and his blooming daughter, Pauline, paid a visit to Burlington, Saturday. The Squire looked as proud as Lucifer, and "weel he might" as an old Scotch Swedenborgian minister to whom I had the honor of being a pupil, said in a sermon on the text "And Jesus Wept." Closing the bible, the reverend gentleman said, "And weel he might—and weel he might," and that was the entire sermon, but the congregation was satisfied, knowing his eccentricities. And as church services closed the tall, gaunt figure of Kinmant arose and the most touchingly pathetic flow of oratory poured from his lips like the water of pure crystal bursting from the mountain side.

Mrs. W. O. Rouse, of Covington, whose health has been greatly impaired since her removal to the city, has come out to her sister's, Mrs. Ollie Curley, to have the services of a physician who has a knowledge of her constitution and habits of life. There is a great deal of good sense in this. There is a tendency among many when afflicted with serious illness to consult specialists in regard to their ailments when they could be better served by the family physician, who has had an opportunity to study their constitution and physical abilities to resist the progress of the disease. If the general practitioner is a man of good sense, he may not be so polished and refined in his manners, yet he is a man who is compelled to acquire broader views of how the patient is fitted to resist disease than the specialist who has seen the patient but once or twice. The Recorder heretofore has mentioned the case of Mrs. C. E. Moore, daughter of Walter Wilson, of Bank Lick, who is also returned to her father's house to be treated by the family physician. Another case that has been mentioned in the Recorder, was that of the young lady, the daughter of a prominent physician, who overheard the consultation of her father and the M. D.'s who had been called in. After the consultation the girl, who is remarkably sensible, said to her attendant, "Well, it seems that papa knows as much about my case as any of them," showed what good can be done by a perfect confidence that should always exist between the doctor and his patient.

J. H. Slater, one of our pioneers, is very low with Bright's disease.

The rain, last Monday, was welcome to this community, as vegetation was at a standstill and water to use and for stock was scarce.

Misses Mary and Sallie Baker, the charming daughters of J. M. Baker, entertained quite a number of the young folks yesterday.

Esq. McLaughin has had a force of hands at work the past week cleaning up the grove and repairing fence, preparatory to the summer opening.

IDLEWILD, May 4.—Mrs. Keeler Stephens and Miss Lizzie Stephens, spent one day last week in Petersburg.

Mrs. R. C. Gaines, is about well again.

Glad to see Edwin Gaines, jr, among our people again.

Anyone having items of interest will please leave them in box No 7 at the p. o.

Mrs. W. O. Kirtley of Petersburg, was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Thos. Grant, Friday.

Mrs. Lizzie Huey, who has been with her sister here has returned, home, Mrs. Cropper being some better.

After a comforting sermon at Rullittsburg, Tuesday, by Rev. J. A. Kirtley, the relatives and friends of Mrs. Lee Masters, daughter of John and Louisa Barnard, with sad hearts gently committed her remains to the home of the dead, until that blest morn when Jesus shall come to claim His own." She had been a sufferer with consumption forover a year, bearing all in meek submission to God's will, only waiting patiently for tho inevitable hour to come, when she could exchange mortality for an eternal home in heaven. Minnie has just gone before to welcome her child and all her loved ones.

Mrs. Vina Smith, Mrs. Cynthia Mason and Mrs. Nannie Frank's, spent Thursday with Mrs. Cynthia White.

Perry Weaver, of Long Branch, was here as a guest of R. R. Houston and family last Tuesday night and Wednesday.

It is reported that R. L. Huey has cutworms in his tobacco bulks in his ware house. Richard Thompson has them to show.

Many of the farmers who commenced planting corn Monday week, were delayed by the welcome rain, which has done an abundance of good.

Miss Stella Arasmith and Josie Horten, while crossing Gunpowder at the Atkin riffle, last Wednesday morning, dropped a bundle that they were carrying, in the creek. Miss Stella jumped into the creek to secure it, when the swift water carried her about 100 yards down stream, and if it had not been for the timely arrival of Marcus Ryle she would have been drowned.

GUNPOWDER, May 5.—Some of the farmers report cutworms very bad in their cornfields.

There will be we communion services at Hopeful church, next Sunday.

Your correspondent had the pleasure of sharing the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Davis, of Hebron, Sunday.

James Beall and family, of Hebron neighborhood, were in this neighborhood last Sunday, guests of Aunt Liza Quick.

The Splendid rain which fell, last week, delayed corn planting somewhat but caused vegetation of all kinds to start off nicely.

Quite a number from here attended the funeral services of J. C. Tanner at Hebron last Sunday. Mr. Tanner died at his home in Erlanger May 2, after an illness of several years.

We are authorized to announce that the funeral services of A. J. Utz, who died in January, will be held at Hopeful church the fourth Sunday in May, at 10:30, a. m., services to be conducted by Pastor Slater, assisted by Bro. J. A. Kirtley, D. D. of the Baptist Church.

Thomas A. Utz, who has been a sufferer of a complication of diseases for more than a year, passed peacefully away May 1st, at the advanced age of 85 years, 4 months and 11 days. Bro. Utz was a faithful member of Hopeful Church, having united with that body in 1856; he therefore gave the greater part of his life to the service of the Master to Whom he placed all of his trust and confided in his promises. He was an active worker in his church, having during his life filled several important offices greatly to his credit as well as the advancement of Christ's kingdom here on earth, and I would voice the sentiment of all who knew him when I say he was an honorable, upright, christian gentleman; and, in his death the community has lost one of its best citizens and the family a kind husband and an indulgent father. He was united in marriage to Mary A. Tanner, June 21st, 1849. To this union two daughters were born—Lizzie, wife of William Dobbins, and Mrs. Alice Daugbters, of Cincinnati. Having had the misfortune to lose his first wife by death, he was married to Julian Elizabeth Rouse, April 16th, 1865. To this union one son was born—Harvey F. Utz. The funeral services were conducted by Pastor Slater, at Hopeful church, last Saturday afternoon, after which the remains were interred in the cemetery at that place in the presence of a host of friends and relatives. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

You ought to see how the field and garden seeds that Congressman Gooch distributed among his friends have come up. If the yield of Democratic votes is as large for him this fall as the seeds promise to yield, he will surely win. I take the privilege of extending to him the thanks of all who received seeds.

Perry Dixon expressed a rifle, Thursday, to his brother, J. W. Dixon now at Cocoa, Florida. We infer that some thing is going to be shot at, for Jerry is quite a marksman and can hit a flock of round houses with the greatest of ease, if they are not moving, and if he gets within twenty feet of them.

The past week has been one of a series of casualties of a somewhat serious nature to a number of our citizens. Deputy Sheriff Hume was the victim of a very serious kick inflicted by one of his high-spirited, thoroughbred horses, which he wasp assing behind in the barn carelessly, one morning last week. Boodie would have arrested the animal on the spot had he not been rendered horse de combat for the time. "Uncle Jeems" Said was passing over a deep ravine, Tuesday, and the bank on which he alighted gave way and he fell backwards into it, nearly breaking his back and so disabling him that he suffered great pain and is recovering very slowly. Whooping Cough.

A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says! Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkley Hall, Springville, Ala. This Remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

THE QUEEN OF HOLLAND.

Her Condition Is Considered as Very Grave.

The Hague, May 5.—It was announced from Castle Loo at midnight Sunday night that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Prof. Rosenstein, Dr. Roessingh and the other doctors were in attendance. The queen suffered intense agony.

At 11 o'clock Sunday evening the condition of her majesty was described as critical, and small hope for her recovery was entertained.

London, May 5.—The tardy official admission of the real nature of the illness of the queen of Holland, which was announced April 17 from Amsterdam, may be regarded as an indication of a grave crisis in her majesty's condition and, coming so suddenly upon the bulletins announcing her imminent recovery, it will cause a shock throughout Europe.

Apart from the difficulties surrounding the question of the succession to the throne of Holland, the death of Queen Wilhelmina, if this should unhappily occur, would tend to convulse the continent politically. In Germany, especially, it is a matter of the deepest import. The German press claims that Prince Albrecht of Hohenzollern, the acting regent of Brunswick, is among the nearest in the Dutch succession, and in all the European capitals nervous apprehension exists that the absence of a direct heir to the Dutch throne might precipitate a struggle for the possession of Holland, which, in Berlin, is regarded as Germany's natural right.

A STATE FUNERAL.

Memorial Services Over Remains of Late Congressman Cummings.

Baltimore, May 3.—Congressman Amos J. Cummings, of New York, died at the Church home and infirmary in this city. The cause of death was pneumonia incident to an operation.

Washington, May 5.—In pursuance of the resolution adopted by the house Saturday, public memorial services were held over the remains of the late Representative Amos J. Cummings, of New York, in the hall of representatives Sunday afternoon. Only twice before in recent years has such an unusual honor been accorded to a deceased representative, those occasions being the state funerals of Representative John Kelly, of Pennsylvania, and Representative Nelson Dingley, of Maine. The exercises Sunday were very impressive. Almost the entire membership of the house and senate was present and the galleries were entirely inadequate to hold the thousands who went to the capitol seeking admission. Delegations from the department of New York G. A. R., Typographical Union No. 6, the New York Pilots' association and various letter carriers' associations were in attendance. The floral tributes were numerous and of the most exquisite character.

The remains of Mr. Cummings, accompanied by the committees of the two houses, were taken to New York Sunday night.

ARCHBISHOP CORRIGAN.

His Condition Is Dangerous and There Is Much Concern.

New York, May 5.—Dr. Keyes, who is in attendance on Archbishop Corrigan, announced Sunday night that his patient was still in a dangerous condition and that there was a possibility that he would be worse. There are no favorable indications and there is much concern over the archbishop's condition.

The news that the archbishop was worse came as a surprise Sunday night, for the statement given out earlier in the day was of a favorable nature. It is now known that his weakness is such that he is unable to retain any solid food. Absolute quiet is maintained in the sick chamber and every possible means is being resorted to in an effort to bring the patient around.

BAD HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Two Persons Killed and 45 Injured, Two Probably Fatally.

Connellsville, Pa., May 5.—Two were killed and 45 injured, two probably fatally, in a bad head-on collision between an emigrant train and a fast freight near Rockwood, on the Connellsville division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad Sunday. The two trains dashed towards each other on a straight stretch of track and this fact alone averted what would have been the worst wreck in the history of the road.

THE RIOTS IN RUSSIA.

Peasants Aroused By False Reports Circulated.

Most Serious Feature of the Present Situation Is the Growing Disinclination of Troops to Take Action Against the People.

St. Petersburg, May 3.—The instigators of the peasant riots in the Voronej and Kharkoff governments, who succeeded in bringing the former serfs and land owners into collision by circulating the report that the czar had order the lands of the nobles to be divided among the emancipated serfs, prove to be identical with the organizers of the student movement here. After the student agitation was stopped, the secret press bureau turned its attention to South Russia and the "underground" presses turned out thousands of bogus proclamations, with the czar's forged signature attached to them, directing the peasants to partition the nobles' lands and distribute their goods among themselves.

The proclamations set forth that the peasants should disregard the officials, who would probably interfere, as the latter always tried to thwart the czar's will. Labor troubles have broken out at Novorossik, in the east coast of the Black sea.

Nearly all the southern mines and the mills have been closed the whole winter and the laborers returned to their native villages, where they are now swelling the ranks of the famine-stricken. It is reported that 57 military officers have been arrested here.

London, May 3.—A dispatch received by Reuter's Telegram Co. from St. Petersburg, dated April 30, says:

"The most serious feature of the present situation is the growing disinclination of the troops to act against the people. Punishment has already been dealt out to 800 men of the Sumy regiment for refusing, recently, to fire on the rioters at Moscow. They have been transferred to service in various remote provinces.

"A detachment of marines stationed here will, it is said, be disciplined in the same manner for similar action at the time of the student riots in March."

UNDER SEVEN ALIASES.

A Swindler Cleaned Up About $12,000 From Hotel-Keepers.

New York, May 3.—Armed with a letter of credit similar to the one issued by the National Hotel Keepers' Protective association and with his identity concealed under seven aliases, a swindler has cleaned up about $12,000 from hotel keepers in middle-western and eastern cities with bogus checks drawn on the Earl Fruit Co., of California. The seven names given by the man were as follows:

L. O. Hoffman, C. A. Cotterall, Jas. Dailey, A. B. Webster, W. G. Bissell, L. D. Gordon and L. O. Steuben, and the cities in which he operated included Portland, Me.; Boston, Albany, Springfield, Mass.; Syracuse, Indianapolis, Troy, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Springfield, O.; New London and Hartford, Ct.

NEW WATER WAY.

A Canal From Lake Erie to the Ohio River Favorably Reported.

Washington, May 3.—Chairman Dalzell, of the committee on railways and canals, favorably reported to the house the Dalzell bill authorizing the organization of the Lake Erie & Ohio River Ship Canal Co., to build a canal from the Ohio river near Pittsburg to Lake Erie, at or near Ashtabula, a distance of 122 miles long, the canal to be 250½ feet wide and 15 feet deep, with 61 locks. The project imposes no burden on the public, the work to be constructed entirely with private capital.

Sons of the American Revolution.

Washington, May 3.—A banquet at the New Willard hotel, attended by nearly 400 persons, brought the annual congress of the Sons of the American Revolution to a close. The congress was made notable by the presence of President Roosevelt, himself a compatriot, who delivered a felicitous speech.

The President's Contribution.

New York, May 3.—President Roosevelt has sent a contribution to the fund for erecting a monument to Mrs. Rebecca Salome Foster, known as the "Tomtis Angel," who lost her life in the recent fire in the Parke Avenue hotel.

One Thousand Lives Lost.

San Francisco, May 3.—A Guatemalan cable to a local shipping concern says over 1,000 lives were lost in the earthquake in that republic April 18. More than 30,000 were rendered homeless.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, April 29.—Senate—After a brief discussion Monday the senate agreed to the house amendments to the oleomarbarine bill as passed by the senate. The measure now goes to the president for his signature. An effort was made by Mr. Teller (Col.) to amend the measure so as to levy a tax of 10 per cent. on the capital or assets on any butter trust that might be formed, but it was defeated. Mr. Simmons (N. C.) addressed the senate in opposition to the Philippine government bill. He denounced the "cruelties and barbarities" alleged to have been committed on the natives by the American army. The conference report on the Chinese exclusion was adopted. Consideration of the civil sundry appropriation bill was begun but not concluded.

House—Representative Sibley (Pa.) created something of a sensation in the house Monday during the general debate on the agricultural appropriation bill by severely denouncing Gen. Jacob H. Smith for the orders he issued in the Samara campaign. Mr. Sibley's speech was enthusiastically applauded by the democrats and was received with some evidences of approval on the republican side.

Washington, April 30.—Senate—A spirited discussion of the Philippine situation occurred in the senate. It revolved around the order alleged to have been issued by Gen. Jacob A. Smith to make the island of Samar a howling wilderness and to kill all male inhabitants over the age of 10 years.

House—Under a special order which allowed three hours' debate, but which cut off all opportunity of amendment, the house passed an omnibus public building bill, which will distribute $17,405,450, among 174 cities. As the bill covers into the treasury $1,585,000, the total amount carried by the bill is reduced to that extent. The bill provides for 77 new buildings and sites, six buildings on sites already purchased, 17 buildings on donated sites and 58 increases in appropriation for buildings already authorized. It also provides for the purchase of 16 sites.

Washington, May 1.—Senate—A resolution offered in the senate Wednesday by Mr. Patterson (Col.), directing the secretary of war to order by cable Maj. Gardner, now in the Philippines, to come immediately to Washington, to appear as a witness before the Philippine committee, precipitated a warm discussion. The debate continued for about two hours, considerable feeling being manifested on both sides of the chamber.

House—The house passed the agricultural appropriation bill and began consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, the last but two of the regular supply measures. By the terms of a special rule adopted before the District bill was taken up it will be in order to attach a rider to it to make operative the existing personal tax law of the District, which has been a dead letter for 20 years.

Washington, May 1.—Senate—Aguinaldo was the special subject of discussion in the Senate Thursday. As soon as the Philippine government bill was taken up Mr. Carmack (Tenn.) resumed his criticism of the Philippine committee because of its refusal to call Aguinaldo and other Filipinos as witnesses.

House—The house gave most of the day to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which was not completed. Mr. Shattuc (O.) spoke on industrial conditions, and Mr. Gaines (Tenn.) in criticism of conditions in the Philippines.

Washington, May 3.—Senate—A lively debate was precipitated in the senate by Mr. Pritchard (N. C.) by some remarks he made on political methods in North Carolina, in the course of a discussion of the Philippine bill. The Rosebud Indian reservation bill and the sundry civil bill were again considered but not completed.

House—The house passed the anti-conspiracy bill reported from the judiciary committee without a word of debate. It came up rather unexpectedly and Mr. Littlefield (Me.), who had filed a minority report on the bill and had intended to offer some amendments, came in just as it was put up on its passage, and the vote was taken before he understood what was going on. The bill is as follows: That no agreement, combination or contract by or between two or more persons to do or procure to be done or not to do, or to procure not to be done, any act in contemplation or furtherance of any trade dispute between employers and employes in the District of Columbia or in any territory of the United States, or between employers and employes who may be engaged in trade or commerce between the several states, or between any territory and another, or between any territory or territories or any state or states or the District of Columbia, or with foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states or foreign nations shall be deemed criminal, nor shall those engaged therein be indictable or otherwise punishable for the crime of conspiracy, as such act committed by one person would not be punishable as a crime, nor shall such agreement, combination or contract be considered as in constraint of trade or commerce, nor shall any restraining order or injunction be issued with relation thereto. Nothing in this act shall exempt from punishment, otherwise than as herein accepted, any persons guilty of conspiracy, for which punishment is now provided by any act of congress, but such act of congress shall, as to the agreements, combinations and contracts herein before referred to, be construed as if this act were therein contained.

Herndon, Va.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I cannot speak too highly of the value of Peruna. I believe that I owe my life to its wonderful merits. I suffered with catarrh of the head and lungs in its worst form, until the doctors fairly gave me up, and I despaired of ever getting well again. "I noticed your advertisement and the splendid testimonials given by people who had been cured by Peruna, and determined to try a bottle. I felt but little better, but used a second and a third bottle and kept on improving slowly.

"It took six bottles to cure me, but they were worth a king's ransom to me. I talk Peruna to all my friends and am a true believer in its worth."
—Mrs. Col. E. J. Gresham.

Thousands of women owe their lives to Peruna. Tens of thousands owe their health to Peruna. Hundreds of thousands are praising Peruna in every state in the Union. We have on file a great multitude of letters, with written permission for use in public print, which can never be used for want of space.

THE KHOTAL TRADE MARK GAS RANGE

Would add to the comfort of many country residences which have hitherto been compelled to forego the comfort of using one by the fact that they were miles from any gas company. The Khotal is just the device such people need. It is a gas range, but generates its own gas from ordinary kerosene and then burns it without smell, smoke, or soot. It can be regulated to any desired temperature, occupies very little room, and can be moved from place to place if desired. The prices range from $8.75 upwards, and the cost of running is extremely small. Send stamp for catalogue and learn how little it will cost to run your kitchen comfortably during the hot weather.

Washington, D. C.—The above table presents in concrete form the essential results of the twelfth census relative to manufactures, and gives a general view of the progress of our industries. The work of compiling the manufacturing statistics has but just reached the stage where the presentation of accurate facts as contained in this table are possible, and while there have of course been some changes since the date of taking the census yet it is safe to base the manufacturing figures of the country on these, to which might be added probably an increase of ten per cent.

Beginning with the census of 1850 the government has included in the statistics gathered figures relating to the manufacturing industries. The table given above does not include these figures further back than 1870, but for purposes of comparison we give a few of them here that the growth of the full half century may be noted. Going back from 1870 to 1860 we find in the latter year but 140,433 manufacturing institutions in the country, and in 1850 there were but 123,025. In 1860 the total capital invested in manufacturing establishments amounted to $1,009,855,715; the total value of wages paid, $378,874,966; the total value of raw material consumed, $1,031,605,092, and the total manufactured product amounting to a value of $1,885,861,676. Going back another ten years to 1850 we find the total capital invested at that time was but $533,245,351; the total wages paid $236,755,464; the raw materials consumed, $555,123,822, and the value of the manufactured product, $1,019,106,616.

Heavy Increases.

Mr. S. N. D. North, the chief statistician for manufactures, in commenting on the remarkable advance in our manufacturing interests, said:

"It will be observed that, in comparison with the figures of the census of 1850, there has been an increase in capital invested approximating nineteenfold; in the average number of wage-earners about nine and one-half fold; in the amount of wages paid about tenfold, and in value of products about thirteenfold. This is an unusually remarkable showing when we consider that the population of the country has increased in the meantime but about two and one-quarter-fold. While these comparisons must be made with many reservations, they nevertheless afford, in all the items except that of capital invested, an approximate exhibit of the enormous increase in manufactures which occurred in the United States in the last half of the nineteenth century. They are particularly suggestive as an indication of the increasing productive capacity of labor, due chiefly to the increased effectiveness of machinery and the largely increased investment of capital. The apparent value of products per wage-earner has increased from $1,065 in 1850 to $2,451 in 1900."

The table given at the head of this article does not include the small establishments with an annual value of products of less than $500. Of these there are a total of 127,419, with an invested capital of $44,388,065, employing 55,128, to whom is paid $2,122,126 in wages annually, and turning out an annual product valued at $29,724,643.

The Large Industries.

Public interest naturally centers in the large industries, and what each contributes to the grand total of our manufactured products together with the number of wage-earners to whom they give employment and the amount of wages paid them. While we may glory in the fact that our total manufactured products have shown an increase between 1890 and 1900 of 32.9 per cent., and the total wages paid to employes during the same period has increased 23.8 per cent., the number of manufacturing establishments 27.3, and the amount of capital invested 43.7 per cent., yet we have cause for regret from the fact that all of our industries have not shown an increase. Several of the important lines of industry have decreased, though the decrease is to be noted in the value of the products in but very few lines, and those comparatively unimportant ones. In but five lines, among which is the manufacture of woolen goods, is there noted a decrease in the amount of capital invested, and there has been a decrease in the amount of wages paid in 11 lines. In the manufacture of boots and shoes, for instance, wages have decreased 2.5 per cent.; in the manufacture of carriages and wagons the amount of wages have decreased 8.7 per cent., while in both lines there has been an increase in the value of the manufactured product amounting in boots and shoes to 18.3 per cent., and in carriages and wagons to 6.1 per cent. The greatest number of decreases are shown in the number of establishments in the different lines, a fact that may be credited to the tendency to industrial combinations. The number of agricultural implement factories have decreased 21.4 per cent., for instance, while the value of the manufactured product has increased 24.5 per cent., the amount of capital invested has increased 8.5 per cent., and the wages paid show an increase of 24 per cent. Slaughtering and meat packing establishments give another notable instance of this percentage of decrease and increase. In that line the number of establishments have decreased 17.6 per cent., the capital invested has increased 61.9 per cent., number of employes increased 55.8 per cent., the wages paid increased 37.7 per cent., and the value of the product increased 61.4 per cent. This is due to the replacing of the local butchers to a great extent by the big packing houses of the metropolitan cities.

Annual Profits.

To arrive at figures representing somewhere near the total profits of our manufacturing industries it is but necessary to add together the various items composing the total cost of manufacture and deducting that from the value of the product. The items figuring in th cost of production are the salaries of 150,405 salaried officials and clerks, not enumerated in the wage-earners, amounting to $150,244,988; the amount paid wage-earners, amounting to $962,714,010; the miscellaneous expenses, which include such items as rent, taxes, insurance, etc., amounting to $745,864,695, and the cost of raw materials amounting to $3,743,536,496. Together these items give a grand total of $5,462,364,159, which, deducted from the value of the manufactured product, $6,117,965,710, leaves $655,601,551 representing profits.

These items of cost and production show some notable increases during the ten years from 1890 to 1900. The number of salaried officials and clerks, for instance, have increased from 125,-567 in 1890 to 156,405 in 1900, a percentage of 24.6. During the same time their salaries increased from $111,606,244 in 1890 to $169,244,988 in 1900, a percentage of 51.6. The number of wage-earners increased from 4,251,751 in 1890 to 2,306,537 in 1900, a percentage of 19.9, and their wages increased from $785,-907,485 in 1890 to $972,714,010 in 1900, a percentage of 23.8. The miscellaneous expenses increased from $341,628,493 in 1890 to $475,868,665 in 1900 a percentage of 39.3. The cost of raw materials increased from $2,792,150,885 in 1890 to $3,743,536,496 in 1900, a percentage of 34.1. During the same time the value of the annual product increased from $4,603,434,185 in 1890 to $6,117,965,-710 in 1900, a percentage of 32.9.

Standing of the States.

Of the different states and territories in the union not one has shown a decrease in the value of her manufactured product during the ten years between 1890 and 1900. The following table shows the rank in manufactures and population, the number of establishments, number of employes and value of annual product of the several states is arranged in order of the rank in manufactures of the different states for the year 1900:

The first seven states as enumerated in the above table held the same relative rank in point of manufactures in 1890 as in 1900, though they changed somewhat in their rank as to population. Among the states which made notable advances in point of rank may be mentioned Indiana, which stood number 11 in 1890 and number 8 in 1900, with a product valued at $226,625,082 in the former year and $378,120,140 in the later year; Louisiana, number 26 in 1890 and 22 in 1900, with a product valued at $57,806,713 in the former year and $121,134,683 in the later.

Growth in the States.

But the development of manufacturing interests may be studied in an even more certain way than by noting the changes in rank of the several states between the dates of the last two census takings. In 1890 Arizona was turning out manufactured products to the value of only $947,547, while in 1900 her manufactured products were valued at $21,315,189; in 1890 Colorado manufactured products to the value of only $42,480,205, while in 1900 her factories produced goods to the value of $102,830,137; New York in 1900 manufactured goods to the value of $2,175,766,900, while in 1890 her factories produced goods to the value of only $1,711,377,671. And so it is possible to go down through almost the entire list of states, each showing a heavy increase in the total of manufactured products between the two dates, and each adding its part to the grand total of increase. In the southern states the increase is especially noticeable, and the past decade seems to have marked a new era in their industrial development and prosperity.

WRIGHT A. PATTERSON.

Frankfort Rothschilds Extinct.

The Jewish Chronicle announces the extinction of the Frankfort branch of the Rothschilds, which has for over a century ranked as the parent house. The employes are to be pensioned off, and the whole business closed. This is the sequence of the recent death of Baron Willy Rothschild. His brother partner, who founded and endowed the delightful public library near the river in what was formerly his own house —in fact, the seats are his own dining-room chairs, and most comfortable they are—died some years ago. Baron Willy was intensely devout, and his reputation for devotion and charity brought so many parasites to Frankfort at one time that the municipality remonstrated. He had a large house in the city, but lived chiefly at a beautiful villa near by.—London Chronicle.

THE OLYMPIAN GAMES.

Commissioners Consult With Government Officials.

The Military and Naval Features of the Programme—Contingents From the National Guards and the Regular Army.

Chicago, May 3.—Messrs. Henry J Furber and Benjamin J. Rosenthal, of the Olympian games commission, returned to Chicago after a visit to Washington, made for the purpose of discussing the games with President Roosevelt and other prominent government officials. Both are deeply pleased with the cordial interest with which the president listened to nearly an hour to their presentation of the plans for the contests.

In regard to an appropriation of $500,000 from congress, Mr. Furber said: "We are advised by certain members that the Olympian games may readily be rendered so important as to make it incumbent upon congress to make a liberal appropriation It is, however, their opinion that it is too late to accomplish anything this session, but that if the merits of the general enterprise are properly brought to the attention within the next few months, congress, supported by the popular interest which the games should arouse, may at its next meeting be readily induced to make the necessary appropriation."

Continuing Mr. Furber said: "We return with the feeling that the military and naval features of our programme may be rendered most important. It is hoped that we may secure the attendance of contingents of the national guard from different states, and also from the regular army. It is not improbable that an effort will be made to secure the presence of troops from foreign nations to compete with ours in military exercises and athletics.

"To Congressman Foss, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, we are indebted for a valuable suggestion. He informs us that there are many vessels belonging to our navy which could, without difficulty, be brought into the great lakes. Among these may be mentioned the Hartford, Admiral Faragut's old flagship, the Gloucester, which engaged the Spanish torpedo flotilla off Santiago, and enough others to make an impressive naval pageant. The presence of warships on the lakes is of course governed by treaties with Great Britain and Canada; but for an amiable purpose such as this, especially as it may not be impossible to secure the presence also of ships from foreign navies, it is thought that England and Canada would be glad to lend their approval to the plan."

TALE OF WANT AND FAMINE.

No Rain Fell For Over Three Years at San Juan de Cabo.

San Francisco, May 3.—The steamer Curacao, from Mexican ports, brings a tale of want and famine in the town of San Juan de Cabo, situated near Cape San Lucas. For three and a half years no rain has fallen near the city, and for as many years the crops have utterly failed. The cattle industry, at one time the main stay of the region, has fallen into decay. The animals, for want of food, have died by hundreds. The condition of the people has become desperate. Scores of cases of death from starvation and neglect have been reported. The people are rapidly moving away from the impoverished district.

UNDER THE AMERICAN FAG.

J. Pierpont Morgan Purchased the White Star Line Steamers.

London, May 3.—The purchase by J. Pierpont Morgan of the White Star line of steamers is an absolute purchase of every thing the company possesses, including the good will, real estate and all the vessels in the New Zealand and Australian services of the White Star Co., in addition to those engaged in the Atlantic service. It is considered certain that all the White Star vessels will be transferred to the American flag at the earliest possible moment.

Public Lands Leased to Meat Trust.

Washington, May 3.—Representative Naphan (Mass.) introduced a resolution, reciting that it is publicly alleged that public lands are leased to members of the meat trust and directing the secretary of the interior to furnish information relative to lands so rented.

Drop in Prices of Meat.

Chicago, May 3.—For the first time since the agitation against the alleged beef trust began the packers Friday showed weakness in the market. Prices eased all around. Shortly before noon retailers were notified that dressed beef had dropped one-fourth cent, pork three-fourths cent and mutton one-half cent.

Boer Officers Captured.

Pretoria, May 3.—Col. Barker reports that, April 30, he captured Commandant Manie Botha, his adjutant and eleven others near Frankfort, Orange river colony. Manie Botha is a nephew of the commandant general and is Gen. DeWet's ablest lieutenant.

Business Failures.

New York, May 3.—Business failures in the United States for the week number 174, as against 181 last week, 163 in this week last year. In Canada for the week 22, against 20 last week and 17 a year ago.

GENERAL STRIKE PROBABLE.

Operators and Miners Failed to Reach An Agreement.

Hazleton, Pa., May 5.—The impression prevails among the miners of the Hazleton district that there will be a general strike as a result of the failure of the operators and the representatives of the United Mine Workers to come to an agreement. If the district executive boards decide on Wednesday at Scranton to order a suspension of work, the members of the union hereabouts will, it is believed, obey the order to a man. It is conservatively estimated that three-fourths of the employes in and about the mines in this region are organized, and if a strike is declared, operations will be brought to a standstill at every colliery. Many of the mines were idle during the greater part of the winter on account of the floods, and it is claimed that the men are not financially able to stand a long suspension. The miners, however, declare that they can live cheaply in the summer, and that the coal companies, with only a small supply of anthracite on hand, will be less able to endure a strike than their employes.

RUSH OF IMMIGRANTS.

New York, May 5.—The rush of immigrants to this port which has signalized the first four months of the year reached a climax the week ending Sunday night, during which time 25,120 immigrants have been brought to this city from the various European ports. The total number of immigrants arriving here for the four months ending April 30 was 178,604, an excess of more than 30,000 over any previous year for the same period. By months the record this year is:

January, 13,243 immigrants; February, 29,519; March, 57,175; April, 73,667.

When it is mentioned that the total number landing here last year was 438,868, it will be seen that 1902 has started out as a record breaker. No less than 12,340 immigrants were landed at Ellis island Saturday and Sunday, and in addition to this 1,000 were left aboard the steamer Tartar Prince to be landed Monday.

POTTER PALMER.

One of Chicago's Most Prominent Business Men Dead.

Chicago, May 5.—Potter Palmer, for nearly half a century one of Chicago's most prominent business men, died Sunday evening at his residence on Lakeshore drive. The exact cause of Mr. Palmer's death has not yet been determined. He had been suffering for several weeks from a nervous disorder but as he was able to be about the house his condition was not thought to be serious. When he retired Saturday night he was feeling, if anything, better than for several days. During the night, however, he seemed to lose all his energy and Sunday morning was unable to leave his room. He gradually grew weaker during the day and at 5:40 o'clock Sunday evening he suffered a sudden collapse from which he expired. The physicians who were attending Mr. Palmer are at a loss as to the direct cause of his death.

FIRE AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 5.—The Wells elevator, situated on Buffalo river at the foot of Indiana street, was destroyed by fire at midnight. A large quantity of grain had been placed in the elevator during the past week and the loss on the building and its contents is estimated at $225,000.

The fire was preceded by a loud explosion and the flames burst through the roof on two sides of the building. The Wilkinson elevator, 75 feet east of the Wells, was badly scorched, but the loss on this building is small. The Cleveland and Buffalo docks and freight sheds immediately in front and rear of the Wells elevator were slightly damaged.

Storm in St. Louis.

St. Louis, May 5.—For a short time Sunday afternoon a terrific storm of wind and rain prevailed in this city and vicinity, causing considerable minor damage. Lightning resulted in several fires one of which destroyed the machine shop and a section of the foundry of William and Philip Mardt's patent pulley plant in South St. Louis. The loss is estimated at $300,000; partially insured.

Relief Train Wrecked.

Rochester, Pa., May 5.—The "relief" train used in carrying railroad men from the Conway yards to their homes in Rochester, was wrecked half way between Freedom and Rochester Sunday evening, the engine jumping the track and turning over. Charles Sewell, of Freedom, was killed and Engineer A. J. Stacy, of Freedom, was fatally hurt.

Wedded the Next Day.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 5.—William Fitzgerald, a farmer of Sullivan county, buried his wife Thursday and on the following day was wedded to the cook and maid of all work, Minnie Stephens, on his farm, near Blountville.

President-Elect Palma's Movements.

Santiago de Cuba, May 5.—President-elect Estrada Palma left here Sunday afternoon for Santa Cruz. He will thence proceed to Cienfuegos, Matansar and Havana. He will reach Havana May 11.

MORO FORT CAPTURED

Campaign Against Sultan Bayan Was Successful.

A Hand to Hand Struggle in Four Lines of Ditches—One American Officer and Several Enlisted Men Were Killed.

Washington, May 5.—The war department Sunday received a cablegram from Gen. Chaffee indicating that the campaign against Sultan Bayan, one of the principal Moro chiefs, had been completely successful. The result was accomplished by a gallant assault on the principal Moro fort and its capture after a number of the leading Moros had been killed. The cablegram, which was received Sunday afternoon, was as follows:

Adjutant General, Washington:

The following is the full substance of Brig. Gen. George W. Davis' message from Bayan: Eighty-four survivors Bayan surrendered unconditionally this morning at 7. Sultan Bayan, Raja Muda Bayan, Sultan Pandapatan and all leading Dattos dead and many of their followers. Assault on the principal fort which surrendered last night one of the most gallant performances of American arms. Col. Frank D. Baldwin and his regiment deserve all praise for hand to hand struggle in four lines of ditches under walls of fort. These trenches are lined with Moro dead from rifle fire. Have never seen or heard of any performance excelling this gallantry and grit. It is my painful duty to report that the overthrow of Moro power was not accomplished without severe loss. One officer and seven enlisted men killed; four officers and 37 enlisted men wounded. Will telegraph the list later. After 84 survivors marched out this morning as prisoners, and was understood they were all, eight others who had concealed themselves in rubbish inside the fort, made a break for liberty, tried way out, but none succeeded. Some Moro wounded tried to stab soldiers trying to help them. It is impossible to state the number of Moros killed, many lying in tall grass.

The surrender saves us from siege and starving out. Impossible to have carried works without scaling ladders, which were ready. Intend to retain prisoners until two or three small adjacent forts occupied then with your consent to retain as hostages eight or ten of the principals and release the others. The force in the line of advance consisted of four mountain guns, 470 rifles. This fully sufficient. Could not have used more men advantageously. Had we sent strong column it would only have swelled the casualty list. One neighboring Datto has already presented himself as friend and I expect a general coming in shortly, when the weight of the blow is known. The dead sent to Mabanag for burial. In light of present knowledge, could have besieged the principal forts and in time forced surrender, but that would probably have resulted in a sortie for freedom and escape for many. By attacking them, they have been completely crushed—the only kind of lesson these wild Moros seem to be able to profit by. Shall invite Sultan Tarlac to pay me a friendly visit, if he does not do so of his initiative. Has fort further east in plain sight and of same strength as was Bayan, on beautiful table land, thousand acres fine upland rice, and urges people to return to its cultivation. The result to follow this action very important, namely, it secures respect for United States authority in the center of Moro savagery.

PETER J. OTEY.

Washington, May 5.—Congressman Peter J. Otey, of the Sixth Virginia district, died in Lynchburg, his home, Sunday afternoon at half-past 3 o'clock. Word to this effect was received at the sergeant-at-arm's office of the house of representatives at an early hour Sunday night. Mr. Otey had been named as a member of the committee to accompany the remains of the late Congressman Cummings to New York Sunday night, but he notified the speaker that he was too ill to attend.

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - May 7, 1902.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

During the recent poultry show in Indianapolis, The Sentinel called attention to the importance of the poultry product; and some persons thought it overestimated the industrial value of the hen. The census bureau has completed its investigation of the returns and its report shows that of the 5,739,657 farms in the United States, 5,096,255 reported poultry The total number of fowls three months old and over reported were as follows: Chickens, including guinea fowls, 233,598,085; turkeys, 6,599,367; geese, 5,676,863; ducks, 4,807,358. The number of nearly all these classes of poultry are smaller as reported in 1900 than in 1890 owing to the fact that in 1890 they reported all fowls of whatever age, while in 1900 only those three months old and over were reported.

The product of eggs in 1899 was 1,293,819,186 dozens, against 819,722,916 dozens in 1889. An increase in the number of eggs produced, rather than an increase in the number of different kinds of fowls, marks the progress of this branch of the industry. The value of poultry on hand June 1, 1900, was $85,793,996; the value of poultry raised in 1899 was $136,891,877, and the value of eggs produced in 1899 was $144,286,158. The total income derived by the farmers from their poultry industry in 1899, representing the total value of the eggs produced as well as the poultry raised, was $281,187,035. This total makes the poultry industry one of the largest connected with agriculture.

But enormous as are these figures, they do not represent the full truth, because they include only the poultry returns from farms and ranches, and everybody is aware that poultry raising is by no means confined to the agricultural districts. There are thousands of families in cities and towns who have their little stock of chickens, and raise them for the table as well as for the eggs. The extent of this branch of the industry can only be guessed at, but it will certainly add largely to the general result.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Since the Kentucky Legislature in its short-sighted economy failed to make any appropriation to make a creditable exhibit of Kentucky's resources at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition to be held in 1904, it is proposed by the Louisville Board of Trade that a fund of $100,000 be raised by popular subscription for that purpose. This ought by all means be done. It is a crying shame that the bill did not pass the Legislature. It was short sighted parsimony of the very worst sort; but since "What is ended, can't be mended" the best thing to do is to raise the sum needed by popular subscription. Kentucky is the best State in the Union and she is entitled to have a good place in this big show. Her people demand it and her material wealth demands it. If such a project is put on foot every citizen in the State who can possibly do so ought to contribute to the fund.

A remarkable marriage law went into effect in the State of New York. It is known as the Weekes law, and under it a man and wife can enter into a written contract to that effect, have it properly witnessed and acknowledged as they would a land deed, and are allowed six months in which to file their contract. If both parties desire to annul the marriage after six months, they may do so by failing to have it filed. The marriage contract may be drawn up without the attendance of a clergyman or any regularly authorized officers. Two witnesses are sufficient.

Last Friday quite an old couple were united in marriage in this county. The groom was "Counselor" B. F. Reed and the bride Mrs. James Clark of near Hesler, Mr. Reed being in his 69th year and Mrs. Clark being in her 64th year. This is the third matrimonial venture for the groom and the second for the bride. They have a host of friends who wish for them a long life of happiness.—Owen News-Herald.

Another effort is being made to collect the Carter county railroad debt. The heirs of David Sinton have filed suit in the Federal Court at Covington for $75,000. The bonds were issued years ago for a railroad that was never built.

Last Friday a strange man called at Dr. Duncan's, where he was left in the room for a short time alone. From Burlington he went to Petersburg, where he tried to sell a razor on which was the Doctor's name but which he had not missed until asked about it by telephone. The man, whose name is Sparks, was arrested, and Sheriff Allphin went down and brought him in, and took him before County Judge Cason, but owing to the small amount of the theft the Doctor did not prosecute, and Sparks was let go. It is understood that Sparks is a morphine fiend, and hardly accountable. Since the above was put in type we hear that Sparks, who is a piano tuner, visited the office of Dr. Beyer, at Hebron, not long since, and shortly after he left a fountain pen and some other small articles were missed.

GOD'S POTENT GIFT.

No Fairy's Talisman or Aladdin's Lamp Ever Wrought Half the Blessing as Is Realized Through Jesus Christ.

Chicago, May 4.

Text: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

The telescope of the astronomer tells us that beyond the vision of the natural eye there exist myriads of starry worlds, and we believe him, even though we have never been privileged to search them out for ourselves. The microscope of the scientist demonstrates that in the water we drink and the air we breathe there are perfect swarms of queer and grotesque and hideous looking creatures. We take our glass of water and hold it up to the light, and as the beams of sunlight flash and glint through the clear crystal liquid it is hard to believe that what the wise man says is true, yet we do accept his statement as a declaration of fact.

God's Word tells us that God's throne is in the heavens, and that the earth is His footstool, and if our spiritual vision is not holden we believe that it is true. Enoch walked with God, and he was not, for God took him. There is a brief and complete biography recorded by God. It tells us of his earthly career. He left the earth at the behest of God, and went where? To the heavens where God has His dwelling place. Elijah, when his mission on earth was fulfilled, in the Providence of God, was wafted to the heavens in a chariot of fire, and Elisha was left behind with the mantle of the great prophet in his hands to tell the story. The former pupils of Elijah, who doubted Elisha's story, went out to search for the translated prophet, but found him not, but it was the privilege of Peter, James and John on the mount in Galilee to see the Lord in His transfiguration talking to that same Elijah, who so many hundreds of years before had walked through the land of Palestine and warned the people of their sins and had destroyed the 450 prophets of Baal.

When Jesus began His public ministry the heavens opened, we are told by God's Word, and a voice from that unseen region said: "Thou art My beloved Son; in Thee I am well pleased." And Stephen, with his face lit up by the glories of the Celestial Kingdom, as he looked steadfastly towards Heaven, saw it open, and Jesus Himself standing at the right hand of God, the place which He had designated, before His crucifixion and resurrection, should be His abiding place until the fulfillment of the time of the Gentiles, and He should leave Heaven with a shout of triumph and return to earth in the clouds of Heaven even as He went from earth into Heaven.

Paul bears testimony to the fact that he was carried into the heavens, and whether he was in the body or out of the body he could not tell, but he heard unutterable things and declares that "eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him." Among the last declarations of Jesus Christ were the words, in which we find so much comfort, especially in the hour of bereavement: "In My Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you I will come again and receive you unto Myself, that where I am there ye may be also."

Surely from the beginning of the history of man, when Enoch stepped from earth into the glories of Heaven, to the vision of John the Beloved, who saw the new Jerusalem being let down from Heaven, we have ample proof and testimony that Heaven is a real place, even though we cannot see it with the natural eye, and it is the dwelling place of God, and His Christ and the hosts of angels and the great company of the redeemed.

And so in Heaven, before the foundations of the world were laid, God purposed in His infinite heart of love to give to the world the rarest treasure of Heaven in order that earth might be enriched and sinful man wooed back to Him. All Heaven was astir when the time drew near that the Word of God, the Son of God, should become flesh and dwell among men. Abraham, who had the promise of God that in his seed should all the nations of the earth be blessed, was among the long list of patriarchs and prophets of the Old Testament who rejoiced with the Heavenly hosts in the gift which God was going to give unto men, the fulfillment of all the law and the prophets.

Heaven's music burst upon human ears on that first Christmas morning when the shepherds on the hillside of Judea heard the glad tidings that "unto you" in this day don't city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." They came and worshiped the young child and received Him into their hearts as the long-promised Messiah. The wise men brought their gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh. They bowed in homage before the innocent babe, realizing, by inspiration from Heaven, that wise in the learning of the world though they were, still here was a gift from the God of all knowledge which made their learning pale into insignificance and made them realize that the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

And thus from Heaven came the gift of God to earth, for God so loved that He gave. We are to talk of the potency of this gift, but we cannot pass the ruling motive of the heart of God, which enabled Him to give, and made His Son obedient unto His will. God loved in the beginning and has patiently kept on loving all through the ages, though man's heart has been so slow to respond. Can we understand that love? Can we so speak as to convey an idea of what that love is? If John, the beloved disciple, who was nearest to the heart of Christ, could not fully understand, but exclaims: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is," surely, we cannot hope to fathom that love, but also must wait until beholding face to face, we shall then understand what God's love really is.

Aged Sarah thought she knew what love was when the faithful, covenant-keeping God came and laid in her arms the beautiful babe, Isaac. Abraham, as he saw the child of promise develop into strong young manhood and share in the father's faith and devotion to the only true God, thought he knew what real love was. When God would test him, He commanded Abraham to take his son, his only begotten son Isaac, and offer him up in sacrifice to Him. With his obedient heart breaking, he takes his beloved son and for three days journeys towards a mountain which God is to show him. Did you ever try to picture what those three days were to faithful old Abraham? The communion between the father and the son as they journeyed is too sacred for even the pages of God's Holy Word to record. Abraham then thought he knew what real love was. As they wended their way slowly up the mountainside to the place of sacrifice, and Isaac in wonder asks: "My father, behold the fire and the wood; but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" Oh, the cruel anguish which pierced the heart of Abraham through and through. He thought then he knew what real love was. Abraham's faith failed not, blessed be God, and he had grace sufficient to say: "My son, God will provide Himself a lamb for a burnt offering." And God did provide a lamb. Abraham thought he knew what love was, but he never did until on the wings of faith his spirit took its flight to God's heaven and he understood fully the infinite love of God who was preparing to give His only begotten Son as a sacrifice to the world.

There are beautiful pictures of human love running all through the Word of God, from devoted, loyal Ruth to Mary with the alabaster box of ointment, or Mary Magdalene, whose love for her Lord made her linger at the tomb and gave her the first vision of her risen Lord. Love! As the love of Christ fills our hearts we can begin to know somewhat of the love of God, but we cannot fully know until we stand on the other side and join in the grand chorus of the redeemed in praise of Him who alone is worthy to be praised.

The potency of the gift of God begins to be realized as we slowly read the rest of our text. This gift is all comprehensive, it is from everlasting to everlasting. Aladdin's lamp, if it ever had any existence beyond the imagination of the one who tells the story of its wonderful potency, has passed away, and only the memory remains. The story of Midas' touch which could transmute to gold any thing with which it came in contact has delighted and held the attention of readers for generations, but it is but a tale. The story of the magic carpet which used to whisk its owner in the story book to every conceivable and inconceivable nook and corner of old mother earth has performed its mission in fairy land and given place to other fairy potencies of the story writer's brain. But where in history, prose or poetry will you find an equal to the story of the potency of the Gift of God to the world.

Moses' rod, under the direction of God, could part the Red sea, could smite the rocks in the desert until refreshing waters gushed forth. The trumpets of the priests and the shouts of the children of Israel could lay low the walls of Jericho. The Gideon's band of three hundred could win a mighty victory over the hosts of the Midianites. The cry of a Joshua to God could cause the sun to stand still. The shepherd's sling of a David could send crashing to earth the terrible giant and deliver from the oppression of the Philistines for a time, but all these wonderful potentialities of God passed away and all we have is a living, thrilling memory. But the gift which God gave to the world nineteen hundred years ago is swaying the world more powerfully than ever before, and as we review the achievements of the past wonderful century we hear it echoed on every hand that it is the result of the Light which God sent into the world to light every man to Him.

Young Solomon, called to the responsibilities of a great and prosperous kingdom, sought a blessing from God. In choosing wisdom, in order that he might successfully conduct the affairs of state, he found that the lesser gifts were included and he had both riches and honor.

In God's Gift to the world we secure a Saviour from sin and find that all the lesser blessings of life are included. "Whosoever receiveth (believeth in) Him hath everlasting life." The ambitious heart that receives Him as the center of his being finds that instead of the horizon of his hopes being limited to the possible three score and ten, he has all eternity in which to work out God's plans. The one who has a passion for gold and this world's goods may live to realize the accumulation of great wealth, but when he least thinks of it the call from his God will come: "This night thy soul shall be required of thee," and there will be borne in upon his soul with crushing defeat the words of Christ: 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Then he will realize that the realities of life are not to be compared to the riches of Heaven to which the soul has access in Jesus Christ.

And so with the pleasure seeker. The world is going mad in its quest after diverting pastimes and exciting pleasures. And is it ever satisfied? Does it ever reach the point where it can say I am content? Never! Like the dope of the morphine eater, each successive dose of pleasure must be intensified in order to secure the desired effect. Sodom and Gomorrah of ancient time, and the more recent examples of Rome and Greece, show to what end the pleasure seekers are tending.

But the secret of true happiness is found in the acceptance of God's Gift. No tarnish ever dims the luster of that presence. No aching head and shattered nerves ever come in the wake of the happiness of dwelling in the presence of Jesus. No anguish of soul which leads so often to the suicide's grave ever crushes the soul with its aftermath, when Christ is the satisfying portion.

The potency of God's Gift is felt in every throb and being of life. Why seek what the world can give when Heaven was emptied that all earth, and Heaven, too, might resound throughout the ages with the praises of the matchless Gift of God to men. They, who, with David, have said: "I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than dwell in the palaces of the wicked," are to-day rejoicing in the realities of Heaven, while their contemporaries who rejected the rule of God over their hearts are awaiting in darkness their eternal banishment from the Lord.

God has come down into the midst of men and is holding out, to whosoever will take, this Gift of eternal life through Christ Jesus. "What will you do with Jesus, who is called the Christ?" "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation." "To-day, if you will hear His voice, harden not your hearts."

I had occasion the other day to enter the home where affliction had come. The father had gone to his work as usual one morning. He kissed his wife and two little boys a cheery good-by and trudged off to work. With no thought that a terrible accident was impending, while the sun shone and the fresh air spoke of coming spring, and the birds echoed in glad notes the feelings of reviving nature all about, suddenly came the crash of cars, and "Papa lies over at the hospital," was the story the sturdy little boy told me in subdued tones when I called. As I turned my way homeward pondering on the uncertainties of life and repeating: "Yea, verily, while we are in life we are in the midst of death," suddenly a tiny bird caught my eye as he circled the tree higher and higher seeking its food. Never a thought but for the moment. Seeking its complete joy and satisfaction in the present moment. How like some lives was that of this little bird. Here was life in all of its glad fullness. Not a cloud in the sky to darken the warming rays of the sun. Could it be possible that only a few steps back from the way that I had come a sorrowing wife and tender children were mourning the sudden accident to the husband and father. Ah, friend, are you counting on to-day, to-morrow and the morrows that follow? Are you putting off the acceptance of this Gift offered you by God until a more convenient season. How dare we risk the eternal welfare of the soul in the face of life's uncertainties? Why should we delay when we gain all through the Gift, and have nothing without it?

As I neared my own door on that Lord's day afternoon I saw my neighbor standing in his doorway. "How is the little girl?" I asked. The report in the morning was that she was better, and as I made the present inquiry it was with the expectancy of good news of continued improvement, but as I looked into the drawn features of the sorrow-stricken father, I read his message, and "She is dead," need not to have been spoken.

Dead! What dread sound that word has to the human heart. How we shrink from the grim reaper. Oh, the anguish of that home. If the finger of God had reached out and touched those cold lips and made them warm with life, had put the light into the eye and strength into the little wasted limbs, what joy, what mad joy, would have shook the frames of the parents in revulsive emotion. We reason thus oftentimes in our childish imaginings, and fail to appreciate the sadder scenes the death of a soul. Why, what we call death may be but the darkly beautiful gateway which ushers into the eternal life of which we have been speaking. God's Gift, His only Begotten Son, makes of death but a shadow, and the soul can pass along the way with David while he sings: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

The potency of God's Gift is felt in the present life as Jesus Christ becomes the ruling factor in the yielding will. Peter becomes the powerful preacher, before whom the hearts of thousands melt as the love of God is made manifest to them. Paul, from the raging lion of fleshly passion going about in his mad zeal to fight against God, becomes the great apostle to the Gentiles and the revealer of the mysteries of the church, the body of Jesus Christ. What the Gift of God has done for Peter and Paul can be realized in your life. Surely never was other gift so potent as this whose touch can transform the life and impart the germ of eternity where now is the seed of death.

A RED LETTER DAY.

The democrats in the house of representatives have scored a signal victory over their opponents.

Standing at last, with a few unimportant exceptions, shoulder to shoulder, the democrats divided and disorganized the republicans, broke the autocracy of the speaker and amended the Cuban reciprocity measure with a provision abolishing the differential tariff on sugar.

This is certainly more than the most optimistic democrat dared hope to accomplish two weeks ago, and is only a foretaste of what the minority may yet do if it shall continue to present the compact front which it maintained in the battle, says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

It had been feared that there would be serious division among the democrats themselves on the proposition to reduce the tariff in favor of Cuba; but on the final vote only ten stood against it. The result is a brilliant victory for the united party, and whether or not the bill as passed by the house gets through the senate, the party victory remains, and its inspiriting effect is bound to be lasting and great.

The differential duty on sugar, as all who are posted in tariff legislation understand, is the difference between the duty on raw sugar and the higher duty on refined sugar. This is the duty which the sugar trust has always demanded and has always got. The democrats now, in passing through the house a repeal of that differential rate, have struck the trust a strong blow and have taken an important step toward making the sugar tariff more a tariff for revenue and less a tariff for protection, while they have forced the republicans to align themselves openly in defense of the trust. It is from every standpoint the most telling triumph achieved by the democratic minority in years.

Mr. Payne, the leader of the republican majority, says that this amendment to the reciprocity bill carries with it a repeal of the countervailing duty as well as of the differential duty. If that is true, so much the better. The countervailing duty is the extra duty which must be placed upon sugar on which the government of the producer pays an export bounty; in other words, it is the result of that phase of protection which refuses to allow the American consumer to get the benefit of the generosity of a foreign sugar producer's government in partially paying the American tariff tax. If Mr. Payne is right, the democrats did a bigger day's work than they were aware of themselves.

It is likely that the amended bill will have rough sailing in the senate. The sugar trust is very strong in that body, but even though the measure he finally passed without the house amendment the tactical advantage which the house democrats have won cannot be diminished. It was a red-letter day for the democrats in congress.

IT TROUBLES THE STOMACH.

The Trust Question Begins to Come Close Home to the Pockets of the People.

The trust question threatens to resolve itself into a national stomach trouble. And if it does the popular view of it will be rapidly and radically changed.

As to iron, steel, copper, tin, wire, nails and hardware generally, the people may listen more or less patiently to the proposition that trusts are beautiful and beneficent agencies for lessening the cost of production, raising wages and cheapening prices. But no argument will avail to reconcile the mass of mankind to the disappearing beefsteak, the vanishing lamb stew and the shrinking ration of pork, says the New York World. Owen Meredith shrewdly says of man that—

"He may live without love—what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?"

The beef trust has done more in a fortnight to set the people thinking keenly and deeply on the problem of monopoly than all the trusts that manipulate unedible things put together could possibly do. Steak at 25 cents a pound is the "price that staggers humanity." It is the anti-climax of "the full dinner pail." The subtleties of the economists will be swept away like cobwebs when people are forced to weigh them against a lean larder and a pinched bill of fare.

History abounds with illustrations of the fact that whoever and whatever interfere between man and his meals invite disaster. The French revolution began with a cry for food under the windows of the king's palace. It was the bread riots of half-fed England that forced a tory government to repeal the taxes on corn in very fear of what might happen if it did not. The American people, having always been the best-fed people in the world, will resent all the more fiercely the artificial dearness and scarcity of food which the trusts are conspiring to create.

If there is any practical remedy for this piratical raid on the people's food supplies in the federal anti-trust laws President Roosevelt and Attorney General Knox cannot move to apply it too quickly. "The full dinner pail" was a conquering cry. "The empty dinner plate" would be a still more decisive slogan. "Prosperity" will lose all its spell-binding power if the trusts are able to maintain extortionate prices on meat, poultry, butter and eggs and put the people on short food allowance amid the overflowing plenty of the most plentiful land on which the sun shines.

IT IS UP TO MR. ROOT.

The Military Head Is Charged with Withholding Information Regarding Philippine Frauds.

After the treaty of Paris had been signed and the Philippines thereby ceded to the United States, the Spanish prime minister, Senor Sagasta, said: "Now Spain is avenged." This was laughed at as a fine bit of cynicism; but events have established Sagasta as a highly respectable authority. The "gift" has cost us hundreds of millions and the prediction that the end is at hand is no more sanguine than it has been scores of times within the last two years. After the task of establishing peace and quiet in a broken and scattered territory there is the problem of protecting it. In the event of a foreign war we would not have the comparatively easy work of defending a continuous empire. To attack a compact nationality fighting for home and country is a very different proposition and far less inviting than the inauguration of a war which may be forced and fought 7,000 miles from our shores, says the Detroit Free Press.

That congress appreciates what a stupendous menace we have bought appears in the fact that it is trying to make appropriations to fortify the seaboard cities in towns where the costly maintenance of garrisons will be necessary even after the internal troubles are quieted. For the same reason the navy must be largely increased. There is nothing to do so long as we cling to the Philippines but to establish and maintain a largely increased fighting equipment both for the reasons cited and because the respect formerly had for the Monroe doctrine is greatly weakened by the invasion of the other hemisphere. Some idea of what it would mean to have to defend our new possessions in the event of war appears in the fact that the aggregate land of the Philippines is about equal to that in New Mexico, while the seacoast they have is almost equal to that of all our states bordering on the two great oceans.

Figures of the expense that we must carry are overwhelming, and the most sanguine do not predict that the generation is yet born that will see the balance in favor of this country. Yet these considerations are far from covering the material considerations involved. Charges of fraud in the Philippines have been passed over with a lightness that invites its repetition. Some of the ugliest stories connected with modern civilized warfare are under investigation. The senate committee is encountering extreme difficulty in getting vital facts as to the true situation in the islands. Gen. Taft is charged with the suppression of important information bearing upon the military government. There is no valid excuse for this, but there is the creditable explanation that he, as the head of the civil government, shrank from condemning those with whom he is allied in control.

Now it is alleged in open senate that the secretary of war is withholding material information from the committee. If this be true he is without an apology. He is the power behind the military government, and to cover its derelictions is to become a party to them. If the charges are true Mr. Root has ignored acts for the people, and that it is they who are demanding an unabridged and explicit statement of conditions in our new possessions. Conceding the right of military control in the Philippines it does not follow that it can be exercised at home in the slightest degree. Congress has a right to know everything, and of course will know everything.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Should the paramount issue in the next campaign be the control of the trusts and the related questions of the tariff and the shipping subsidy steal it will mean victory for the democratic ticket. — Peoria Herald-Transcript.

——Protectionists in this country who jubilate over the protectionist trend of the British budget ought not to forget that the new grain duties will hit the American farmer in the corn belt worse than a drought. And that can be nothing to be glad about. —Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

——Unless we read the signs of the times altogether incorrectly all efforts to make anti-imperialism the paramount issue will fail, although it will be an important issue. On the tariff reform proposition all democrats can get together, no matter how widely they split in 1896. And when they get together on a sane platform they will be reenforced by thousands of republicans who now see the error of their protection ways.—Toledo Bee.

——A tariff for protection to "infant industries" and to "maintain American wages" is one thing; a tariff that breeds trusts and empowers them to take the American people by the throat and make them pay more for the products of their own soil and industry than foreigners 3,000 miles away is quite another thing. The days of the tariff for trusts only are numbered. The people are ready to demand a share in their own prosperity.—N. Y. World.

——It is time that congress stripped the mask of "benevolent assimilation" from this administration. Let the people have all the facts so carefully concealed and so unblushingly denied by the war department. Let them see what really has been done in their name in the torture of noncombatants, the murder of prisoners, the burning indiscriminately of all dwellings in villages where some few "insurgents" have been found. It is a bad story, but when the people find out how bad it is they will also find a remedy.—Boston Post.

MADE HIT WITH KAISER.

Naval Attache Beehler, Who Is Leaving United States Embassy at Berlin, Was Often Dined.

Commander William H. Beehler, the United States naval attache at Berlin, and Mrs. Beehler went to Dresden the other day. Thence the commander will pay farewell visits to Vienna and Rome, and will return to Berlin for his formal leave-taking. His term expired April 1.

Commander Beehler, during the last two years, has breakfasted, lunched and dined with Emperor William 27 times, and has had 46 audiences with his majesty, almost all at the emperor's initiative. The emperor has shown an extraordinary liking for the attache, and has facilitated his official inquiries in every way.

Emperor William on several occasions, like the Kiel regatta and smoking parties, put his arm on Commander Beehler's shoulder and called him "Bill."

STUDIED CORAL FORMATIONS.

Prof. Alexander Agassiz, of Harvard, who has returned after a month spent in examining the coral reefs of the Maldive islands, in the southern Indian ocean, says he learned more in that time about coral formations than in the whole 15 years he had previously studied the subject.

His specimens have been shipped to the museum at Cambridge, Mass. Prof. Agassiz last October chartered the British steamship Arma. He was accompanied by his son, Dr. Woodworth, and H. B. Bigelow as assistants.

They took many deep-sea soundings, studied the formation of atolls and took a large number of photographs. Next year Prof. Agassiz will continue his investigations in other parts of the world.

Nurses' Experience.

Medical men say that a good nurse in a difficult case is better than medicine, but when we can get a good nurse and good medicine, the patient stands a much better chance of recovery. The few words of advice given below by nurse Eliza King, are well worthy the attention of all readers:

"I have constantly used St. Jacobs Oil in the various situations I have occupied as nurse, and have invariably found it excellent in all cases requiring outward application, such as sprains, bruises, rheumatic affections, neuralgia, etc. In cases of pleurisy it is an excellent remedy—well rubbed in. I can strongly recommend it after several years' use and experience. It should be in every household."

Sister CAROLINA, St. Andrew's Hospital, writes: "I have found St. Jacobs Oil a most efficacious remedy in gout; also in sprains and bruises. Indeed, we cannot say too much in its praise, and our doctor is ordering it constantly."

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

Ernest Bowley Hanged to a Tree at Brandenburg, Ky.

Brandenburg, Ky., May 1.—Sixty men from Guston came to the county jail at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and demanded Ernest Bewley, a Negro, who Tuesday shot Harvey Dowell, white, and who had been brought here for safe-keeping. After a brief parley the jailor handed over the prisoner, who was taken a short distance from town and hanged to a tree.

Bewley, while drunk, created a disturbance in Pickerell's saloon, and was thrown out by the barkeeper. He returned later and opened fire on Pickerell, who was standing on a porch. He missed him and hit Dowell in the leg, inflicting a dangerous wound. Bewley fled, but was caught hiding in a sinkhole. The people in the neighborhood, angered by the conduct of the Negroes, determined to lynch him as an object lesson. Bewley had often been in trouble.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Es Broadway, colored, who killed his sweetheart at Guston, Ky., a few weeks ago, was to have been taken to Brandenburg Wednesday, but word was received that Bewley had been lynched and that a crowd was waiting to deal the same fate to Broadway. He will therefore remain here. When he was captured he had just escaped a mob.

Sues For a Dower Right.

Newport, Ky., May 2.—Mrs. Sarah E. Spinks, of this city, mother of Harry E. Spinks, filed a sensational suit in the United States court in Covington Thursday against her son in which she alleges that he induced his father, Charles Spinks, deceased, to deed to him several hundred pieces of property in Newport and adjoining cities, which is valued at $500,000. The mother and widow is suing her son for a dower interest, and likewise for a widow's partnership in the firm of Chas. Spink & Son, which firm is known as one of the largest in this vicinity.

New Trial Granted.

Frankfort, Ky., May 2.—The court of appeals Thursday granted a new trial to George Howard, of Bell county, a son of Mrs. Clorinda Howard, who recently gave some sensational testimony in the trial of Berry Howard in Frankfort. George Howard was given a four year sentence for killing his own father, Daniel Howard. The error upon which a new trial was granted was improper remarks to the jury by the commonwealth's attorney in his argument.

Conroy & Co., Cincinnati, who has been in jail at Lebanon since April 28 for refusing to pay a $5-a-day license imposed by the town on non-resident drummers, Friday secured his release on habeas corpus granted by Federal Judge Evans, who pronounced the ordinance unconstitutional.

Scored Them All.

For four miles the team ran at full speed, Mr. Haggin managing to keep in the middle of the road.

Once or twice, at turns, the buggy came near turning over. Mrs. Haggin was cool during the thrilling ride, while Mr. Haggin was very nervous when he finally brought the team to a stop. He thanked "his lucky stars," he said.

KINGS AND THEIR CROWNS.

King Oscar, of Sweden, has not only two crowns, but, although Sweden and Norway are now one kingdom, the Swedish king receives two coronations.

The crown has no part in the inaugural ceremony of the king of the Belgians, who merely swears to preserve the constitution and to observe the laws.

While some monarchs have no crowns, others have several. The czar of Russia has a large assortment. Among the baubles of the czar are the crowns of Kier, Kasan, Siberia, Astrachan, Poland, Finland and the Crimea.

The sultan of Turkey has no crown and nothing of the kind is employed in his investiture with despotic power. His authority is frankly the power of the sword. Instead of coronation the sultan is girt with the sword of Othman. "Take it with faith," is the injunction, "for you receive it from God."

Spain originally had no crown, and there is no actual coronation now, the monarch only taking an oath similar to that of the king of the Belgians. But though not actually invested with the round and top of royalty, a Spanish king has a crown of a very costly and elaborate design, though it originally was only a plain band of gold.

The oldest, and, to the general imagination, probably the most imposing crown in Europe is the iron crown of Lombardy—heavy impostor though it is. It is gravely declared to be made out of the nails used in the crucifixion. It is 1,500 years old, and so holy is the material that the laws of chemical affinity have been suspended in its favor, and there is not, and there never has been, a particle of rust upon it.

In the matter of costliness the evolutionary lead seems to have been taken by the Portuguese crown, which has been valued at $8,000,000. It is, however, sad to say, necessary to take all such estimates with some caution. One would think that where persons so exalted as kings and queens are concerned there could be no distinction between the nominal and the real value. Alas! the lack of funds sometimes vexes even the most exalted souls, and monarchs have been known to "fake" their crowns with colored glass and to send the real gems to their "uncles."

SEEN IN THE SHOP WINDOWS.

Small golf clubs are shown made in the sizes best adapted to the use of children. With them have come small golf club bags in khaki and in leather which are quite attractive in appearance.

A pretty design for the bed linen of a room is a pattern of lilies of the valley. There are two lines of drawn work above the hem of both pillow cases and sheets and between them sprays of the dainty blossoms.

In the household goods department is to be found a new ice shaver. This article comes in heavy metal in the shape of a covered dipper. The rounded under the side of the dipper is provided with sharp teeth which shave the ice and force the shavings up into the dipper.

One of the latest novelties shown in the jewelry department comes direct, so it is said, from the French capital and is a handsome bracelet called the "gate bracelet" so named from its mode of fastening. As bracelets are to be much worn this season, owing to the fashion of elbow sleeves, the shops are showing some new and exquisite designs in this jewelry.

A Funereal Joke.

At the funeral of a lawyer of state reputation, who lived and practiced in a town not far from Philadelphia, and who was known among his friends facetiously as an unbeliever, an eminent gentleman from Philadelphia reached the house after the minister had begun the sermon. Not knowing how far the services had progressed, he accosted a well-known Quaker of the town, who was a friend of the deceased, and who was noted for his great sense of humor, and, leaning over his shoulder, asked in a whisper:

"What part of the services have they reached?"

To which the Quaker, without a smile, replied:

"Just opened for the defense."—Philadelphia Times.

Miss Katherine Maud Rice, a pretty girl of Louisville, laughed herself to death. She was visiting some friends when one of them told a funny story. The physicians in charge said lesion of the brain was produced by her laughter.

C. L. Thornton, of Owen county, is publically announced as a Democratic candidate for State Senator in this Senatorial district. Owen county has the "say" as to whom the next candidate shall be, and Boone and Gallatin will let her sons fight to a finish for the plum.

R. K. Aylor, of Waterloo, began delivering his 16,000 pound crop of tobaccco to Conner & Hogan, last Friday. He grew it on the Lawell place down on the East Bend road. Bob is one of the quiet going farmers, but in the matter of crops he is always well up in the procession.

G. T. Gaines sold his bay harness and saddle horse to a Cincinnati party, last week for $250. He has another horse for which he refused $300. Mr. Gaines has been the most successful handler of horse flesh in this part of the county, and has made numerous sales at good prices in the last few years.

A strange man appeared at the residence of Bert Gaines, about two miles west of town, one day last week and demanded something to eat, and frightened the ladies who were at the house by themselves. About dark he was seen in Burlington by two ladies who were on the street, and whom he followed some distance.

The Valley View Argent says: In making excavations for the warehouse being erected by Mr. Land across the river, the workmen exhumed several skeletons in a good state of preservation. It is not known how they came there, as the oldest citizens do not recall to mind the time when it was ever used as a burying ground. It is believed to be the burying ground of Indians.

I have sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for years, and would rather be out of coffee and sugar than it. I sold five bottles of it yesterday to threshers that could go no farther, and they are at work again this morning.—H. R. Phelps, Plymouth, Oklahoma. As will be seen by the above the threshers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this Remedy in your home. For sale by all Druggists.

The general Assembly did not, at the recent session, as seems to be the general impression, enact a law prohibiting the killing of quail for sale purposes for a period of two years and prohibiting the shipping of quail out of the State at any time. Such a bill was introduced in the House, and was adopted by that body, but did not get to the Senate in time to receive consideration there. The only bird laws adopted were House Bill 57, the Henderson Aupubon Society bill for the protection of wild birds, other than game birds, and their nests and eggs, and the House Bill 153, licensing nonresident hunters, a law similar to that in effect in Ohio and Indiana.

HOUSEWORK

Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.

I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fleshier than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day. Mrs. Richard Jones.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1902. NO. 30.

COMMISSARY.—Having been solicited to write the news from this point of old Boone, I have decided to do so, and will give to the readers of the RECORDER from week to week the happenings and doings of the Commissary.

Lewis Merrick, of East Bend, has moved in with his father-in-law, Noah West, living near here.

Those wishing to see their names in the paper must do some commendable acts, or something perfectly ridiculous.

Omer Popham and Alva Moyer, of Indiana, were visiting Mrs. Gertie Parsons and Larm Popham a few days since.

The people in the neighborhood of the Commissary compare favorably in point of intelligence, morality, enterprise and push, with those of other places.

At no time in its history has the population of the Commissary been more than 6 souls, 2 dogs and an old cat, and at the present time, it is an old bachelor and a black cat.

At one time the Woolper pike intersected with the Bellevue and Burlington pike at this place; but its charter was taken from it a few years ago and it is now a county road.

I will state for the benefit of those of its readers that know nothing of the existence and location of the Commissary, that it is situated on the Burlington & Bellevue pike, about half way between the two towns. When the pike was built some time in the seventies, the contractor kept his supplies here for the men and teams in his employ, and from this it took its name and is so known all over the county.

During the existence of the Woolper pike, one of its gates was kept here, and at one time there was a lady gate keeper, who was a vender of patent medicines, and at the time there was an effort made to change the name from Commissary to that of Medicine Lodge; but the people had become so accustomed to the name Commissary that the effort proved unsuccessful.

The contractor kept a little smithshop here to do the necessary repairs, but when the pike was completed the shop was moved away. In 1883 there was another shop built, and in 1894 it was sold to its present owner, and in 1895 the little shop was torn down and a much larger one built in its stead, from which the ring of the anvil, and whoa of the smithy continues to be heard.

The Population of the Commissary proper excepting the black cat, made a flying visit to Indiana and visited Fred McAtee, of North Hogau, and Allie Passous, of old Milan; also made a short call on Geo. White and Howard Rouse, all former residents of this county. We also had the pleasure of an introduction to Misses Birdie and Daisy, daughters of Mr. Ronse. The population reports having had a good time.

HATHAWAY, May 12.—Shearing sheep is the order now.

Nathan Clements and wife were in the city shopping last Thursday.

Mrs. Katie Huey was visiting her sister, Mrs. Eugene Kelly, Wednesday.

R. L. Huey and Mr. Oneal, were in our burg for a short while, Thursday evening.

Jno. L. Henderson shipped his crop of wool to J. Schofield & Son, one day last week.

J. S. Mason has purchased of Mr. Winston, one of those patent gates that he is selling.

Mrs. Alice Houston and children were visiting in Florence neighborhood, Saturday.

Several of the local anglers have been catching some nice fish in Gunpowder creek, this spring.

Mr. Boggess, of Glencoe, Gallatin county, spent several days last week with his daughter, Mrs. Ealy Conley.

S. H. Marshall, has purchased an ice cream freezer, and expects to live on ice cream and cake this summer.

Edgar Hensley and wife, of Locust Grove neighborhood, were guests of Robert Honston and family, last Friday.

Your writer has unearthed several of the 17 year locusts that are near the top of the ground. They will soon be out and shed themselves.

Jno. C. White is agent for the latest improved compressed air sprayer for spraying tobacco, potatoes, fruit trees, etc. Call on him and see sample and get prices.

FLICKERTOWN.—Andy Grasser, of Lawrenceburg, was over last week assisting John Deck to peel his willows.

We are needing rain badly. The corn all planted and is coming up nicely.

Some of the boys from here attended the party at Jas. Flesk's, last Saturday night.

There will be an unusually small crop of tobacco planted in this neighborhood on account of a scarcity of plants.

WALTON, May 12.—Louis Venable has removed to Worthville.

A charming social was given by Mr. and Mrs. David Hicks, last week, and was attended by a throng of young people, among whom were the Misses Queenie and Will eve Tillman, Stella Boothe, Pauline Curley, Hattie Taylor, Anna West, Sallie Jones, Lucy Fields, Libbie Ingram, Sarah Crisler, Carrie Campbell, Nanuie Allen, Katie Hume, Lena Byland and Margarenite Clements. The young gentlemen were, Robert and Raymond Byland, John Ingram, Edward Rouse, Wesley Murphy, G. H. Houston, Charles Jones, Geo. Grubbs, John Crisler, Virgil Holder, Edgar Stepheus, Robert Whitcomb, Richard Jones, Edward Byland, Claud Rice, Charles Chambers and Elmer Underhill. Music furnished by Messrs. Newt Rice, William Tillman and Miss Libbie Ingram.

Mrs. Mary Bird, of Atwood, made a very pleasant visit to her brother, Mr. T. J. Stepheus, last Sunday.

Mrs. C. E. Morris, of Memphis, Tennessee, was ahie, last week, to make a visit to her sister, Mrs. J. E. Botts.

Weedou Deau has been detained here several days, looking for the Theodore Dean mentioned in last week's Recorder.

Johnnie Kipp was on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kipp, on Friday afternoon. Eddie, his brother, was here Sunday.

John Grubbs bought the house in which Mr. Venable lived, and has moved into it. Henry Florence moved into the house vacated by Mr. G.

The draping of Eskew's windows is in the best of taste, and some of our other merchants might construe it as au object lessou worthy of imitation.

Our gallant young friend, Fred Eskew, went down to Dry Ridge to escort Miss Utha Dickerson, a very interesting and pretty youug belle of that town, to Walton.

The work on cemented sidewalks goes bravely ou. The front of T. F. Curley's property was finished on last Saturday, and adds greatly to its value and appearauce.

A. M. Edwards has his front from Esq, Curley's liue to the livery stable prepared for cementing, and in a few days it will be ready for travel by the grateful pedestrian.

It looks as if the Odd-Fellows will be able to hold their next meeting, Saturday night, in their haudsome, new hall. Let everyone join in the refrain and sing the good, old song of our boyhood days, "Oh! Push along—keep moving."

The Democratic Executive Committee for the Sixth Congressional District, met here, Friday, and arranged for holding a primary on Saturday, June 28th, to uominate a candidate for Cougress. There were three candidates present, D. Linn Gooch, Cliff Nadiud and Col. A. E. Berry. Some urged that the Colonel would not be a candidate. Should he so decide his old following, and many who have heretofore been arrayed against him, will be disappointed.

A very pleasant day was spent Saturday, May 10th, at the home of Mrs. Mary E Adams, by the following ladies: Mesdames Ruth Hind, Julia Stansifer, Mary Moffett, Martha Hume, Minerva Stephens and daughter, Alice Moffett, Katie Loomis, Mary Neal, Bertha Moffett, Mollie Ford, Julia Bagby and daughter, Pamula Harris, Rose Hicks, Carrie Adams and Sarah Katherine Sanders. To the misfortune of the geutlemen they were conspicuously absent. A bouutiful dinner was served by the hostess for her appreciative guests.

There is no small quantity of tobacco in the country, yet, as it is reported that in this vicinity alone, there are about 100,000 pounds that owners want prized and shipped to the Louisville market, They think, and rightly, too, that there must come a rise in the market; and the treatment they had from Louisville men justifies them in holding for that market. A gentleman connected with one of the houses in that city, was here about two weeks ago, and made a dash for the growers. The very first man he wished to see, happened to have a case of smallpox on the premises, and our Louisville friend concluded that he had better go and remain at home yet awhile.

BUFFALO, May 10.—The farmers are all about done planting corn.

Claud Ryle and wife were visiting relatives near Waterloo, several days last week.

T. J. Stephens and wife were visiting F. J. Rue and wife, last Saturday and Sunday a week.

John C. Tanner, who has been a sufferer of a complication of diseases for ten years, passed peacefully away, the 12th of May, at the age of 53 years, 4 months and 12 days. Mr. Tanner was a member of Hebron church, having united with that church in 1870; he devoted the greater part of his life in working for the cause of Christ. While it was not his privilege to live near the church of his choice, he was an active worker in church work where ever he went; he filled several important offices greatly to his credit as well as the advancement of Christ's kingdom here on earth. In his death the community has lost a good citizeu, the family a kind husbaud and indulgent father. He united in marriage to Emma F. Crigler, Aug. 27th, 1867; to this union two sons, Berthaud Leonard, and one daughter, Maytie, were boru. The funeral services were conducted by Pastor Slater at Hebron church, Sunday morning, after which the remaius were interred in the cemetery at that place in the presence of a host of friends and relatives. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

Dearest father thou hast left us,
Here thy loss we deeply feel,
But 'tis God that has bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
When in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed.

Whereas, Death has invaded the home of our brother, B. L. Cleek, and removed his only son, Joseph Riddell Cleek,

Resolved, That Golden Grange, No. 346, extends the deepest fraternal sympathy to him and his family in this hour of sorrow and trial of their faith.

We would remind him that the Hand which inflicts these deep wounds will, in time, heal them, and we rejoice that our Brother can say "The Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord!"

We pray that, though stricken, indeed, he may abide in peace, looking not backward but pressing on to the reward of those who are faithful in Christ Jesus.

Whooping Cough.

A women who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkley Hall, Springville, Ala. This Remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

CAPITAL SURRENDERS.

Puerto Plata Was Also Captured By the Revolutionary Forces—Crew of Warship Sided With the Insurgents.

San Domingo, Santo Domingo May 2.—The Dominican capital capitulated to-day to the revolutionary forces commanded by Gen. Horacio Vasquez, the vice president of the republic. President Jiminez sought refuge in the French consulate and many government officers found safety in the French and United States legations. The revolutionary troops entered the capital quietly. There was no enthusiasm shown by the population here at the entry of the victorious army. The approach of the revolutionists to the capital was announced after two days heavy fighting between the government troops and the forces of Gen. Vasquez, during which many were killed or wounded on both sides. When it became known here that Gen. Vasquez threatened to attack San Domingo, the United States minister, Wm. F. Powell, as dean of the diplomatic corps, requested the Dominican government to inform him regarding the arrangements made to protect the lives and property of foreigners here, adding that in case no precautions were taken he would consider it his duty to take such arrangements to provide for their safety as the situation demanded. The nature of the reply of the government was not made public.

Monte Christo, Santo Domingo, May 8.—Further confirmation was received here Wednesday of the surrender of San Domingo, capital of Santo Domingo, Friday last to the revolutionary forces commanded by Vice President Vasquez. The provisional government established there will retain power until new elections have been held. Peace is completely re-established in the southern part of Santo Domingo. Advices from Puerto Plata, on the north coast, announce that the crew of the Dominican war vessel at that port has sided with the insurgents, and Tuesday conveyed to the governor, Gen. Deschamps, an order to surrender. An agreement providing for a suspension of hostilities at Puerto Plata was signed later in the day, so as to permit the drawing up of the conditions on which the port will capitulate to the revolutionists. When San Domingo City surrendered to Vice President Vasquez, President Jiminez sought refuge in the French consulate there.

Santo Domingo, May 8.—Later in the day it became known here that Puerto Plata had capitulated to the revolutionists, who Wednesday took possession of the town and fort. Gen. Deschamps, the former governor, embarked on board a French steamer, bound for Hayti. All is quiet at Puerto Plata.

DEATH OF BRET HARTE.

The American Author Died of a Hemorrhage Near Aldershot, Eng.

London, May 7.—Bret Harte, the American author, died Monday night at the Red house, Camberly, near Aldershot, from a hemorrhage, caused by an affection of the throat.

Mr. Harte had been suffering from swelled tonsils since December last, but he did not consider the attack to be serious. A week ago he went to visit friends at Camberly, and was present at lunch as usual Monday. He suddenly became ill in the afternoon, went to bed and died in a few hours. His end was peaceful.

Francis Bret Harte was born in Albany, N. Y., August 25, 1839, of mixed English, German and Hebrew ancestry. In 1854 the family located in the rude mountain settlements of interior California, where associations with the rough characters of that section furnished the themes of many of his writings of later years.

THE STRIKE ORDERED.

Anthracite Miners Will Cease Work Monday Morning.

Scranton, Pa., May 10.—A general strike of the miners of the anthracite region has been ordered for Monday next, but the order has a reserve qualification attached. The question as to whether the strike is to be made permanent is left to the decision of a convention of delegates of all the local organizations of the mine workers to be held at Hazleton next Wednesday.

The miners' executive committee of three districts met and had a three-hour session.

The instruction for all men to suspend work on Monday does not include firemen, engineers, pumpmen and other labor necessary to preserve the properties of the operators.

The order is signed by all the district presidents and secretaries.

There was a big crowd about the St. Charles when the order was given out, and the proverbial dropping of a pin could have been audible at any time. President Mitchell, standing in the center of the crowd on a chair, read the statement.

Immediately upon the conclusion of President's Mitchell's reading the crowd scattered, and in an incredibly short space of time the news had spread by word of mouth and message all through the valley. A thousand varying comments might be heard from the miners as they learned of the committee's action. No one sentence could cover the general sentiment.

There is not a particle of question but that the miners will obey the order and on Monday next not so much as a shovelful of coal will be mined in the Lackawanna valley.

The companies are charged with combining to fix and maintain prices and to control the supply of dressed, cured and smoked meats and lard in Missouri. An alternative writ was issued, returnable May 30. The information alleges that Nelson-Morris & Co., of Kansas City, and Schwartzchild & Sulsburger, of Kansas City, are in the combination, but as they are co-partnerships it will require another kind of proceeding to reach them. This will be filed immediately by the attorney general.

Nicaragua Will Be Well Represented in the Contests.

Chicago, May 10.—The International Olympian Games Association has received official notice that the government of Nicaragua has taken official recognition of the games to be held in Chicago in 1904, and will send representatives to be present at the contests. The notification was addressed by Louis F. Corea, the minister of Nicaragua at Washington, to Volney W. Foster, commissioner general of the association to the Latin country.

This action is in harmony with the resolution adopted by the Pan-American congress at its recent session in Mexico urging upon the governments therein represented to support the coming games. The other governments of Central and South America, it is expected, will probably not be slow in following the example of Nicaragua.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Paul Was the Author of "The Honorable Peter Stirling," "Janice Meredith," "The Great K. and A. Train Robbery," Etc.

New York, May 9.—Paul Leicester Ford, the novelist, was shot and killed Thursday by his brother, Malcolm Webster Ford, writer and athlete, who immediately sent a bullet into his own brain, dying instantly. The shooting occurred in the handsome new mansion which Paul Leicester Ford had built at 37 East 77th street, and had occupied for about a year.

At the time of the shooting there were in the house besides the two brothers, Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford, Miss Elizabeth R. Hall, the novelist's secretary, and the servants. The novelist was sitting at his desk in one corner of his library, a large, attractively appearing room at the back of the house on the second floor. It is supposed he was busily engaged at some literary task. Miss Hall was at her desk in another corner of the room, about 30 feet from Mr. Ford. Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford was in her own room at the front of the house on the third floor.

Malcolm Ford called, as he had often done, and went to his brother at his desk. Words were exchanged in a tone so low that Miss Hall could not hear what was said, though she says that she possibly might have distinguished the words if she had been paying any attention to this particular meeting of the brothers. Suddenly there was a revolver shot and Miss Hall, jumping up, darted from the room. Then, according to the statements of the police, Miss Hall said to herself that she must act more bravely and re-enter the library.

Meanwhile Malcolm Ford had called her. As she turned towards him, he placed his revolver to his heart, fired and fell, dying instantly. When Miss Hall turned to look at Paul, he was still standing at his desk, but rapidly losing strength. She helped him to a sofa and then ran next door for Mr. Paul Ford's physican. In less than five minutes Dr. Baruch arrived, and the dying man, still conscious, was carried up to a room beside his wife's and placed on his bed.

Police Capt. Brown said Thursday night that Malcolm Ford had for some time been causing much uneasiness to the family through evidences of an unbalanced mind, and declares that in his opinion he attacked his brother during a period of temporary insanity, then taking his own life.

"The cause of Malcolm Ford's action," said Capt. Brown, "can be explained by inference. For some time his financial affairs have been pressing him and he has repeatedly asked and received material assistance from his brother. It is presumed that his importuning had been such and his demand so excessive that his brother had been forced to refuse further aid."

Paul Leicester Ford was 37 years old, a novelist of much note. "Janice Meredith" being his most popular novel. He was married about a year ago to Miss Grace Kidder, daughter of Edward H. Kidder, of Brooklyn. He was the son of Gordon Lester Ford, of Brooklyn, who died 11 years ago, and left an estate of some $2,000,000, divided between his children, with the exception of Malcolm W., who was disinherited by the will.

Mr. Ford is the author of "The Hon. Peter Stirling," "The Great K. and A. Train Robbery," "The True George Washington," "The Many Sided Franklin," (which ran serially in the Century), "Tattle Tales of Cupid," "Janice Meredith," which ran serially in the Bookman, 1899, and a collection of short stories. He also edited the writings of Thomas Jefferson in ten volumes, the writings of John Dickinson in three volumes, and numerous other works relating to American history and bibliography.

OVER 40,000 KILLED.

Not More Than 20 Escaped With Their Lives — Eighteen Vessels Were Burned and Sunk With All on Board.

San Juan, P. R., May 8.—The cable officials here have received advices from the island of Dominica that a schooner which has arrived there from the island of Martinique reports that over 40,000 people are supposed to have perished during the volcanic disturbances in Martinique. The cable repair steamer Grappler, belonging to the West India and Panama Telegraph Co., of London, was lost with all hands during the eruption of Mount Pelee at St. Pierre, Martinique. The Grappler was one of the first ships to disappear.

Washington, May 10.—The following cablegram has been received at the state department: "Pointe a Pitre, May 9, 1902.—Secretary of State, Washington: At 7 o'clock a. m. on the 8th instant a storm of steam, mud and fire enveloped the city and community. Not more than 20 persons escaped with their lives. Eighteen vessels were burned and sunk with all on board, including four American vessels and a steamer from Quebec named Roraima. The United States consul and family are reported among the victims. A war vessel has come to Guadeloupe for provisions and will leave at 5 to-morrow. (Signed) Ayme, Consul."

Paris, May 10.—The Colonial minister, M. DeCrais, received at 6 o'clock Friday evening two cable messages from the secretary general of the government of Martinique J. E. G. L. Hurre, sent respectively at 5 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. Thursday. The earlier cable reported that the wires were broken between Fort De France and St. Pierre, but it was added in view of reports that the eruption of Mont Pelee had wiped out the town of St. Pierre. All the boats available at Fort De France were dispatched to the assistance of the inhabitants of that place.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 12.—Advices received here from the island of Dominica Sunday say that boats arriving there report that many persons were drowned while crossing to Dominica from the island of Martinique, where some of the out parishes have been inundated. The eruption of Mont Pelee (Martinique) continues. The lava is progressing northward. The whole northern region is now a rocky waste, denuded of vegetation.

Reports from the inland of St. Vincent say that up to the afternoon of Friday last over 200 deaths had occurred there owing to the volcanic outbreak in that island. Definite news, however, is lacking. Many estates were destroyed and steam and ashes were belched forth from 7 in the morning until 9:30 o'clock at night. The eruption is now invisible at Kingston. Huge dust clouds were blown eastward. Great distress prevails at St. Vincent, where there are many injured persons. It is believed that about 400 persons have lost their lives at St. Vincent. The majority of the corpses are still unburied.

The British mail steamer Solent has gone from Barbadoes to Martinique with supplies and doctors. From the island of Trinidad, the British Royal mail steamer Kennel has gone to Fort De France. The British second-class cruiser Indefatigable is on her way from Trinidad to St. Vincent with stores and relief for the sufferers there. It is reported that Fort De France (Martinique) is threatened. Great tension prevails everywhere throughout the West Indies.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, May 12.—Advices received here Sunday from the vicinity of St. Pierre (ten miles from here), contain further details of the terrible volcanic upheaval which resulted in the utter destruction of that town and the death of nearly all its inhabitants.

The crater of Mont Pelee has been wearing its "smoke cap" since May 3; but there was nothing until last Monday to indicate that there was the slightest danger. On that day a stream of boiling lava burst through the top of the crater and plunged into the valley of the river Blanche, overwhelming the Guerin sugar works and killing 23 work people and the son of the proprietor.

A commission was appointed by the governor to investigate the outbreak and it returned a reassuring report on Wednesday evening. But about 8 o'clock on Thursday morning a shower of fire rushed down on St. Pierre, and the coast from Le Carbet, which had a population of 6,000, to Le Precheur, which had a population of 4,000, burning up everything in its path. Throughout Thursday the heat in the vicinity of St. Pierre was so intense and the stream of flowing lava was so unremitting that it was impossible to approach the town during the early part of the day. As evening approached the French cruiser Suchet, after a heroic battle with the heat, suffocation and sulphur fumes, succeeded in making a dash toward the shore, nearing the land close enough to enable her to take off 30 survivors of the disaster, all of whom were horribly burned and mutilated.

St. Pierre at that time was an absolute smoking waste, concealing 30,000 corpses, whose rapid decomposition necessitated, in some cases, instantly completing their cremation, which was only partially accomplished by the lava.

The inhabitants of Fort De France were panic-stricken the morning of the disaster when the sky suddenly blackened until it was as dark as midnight. The sea shrank back 30 yards and hot rain began to fall, while gravel of the size of walnuts poured down on the town. This lasted about 15 minutes. The 450 survivors who were brought here Saturday from the vicinity of St. Pierre by the French cable repair ship Bouyer Guertler came from the town of Le Precheur where, surrounded on all sides by flowing lava, they were nearly roasted to death and expected momentarily to be engulfed.

The work of relief is progressing here on the most extensive scale possible, but, in anticipation of disturbances, the treasury building and the warehouses are guarded by troops.

The latest reports received here showed that lava continues to pour down the slopes of the mountain, slowly engulfing the whole north side of the island, while fresh crevasses are continually opening.

Paris, May 12.—A dispatch received at the colonial office here Sunday from Fort De France says there is no doubt that Gov. Mouttet and the commander of the troops at St. Pierre, Col. Lamy, are dead. Other dispatches confirm the reports that the American and British consuls and their families perished.

ANOTHER DISASTER.

An Eruption Causes Heavy Loss of Life on St. Vincent.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., Saturday, May 10.—After numerous earthquakes, during the preceding fortnight, accompanied by subterranean noises in the direction of the Souffriere volcano on the northwest part of the island, a loud explosion from the crater occurred Monday last, and the water in the crater lake ascended in a stupendous cloud of steam and exploded heavily.

The noises grew louder continually until Wednesday morning, when the old crater, three miles in circumference, and the new crater, formed by the last eruption, belched smoke and stones, forcing the residents of Wallibou and Richmond valley, beneath the volcano, to flee to Chateau Belair for refuge.

The thunderous noises which were continually increasing were heard in neighboring islands 200 miles away.

At midday the craters ejected enormous columns of steamy vapor, rising majestically eight miles high and expanding into wonderful shapes, resembling enormous cauliflowers, gigantic wheels and beautiful flower forms, all streaked up and down and crosswise, with vivid flashes of lightning, aweing the beholder and impressing the mind with fear. The mountain labored to rid itself of a mass of molten lava, which later flowed over in six streams, down the side of the volcano, and the greater noises following united in one continuous roar all evening, throughout the night to Thursday morning, accompanied with black rain, falling dust and favilla scorial, attended with midnight darkness all Wednesday, creating feelings of fear and anxious suspense.

On the morning of Friday there was a fresh eruption and ejections of fiery matter, more dust covering the island, in some places two feet deep.

The crater is still active as this dispatch is sent, and great loss of life is believed to have occurred.

The lava has destroyed several districts, with their live stock. People are fleeing to this town, streams are dried up and in many places a food and water famine is threatened. The government is feeding numbers of sufferers from the outbreak. Great physical changes have taken place in the neighborhood of the Souffriere.

Several districts have not yet been heard from, and the scene of the eruption is unapproachable. Every hour brings sadder news. The nurses and doctors are overworked.

Among the deaths are whole families whose corpses are, in several places, still lying unburied. The dead will be interred in trenches.

San Francisco, May 12.—The Alaska Commercial Co. has received from its agent at Unalaska, Aleutian Islands, a letter dated April 10, giving information of volcanic disturbances in that portion.

Reports reach us from Unimak to the effect that with every westerly wind their village is covered with some kind of ashes, indicating that some western volcano is in action.

SAMPSON'S FUNERAL.

Body Laid to Rest in Arlington Cemetery, Washington.

A Long Procession Followed the Body From the Church of the Covenant to the Cemetery—An Artillery Salute.

Washington, May 10.—Services were held Friday in the Church of the Covenant over the remains of Rr. Adm. Sampson, who passed away in Washington Tuesday, May 6.

A prominent figure in the pew directly in the rear of the diplomatic body was Lieut. Gen. Miles; also Gen. Longstreet. The funeral service was simple, but exceedingly impressive. There was no sign of mourning about the church, but two score of magnificent floral emblems made up of rarest roses, lilies and orchids, laced with purple ribbon, the gifts of the president, the Loyal Legion, ordnance bureau, navy yard workers and the many social and personal friends of the dead admiral. The president arrived at the church almost simultaneously with the head of the funeral escort. The casket was covered with the blue field of the American flag and banked with crimson roses. Mrs. Sampson was too ill to attend the services.

The funeral services were little more than the funeral ritual of the Presbyterian church. As the benediction was pronounced the body bearers took up their burden and, followed by the family of the deceased, the president of the United States and his cabinet, the diplomatic body and many notable personages, the remains were carried out of the church and placed in the hearse. A bugle note gave the signal for the march, and soon the entire long funeral procession was on its way to Arlington.

The procession to Arlington lay through the western section of the city and historic Georgetown, whence, after crossing the aqueduct bridge, it went by way of Fort Myer to the cemetery. The weather was exceptionally fine and crowds of people, approximating between 40,000 and 45,000, thronged the streets and country roads and gathered about the grounds at Arlington. They were respectful and reverential in their demeanor and appeared to have been animated by one common impulse, to gather to pay a last honor to the distinguished dead, rather than by idle curiosity.

At the grave the burial services were simple, being confined to a prayer for the dead, the reading of a psalm and music. At their conclusion the saluting battery of the 4th artillery, stationed outside the gates, boomed out three salvos. This salute was in lieu of the usual volley of musketry. As the body was lowered into the grave, the marine band played the beautiful hymn: "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and then followed the sounding of "taps" by a bugler stationed at the head of the open grave. The president and cabinet did not go to Arlington.

INTERRED IN THE CRYPT.

The Corrigan Funeral Ceremonies Impressive and Solemn.

New York, May 10.—The body of Most Rev. Michael Augustine Corrigan, D. D., archbishop of New York, was interred in the crypt of St. Patrick's cathedral. The funeral was conducted with all the impressive solemnity and ceremony of his church, attended by a remarkable gathering of clergy. Eight archbishops, 18 bishops and more than 1,000 priests were present. Inside the gothic alter six candles were burning and the smoke of incense hung about it. Around the bier where the dead archbishop lay, three burned on each side of him, with a double row in a candelabra above his head, and another double row below his feet. Black cloth was hung about the fluted pillars, on the vacant archepiscopal throne there was purple and black.

The chimes played, and then the bells tolled from the spires; after that the thousands, priests, bishops and archbishops and Cardinal Gibbons led in, following a boy with a cross, and candlebearers. There were bearded Franciscans, in coarse brown cowls with white rope girdles, shaven priests in white lace surplices; Jesuits in dull black; Dominicans in black and white cowls; more priests in laces; bishops in purple, and after an interval, the spare, bent figure of the cardinal, in red, and two deacons in black and gold, a half pace behind him on either side.

In the rear were national guards in uniforms; and up the south aisle came various officers of the city government, two by two, in black frock coats, bows of crepe on their sleeves. Within the altar rail, priests and bishops and archbishops were ranged in proper precedence, and the cardinal ascended his throne, and the attending deacons placed over his red the white vestments of the mass, and on his head the white miter, and the mass began.

KILLED A FELLOW WORKMAN.

A Chef Horribly Butchered By a Fireman In a Hotel.

Bridgeport, Ct., May 12.—Lawrence Brossano, a fireman in the Atlantic hotel, crept into the meat room Sunday morning and split the skull of Michael Tornish, the chef, with a meat cleaver. He then took a large butcher knife and slashed the body, cutting off the nose and ears, gouging out the eyes and cutting strip after strip of flesh off the face of the victim. When the upper part of the body was unrecognizable Bressano jumped on it and danced from the head to the feet until the arrival of the police, who were attracted by the frenzied yells of the murderer. Bressano then turned his attention to his would-be captures, and was not subdued until one policeman broke a club over his head, and another knocked him senseless to the ground with the brass buckle of a belt.

Bressano at police headquarters acknowledged the murder, and said he felt better for having committed it. It is believed that trouble over a woman led him to kill his fellow workman. He will be given a preliminary trial Monday.

RIOT AT A CIRCUS.

Troops Were Called Out to Quell the Disorder.

Beziers, France, May 12.—Barnum & Bailey's circus was the cause of a serious riot here Sunday afternoon. The crowd seeking admission to the performance was greater than the tent could accommodate, and those who were unable to enter began stoning the circus employes, five of whom were injured. One had his skull fractured and will probably die. The crowd numbered about 7,000. Several thousand persons forced their way to the arena. The police were powerless to check them. Troops were called out and restored order, finally driving the rioters away. The performance was concluded, but at its termination the tents were taken down and arrangements were made to start immediately for Carcasonne, the next place on the route.

On his return north he underwent an operation in a Chicago hospital, where the real cause of his ailment was ascertained. After the operation he was removed to his home in Watertown and death had been expected for several days.

CUBAN FLAG HOISTED.

President-Elect Palma Arrives in Havana.

He Was Enthusiastically Received By the Populace—Will Be the Guest of Gen. Gomez Until Inauguration Day.

Havana, May 12.—Sunday morning a large Cuban flag was hoisted over Moro Castle here.

This was the signal that the steamer Julia, with President-elect Estrada Palma and his party on board, had been sighted, and cheers went up from the thousands who on the shore opposite Moro Castle had patiently awaited the Julia's arrival since daybreak. The crowd cheered for the new president and for the flag, which was hoisted over the famous fortress for the first time. It was a moment of exultation for the Cubans, and the fact that the stars and stripes floated from its customary flagstaff beside the Cuban flag over the castle did not lessen their enthusiasm.

As the flag rose the hands stationed along the water front played the Cuban national hymn, steamers saluted and church bells were rung.

There was continuous saluting as the Julia sailed between the rows of decorated tugs and barges and there were cheers from the crowded wharves. The several warships in the harbor were also decorated.

When he arrived at the wharf the president-elect was welcomed by Vice President Esteve in a brief speech. A pretty feature of the reception here was Senor Estrada Palma's welcome by 23 young Cuban women dressed in costumes representing the American republics. Senora Durio, who represented Cuba, delivered an address and read a poem.

From the wharf the president-elect was escorted to the palace by members of the rural guard. Gov. Gen. Wood, his staff and the secretaries received Senor Palma at the palace. From here the president-elect proceeded to the municipal council building, where speeches were made by the mayor of Havana and Senor Zayas. The latter welcomed Senor Estrada Palma in behalf of the people of all classes and all political beliefs.

Replying, Senor Estrada Palma said that his reception was a gratifying experience, and, judging from what he had seen since his arrival in Cuba, the people were unanimous in support of the incoming government. This, he said, bodes well for the republic.

Gen. Wood accompanied Senor Estrada Palma to the residence of Gen. Maximo Gomez, where the president-elect will reside until his inauguration, May 20.

AIRSHIP EXPLODED.

Senhor Auguste Severo and a Companion Were Killed.

Paris, May 12.—The airship belonging to Senhor Auguste Severo, the Brazilian aeronaut, made an ascension Monday morning. The airship exploded and two aeronauts who were on board were killed.

Senhor Severo's airship, called La Paix, had made two ascensions at the Vaugararsa Aerostatic park since May 4. Upon both occasions La Paix was held by a rope at the height of 40 metres. In this position the airship maneuvered for a short time successfully.

La Paix was not unlike Santos-Dumont's airships in appearance, but it differed from them in many details. The gas capacity of La Paix was nearly four times greater than that of Santos-Dumont's balloon. It had three main propellers and two smaller ones used for steering and in ascending and descending. The two petroleum motors of La Paix were of 24 and 16 horse power respectively.

New Orleans, May 12.—The steamer Tage Sunday night finished loading between $4,000 and $5,000 worth of provisions and supplies, and Adna Servan sailed for Martinique with her Monday at daybreak.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, May 5.—Senate—In vindication of the American policy in the Philippines, Mr. Lodge (Mass.), chairman of the Philippine committee, addressed the senate Monday. Long before he began to speak the galleries were thronged with people and the attendance on the floor of the senate was unusually large.

House—The house met and adjourned soon after being informed of the death of Congressman Otey, of Virginia.

Washington, May 7.—Senate—For almost four hours Tuesday a fierce discussion of the Philippine situation raged in the senate. It was started by Mr. Beveridge (Ind.), who made some sharp strictures on the members of the opposition because, as he said, they persisted in telling in their speeches only one side of the story. While he admitted that some outrages had been committed by American soldiers in the Philippines, it was true, too, that unparalleled kindness had been shown by the American troops to Filipino prisoners and Filipino wounded.

Washington, May 8.—Senate—Discussion of the Philippine bill in the senate took a sensational turn again Wednesday. Mr. McComas (Md.), referring to the alleged cruelties of American soldiers in the Philippines—cruelties which he deeply deplored—told of the cruelties which had occurred on both sides during the civil war. Neither side, he held, was to be responsible for those regrettable occurrences, as neither side approved of them.

House—The house began consideration of the bill to enable the people of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico to form constitutions and state governments and be admitted into the union on an equal footing with the original states.

Washington, May 9.—Senate—Discussion of the Philippine bill in the senate Thursday, while it scarcely abated in bitterness, took on an amusing phase. In a breezy speech, Mr. Dolliver (Ia.) made such a good natured, and yet such a sarcastic arraignment of Mr. Harmack (Tenn.) that senators and occupants of the thronged galleries were convulsed with laughter. While, seemingly, considerable temper was aroused by the debate, good feeling was shown by the active participants in the war of words—Mr. Dolivar and Mr. Carmack—who cordially shook hands and laughed over the encounter. A bill to construct a light house on Dimand Shoals on the coast of Cape Hattress, N. C., was passed. Messrs. Hale, Allison and Cockrell were appointed conferees on the sundry civil bill.

House—The bill to place three new stars in the flag had the right of way again in the house. General debate, the feature of which was an extended speech by Mr. Grosvenor (O.) in opposition to the measure, was closed at 3 o'clock and the bill was then read for amendment under the five minute rule. An amendment offered by Mr. McRae to consolidate the territories of Oklahoma and Indian territory was defeated, 57 to 103. An amendment offered by Mr. Overstreet (Ind.) to consolidate Arizona and New Mexico and admit them as the state of Montezuma was pending when the house adjourned. The only amendment adopted was one providing that nothing in the act should be construed to legalize polygamy. During the day a resolution expressive of the regret of the house over the death of Rr. Adm. Sampson was adopted and a committee of seven members was appointed to attend his funeral.

Washington, May 10.—Senate—An effort was made in the senate to fix a time for a vote on the pending Philippine bill, but it was unsuccessful. The minority said many senators still desired to speak on the measure and it would not be proper to determine at this time upon a vote. Some debate occurred over the resolution to discharge the committee on privileges and elections from further consideration of the proposed constitutional amendment providing for the election of senators by the people. Finally the resolution was withdrawn, assurance being that a report from the committee soon would be made.

House—The opposition in the house to the bill for the admission of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico collapsed at the last minute Friday and the bill was passed without division as it came from the committee except for a few verbal amendments. The real test came on an amendment offered by Mr. Overstreet (Ind.) to join New Mexico and Arizona and admit them as the state of Montezuma. The latter part of the session was devoted to private pension bills, 32 of which were passed, 28 original, 54 for increases and five to complete military records.

It is not known whether or not any pupils lost their lives in the flames. The loss will reach $100,000. The entire structure and its contents are a total loss.

Failed to Agree.

Washington, May 8.—The senate committee on privileges and elections again failed to reach any agreement to report the house resolution providing for the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people, either for or against.

What Thin Folkt Need.

Is a greater power of digesting and assimilating food. For them Dr. King's New Life Pills work wonders. They tone and regulate the digestive organs, gently expel all poisons from the system enrich the blood, improve appetite, make healthy flesh. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's Burlington, Union Drug Store Union, H. L. Eskew's Walton, O. N. Grant, Grant.

H. C. White, of Woodford county, is feeding Soy beans to his hogs, lambs and milch cows. He says: "They are a great feed and all stock are fond of them. They can be cultivated and put in barn for $3 or $4 per ton, versus ship stuff at $18 to $22 per ton.

In Kansas the Supreme Court has decided that the counties must reimburse the joint keepers whose places of business were destroyed in the Carry Nation crusades. The counties ought to have protected the property, even if the property was used for illegal purposes. Because a man is violating a law in a house, no mob has a right to destroy that house. The authorities owe it protection, and if they fail to protect, the court must award the owners of the property damage.

An Indianapolis syndicate of capitalists purchased of Mrs. Nannie Owens, of Garrard county, Cumberland Falls and the Cumberland Falls Hotel, in Whitley county, for $7,525. The hotel will be refitted and improved. However, the purchasers expect to develop the power of the falls, which are the second highest in the world. A plant will be installed for transmitting the power of the falls to all the surrounding country. This power will be utilized in running electric plants and various kinds of machinery.

An exchange says: "Blessings frequently come in disguise. The fearful drouth and the consequent high price of corn may, in the end, result in much good to the farmer. By experience, many of our farmers have learned how to care for their stock without feeding such a great amount of corn, and they have learned how to economize by using much on the farm that heretofore was simply thrown away as waste. We have heard some farmers say that they have gotten their stock through the winter without feeding any corn, and their stock looks as well as it usually does."

Prevention of weed invasion of pastures is generally perfectly possible by grazing fewer head per acre. Compare the number of weeds in a prairie pasture with those in an adjoining piece of similiar land not grazed but kept to be mowed for hay. What number of stock per acre can be safely grazed depends on the region. In the "short-grass" country fifteen to twenty acres per head must be allowed. In central or eastern Kansas two and one-half acres per head is perhaps a limit. Every farmer can tell by observation when weeds are coming in. If so, it is a sign to reduce the number of stock per acre. No one can afford to raise stock in such numbers that they use up the capital itself (the land) by killing out the pasture grasses which make it valuable, instead of consuming the interest only.

The Indiana crop reports issued by the Indiana bureau of statissies show that from most counties in the state the early-sowed wheat is in fine condition, but the late-sowed on account of the long drought in October and December and the absence of snow through a greater part of the winter, makes a poor showing and reduces average conditions greatly. Despite the half favorable report of the April bulletin, reports from over the state indicate that the majority of the farmers are greatly discouraged over the wheat outlook. These reports show that in a great many counties the wheat passed through the winter safely, but during the month of March the fluctuating freezing and thawing conditions proved detrimental to a good crop. Added to this, the dry weather and the warm winds have had a damaging effect.

The best bred women do not fuss. They take their gowns and their furniture, their jewels and their children as a matter of course. They are unconscious of their veils and their gloves, and they expect every one else to be equally so. If they see an intimate wearing a handsome gown they refer to it admiringly, but they also preface their comment with an apology. Their differences with their husbands are not aired, neither are the domestic upheavals caused by the desertion of the cook on wash morning. The repose of the well bred woman is not the quiet of weakness. It is the calm of trained faculties, balanced so nicely that an earthquake may cause a change of color but will not bring forth a loud cry. Well-bred women are a boon to the human race. They help the social and professional world to maintain a high standard both of morals and behavior.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

About the most interesting party race that is to come off in the near future will be that for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney in this Judicial District. Each county, except Boone, will present a candidate, but it seems that Gallatin's aspirant has the most enthusiastic backing in the race, at present, and judging from the impression he has made in Boone in the last few months he will have a very strong following here. Notwithstanding the salary attached to the office, it is claimed, is not commensurate with the labor required of the incumbent, there are several able attorney's in the district who are very anxious to assume the burdens the office carries, in consideration of what the salary and fees that go with it.

The disease of sheep-scab may easily be eradicated as follows: Receipt: Unslacked lime, 8 pounds; flower of sulphur, 24 pounds; water 100 gallons. How to prepare: Slack the lime. 8 pounds, in a small portion of water, then add the sulphur 24 pounds. The 8 pounds of lime and the 24 pounds of sulphur can easily be boiled in 25 gallons of water. This should be boiled for not less than two (2) hours. The solution should be let settle for not less than 30 minutes and then decant the liquid, which should be a perfectly clear solution of a reddish brown color. When ready to use the dip the additional 75 gallons of water can be added. The temperature of the dip should not be more than 110 degrees F. and not less than 105 degrees, F., while using. The addition of the heat is for the purpose of dissolving the fatty substance on the skin, thus giving the dip a better chance of penetrating into the skin and coming in contact with the parasite. The sheep should be kept in the solution for not less than two (2) minutes, and just before taking out ducking the head twice.

There died in Philadelphia the other day the richest negro in America. He was known as Colonel John McKee, and was born in Virginia eighty two years ago, of free parents. It is said that he owned more than 1,000,000 acres of land at one time. At the time of his death he owned from three hundred to four hundred Philadelphia houses, free and clear, and the value of his estate is estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. He was the founder and owner of McKee City, in New Jersey. He owned coal and oil territory in West Virginia and Kentucky and a great track of land, more than 20,000 acres in Steuben county, Pennsylvania. He was a real estate operator of wide interests and striking success. He started with nothing and died a millionaire, a lesson to colored Absaloms. Too many of his race are improvident and lazy, as it is natural enough that they should be; but the number of well-to-do negroes is increasing visibly. When a colored man once gets a start and saves enough to get interested in the game, he is likely to succeed. In spite of many exclusions and prohibitions, there is field enough for him.

It is not the abundance of land, but the thorough and skillful cultivation of it, that fills the barn with hay, the cribs with corn and the kitchen with plenty.

The farmer with no inheritage but health, with no riches but industry, and no ambition but virtue is sole king among men, and the only man among kings.

No farmer ought to undertake to cultivate more land than he can stock and manage. It is better to till 50 acres well than 100 in a slovenly manner.

Industry, prudence and economy are essential to insure success in any business whatever. A regular system is also indispensably necessary, and in none does this find a more appropriate lodging than in farming.

A practical farmer, whose livelihood depends upon his calling, should make it the pinnacle of his worldly ambition to excel in it. If he neglects his farm for almost everything else, he is generally a miser both in interest and credit.

Be not above your profession, and always consider it as the best any man can follow. Never shrink from doing anything your business calls you to do. The man who is above his business will some day find his business above him.—Cotton Planters' Journal.

To date there are only two candidates for the Congressional nomination in this district.

One of the unterrified Democrats from the country was caught on the wing Wednesday morning by The Commonwealth. He had a basket on his arm and was feeling as happy as a big sun-flower that nods and bends in the breezes. He had sold a whole lot of eggs at a good price and was on his way to The Commonwealth office to renew his subscription, not that he wanted the darn old paper, but Betsy Ann wouldn't do without it, nohow.

"Well, Uncle Jeff, how's things going on in the country?"

"You see, it's been terrible weather in our parts, and we haven't got much to sell and would't sell if we did't have to."

"Well, how is it about politics; who are you all for for Congress?"

"Mostly all of us are for Gooch. You see we've all been getting seed from Mr. Gooch."

"What in the world does that amount to. It will take until way in the summer to find out whether any of those seed will grow."

"Not a bit of it. They are all coming up now, and the best seed we ever had. The farmers are all flocking for Gooch and don't you forget it."—Covington Commonwealth

No amount of love is sufficient to broil a beefsteak.

The House of Representatives has just passed a bill providing for the extension of the charters of National banks. The first act of this kind was passed in 1863, and limited the charters to twenty years. The second one, providing for extensions for twenty years, was passed in 1882. The charters under the act of 1872 will expire in 1903 and subsequent years unless renewed, and for this purpose a new act is of course necessary. The original act provided that national bank notes lost or destroyed, or the value of the same, should accrue to the United States. In order to make this clause effective, there must be a winding up of the affairs of each bank at certain intervals, and a cancellation of the old notes as they come into the treasury, and an issue of new ones in a different form, so that they may be distinguished from those previously issued.

The gain resulting to the Government after the expiration of the first series of twenty-year characters and until November 1, 1901, from the non-presentation of bank notes for redemption has been $2,985,250. The amount of notes outstanding durin gthe period fluctuated between $100,000,000 in 1865 and $340,000,000 in 1875. The rate of destruction and loss of notes in the hands of the people may be roughly estimated at 1 per cent in twenty years. It is probable that the loss of greenbacks has been at the same rate. Reckoning from the year 1864, when their volume reached its maximum, we may presume at least $7,000,000 have wholly disappeared and will never be presented for redemption. Silver certificates, which began to be issued in 1879, are subject to the same law of mortality. Probably $3,000,000 of these have in like manner traveled the road to dusty death.

Elbert Orme and Eena Henson and Miller Orme and Bertha Best, all of Robertson county, were married at Maysville last week. The two girls are half sisters and the grooms are brothers. The brides look like twins and after the ceremony the couples became separated and neither groom could tell which one he had married. But the brides soon made it known which one they had taken for a life partner.

The town farmers held an indignation meeting every morning during the cool weather the past week, because of the nocturnal raids of the cutworms on their vegetables. Ex-Sheriff Beall was chairman of the meeting. His tomato crop, one hill, was entirely destroyed by the pestiferous little worms, and his neighbors appeased him as far as possible by honoring him with the chairmanship of the meetings.

Kentucky druggists have received from the State Board of Pharmacy a circular calling their attention to the Kentucky pharmacy law as amended by the late Legislature. The amendments come in the nature of a surprise, for the effect will be to prevent the sale of a number of well known pateut medicines, except on the written prescription of a legally qualified physician. All abortive preparations are included under the law. The law also makes very strict provision for the sale of poison, compelling the name of the seller to be printed on the bottle with a label marked "Poison" and giving two or more antidotes. The name of the purchaser must also be registered.

After long discussion and a close vote it was decided to hold the annual meeting of the K. P. A. in Owensboro early in July. Sciatica Rhenmatism Cured After Fourteen Years of Suffering.

"I have been afflicted with sciatic rheumatism for fourteen years," says Josh Edgar, of Germantown, Cal. "I was able to be around but constantly suffered. I tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured, and I am happy to say it has not since returned." Why not use this liniment and get well? It is for sale by all Druggists.

INDICTMENTS QUASHED.

Lexington, Ky., May 9.—The special grand jury impanelled three weeks ago by Judge Parker, of the Fayette circuit court, filed its report and indictments Thursday afternoon. The indictments are divided into two divisions. The first is an indictment of the Southern Mutual Investment Co., as a company, charging the conducting of a lottery. The second division contains about fifty counts and comprises indictments against a number of industrial operators of various other investment companies in the city, charging embezzlement.

The indictment against the Southern Mutual was immediately quashed by the court on demurrer of the company's attorney, C. J. Bronston. Bronston made a vigorous and sensational speech, alleging malicious motives by the grand jury. He held that inasmuch as the indictment was against the company, it could not be sustained, because the punishment for such offense involved imprisonment, and that a corporation could not be imprisoned. The court sustained him.

The sheriff refused to give the names and specific amounts involved in the other indictments until service on the papers is had. The grand jury's action created a profound sensation.

Elby Hill Made His Coffin Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Nicholasville, Ky., May 8.—Elby Hill, aged 87, of Forest Hill, Madison county, who died Tuesday, will be buried in the coffin he constructed with his own hands 25 years ago. The coffin is solid walnut wood. Hill felled a tree to get the lumber. Soon after his health failed, and the doctors feared that he would die, but he regained his strength the following summer. As the years rolled on the coffin was frequently found to be in the way, so it was placed in the cellar of the house and used as a receptacle for apples. Later it was used as a wheat bin.

Hill's wish to be buried in the coffin will be fulfilled by his relatives.

KILLED HIS COUSIN.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 10.—"Pop-Eyed" John Turner, formerly chief of police of Middlesboro, was Friday morning killed by Lee Turner, of "Quarter House" fame, at the "Narrows," 13 miles from Jellico, Tenn. "Pop-Eyed" John was one of the guards of the Southern railroad at the "Narrows," where he went last week. Turner's famous "Quarter House" near this city was burned and nine of his truest followers were killed. "Pop-Eyed" John was his chief enemy in Middlesboro. "Pop-Eyed" John belonged to a gang which burned his "Quarter House" and was intensely hated by Turner. Few particulars of the tragedy have reached here, but a young man from Jellico states that Turner's head was shot full of holes. He also states that he heard that Lee Turner was mortally wounded. Lee Turner was running a saloon at LeFollette, Tenn. He intended going on the stage in a reproduction of the "Quarter House" battle. John Turner leaves a wife and three children. The men were cousins, but old enemies.

SIX MONTHS OF ROOSEVELT.

President Roosevelt has been in office a little more than six months. He is the fifth vice president who came into the office of president under the constitution by the death of the president regularly elected.

From present indications Mr. Roosevelt will experience as stormy a time in the presidency as that of any other vice president who succeeded to the presidential office. He is on the verge of a quarrel with the most influential members of the republican national committee.

He is always attempting to force his "policy" on the republicans in congress with the same vigor which "Andy" Johnson displayed in his attempts to enforce his reconstruction policy in opposition to the reconstruction policy of the republican congressional majority. Other vice presidents who became presidents—except, perhaps, Arthur—tried to establish personal policies different from the general policies of their predecessors and of their party.

Mr. Roosevelt had peculiar qualities of character fitting him to encounter differences between himself and great republican party leaders. He was one of the most violent and ultra professional reformers in the country. He was the representative of embodied, incarnate civil service reform.

How has he appeared in the grand stage play of national reform? His virtual removal of Pension Commissioner Evans and his appointment of Spoilsman and Carpetbagger "Ret" Clarkson to one of the most important New York offices partially answer the question.

His numerous other removals and appointments have the same sinister significance. He is working for the nomination in 1904 and is using the spoils appointments of his office to accomplish that end. But he is not an adept in spoils practice. He is an impulsive blunderer. At every spoils appointment his reform promises and pretensions are thrown up at him.

The Miles-Root and the Schley-Sampson scandals are enough to overburden any administration. Roosevelt has adopted and followed the counsel of the weakest and most malignant army and navy cliques that ever infested the two departments of the administration.

At the instance of his department pets and of personal favorites he has attempted to humiliate and degrade the greatest living American soldier and the greatest sailors who have made illustrious the pages of national history. The brutality of his methods in trying to accomplish these objects have shocked the best sentiments of the American people, to whom their national heroes are very dear.

The parting of the ways between President Roosevelt and his party in congress and in the country is not very distant. He is reaching it in a shorter time than it was reached by any other vice president called to the presidency. He is censured by the leading republican newspapers.

We may be sure that the phrase "his accidency" will soon be applied to him as it was to Tyler, Johnson and Arthur before him.

——Fuuston, we fear, will go down to history the history of freaks, of course—as the person who swam the Bag-bag river when it was only five feet deep and who subsequently climbed a high tree for the twofold purpose of looking down upon Senator Hoar and enabling people to see a good deal of him.—Washington Post.

BEEF TRUST AND POLITICS.

The Party in Power Forced to Move Against an Iniquity of Its Own Fostering.

Republican attorney generals at Washington and Albany have begun proceedings against the beef combine under the anti-trust laws.

This is a recognition by the representatives of the party in power that "a meatless dinner pail" would be a fatal campaign slogan, and that it cannot afford to stand for a non-enforcement of the law against monopolies, says the New York World.

So much has persistent publicity, the greatest moral force in the universe, done toward checking this most nefarious conspiracy to monopolize and enhance to extortionate prices the whole meat supply of the country.

Moved by a similar impulse, the democrats in congress have united solidly in favor of the repeal of the duties on cattle and meat.

They accept and act upon the World's sugestion that "the obvious and natural remedy for a scarcity of meat, whether actual or artificial, is to increase the supply." And one way of increasing the supply is to take down the tariff bars that now enhance the cost of beef cattle 27½ per cent, and the cost of fresh meat two cents a pound.

In taking this position the democrats are not only true to the traditional principles of their party, which are opposed to all tariffs for monopoly only, but they put themselves on record in favor of a measure of immediate and lasting relief.

It is right that lawbreaking monopolies should be punished. But it is even more important that congress shall put an end to the creation and protection of monopolies by an abuse of the power of taxation.

——Talk about cruelty in the Philippines! Think of the cruelty of muzzling Fred Funston, when he hasn't said half what he wants to!—Albany Argus.

——The "full dinner pail" pretty soon will contain hay. Meat, eggs and butter are practically excluded from it. little else that is life-sustaining is likely long to escape the trusts.—Buffolo Courier.

——Here is a straw that the republican leaders will do well to hang on to while they ponder. Representative Babcock, of Wisconsin, has the enthusiastic support of his district for a renomination, yet he is the man who wants the tariff removed from all trust-made goods. The cause of the people seems to be doing very well, thank you.—Detroit Free Press.

——There is almost nothing in the way of household supplies which has not been made dearer by the protection afforded monopolies and legislation in favor of classes. The times are supposed to be good, but the man who keeps a family on $1,000 a year finds that it will go no farther than $500 would a year ago, and its purchasing capacity is steadily decreasing. The trusts and the tariff are responsible for this.—Buffalo Courier.

——What has been accomplished with Porto Rico can be accomplished in yet larger and happier mensures with Cuba and the Philippines, if sane and humane policies toward them are substituted for present niggardliness and imperialistic oppression. The policies championed by the democratic party would speedily bring those countries into like union and like happy conditions as now exist between the states and Porto Rico.—Atlanta Constitution.

——Republican papers all over the country have been advising the people to curtail their consumption of food as a method of fighting the trusts, but what republican paper has urged the republican congress to remove the tariff on trust products? What republican paper has urged the administration to enforce the federal anti-trust law in every district throughout the United States wherever that law was being violated?—Omaha World-Herald.

SOME LUCKY FARMERS.

Money and Other Valuables That Went Astray Recovered by Illinois Tillers of the Soil.

Illinois farmers and country people have the most wonderful luck in recovering lost money, valuable papers and other articles. Names and places are given in instances of recent date when large amounts of money have been recovered.

A few weeks ago C. O. Johnson, who lives on a farm near Sycamore, discovered that he had lost $310 in money and some insurance papers. He had kept the money in a box in an upper room, and having occasion to go to the box he found it missing. He made up his mind that it had been stolen, but a part of the contents of the box was found in one of the outhouses a few days later. A portion of the money was recovered.

Within the last ten days Mrs. Mary Crowell, of Oregon, Ills., lost a $100 bill. She advertised in the Ogle County Republican for it and finally got it back by an extraordinary run of good luck. John Reed, the janitor of the Presbyterian church, gathered up a lot of stuff and threw it in the furnace, in which there was a fire. Reed thought he saw something that looked like a crisp note and jerked it out of the furnace before it was ablaze. In the dim light he took it to be a dollar bill, but when he got near a lamp he found it worth 100 times that much. He took it over to Mrs. Crowell, who promptly gave him a tenth of it.

Theodore Rossow, a German farmer living near Bloomington, went into town one afternoon recently, and it was on Friday, too. Rossow drew $500 from the bank. It was in crisp bills and he slipped the whole of it in a large envelope. Then he went to the hitching post where he had left his horse and buggy, and did an unheard of thing. He took the envelope out of his pocket and shoved it, money and all, under the seat cushion. He had some more errands to do, and when he got back to the hitching post the animal, buggy, money and all was gone. After looking all over town for his rig, he applied to the police, who joined in the search. In an hour or two a stray horse and buggy were reported in a remote section of the town, and Rossow's turnout was there discovered. A search under the seat cushion disclosed the envelope with its valuable contents.

Within the last month a farmer living near Sterling sold some farm products for which he was paid a sum of money considerably over $1,000 in cash. It was late in the evening, the banks were closed, and the man was afraid to keep the money in his house. During the afternoon he had killed a calf, which he intended to ship to South Water street in the morning. The carcass was hanging in the shed, and wrapping the money in an old newspaper he secreted it inside the carcass and went to bed. The next morning the old man overslept himself, and by the time he was well awake he found that his hired man had shipped the calf to Chicago and the money went along. The farmer got aboard of the first train and landed in South Water street on the same day, soon finding the commission man to whom it had been shipped. He found the carcass and inside was the package of bills.—Chicago Tribune.

PAINTING FARM BARNS.

The first coat of paint may be put on the siding intended for a barn in a fraction of the time it usually takes, by piling up the siding as here illustrated. Paint six boards at a time, slide them to the farther side, then six more, and so on.

When one row is completed, three strips of siding are laid on the row of boards at right angles to allow the air to circulate between the different layers. As much surface can be gone over in this way in one day as could be done in three days when the siding is nailed on the barn, besides, if the boards are matched and beaded, the paint can be rubbed into every crevice much more thoroughly than where the painter stands on a ladder.—P. J. Rohr, in Orange Judd Farmer.

Milk Must Be Cooled Quickly.

In cooling milk the work should be done rapidly. It is not enough to set the cans in cold air; they should be set in cold water. Anything cools more rapidly in cold water than in cold air, for the reason that the air is to a considerable extent a non-conductor. Water absorbs very rapidly heat from any object placed in it. If it is desired to have the milk cool in a very short time it should be stirred after it has been in the cold water for some time, as the milk at the sides of the can will be quite cold while that in the middle of the can will be still hot.—Farmers' Review.

POINTS FOR BUILDERS.

Many people in the rural districts cannot always engage a regular carpenter to build a house or barn, but often a handy man with tools can do considerable work if he only has a few rules to work from. These illustrations represent the roof of a building 24 feet wide.

FIG. 1 ¼ PITCH

Fig. 1 is what is known as one-half pitch, one-half the height of width, and if a hip roof is wanted the rafter would be 20 feet and six inches long.

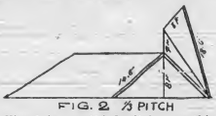

FIG. 2 ⅜ PITCH

Fig. 3 is one-quarter pitch, one-fourth the width.

Roofs can be put on any building if the above rules are followed. House rafters should be two feet from centers, including partitions. To know how much sheathing is wanted, get the surface foot of exterior and roof, and the same rule applies for siding, only it will be necessary to add one-fifth more for lap and waste. Also, add one-fifth more to floor to make good tongue and groove and waste. All floor beams should be 16 inches from centers, the same as studding.

One bunch of lath containing 100 lath will cover a space one foot high and 60 feet long. Seven pounds of lath nails will lay ten bunches of lath. One barrel of lime will cover 25 yards of plaster, two coats. One load of sand will mix one barrel of lime. One thousand shingles will cover 144 square feet if laid five and one-half inches to the weather. One keg of shingle nails will lay 10,000 shingles.

To build a stairs properly, have the well hole not less than one foot shorter than the height of ceiling, and to get the height of stairs, measure from floor to floor and see how many steps it will take to reach the second floor if they were seven and one-half or eight inches high. Never have them over eight and one-half inches high. Steps should be ten inches wide. Stairs two feet ten inches are a good width. Estimate no less than $12 for each and every door and window, with casings and trimmings complete.—John F. Lape, in Farm and Home.

FARM TELEPHONES.

That They Are Multiplying in All Parts of the Country Is a Pleasing Sign of Progress.

Some of our readers have lately mentioned in letters the convenience of the telephone. They save many a long, hard drive in the cold. One farmer arranges to go to the post office, to the store or neighboring village or railway station for the neighborhood and so a half day's work or more is saved to man, for men and animals. It is economy in time, in wear and tear of carriage, in the exposure and use of horses, and in ways too numerous to catalogue.

But one of the chief uses of the farm telephone, as we conceive it, is in its social benefits. It brings the people in touch. What one knows of importance can be known by all. If there is a farmers' institute, a lecture, a meeting of the lodge or grange, a party or social event of any kind, the fact is easily communicated. This gives a real, live, friendly social touch. You are no longer an isolated family, left out in the cold; you belong to a community. You are not withering away or rusting out in a rural or pioneer home, but you are in healthful contact with those who sympathize with you and are ready to lend a helping hand if you need it. You may not need it, but the knowledge that you can have it and that you are a living part of a modern, civilized, Christian community is a source of comfort and of equanimity which has its own value.

Dollars and cents do not make up the whole of life. Why do Americans flock to the cities? One reason is that they feel the need of the social contact and the various privileges which come from community life. If our wives and daughters will be made happier, if the killing isolation can be overcome and our families be brought more into organic connection with the great live world, it would be worth more when a life's history is written than anything that can be computed in money.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

Poor country roads are given as cause of agricultural depression in testimony before the industrial commission. The farmer is at a disadvantage in the market, and the cost of carrying on his work and delivering his produce is greatly increased, thus lessening the profits which rightfully belong to him. Fortunately there is a distinct movement in favor of better roads, not only in the north and west, but in the middle states and south.

REALITIES OF LIFE.

He Says the City Is Composed of Ghosts—Tells What Constitutes the Real Things—All Visible Things Are But Signs.

At the People's church in Chicago Rev. Frank Crane recently preached a sermon from the subject "The Realities." He took for his text the following:

"For we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."—II. Cor. 4:18.

Have you ever seen a city? Have you ever seen the great city of Chicago? As you enter it upon the railway train you behold miles and miles of cars standing upon interminable tracks that cover the earth like strands of a gigantic cobweb; you behold huge grain elevators, modern pyramids to the glory of commerce; factories, whose myriad windows make them look like thousand-eyed monsters. You walk the streets and gaze up at great office buildings, each containing a restless cityful of people. You listen to the din in the streets, the rush of elevated trains, the clang of cable cars, the rattle of wagons, the inchoate cry of newsboys and venders, all melting into a mighty roar as of a huge cataract. But—have you seen the city?

No! for the city is composed essentially of ghosts, invisible, intangible, soundless. The city is the wrestling place of souls. If you could see them! They are hoping, fearing, praying; some are drowning their tattered sensibilities in wine; some are growing straight, sweet, fragrant as a lily; some of them have faces like horrid devilfish, moving in fierce ugliness; they are despairing, rejoicing. If you could see these invisible flames we call souls you would perceive them running together sometimes in strange mixture of fires, making conflagrations we call a panic, a strike, a revival of religion.

You read in this Bible that no man hath seen God at any time: I say unto you that no man hath seen a city at any time. For the reality is always invisible, silent.

Have you ever seen a home? Yonder is a house that is called a home. Its walls are of granite, there are French windows, Persian rugs, lace curtains, food imported from every clime, beds of carved mahogany, draped with silk and spread with fine linen—Do these things constitute a home? No; for I have been in the parlor and found it a human cold storage vault; in the dining-room the inmates poison themselves day after day upon suspicion and estrangement; in the beautiful beds all night long there toss wretched creatures who look now at the ghost of dead desire grinning at the head of the bed, and now look and listen at the raven of despolled love that sits and croaks at the foot of the bed.

Where is the real home? It is where heart's ease is. It is not where we lay off our clothes, but where we lay off our cares. The walls of a real home are not built of granite, but of truth and loyalty. Unpleasant sounds, the friction of living, are not deadened by rugs laid on polished floors, but by forbearance, by patience. The curtains that screen the sacred household gods from the eyes of the curious are not of lace, they are woven of discretion. The food in the real home is not meat and drink, but unselfishness and thoughtfulness; these sustain love. The bed is not prepared with down and damask, but with "a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man." The light of the real home is not the sun by day nor the electric globe by night, but it is love, shining always in dear eyes, burning always in true hearts, clear and lambent, unextinguished by any gusts of passion or misfortune. Peace and security are not there because of an insurance policy, but because of a simple faith in the good God who watches over Israel and neither slumbers nor sleeps. You cannot see this kind of a home unless you look at the things which are not seen and are eternal.

Did you ever see a man? Many a specimen of the genus homo, Carlyle's forked radish, walks about who is not a man. It takes more than whiskers and clothes to make a man. If you would make a man upon God's plan you must first take as the fundamental ingredient, courage; courage to do his work faithfully, through all discouragement; then, patience to go on through defeat; then, strength to stand always for principle and to despise policy; then, largeness of heart, so that he may do no mean thing; then, gentleness to the erring; then, loyalty to friends and fairness to foe; and last of all, you must make him to be a good friend with God. Such a man may be a hunchback, blind, deaf, deformed, yet will he be a man.

Did you ever have the good fortune, when you were a boy, to fall in love with a good woman twice your own age? Such was my good fortune. She was very homely; her complexion was bad, her mouth was screwed around to the side of her face, her hair was red—not a Titian red, but an offensive red. I was 15 and she was 35. She was a school teacher. She talked to me as an equal and made my studies glow with an enthusiasm for knowledge. So when I came to know her I found out that after all she was beautiful. There are so many women with beautiful faces and common souls that it is a rare pleasure to meet with a woman with a common face and a beautiful soul.

Old Dr. Samuel Johnson, the great mogul of English literature, was a massive and heroic spirit; yet what a body was he housed in! Here is what Boswell says of him:

"When at table he was totally absorbed in the business of the moment; his looks seemed riveted to his plate; nor would he, unless when in very high company, say one word, or even pay the least attention to what was said by others, till he had satisfied his appetite, which was so fierce, and indulged with such intentness, that while in the act of eating the veins of his forehead swelled, and generally a strong perspiration was visible."

Again Boswell says:

"While talking, or even musing as he sat in his chair, he commonly held his head to one side, toward his right shoulder, and shook it in a tremulous manner, moving his body backward and forward, and rubbing his left knee in the same direction with the palm of his hand. In the intervals of articulating he made various sounds with his mouth; sometimes as if ruminating, or what is called chewing the cud, sometimes giving a half-whistle, sometimes making his tongue play backward and forward from the roof of his mouth, chuckling like a hen, and sometimes protruding it against his upper gums in front, as if pronouncing under his breath, too, too, too, all this accompanied sometimes with a thought look, but more frequently with a smile. Generally when he had concluded a period in the course of a dispute, by which time he was a good deal exhausted by vociferation, he used to blow out his breath like a whale."

Your manners may be prefect, and you may have none of these obnoxious traits, and yet you may be much less a real man than Samuel Johnson.

This same Dr. Johnson believed in ghosts and went to many spirit rapping performances, hoping to see one. Yet the streets of London were full of ghosts. All men are really ghosts, more or less alive.

This life is like a stage. The players come into the theater, put on their costumes, act their part, and go away. We enter upon this life, from whence we know not; we depart we know not whither. While we are here we put on our costumes of clay, the same old clay that the red Indians wore who roamed these prairies in primeval days, even the same clay that the birds and animals used. Are we so stupid as to call this costume-clay, this play actor's make-up, a man? No man hath seen a man at anytime. Men are invisible, eternal; the things which are seen are temporal.

All visible things are but symbols of some unseen reality. There is a building, you call a courthouse. It is but a flag, a sign that stands for a certain idea in the human mind called justice, or law. Take that idea out of that mind and before a month is over men will begin to take down the courthouse stone from stone, and arrange it to express another idea. Your church building is but a word of stone and brick to express the invisible idea of worship. Your schoolhouse is but a mark to indicate the idea of education. Eliminate the thought of worship and education from the human mind and straightway churches and schoolhouses will be transformed into livery stables and packing houses.

If this be true of the ordinary things about us, how much more true it is of the stupendous framework we call the universe! The visible universe is also a sign; God is the reality; stars and worlds constitute His garment, sometime to be laid aside outworn. Addison sings of the sun, moon and stars, giving voice to God:

> "What though in solemn silence all
> Move round this dark terrestrial ball?
> What though no real voice nor sound
> Among the spheres be found?
> In reason's ear they all rejoice
> And utter forth a glorious voice,
> Forever singing as they shine:
> 'The hand that made us is divine.'"

How can there be those who say that this world is without a mind to move it and control it? How can men not believe in the spiritualities? I would rather believe all the fables of mythology, all the stories in Grimm's fairy tales, and all the childish crudities of the superstitions ages past. I would rather make my soul a highway of spooks, and suspect the existence of elves, gnomes, hobgoblins and witches, than to believe the horrid lie that there is no reality but mud, or to believe that dead matter can secrete ideas of beauty, of nobility and of God.

All true greatness lies in the invisible world. It is of ideas, not of things. Your real stature is measured by what you are and what you think, and not by what you possess. Ideas alone are worth while. We sometimes say: "That is only an idea," as if an idea were some small thing and the reality were something greater. A young man once came to Joseph Pulitzer, of the New York World, applying for a position. "What can you do?" said Mr. Pulitzer. "I do not know," answered the young man. "I am a graduate of Harvard. I have nothing but ideas." "Ideas! Ideas!" exclaimed Mr. Pulitzer, dropping his pen and throwing up his hands. "That is just what I am looking for. I will give you a salary of $5,000 a year if you will give me one idea by which I can increase the circulation of the World a hundred thousand copies!" Then the young man came to himself and realized that he did not have so many ideas after all.

If you have something in your mind, some greatness in your heart, never fear, but all visible things will rush to your aid that you may express it. The ancients had a fable that the city of Thebes was built by Orpheus playing upon his lute. This is more than a fable. All things are built so. Here is this house in which we are. How did it come into existence? I will tell you. Once an invisible spirit had an invisible, intangible thought — just a thought, an airy nothing, such stuff as dreams are made of. But the thought made the man sit down and draw his plans upon a paper, which might be called the musical score. The thought kept singing, and in response to its notes trees fell in the forest, they were sawed and planed and polished; rocks came crawling from the quarries; iron arose from the bowels of the earth; brick and mortar came also; all these found their places, shaping themselves in orderly array until at last this building was the result. Schelling was right when he called architecture "frozen music."

You have heard much of heresy, and are inclined to favor the heretic; but after all the heretic is a wicked person. I am opposed to heretics. Yet I must draw the true line between the orthodox and the heretic. The sheep should be separated from the goats. And this is the line of demarcation: namely: Do you believe that the visible or the invisible is the reality? Which do you believe in, brain or mind, soul or body? Do you believe that conscience is merely "the accrued caution of foregoing generations," or do you believe that it is the divine spark from the altar of God? Listen to the cry of Carlyle:

"Has the word duty no meaning? Is what we call duty no messenger and guide, but a false, earthly fantasm, made up of desire and fear, or emanations from the gallows and from Dr. Graham's celestial bed? Foolish word-monger and motive-grinder, that in thy logic-mill hast an earthly mechanism for the godlike itself, and wouldst fain grind me out virtue from the husks of pleasure—I tell thee Nay! Is the heroic inspiration we call virtue but some bubble of the blood, bubbling up in the direction others profit by? What, then, are the terrors of conscience to the diseases of the liver? Not on morality, but on cookery, let us build our stronghold, and there, brandishing our frying pan as censer, let us offer sweet incense to the devil, and live at ease upon the good things he has provided for his elect."

Do you believe that love is but a refinement of fleshly desire, or do you believe that it will live on when all flesh has perished, that it will live eternally instinct with God's own life? This shall test your orthodoxy. Do you believe that patriotism, honor, truth, self-sacrifice and goodness belong to the same category as chills and fever? If you do you are a heretic. Do you believe that a woman is a beautiful beast, or does Wordsworth touch you when he calls her "a spirit, yet a woman, too?" To you is the universe a dense reality, brutally fixed, vulgarly undeniable, and is God but a theory by which to explain it; or is God to you the one truth and all the universe is expression? By this I shall know whether you be heretical or orthodox.

More than this, I shall know by this whether you be living or dead, for the apostle tells us that they who do mind the things of the flesh are not alive. "To be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." One of the most striking books in current fiction is "The Story of Goesta Berling," by the Swedish writer, Selma Lagerioef. The hero of her story is a priest who had been dismissed from his church for drunkenness. After wandering around for some time, steadily descending to the most disreputable extremes, he lies down to die in a snowdrift. He is rescued by the major's wife of Ekeby, a peculiar old woman of strong character. She takes him to an inn. When he comes to his senses and has been warmed and fed, she tries to induce him to abandon his purpose of suicide.

She offered him a life of idleness and pleasure, but he answered that he must die. Then she struck the table with her clinched fist and let him hear what she thought of him. "So you want to die, that's what you want. That would not surprise me, if you were alive. Do you think that you have to lie stiff and stark with a coffin lid nailed down over you to be dead? Don't you believe that I stand here and see how dead you are, Goesta Berling? I see that you have a skull for a head, and it seems to me as if the worms were creeping out of the sockets of your eyes. Do you not feel that your mouth is full of dust? Do you not hear how your bones rattle when you move? You have drowned yourself in brandy, Goesta Berling, and you are dead.

"Thousand devils!" she said, and laughed softly to herself. "It is true, what I am saying, that I myself thought. Don't you believe, Goesta Berling, that most of the people in this world are dead, or half dead?"

The major's wife, of Ekeby, and the Apostle Paul spoke the same truth. There is a death in life that is more horrid than the death that is simply going out from this life. It is the death where the spirit is stifled by the body or by the material things of the world. Are such dead spirits before me this morning? If there be such, let me cry out to them in the thunder tones of the Son of God: "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live again."

The life is more than meat, just as the body is more than raiment. Do not forget the invisible realities. Do not let the clouds obscure your vision nor the din of things destroy your hearing. Think of the realities. Think of them, parents, as you care for your children's clothes, and neglect not your children's lives. You mend their stockings, but do you repair their spoiled ideas? You provide food for their stomachs, but do you provide food for their craving spirits? You wish to leave lands and tenements, things which, ridiculously enough, you call "real estate," so that they may be provided for when you die; but do you think to leave them honor and truth and good character?

And think of this to your comfort, O mother, as you lay away the form of your beloved child in the grave. You have passed through your hour of trial. You have cried out without music, hoarse and discordant grief. You have reproached God and turned with bitterness upon the world. But you forget the realities. It is not you child that is laid away in the ground. That is just the clay clothes the child wore for awhile; your have put them away in God's wardrobe for other children to use in the generations to come; but your child lives on, beautiful, natural, real. When your time shall come you, too, shall step out from the confusion of things into the clear light of the realities. "For now we see as in a glass, darkly, but then face to face; now we know in part, but then we shall know even as also we are known."

Peculiar to Itself.

This applies to St. Jacobs Oil used for fifty years. It contains ingredients that are unknown to any one but the manufacturers and their trusted employees. Its pain killing properties are marvellous, as testified to by the thousands of once crippled human beings now made well and free from pain by its use. St. Jacobs Oil has a record of cures greater than all other medicines. Its sales are larger than those of any other proprietary medicine and ten times greater than all other embrocations, oils and liniments combined, simply because it has been proved to be the best.

Weak and Sickly Children

Who, perhaps, have inherited a weak digestion, continually subject to stomach troubles, loss of flesh and general weakness, can be made healthy and strong by the use of Vogeler's Curative Compound. Every doctor who is at all up-to-date will say that Vogeler's Curative Compound will make the blood pure and rich, bring colour to the cheeks, and put on flesh where health demands it. Children who have been weak and sickly since birth should be treated with small doses of Vogeler's Curative Compound, from two to five drops, twice daily, most satisfactory results will follow. It is the best of all medicines, because it is made from the formula of a great living physician.

Boston Is Unique.

A Chicagoan had been taken around Boston all day to observe her bulwarks, but had failed to observe any of those symptoms of paralysis which are acceptable to the Bostonian mind. "Now confess," said the Bostonian host, after the burden and heat of the day, "isn't Boston a unique town?" "Unique," mused the westerner, "I believe that word is derived from two Latin words, unus, one, and equus, horse. I think Boston is a unique town."—Chicago Chronicle.

These trains are run special, in charge of an excursion manager, whose sole duty is to look after the comfort of the passengers, arrange hotel accommodations and see that they are afforded every opportunity to view the various points of interest without being subjected to any extortionate charges. By selecting a day so far in advance, they are enabled to give the best of accommodations without the services of an experienced guide for not more than one-third of the usual rates. These trips are recommended for ladies and children, who can depend upon every care and protection, even more than they would get from their own male relatives while with the excursion party. It offers all the advantage of a co-operative outing. Small parties or clubs of fifteen or more can, by notifying us in advance, be located in one car, and have their rooms adjoining, securing almost complete privacy, if desired.

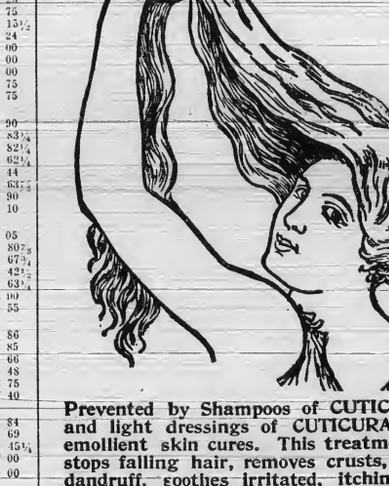
Mrs. Eckis Stevenson of Salt Lake City Tells How Operations For Ovarian Troubles May Be Avoided.

MRS. ECKIS STEVENSON.



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with inflammation of the ovaries and womb for over six years, enduring aches and pains which none can dream of but those who have had the same experience. Hundreds of dollars went to the doctor and the druggist. I was simply a walking medicine chest and a physical wreck. My sister residing in Ohio wrote me that she had been cured of womb trouble by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and advised me to try it. I then discontinued all other medicines and gave your Vegetable Compound a thorough trial. Within four weeks nearly all pain had left me; I rarely had headaches, and my nerves were in a much better condition, and I was cured in three months, and this avoided a terrible surgical operation."—Mrs. ECKIS STEVENSON, 250 So. LOCAL NEWS.

The many old friends and acquaintances of Mr. Abel Carpenter, of Florence, will be rejoiced to learn that his mental troubles have disappeared.

Our friend John L. Vest, and disciple of Blackstone, with place of business at Independence, Kenton county, was in town last Friday, delving into some ot the old and almost forgotton records in the county clerk's office.

The paragraph in this paper, last week, in regard to the last legislature and the St. Louis Fair, should have been credited to an exchange. The RECORDER thinks the legislature did the proper thing when it refused to make the $100,000 appropriation.

The 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Havinghorst, Durango, Colo., drove a burglar out of their house a few nights since. The parents were at church, when the burglar entered their house, when young Havinghorst gathered his rifle and the burglar fled without any booty. Mrs. Havinghorst was Miss Susie Kyle, of Kenton county, and is well acquainted here.

It seems that everybody but Boone county people have been informed of what the chemist reported as the result of his analysis of the contents of the stomach of Mrs. Dr. Tilley, deceased, or there has been some prevarications precepit ated upon an unsuspecting public. The RECORDER applied to the County Judge and the County Clerk immediately after the last January term of the fiscal court. for information as to what the report was, but neither of them knew.

No Loss of Time.

I have sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for years, and would rather be out of coffee and sugar than it. I sold five bottles of it yesterday to threshers that could go no farther, and they are at work again this morning.—H. R. PHELPS, Plymouth, Oklahoma. As will be seen by the above the threshers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this Remedy in your home. For sale by all Druggists.

Reveals A Great Secret.

It is often asked how such startling cures, that puzzle the best physicians, are effected by Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. Here's the secret. It cuts out the phlegm and germ infected mucus, and lets the life-giving oxygen enrich and vitalize the blood. It heals the inflamed, cough-worn throat and lungs. Hard colds and stubborn coughs soon yield to Dr. King's New Discovery, the most infallible remedy for all Throat and Lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. F. McKim's Burlington, Union Drug Store Union, J. G. Oelsner Florence, H. L. Eskew's Walton, O. N. Grant, Grant.

The Maysville Bulletin gives this as a means of exterminating cut worms: "Mr. John R. Downing says the cut worms are playing havoc with the tobacco beds in his vicinity. Saturday he did a little experimenting, with results so satisfactory to himself that he feels growers will profit by following his plan of extermination. On a bunch of newly cut clover Mr. Downing sprinkled a little paris green, which he placed under the canvass of a plant bed. During the night the worms came up and attacked the fresh clover, which soon put Mr. Cutworm out of the business. In a space about two feet square next morning was counted twenty of the dead pests. This method is a simple one, and, as Mr. Downing has discovered, is very effective. It is at least worth a trial by farmers."

The following business has been transacted in the county court since our last report:

W. E. Vest, Stephen Gaines and D. M. Hewitt were appointed to divide the dower lands of Nancy Smith among the heirs. The land lies on Woolper creek, and was a portion of the land of the late Henry Smith.

Jacob Klopp failed to qualify as overseer of roads in district No. 4, Petersburg precinct, and Orlando Snyder was appointed in his stead.

T. B. Roberts was appointed overseer of roads in district No. 1, Hamilton precinct instead of N. B. Black, who failed to quailify.

J. I. Wingate was released from payment of poll tax for last year, he being a nonresident.

On account of physical disability Chas. Cleek was released from labor on public roads.

C. E. Tanner made final settlement as administrator of Leopold Steel, and paid into court $239 04, which was turned over to S. Gaines public administrator, who was directed to have a tablet not to cost to exceed $80, erected at grave of said Steel.

May 17.—On the evening of the 15th Mr. and Mrs. Guisinger, the owners of the Jenkins' mansion, entertained about 40 of their beautiful daughter's young friends. It was a delightful affair, in fact, they never give any other kind. They are well prepared to entertain, possessing one of the handsomest and most conveniently arranged houses in the county. The mother and father are fond of society and having the experienced in city life they are prepared to entertain their guests royally. Their beautiful and charming young daughter, possesses a personality and deportment that makes her guests feel that they are heartily welcome and that she is delighted to have them. It was the first time I had seen the young ladies of our little village assembled in one room and I was impressed with the fact that Petersburg can boast of having more beautiful young ladies than any village of its size extant. The evening was delightfully spent in card playing and dancing.

John Elliston, living on M. C. Norman's place near Beaver, is the only man seen yet who has all the tobacco plants he will need, having lost none by the cutworms. In making his plant bed he set plank edgeways all around it, sowed his seed and canvassed. He does not think that he has lost a plant.

Daniel Franks, living about a mile south of the town, has found a way of utilizing the cutworm. He turned some sows and pigs in a field which had been devastated by cutworms, and had the satisfaction of seeing his swine had taken in the situation and were feeding voraciously on the worms. Mr. Franks requires very little corn as his sows and their broods appear to regard the insect fare as the greatest delicacy of the season. Clifton Botts has tried them as a bait for catfish and met with decided success. They are so tough and hard that they are not easily pulled from the hook.

As predicted in the Recorder tobacco was 1½ to 2 cents higher thau it was 10 days ago. Generally, at this time of the year tobacco men take it into their heads to make a big show of a rise in prices. They put a large quantity on the market, and good prices are bid, but very little, if any, is sold. There was a notice, a few days ago, of a bisk market, where near 300 hogsheads were on the breaks, and were bid off at good prices. The concluding sentence of the notice was, "200 rejections." The sales were mere fakes, and any man of ordinary sense can see thru it.

The many friends of Messrs. C. W. Lermond and Sleet Yarnell, respectively, will be glad to learn that Learmond is much better, altho he was so bad the first week after his arrival at Indian Springs that his case was almost despaired of and it seemed to him "that the water would tear him to pieces," but a reaction set in, pain left him and he enjoyed sleep, which had been almost a stranger to his weary eyes for weeks; the perspiration from his body was black, but he is over that now and is beginning to think he will get well. Sleet Yarnell has been using the water from the Big Bone Springs, this county, and declares that he is as well as he ever was in his life, and his usual happy, joyous look confirms the truth of what he says.

An overhead bridge of the L. & N. about 1½ miles north of town, was burned the other day in broad daylight. It was possible to have saved it. The same structure was afire last fall and was discovered by two of our citizens, who secured help from the neighbors and put out the flames by carrying buckets of water and dashing on them. Some of those who assisted in the emergency asked compensation of the railroad only to have their request ignored, and when this fire broke out the parties who had been at the first, failed to be on hand with buckets. In this connection it may be mentioned that at least one of our citizens, Bryan Campbell, keenly appreciates an object lesson financially and otherwise. After the other fire the railroad company had occasion to do some hauling through Campbell's field, and when he claimed pay for damages to same the company sent him $3. Bryan wasn't satisfied, and sued, recovering $25. As the company must do a good deal more hauling this time, Campbell demands $50 before any hauling is done, and Saturday Judge Botts deposited that amount with Esq. Conley to be paid to Mr. Campbell when the company has finished their hauling.

As items about snakes are permitted when short of other news a few are subjoined to the brief summary of news. On Monday of last week Otto Powers met and slew a spreading viper 5 feet long on Richard Jones' place after a hard battle. The reptile made a game fight and was on the offensive from first to last. On the same day Mrs. E. Holder noticing a commotion among her chickens, hurried to them, and found the same kind of a snake licking a hen egg. She hit it with a small stick she had picked up and it struck itself twice. Mrs. Holder went for a heavier weapon and upon returning found it dead. Thursday, Mr. Holder coming into dinner came upon still another large one of the same species, and soon dispatched it. This also bit itself. Happening to be there at the time, Mr. H. took me out to see it, saying it was an adder. The first glance showed that it was what is commonly called a blowing or hissing viper about 30 inches long and as large as a man's wrist. The adder is a sleuder snake and is distingulshed by white spots all over its back.

One day last week at Kensington lake some boys, who were fishing, saw a novel battle between a large watermoccasin and a black snake, which occurred in some bushes in the water near the shore. The commencement of the struggle was not observed, and when it was the black snake had its favorite hold, the neck of the moccasin in his firmly locked jaws, his body wrapping itself around his vainly struggling enemy and slowly, but surely squeezing it to death. When the black snake uncoiled the moccasin was dead. As the black snake was moving away, one of the onlookers followed and killed it. The Rev. Timothy Flint more than three generations ago described a similar battle in which the black snake held the moccasin's head under the water until it was as he thought dead.

GAYNOR AND GREENE.

Two Men Who Forfeited Their Bail, Captured in Quebec.

Quebec, May 16.—Col. John F. Gaynor and Capt. W. D. Greene, two contractors charged with fraud who forfeited their bail at Savannah early in March and fled to Canada, were placed under arrest by officers connected with the United States secret service and Chief Carpenter, of the Montreal detective force, Thursday.

The arrests were made on warrants issued in Montreal, Chief Wilkies assisting the Canadian officers to make the arrests.

The men were hurried on board of a swift little tug, which had been kept in waiting at the wharf. Ten minutes after Greene and Gaynor were safely on board the boat steamed out into the river and started toward Montreal. The officers moved so quickly that neither of the prisoners were given an opportunity to consult counsel.

When notified of her husband's arrest, Mrs. Gaynor at once consulted Mr. Techereau, her husband's attorney. A tug was chartered and an attempt was made to overtake the boat on which Gaynor and Greene were being carried away.

After a short chase it was seen by those on board the pursuing tug that it would be impossible to overtake the detectives' boat, the Spray, one of the swiftest tugs on the St. Lawrence, and the pursuit was abandoned.

On returning to the city it was decided to charter a special train and attempt to head off the Spray at some point between this city and Montreal. The arrest of Greene and Gaynor and the manner in which it was accomplished caused considerable excitement in the city, where both men have become well known.
